NEW CHICAGO P. O. ASSURED

LINK CORN BELT BILL'S FATE TO CUMMINS' VOTE

And G. O. P. Watches for '28 Portents.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—Overshadowing all other matters of political import for the moment in Washington is the Republican primary in Iowa Monday, in which Senator Albert Baird Cummins, now serving his eighteenth year in the senate, is seeking renomination for another term.

All the statesmen and politicians, Republicans and Democrats, conservatives and radicals, administration and anti-administration, but particularly senators who are also candidates for reëlection, are waiting and watching with breathless interest to see what happens to Cummins.

What if Cummins Falls?

For if Cummins, widely regarded as the grand old man of Iowa and the outstanding statesman of the senate, should go down to defeat, repudiated by his own party in his own state, at a moment when he is piloting through the senate Iowa's own plan of farm relief legislation, which he drafted last fall and which was indorsed by the Corn Belt conference—if Cummins should be rejected under such circumstances, what, logically, would be the fate of other candidates, less eminent in national councils, less entitled to home support, when they come before their constituents for renomination and reëlection this year?

Defeat of Cummins under such circumstances would be interpreted in both major parties as a harbinger of political cataclysms in the elections this year and in 1928. The prevailing view among the politicians is that if the heart of the corn belt turns down the master mind behind the corn belt bill just when passage of the measure by the senate appears more promising than ever before, the only plausible explanation would be the existence in the electorate of a spirit of blind revolt against current conditions and those now holding positions of authority.

Symptom of Western Unrest.

Senator McKinley, a dry, was defeated in Illinois chiefly because he voted for the world court. Senator Pepper, a world court supporter, was defeated in Pennsylvania chiefly beause he was not wet. Senator Stanfield was defeated in Oregon on local issues. But far more symptomatic of general political conditions would be the defeat of Cummins, the most powerful champion in congress of the farm relief legislation which the agricultural west, the traditional stronghold of the Republican party, is demanding.

On the pending bill to make farming profitable through control of the surplus and financing of the marketing operations from equalization fees assessed on production, Senator Cummins and President Coolidge are as far apart as the poles. The President regards the measure Cummins framed as a price fixing scheme and economically unsound. Mr. Coolidge and his supporters in congress will have none of it.

Cummins Formidable Foe.

But their most formidable foe is Cummins, to whom will go the chief credit if the corn belt finally succeeds in getting its bill through congress at this session. For, it is due to his powerful influence in the senate and to the wisdom born of his long experience in the mysteries of legislation that the measure now holds a favorable position in the senate and still stands a chance of enactment into law, despite the rejection of the somewhat similar Haugen bill by the house.

As a result of the counsels and influence of Cummins, the corn belt plan in the senate was attached as a rider to the coöperative marketing bill approved by the Coolidge administration and already passed by the house. If the strategy succeeds the senate will pass the house coöperative marketing bill with the rider for surplus control. Then there will be put up to the house again the proposition of accepting or rejecting the farmers' own farm relief plan.

Senator Cummins is confident that when confronted with the choice between accepting the corn belt proposition and adjourning congress on the eve of the elections without passing any farm relief legislation the house would take the senate bill.

Test of Corn Belt Spirit.

It is at this crucial stage in the movement to save the agricultural industry that Cummins comes before his constituents farmers in the main, to be indorsed or repudiated. If he wins on Monday the whole movement for legislation to protect agriculture,

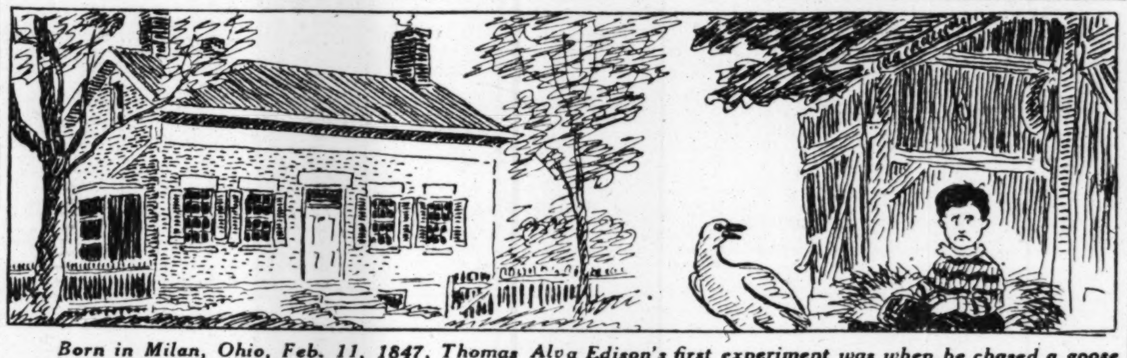
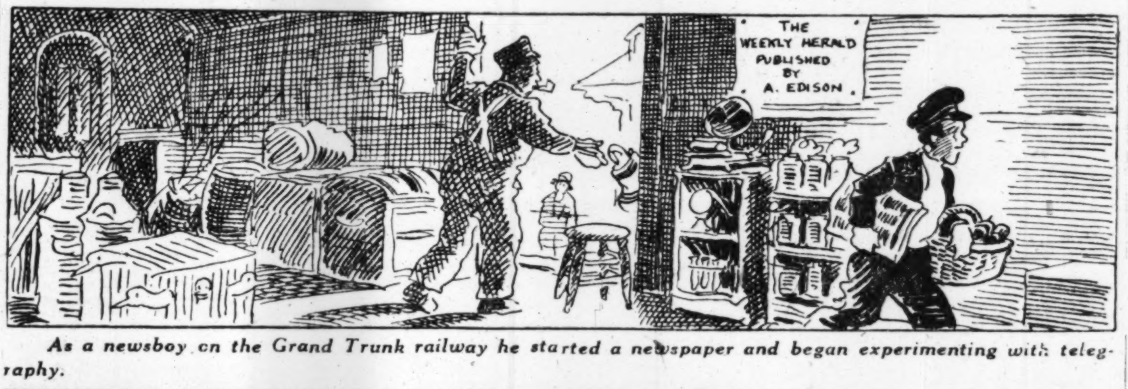
A SHORT HISTORY OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST INVENTOR

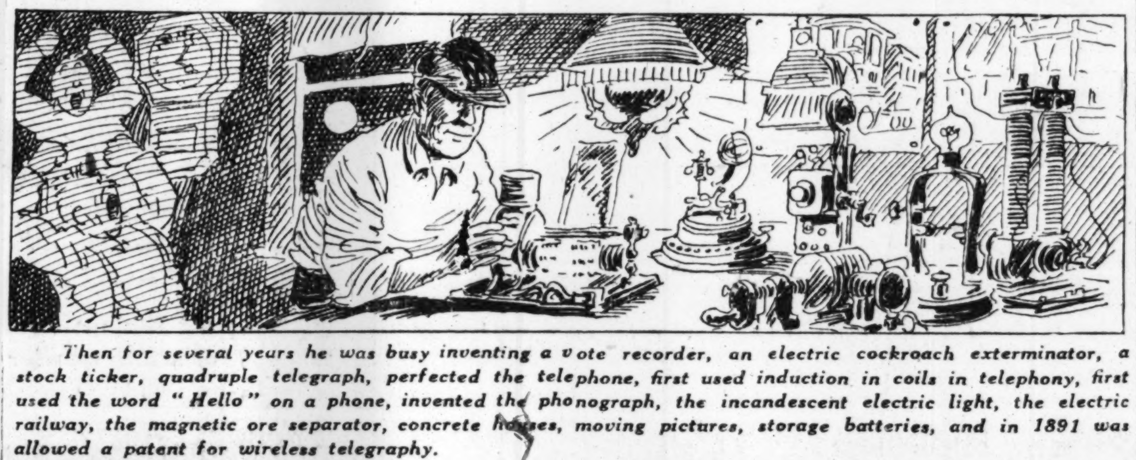


Born in Milan, Ohio, Feb. 11, 1847, Thomas Alva Edison's first experiment was when he chased a goose off her nest and tried to hatch out the eggs himself by sitting on them. History is vague as to the result of this experiment.



THE WEEKLY HERALD PUBLISHED BY A. EDISON

As a newsboy on the Grand Trunk railway he started a newspaper and began experimenting with telegraphy.



Then for several years he was busy inventing a vote recorder, an electric cockroach exterminator, a stock ticker, quadruple telegraph, perfected the telephone, first used induction in coils in telephony, first used the word "Hello" on a phone, invented the phonograph, the incandescent electric light, the electric railway, the magnetic ore separator, concrete houses, moving pictures, storage batteries, and in 1891 was allowed a patent for wireless telegraphy.

TWO BOYS DROWN; ONE IN RIVER, OTHER IN POOL

Two Chicago boys were drowned yesterday, one at a church picnic in the forest preserve near Forest Glen and the other in a swimming pool at the Sears-Roebuck Y. M. C. A. at 3210 Arthington street.

Daniel Thompson, 8 years old, 3201 Armitage avenue, slipped away from the picnic with several other lads and a little later fell down the steep bank of the north branch of the Chicago river. His 10 year old brother, Robert, plunged in and tried to save him. His effort was unsuccessful, and he, too, probably would have drowned if A. H. Wepfer, an engineer for the Northwestern railroad, had not gone to his assistance. He was unconscious when dragged out, but was revived by artificial respiration.

Alex Wolson, 13 years old, 3333 Lexington street, dived into the pool at the Y. M. C. A. building. His head struck the bottom and he was knocked unconscious, drowning before other swimmers realized his predicament.

Boy, 3, Falls on Third Rail; to Lose Hands

Strains of a hand organ, wafted to him early last evening, lured David Bazelon, 3 year old son of Jacob Bazelon, from his home in the apartment at 7634 North Marshfield avenue to the Northwestern elevated embankment near Howard street. There he stumbled and fell, with both wrists across the deadly third rail.

He was found there some minutes later by Motorman H. E. Kranthern, who stopped his train when he saw the child lying beside the rail. David was taken to St. Francis hospital, where physicians said that he will live but that both his hands must be amputated on account of the burns.

The child had been playing in front of his home with David Kopulsky, 4 years old, who lives in the same building. When the two little boys heard the strains of the hand organ floating across the tracks they tried to follow them. As the Bazelon boy fell, his playmate first tried to help him up, and when he failed, ran screaming for help.

SHOT BY FOSTER DAUGHTER AS HE SHOOTS HUSBAND

Albert Schmidt, 53 years old, 3070 Lock street, was shot twice and possibly fatally wounded last night in a pistol battle with his foster daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Palumbo, 28, in her home at 624 West 25th place.

Mrs. Palumbo called the police to inform them of the shooting, which was witnessed by her husband and Mrs. Dora Schmidt, her foster mother. The woman asserted that Schmidt had been endeavoring to force her to divorce Anthony Palumbo and that when his demand was refused he drew his revolver, shouted that he would kill them both, and started to shoot. She seized a pistol and fired twice, one bullet striking Schmidt in the neck and the other in the left arm. Schmidt adopted her twenty-three years ago.

EVELYN DENIES SHE INTENDS TO REMARRY THAW

Atlantic City, N. J., June 5.—[Special.]—Evelyn Nesbit and Harry K. Thaw are not contemplating a second marriage. Despite rumors that grew thickly today following last night's dinner at the Ambassador hotel, which was the couple's first public appearance together in fifteen years, the purpose of the meeting was not matrimony.

Miss Nesbit made that clear tonight, offering as supporting proof three points:

She is already married, having never annulled her contract with Jack Clifford, her former dancing partner.

She wants no more obligatory alliance than her present one.

Thaw does not want to marry her.

"We merely met to bury the hatchet," explained the woman about whom the scandal of a century revolved twenty years ago. "We just decided to become good friends again."

Thaw Adds His Denial.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 5.—[U. P.]—Harry K. Thaw arrived here tonight from Atlantic City, N. J., and said that while he had the most kindly feelings toward Evelyn Nesbit he had no intention of marrying again.

He seemed to consider the announcement made earlier in the evening at Atlantic City that Miss Nesbit and he planned to marry and once more live together was remarkable and not entirely serious.

Planes Collide; Pilots Bring Them Down Safely

Flint, Mich., June 5.—[Special.]—An Illinois man narrowly escaped death in the Flint air meet this afternoon when the planes of Herman Hamer, Spring Valley, Ill., and W. J. Carr, Saginaw, Mich., collided while traveling at 100 miles an hour.

The collision occurred in a 15 mile speed race. Both planes fluttered dangerously, but the pilots were able to right them and finished the race in a dead heat for third place.

$4,000,000 FOR SITE APPROVED BY TREASURY

West Side Ground Is Favored.

Chicago's dream of a new west side postoffice is about to pass through the first stage of reality.

For a decade the project has been discussed and battled over, but dispatches from Washington last night said $3,975,000 is to be made available this year for the purchase of a site.

Inquiry developed that the location may not be the one so long and, at times, so warmly discussed—the two blocks between the Union and Northwestern stations—but a single block of approximately the same ground area as those two, but two squares further south, bounded by Van Buren, Harrison, Canal and Clinton streets—practically 250,000 square feet in area.

There is a probability that the amount made available by the government for this purpose will be sufficient to purchase the property in that block. The treasury department in matters of this sort does not select the site, but asks for proposals for property within a fixed radius, and it is understood that the holdings in the new location are in such shape that much of it will be offered as soon as the government is ready to talk business.

Restricts Share of States.

Under the general public buildings omnibus bill just passed appropriating $165,000,000 for a five year construction program, $50,000,000 is to be spent in Washington, D. C. That leaves $115,000,000 that may be spent elsewhere during a similar period, with a restriction that not more than $5,000,000 may be spent in any one state in one year.

There is a further provision in the bill that before any of the money may be spent the various sums and purposes must be set up in specific appropriations. It was the announcement that Secretary Mellon will submit estimates through the budget bureau for supplemental appropriations for public buildings that disclosed the turn of the tide in favor of Chicago.

Included in the $3,975,000 for the Chicago site is an appropriation of $1,700,000 made for that purpose before the United States entered the war. It never has been used because it was never considered adequate.

Just how inadequate it was to the needs of the city was shown when the Chicago Real Estate board appraised the two blocks between the two west side railroad stations, which were held to constitute an ideal location. The board fixed the value of those two blocks at $7,141,851.

Picked by Leading Men.

This figure staggered those who had been insisting on that site. It had been indorsed by a special committee appointed by Mayor Dever, including more than a score of the leading business and professional men of the city. William R. Dawes was the general chairman, W. Rufus Abbott, chairman of the executive committee, and James Simpson, chairman of the site committee.

Although little has been heard of it recently, that committee has continued its activity and has been in close touch with Congressman Martin B. Madden, who, with considerable influence at Washington, has kept up a constant pressure for provision for Chicago's postal needs. Among this group the opinion is said to have grown that wisdom calls for the selection of the site south of Van Buren street.

The two intra-station blocks so long discussed, those between Madison and Adams streets, are short blocks. The location now proposed is a block approximately as long as those two combined. Its area is said to be sufficient for a postoffice of the size Chicago must have.

Parcel Post Station Working.

It is further argued that the immense parcel post station known as the Van Buren street station already is in this location, and experience has shown that spot is substantially as accessible as the site further north.

In addition, the more southern site is only a single block. Here there would be no need of closing a street or arching it over to house the entire post office in a single building, as would be necessary if two blocks were taken.

It was said that those who have been striving toward this goal for the last decade were much cheered by the Washington news. They are confident that once a site is obtained the treasury department and congress will not permit it to lie idle, but will feel bound to go ahead with the appropriations for the building itself.

Jail 3 Police as Burglars; 1 Confesses

Three policemen were locked in cells last night after they had been arrested and identified as burglars. They were stripped of their stars and their revolvers were taken from them as other confessed burglars pointed them out as their accomplices.

The policemen are Detective Walter W. Farrell, 336 West North avenue, assigned to the detective bureau; Policeman Philip Lorenze, 1314 West 52d street, of the First district, and Policeman John Manion, 1705 Crilly court, detailed on the Jackson boulevard bridge.

One Confesses; Two Deny It.

Manion, arrested first, confessed, his captors said, and a quantity of stolen goods was found in his home. Farrell and Lorenze denied participating in the burglaries or receiving any of the stolen property.

A search was made of Farrell's home and twenty tablecloths, several bedspreads, towels, sweaters, and baseball gloves, from which the labels had been removed, were found there. In Lorenze's home a dozen pairs of women's silk hose and five pairs of dress gloves were discoverd.

Farrell and Lorenze admitted knowing the men who branded them as burglars. These were night watchmen employed to protect the stores robbed.

Blamed for Dozen Burglaries.

The rounding up of this gang, which is believed responsible for a dozen downtown store burglaries, was accomplished by Capt. Patrick J. Harding of the Shakespeare avenue police station and Sergts. Peter Kennelly, Joseph Lally, Thomas Burns, James Shea, and William Hart.

Capt. Harding's suspicions were first directed towards Devon Blair, 3062 Davlin court, whose room he had searched Friday night. It contained a trunk full of stolen property. Blair said he had obtained it from his brother, Howard Blair, watchman for a detective agency, who was then arrested and who confessed when more stolen property was recovered in his home.

Four Watchmen Involved.

He named three other watchmen as members of the burglar gang—Alfred E. Woods, 3024 Flournoy street; Charles Baker, 1029 West Monroe street, both of whom were arrested, and F. R. (Barney) Cole, who escaped. Then he told about the city policemen aiding and sharing in the burglaries.

He faced Farrell and Lorenze and told his story in front of them. Upon the finding of the new goods in their homes Capt. Harding ordered them held as burglars.

Included in the places admittedly robbed by the gang are the Ide Shirt company, 322 South Franklin street; Ladskin & Rothschilds, 210 West Van Buren street, and the Gimbel Hat company, 306 West Jackson boulevard.

MYSTERY DEATH OF BRITON STIRS MEXICO BRITISH

Mexico City, June 5.—The mysterious death of the king's messenger, Claude Knight, has aroused the British colony. Knight, an employé of the Aguila Oil company, had been missing for several days. Friends reading in the press of the finding of the body of a foreigner with a note signed Claude Jones, became suspicious. The body, which had been hurriedly buried, was examined and found to be that of Claude Knight.

When the body was found a pistol was in the right hand, but there were no powder marks on the forehead where the bullet had entered. It was discovered that the bullet took an upward slant toward the back of the head. Friends claimed the body. The only clew to the death is the fact that Knight received a letter which caused him considerable agitation, but he refused to show it to friends.

The dead man was said to be related to a wealthy family in England.

The British colony has demanded an investigation by British detectives.

Dreaded "Sea Serpent" at Beach Proves Only Fish

St. Paul, Minn., June 5.—Canoeists and swimmers will enjoy White Bear lake hereafter without fear of arms and legs being bit off by a "sea serpent." The dreaded monster wasn't a sea serpent as the credulous believed. Nor was it an alligator. It was only a fish. The fish, a 25 pound blind pickerel, which had been bumping the bottoms of boats and brushing against swimmers who ventured far out, blundered into a hook today and was captured.

TRUDE-CROWE FEUD GOES TO C. A. M'DONALD

Ex-Judge for Pilot in Political Gale.

Neutrals along the battle lines last night looked to Charles A. McDonald, lawyer-banker, who was appointed special state's attorney yesterday, in charge of the new special grand jury, to lead the way out of the maze into which the investigations into crime, beer gangs, vote frauds, and politics apparently have fallen.

One of the most sensational, bitter, and vengeful political affrays ever waged in Chicago—a dispute in which two powerful party factions are embroiled—has seemingly arisen in the city.

Clear skies and political peace may be restored by Mr. McDonald, who has had years of past service as judge of the Appellate, Superior, and Criminal courts.

Inquiry Into Vote Charges.

Former Judge McDonald was selected by Chief Justice Thomas J. Lynch to assume absolute control over the activities of the special grand jury. Summoned at the request of State's Attorney Crowe, the jury is to inquire into the charges of Municipal Judge Daniel P. Trude in his petition for a vote recount against Joseph P. Savage and into the good faith of those charges of criminality, and is to embrace in the inquiry a general sifting of all the maze of bitter invective hurled by the warring chieftains of politics.

After receiving the appointment Mr. McDonald issued this statement:

"This is a complete surprise to me. The first I heard of it was from Judge Lynch, some time after the appointment was made. Judge Lynch urged me strongly to accept, stating I could render a public service. I promised him to consider the matter very carefully and give him a reply on Monday."

Both Parties Enmeshed.

Principal among the political warrior bands are the two Republican factions, the Crowe-Barrett group, which was victorious in the recent primary, and the Deneen cohorts, who, with Small-Lundin support, garnered in nominations for only a few unimportant offices.

The Democratic party is enmeshed also, for the Republican battle has been enlivened with charges of bipartisanism, the Crowe-Barrett leaders being accused of a combine with George E. Brennan, big boss of the Jeffersonians, and the Deneen group receiving aid and comfort from Democrats, including County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki and Superior Judge Michael L. McKinley.

And so the mud slinging goes on.

H. E. Kelly Assails Crowe.

Harry Eugene Kelly, leading counsel for Judge Trude and president of the Union League club, who was specifically criticized by the jury, set the ball rolling by issuing a press statement broadside against State's Attorney Crowe.

Challenging the state's attorney to appoint him a special prosecutor, with his own special grand jury, Mr. Kelly said: "I will find out who murdered William H. McSwiggin, Mr. Crowe's assistant, and why; and I will find out who is protecting these beer runners, and why; and I will find out why the state's attorney's office is utterly incompetent; and I will . . . etc."

The Prosecutor's Reply.

Mr. Crowe replied in this wise:

"If Mr. Harry Eugene Kelly is anxious to be state's attorney I would advise him to be a candidate at the next election, but I suspect that he is merely looking for publicity and to acquaint the people with the fact that he is licensed to practice law, which was generally unknown even among the members of the bar until he generously offered to take over the duties of the duly elected prosecutors.

"Mr. Kelly was a witness before the grand jury and had an opportunity to give any evidence or information or suggestions which he possessed. He had none to offer.

"I have offered a $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Mr. McSwiggin's slayers, and the offer is open to Mr. Kelly, who in the past has been a solicitor for public subscriptions and ought to be interested."

Kelly Approves McDonald.

When Mr. Kelly heard of the appointment of McDonald as special prosecutor he said: "I have always had the highest opinion of Judge McDonald and would not say anything to reflect upon him.

"But I don't understand why a grand jury should be called to investigate a civil suit. Judge Trude's election contest is a civil action, and I don't see why the county should pay the expense of Mr. Crowe's defense."

Chief Justice Lynch named Mr. McDonald the special prosecutor after he heard word from Joseph P. Mahoney, who had been named for the task, that he found it necessary to stay in California for some time and could not serve.

Notable Record on Bench.

Thirteen years of service on the Superior court bench, during which time he served as chief justice of the Criminal court and as judge of the Appellate court, is the record of Mr. McDonald, the new special prosecutor, who resigned from the bench two years ago last November to become vice president of the Foreman Trust and Savings bank, a position he now holds.

Among the famous cases Judge McDonald heard were the Black Sox baseball scandal, which led to the cleaning up of the professional game, and the so-called Lundin trial, in which a number of benchmen of the Thompson administration were defendants and were acquitted.

During one year in the Criminal court he committed 489 prisoners to penal institutions.

Mr. McDonald is now 61 years old. He is a Democrat and has been a resident of the north side for many years. He first was elected to the bench in 1910, and was returned by large majorities in 1916 and 1922.

Gratified by Colvin Action.

While the officials were struggling through the storm and strife, making plans for continuing the search for the murderers of Prosecutor McSwiggin, general satisfaction was expressed at the achievement of Attorney General Carlstrom in securing the removal from office of Will Colvin, chairman of the state pardon and parole board, scheduled to go within thirty days.

Colvin was the central figure in the parole scandal, unearthed by the special grand jury, and was accused of misconduct by numerous witnesses.

His retirement from state service was announced late Friday by Attorney General Carlstrom, both to the grand jury and publicly, after he had held a conference with Gov. Small, solicited by the governor.

Gov. Small yesterday refused to state definitely that Colvin was to be forced out. While withholding a direct statement on Colvin's status, the governor, interviewed at his home in Kankakee, admitted he had Colvin's resignation in his possession and that he was considering a successor.

Colvin, in his office at Springfield, would not comment on Attorney General Carlstrom's announcement, but his associates were confident that Colvin would weather the storm, which observers took to strengthen the assertions that Colvin was reluctant to go and was being forced out.

Colvin Offered Resignation.

"Weeks ago Will Colvin came to me and said he was ready to step out of office," Gov. Small said. "He told me at the time that I could consider I had his resignation, and that he was ready to quit at any time. Colvin said that he had tried hard to perform his duties in a conscientious manner, but that if he was in the way he was ready to quit.

"I have not considered any one for Mr. Colvin's place at this time. His position is a difficult one to fill, and I am not prepared at this time to say who will be appointed in Mr. Colvin's post should I decide to make a change."

Regrets Whitman's Ouster.

The governor added a significant statement regarding John L. Whitman, the warden he ousted from Joliet penitentiary.

"I regret that Whitman was forced to leave," Small said. "He was an honest man, but sometimes men remain too long in one position. In Whitman's case I think the inmates got the best of him."

Whitman, when he testified before the Cook county special grand jury, said that convicts with money or political power could easily buy paroles from the penitentiary. Whitman also condemned Colvin and Chauncey H. Jenkins, director of public welfare, and declared both had spurned his repeated pleas for reformation of the dishonest policies of the parole board.

McSwiggin's Name Cleared.

In discussing the report of the special grand jury Attorney General Carlstrom emphasized the fact that Prosecutor McSwiggin's errand to Cicero the night he was killed, and the fact that he was in company with a notorious gangster he had once prosecuted for murder, was fully and satisfactorily explained.

"McSwiggin's name should be cleared of the foul and unmanly suggestions that he was engaged in friendly intercourse with James Doherty, the beer runner," Attorney General Carlstrom said. "From a score of witnesses we heard irrefutable proof that McSwiggin's sole errand that night was to regain for Al Dunlap, a business man with a high reputation, a vest which had been stolen by Doherty.

"Court records, Dunlap, Chief of Detectives Schoemaker, a private investigator, even the two gangsters, Klondyke and Myles O'Donnell, and others all bore positive proof that McSwiggin's mission was honorable. That fact should be emphasized."

The fireworks should be set off tomorrow, when Judge Lynch will impanel the special grand jury. On the following day Judge Trude's sensational petition accusing the Crowe-Barrett forces of gross political crimes will come up before Judge McKinley.

MAKES PUMPING UP TIRES UNNECESSARY.

Chicago, Ill.—F. E. Hughes, Suite 111-E, 424 N. Homan Ave., of this city, has perfected a new air-tight valve cap that enables auto owners to pump up their tires once and never touch them again until punctured or worn out. Leading tire manufacturers, after thorough tests, have approved Mr. Hughes' invention and banished the old theory that air escapes through rubber. One inflation lasts the life of a tire, and tire mileage is doubled. These caps retail for $1.25 for set of five. The inventor wants agents and will send proof and sample Free. Write him today.—Adv.

POLICEMAN SHOT BY MOON SELLER IN EVIDENCE RAID

Comrade's Bullet Brings Down Assailant.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Luther Cage, murder, sentenced to the penitentiary for from one year to life, by Judge Emanuel Eller.

Henry Noble, robbery, sentenced to one year in the Bridewell by Judge William V. Brothers.

Policeman Michael A. Madigan, 3130 Arthington street, assigned to vice and liquor duty in the Deering street district, was shot three times and dangerously wounded late yesterday by James Beninato, while searching for liquor in the latter's soft drink parlor at 2734 South Union avenue.

Beninato, after shooting Madigan twice in the head and putting another bullet in his back, was shot through the mouth and slightly wounded by Madigan's partner, Policeman Michael Connaughton. Both the wounded officer and the saloonkeeper were taken to the Peoples' hospital. There Madigan identified Benianto as the man who shot him, and the latter was given first aid before being taken to the Deering street station for questioning.

Known as Fearless Officer.

Madigan, although only 25 years old and but four years on the force, has won the reputation of being one of the city's most courageous policemen. He was awarded the THE TRIBUNE's $100 monthly bravery prize for January, 1925, for shooting one and arresting three members of a hi-jacking gang, the group including Jules Portuguese, known both as a strongarm man and a diamond thief.

According to the version of the shooting given at the Deering street station, Madigan and Connaughton had been assigned for some time to liquor duty in the district, and had been for weeks trying to catch Beninato selling moonshine.

Late yesterday afternoon they went to his supposed soft drink parlor at 2724 South Union avenue. Both officers were in plain clothes. Madigan told his partner to go in, purchase a drink of whisky, and then signal him by tapping on the window.

Fired on from Rear.

Soon Madigan heard his partner's tap, tap, tap on the pane, and he rushed in. As the policeman came, Beninato retreated towards his living quarters in the rear. Madigan followed, and as he started searching, according to Madigan, Beninato stood sullenly by.

As Madigan bent over in a cupboard to reach for some bottles of liquor he had discovered, the saloonkeeper fired suddenly from behind. The bullet struck Madigan in the back, and as he was falling Beninato fired twice more, both bullets entering the officer's head.

Connaughton then rushed in from the front and fired five times at Beninato, one of the shots entering the latter's mouth and coming out through the jaw.

Beninato, after being taken to the station, said he fired because he didn't know the two men were policemen. He asserted he thought they were robbers.

Madigan was married only last December. Beninato is the father of ten children ranging in age from 19 years down to 2 months. Beninato's wife and most of the children were away from home when the shooting occurred. A girl, Mary, 15 years old, who was there at the time, was taken to the station where she was questioned by Capt. Michael Hughes of the Deering street district, Chief of Detectives Schoemaker, and Deputy Chief John Stege.

N. Y. EXCHANGE HEAD "BUSIEST MAN IN WORLD"

[Copyright: 1926: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, June 5.—The confession by E. Harriman Simmons, president of the New York stock exchange, that he works fourteen hours a day has greatly intrigued the London press, which has termed him the "busiest man in the world."

"I have come to London for a holiday," he told interviewers, "but when you come to the greatest international financial center of the world, which London certainly is, you are nearly tempted to study the methods adopted here.

"We have a lot of financial problems in New York. They have arisen out of the war and our position in international affairs. I feel that in facing them we can learn a lot from the way Britain has solved and is solving her post-war problems."

And so "the busiest man in the world" is busier than ever on his holiday, which he has spent to date in haunting "the city," as London's Wall street district is called.

DISCOVERY TO REVOLUTIONIZE POWER, HE SAYS

PARIS, June 5.—Prof. Charles Henry, the French scientist, reports a discovery which, it is predicted, will revolutionize economic production throughout the world if it can be applied.

Ten years of ceaseless research labor has been rewarded, it is said, with the revelation of the secrets of the physical laws governing catalysis, or the production of energy through the decomposition of bodies by extreme cold.

According to the professor, it is now a mere matter of time and a question of making the necessary calculations in order to catalyse water and build a water driven internal combustion engine, or to catalyse any other body to transform the forces produced into energy to drive machinery.

Retiring ten years ago to a little country cottage hidden away in the heart of the forest of Chantilly, where no sound of the outside world could distract him, the scientist worked day and night in his laboratory or at his writing desk making calculations.

A Special Sale of Scholle's Good Furniture

HERE'S the most remarkable thing we've ever been able to offer our customers.

One of the manufacturers from whom we get a lot of our finest furniture has found it necessary to enlarge his factory at once.

In order to do it quickly—he must do it quickly—he offered to us all of his finished stock of bedroom and dining room furniture at prices so low that we were really startled. It was a case of "take it all, for cash, and immediate delivery"; about $40,000 worth of the finest furniture made.

As usual, we shall sell it as we bought it; a fair profit for us is enough. But we're almost afraid to mention the prices; they're so low that we can hardly believe it ourselves.

We have, in this special purchase, 20 full suites of bedroom furniture; 5 dining-room groups; and a large number of odd pieces—dressers, dressing tables, chairs, chest of drawers, pairs of twin beds, full size beds. In some cases we have only one of each.

Every one of these pieces is of the high standard of "Scholle-quality"; we know the maker well; every item is beautifully made, in very artistic designs. All you'll need to do to assure you of the merits of these goods is to look at them. And when you note the prices, your amazement will be as great as ours.

It is a most unusual opportunity for anybody who wants fine furniture at very low prices; a third to a half of regular prices.

We shall have to insist on the same terms on which we bought—"Cash and immediate delivery." It's an opportunity too good to lose any time over; better come in right away.

753,000 TO GO BY RAIL AND AUTO TO MUNDELEIN IN DAY

Roads Striving to Supply Eucharistic Transport.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Between 673,000 and 753,000 people from Chicago will probably attend the last day rites of the Eucharistic congress at St. Mary of the Lake seminary, near Mundelein. That is the present estimate of the crowds for which transportation facilities will be provided, and the estimate is considerably less than the number who it is believed will desire to make the journey. It has been stated that Chicago will have upward of 1,000,000 visitors, and a very large percentage of those, as well as hundreds of thousands of Chicagoans, will desire to go to Mundelein for June 24.

This is the day of the open air mass for which temporary structures are now being erected in front of the Hines chapel at St. Mary's seminary. It is also the day of the procession of which Cardinal Bonzano, the papal delegate, will be the leading figure carrying the ostensorium.

A Big Transportation Problem.

Getting the people to and from these ceremonies presents an enormous transportation problem. All of the railroads have been asked to extend themselves to the limit. A canvass of them yesterday revealed that they have promised to provide the following facilities:

North Shore electric line—Will transport from Chicago over the Skokie route 170,000 and 30,000 more via the shore line through Lake Bluff.

Northwestern railroad—Will carry 60,000 from Chicago to Lake Bluff.

St. Paul railroad—Will carry 35,000 from Chicago to Libertyville.

Soo railroad—Will transport 18,000 from its River Forest station to Mundelein.

From Milwaukee, Kenosha, Racine, and Waukegan it is estimated that the Northwestern steam road and the North Shore electric will carry 30,000 more to Lake Bluff. This 30,000, as well as the 60,000 which the Northwestern will carry from Chicago to Lake Bluff, will be transferred from that point to Mundelein by the North Shore electric.

Parking for 80,000 Autos.

On top of this legion, automobiles are expected to carry between 320,000 and 400,000 to the ceremonies. The Lake county committee, headed by L. A. Hendee, county clerk, has undertaken the task of acting as host to that part of the Eucharistic congress held at St. Mary of the Lake seminary. They have obtained gratis nearly 700 acres of land close to the seminary which they have divided into nine parking spaces to accommodate an estimated 80,000 cars.

There is one road, and only one, leading to each parking space, so that the road one takes will determine where he shall park. In each parking space will be a refreshment and food dispensary. All of these will be controlled by the Lake county committee to be certain that the public shall get fair treatment. Five of the roads to St. Mary's and five of the parking spaces have been allotted to Chicago, while the other four roads lead in from the west and north.

As a precaution against any one being hungry the North Shore electric will also operate a concession with service on a table 350 feet long in its terminal area.

Start Trek at 4 A. M.

The exodus from Chicago to Mundelein will start at four o'clock in the morning, daylight saving time. At that hour trains on all four roads will start for Lake county.

The North Shore line has a schedule for 160 trains of six cars each, which will be operated two minutes apart. Each of these trains will carry a maximum of 600 persons and the schedule calls for the run in one hour and 20 minutes.

Between Lake Bluff and Mundelein the North Shore will operate eight car trains. At Lake Bluff will be an eight track terminal with 16 ticket takers.

Road for Pedestrians.

The sixteen foot concrete highway from Lake Bluff to Mundelein will be used exclusively as a sidewalk on June 24. No cars will be permitted on it. This involves a distance of approximately nine miles.

To facilitate train and auto traffic to the highest degree, the highway authorities have blocked off roads for travel to and from the congress and they will be used exclusively for that purpose on this one day.

The rules of the road are such that if an autoist gets on one of them his destination will be the Eucharistic congress. Those who desire to go from Chicago to Waukegan and points north will be confined exclusively to Sheridan road and the Green Bay road.

ALL CHICAGO TO JOIN HANDS TO GREET BONZANO

Vast Demonstration to Mark Arrival.

The scheduled departure of Cardinal Benzano, papal legate to the twenty-eighth international Eucharistic congress, from Cherbourg yesterday, aboard the Aquitania with a company of other distinguished European prelates, has set in motion the extensive machinery for the vast demonstration that will be tendered the papal delegate on his arrival here June 17. He is to arrive in New York on Saturday, June 12, and will leave there for Chicago on his special train on June 16.

Civic and business leaders, the Catholic clergy and laity, and a generous sprinkling of Chicagoans of all creeds and of no creed, will gather at the Illinois Central station to welcome the cardinal legate and his entourage, and the large number of other distinguished guests who will accompany him.

Welcome by Cardinal Mundelein.

Cardinal Mundelein, sponsor of the congress and archbishop of Chicago, will be present to extend his personal welcome to his brother cardinal and warm personal friend, Cardinal Bonzano. Mayor William E. Dever will tender the greetings of the city and its citizens.

Outside the station will form a great procession that will escort the official representative of Pope Pius to the home of Cardinal Mundelein, where he will be a guest during the congress. Col. Marcus Kavanagh, judge of the Superior court, will be marshal of the parade, in which will comprise several divisions of mounted and foot police, a number of bands, Catholic Boy Scouts, more than a thousand Knights of Columbus of the fourth degree, the priests of Chicago, and the visiting clergy, and a committee of 400 prominent Catholic laymen.

Following the procession will be the visiting prelates, Cardinal Mundelein, and the papal legate.

Great Civic Reception.

On Friday evening, June 18, a civic reception will be given for Cardinal Bonzano at the Coliseum, where thousands will gather to hear Gov. Len Small greet the papal emissary on behalf of the people of Illinois. Mayor Dever will speak for the city of Chicago; Samuel Insull will represent the business and financial interests of the city, and Robert M. Sweitzer, K. S. G., will extend the welcome of the laity. D. F. Kelly, K. C. S. G., will be chairman of the meeting.

Meanwhile at headquarters of the congress, 719 Cass street, typewriters click swiftly and uninterruptedly as the busy force of twenty girl clerks address thousands of cards advising pilgrims expected for the event of the reservations that have been made for them in hotels, dormitories, or private homes.

Hundreds of thousands of the cards have already been issued under the direction of the Rev. L. P. Hurkmans, undoubtedly one of the busiest of congress officials, whose task is growing more complicated hourly. At present it appears that there will be rooms for all who come, but the tendency of many people to delay ordering their reservations until the last possible minute is certain to result in a great burden falling on the housing committee during the few days preceding the opening of the gathering.

CARDINALS EN ROUTE

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ABOARD S. S. AQUITANIA, June 5.—With the papal flag at the masthead, the Aquitania is New York bound, carrying five cardinals en route to the Eucharistic congress to be held at Chicago June 20 to 24. They are Cardinals John Bonzano, papal delegate from Rome, Michael Faulhaber of Munich, John Csernoch of Warsaw, Frederick Piffl of Vienna, and Louis Dubois of Paris. With them are more than two score of bishops and other high church dignitaries who will take part in the Chicago ceremonies.

One of the most interesting figures aboard is Msgr. Ignace Seipel, Austria's renowned churchman and former chancellor, who turned politician to save his country from the threats of bolshevism.

Several churchmen came aboard at Southampton, but the bulk of the party joined the ship at Cherbourg, the papal delegate being the first man to leave the Cunard tender to board the liner.

This evening the churchmen are passing quietly in preparation for the arduous tasks before them. Tomorrow several masses will be celebrated with various members of the party officiating. The cardinals probably will say mass only for the members of their immediate suites in the privacy of their compartment.

The European clergy are looking forward to the Chicago ceremonies as the greatest Eucharistic congress ever held. They expect it to overcome in a large measure the irreligious wave which has followed the war and prove the starting point for a great revival of interest in religious thought and teachings.

FEUDAL DUEL FOR BARONESS' LOVE SHOCKS VIENNA

She Is Suicide; Baron and Prince Near Death.

Vienna, June 5.—(AP)—Details of the tragic suicide of the beautiful Baroness Klinger and the duel between her husband and her princely Russian admirer, Cyril Vladimir Orloff, are slowly coming out. Viennese society is greatly shocked.

In a deposition today the chauffeur who drove Prince Orloff from Vienna to Raab describes the meeting of the prince and the baroness at the castle Wednesday. The baroness, attired in a hunting costume and accompanied by a dog, received Prince Orloff and, taking him aside, pointed in the direction of a nearby wood. The prince proceeded in that direction and disappeared, to return later with his arm almost severed at the shoulder. He bade the chauffeur drive quickly to a hospital, but, finding the wound so serious, he drove instead to a gendarmes' post, where the prince admitted that he had fought a duel. He then was taken to the hospital.

Both Near Death.

Baron Klinger was shot in the lung. Both men are reported to be hanging between life and death. Various accounts are current as to the real nature of the engagement between Klinger and Orloff. One had it that Orloff fired the first shot and that Klinger replied with a charge of buckshot from his hunting gun.

According to one police account, the prince asked the baron to surrender his wife, as he wished to marry her. The baron ordered the prince away, whereupon the latter drew a gun and fired. The baron, wounded in the lung, raised his shotgun and fired, shattering the prince's right arm.

Shoots Herself in the Head.

Gendarmes reported the shooting to the district judge, who summoned the baroness to appear in court Thursday to give evidence. The baroness said she would not appear in court, retired to her bedroom and next morning was found dead, shot through the temple. She leaves three children, aged 9, 7, and 3. She was young and one of the most beautiful women in Austria.

A Hungarian friend of Prince Orloff's, Emmerich von Somogyi, who accompanied the prince from Vienna, was arrested. Prince Orloff is a descendant of the famous feudal family of Orloffs of the Crimea, dating back to the middle ages, of whom three handsome Orloff brothers were especial favorites of Catherine the Great. She enriched them nobly. The Orloff family owned millions of acres in the Crimea and many castles, and its members served in the crack regiments down to the time of the great war.

Infatuated with Baroness.

Prince Orloff is 22. He met the baroness at Merano, Italy, last summer and became infatuated with her.

Orloff's hereditary power was broken up by the bolshevik revolution; several members of the family were murdered and others expatriated.

Baron Klinger is a rich landholder and owns textile factories in Czecho-Slovakia.

SAN FRANCISCO HAS A BUSY DAY FIGHTING FIRES

San Francisco, Cal., June 5.—(AP)—Between thirty-five and forty separate fires, most of them comparatively small, were started here today by embers from an old wooden grand stand and bleachers which burned at Ewing field, a baseball park. Twelve small buildings across the street from the park were destroyed. The rain of blazing embers fell over an area of thirty blocks. When practically all the fire apparatus in the city had been sent to the scene a new fire started in another district and destroyed twelve buildings, burning $100,000 worth of raw hemp in one warehouse. Eleven other buildings were damaged. The origin of this fire was unknown.

IOWA CAMPAIGN WINDS UP WITH RESULT IN DOUBT

Cummins or Brookhart? It's a Tossup.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., June 5.—[Special.]—The political contest between Senator A. B. Cummins and ex-Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart, goes to a showdown at Monday's primaries with the political talent of Iowa, for the first time in a generation, in doubt on the outcome.

While the nation looks on at a battle of great importance, which may reveal the drift of public opinion in the Republican party, Iowa exhibits a languid interest in its own show.

World Court Not an Issue.

The Coolidge administration is a fundamental in the fight. The world court, which beat McKinley in Illinois, is not an issue. Cummins voted for it and Brookhart against, but it cuts no ice here.

The wet and dry issue on which Pepper was beaten in Pennsylvania does not enter. There is a wet candidate, Dan B. Reardon of Council Bluffs, but he's an unknown. At that some circles today think he may finish third, ahead of Howard Clark, Des Moines lawyer and an in-between candidate. Clark is cutting into Cummins more than into Brookhart. If the finish is close he might prove the Pinchot of Iowa.

The great factor is the Coolidge attitude towards farm relief. Wherever one travels in Iowa a chilliness is observable. They are keeping cool on Cal. Secretary Jardine, too, is frozen out here.

Iowa leaders generally hold that in this fight Coolidge is the greatest load Cummins has to carry.

Cummins, although an administration senator, broke with the White House on farm relief policies. All winter long the great talk in the corn states was for agricultural relief, and the defeat of the Haugen bill in the house has brought disappointment and resentment.

Call Cal Unsympathetic.

The big majority of the farmers don't know much about any specific bill or its contents, but they do seem to feel that the administration is unsympathetic and a large proportion of them are mad. Every time they talk about the "eastern view," a household phrase out here, they get madder and madder. The big fear is that they may carry this to the polls and make Cummins an innocent victim by voting against him to let Washington know it can be done—much as happened in Minnesota when Magnus Johnson went over.

Diligent efforts have been made to combat this. Many farm leaders have upheld Cummins as a friend of agriculture. Congressman Haugen, in a letter, has applauded Cummins' work for farm relief, and out here, instead of talking of party regularity as McKinley did in Illinois, they are whooping it up for Cummins' break with Coolidge on farm policies.

Mr. Haugen's kind words are expected to be balm among many farmers, especially in his district, the fourth, where Brookhart's usual margin may be cut down.

East Iowa for Cummins.

In eastern Iowa, along the Mississippi, Cummins has the great advantage. It's the country of dairy cows, hogs, cattle, and poultry. Even in lean years, this region has been fat with prosperity. Brookhart will probably again lose his home county, in the first district, the old stand-pat Burlington reservation. He is given the second and third. In the fourth, the Haugen influence is figured to cut down Brookhart's old vote.

The Fifth, the Cedar Rapids district, is expected to give Cummins his biggest plurality. Some place it at 12,000. The Sixth, Oskaloosa, is generally listed for Brookhart, while the Seventh (Des Moines) is doubtful, with the vote likely cut three ways. Cummins will probably get the Ninth (Council Bluffs).

To the west of Des Moines is a wide strip running from the Missouri border to Minnesota, roughly it embraces the eighth, part of the ninth (Council Bluffs), the tenth (Fort Dodge-Boone-Estherville), and the eleventh (Sioux City), the northwest corner of the state.

Here is the area of greatest depression. In this zone was the worst of the land boom and poker playing with acres, it was worst hit by bank breaks and with crop failures, and it has far less diversification than the eastern side of the state.

This strip is the Brookhart stronghold, especially the tenth and eleventh districts, most populous in the state, which gave Brookhart five-sixths of his plurality over Sweet in the 1924 primaries.

There are signs that Brookhart has been slipping. After he had been thrown out of his seat by the senate, he was going strong on the plea of a raw deal, but the martyrdom stuff has worn off.

But the apathy has got all hands in the fog. To indicate the uncertainty, some of the estimates from the most seasoned politicians in the state, figure a plurality of 15,000 to 20,000 either way which is cutting it pretty close.

SENATE RADICALS URGE IOWANS TO NAME BROOKHART

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—Repudiation of the veteran Senator Cummins [Rep., Ia.] in Monday's primary election and the nomination of former Senator Brookhart to be his successor is urged in a round robin addressed to Iowa voters tonight by six senate insurgents—Senators La Follette [Rep., Wis.], Norris [Rep., Neb.], Howell [Rep., Neb.], Frazier [Rep., N. D.], Nye [Rep., N. D.], and Shipstead [Farmer-Labor, Minn.].

It is in their hands, the insurgents advise the Iowa voters, not only to rebuke the senate for unseating Brookhart, "in deliberate violation of the laws of Iowa," but to exert "an enormous influence upon the determination of certain great public questions now hanging in the balance at Washington."

Chief among these questions, the round robin asserts, is farm relief legislation, and the nomination of Brookhart will be interpreted in Washington, as a warning to congress.

URGES JAIL FOR MAGISTRATE WHO LET GIRL, 15, WED

A justice of the peace who performs a marriage ceremony in which one of the parties is a 15 year old school girl should be jailed, Superior Judge Harry A. Lewis declared yesterday after listening to the story of Anna Milulis, 15 years old, 5053 Forrestville avenue, a grammar school student.

The girl obtained an annulment from Antonio Gutierrez, 26 years old, 219 South Wood street, with whom she lived for only eleven days following their marriage on Feb. 1 in Crown Point. Questioned by her attorney, Ralph O. Winkenwerder, she said she had been induced to elope with him and get married.

"If I could learn the name of the justice of the peace who performed this ceremony and get him in my jurisdiction, I would see that he was jailed," declared Judge Lewis.

CHILD FATALLY SCALDED.

Catherine Morelli, 3½ years old, 1113 Townsend street, was fatally scalded yesterday morning when she fell into a tub of hot water in her home. She died last night in the Jefferson Park hospital.

which has centered in Iowa where the 11 north central states indorsed the plan last winter, will be immeasurably strengthened.

If Cummins loses, the administration will be given reason to believe that the corn belt is not so earnestly committed to its proposed relief plan as its leaders profess it to be and that its demands may be safely ignored.

It is such considerations that have actuated certain opponents of the corn belt plan to place obstacles in the way of speedy disposition of the measure. They have sought delay until after the Iowa primary, believing that if Cummins should be defeated the whole program which he has sponsored would suffer such repudiation at the source that it could be thrown into the discard with impunity to the administration.

Fates Are Linked.

The reason that the nomination of Brookhart would not be interpreted as an indorsement of the corn belt bill is apparently due to the fact that Brookhart has sought aid for agriculture chiefly along different economic lines. Also, he never got anywhere with his proposals, while Cummins has been identified with the development of the pending plan from the beginning, in collaboration with the late Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

So the fate of the present bill and the fate of Cummins next Monday appear to be inextricably linked. If Cummins goes down, the corn belt measure will go down with him, according to the cloak room opinion.

And there are none watching the Iowa primary with greater interest and hopefulness than the Democrats. If Cummins can be defeated, the Democrats will take heart. If other states are in a mood to put the "ins" out and the "outs" in, there will be no question of the Democrats regaining control of the senate, and perhaps the house, this year and winning thereby a strategic position from which to strike for victory in the Presidential election of 1928.

Must Hold Every Seat.

The Republicans must retain almost every seat contested this year to keep control of the senate. It is going to be a narrow squeak for them at best and the Democrats are licking their chops in anticipation of a hearty meal.

Much has been written about the legislative achievements of Cummins, which cover a wide range. He has lived to see abolished rebating, the free pass evil and other railroad abuses for fighting which he was dubbed a wild-eyed radical a generation ago. He has lived to be recognized as the leading authority on interstate commerce. He has lived to see his party adopt the principle he enunciated, that the protective tariff should measure the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad.

It has been said that Cummins started out a progressive and be actionary. It would be truth to say that when Cummins challenged attention as a progr he was ahead of his times and the country merely has caught with him.

When you survey the whole work, what with measures like Cummins-Esch transportation a score of other railroad bills he drafted and put through when party was in power, and what innumerable amendments, which the Democrats in control, he into the federal reserve, trade commission, and other brought forward by the Wilson ministration—when you survey range of effective legislative you are willing to hazard the ment, as I did a few years ago no one man ever has written so into the statutes in one way or other as Albert Baird Cummins.

It was a recognition of that devotion to the standards of high statesmanship, in fair political er and foul, that gained Cummins sobriquet of "The Great Amender."

LLOYD GEORGE GIBES ASQUITH; FIGHTS OUSTER

Hurls Gage of Battle at British Liberal Foes.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, June 5.—In the most vigorous speech of his career, before the Manchester Reform club this afternoon, David Lloyd George delivered his reply to Lord Oxford and Asquith and boldly threw down the gage for battle. He announced he had no intention to accept dismissal from the Liberal party.

"I may be driven from the inner 'shadow Liberals' councils, but I cannot be driven from the Liberal platform," he said. "I see no signs that I have been driven from leadership in the house of commons, but, even if I was, it would not alter my course. So long as the constituency which has stuck to me for thirty-six years continues to return me to parliament I will be a Liberal member of the house."

The war premier took every care to make his speech a studied declaration of policy. Mr. Lloyd George, accompanied by Dame Margaret Lloyd George, arrived at the hall while the crowd sang "Auld Lang Syne." He was loudly cheered when he entered.

Wants Real Quarrel or None.

Continuing his fiery defiance against Lord Oxford's "bull of excommunication," the Welsh wizard said:

"They do not want to longer accord me the privilege of being in the councils of the Liberal party. I have been driven out into the sunlight—not such a bad thing—but I have no intention of accepting that. Let it be a real quarrel, not a rotten quibble. If you mean to drive me out from the Liberal party because I have erred on the side of conciliation with millions of British workmen in a great dispute—on that proposition I will fight right through. I may have been wrong in my judgment, but that is yet to be proven."

"Not Had Square Deal."

Mr. Lloyd George referred to the work which had been done by his committee on electricity supply and coal power and the land question, adding:

"I am sorry this has happened. I am not here to dwell on a personal grievance. I am not in the habit of so doing. But," he shouted vehemently, "I have not had a square deal!"

Launching into a denunciation of Lord Oxford's and Sir John Simon's policy of washing dirty linen in public, the former prime minister declared the whole affair should have been discussed privately and not publicly. He said his opponents apparently thought publicity was more important than the merits of the coal dispute itself.

"The action of these men in trying to drive me from the Liberal party is contrary to the principles of British justice and fair play," declared the speaker. "I do not like to be in a concern that is not well run, and like to do my best to make it a success, which explains my strike attitude."

Continuing to score knockout blows, which will assure him, it is believed tonight, from further annoyance or attacks from his opponents for some time, Mr. Lloyd George pointed out that there is a difference in all parties over the strike policy. Even differences exist among the members of the government, but that this did not necessitate airing their grievances publicly.

Attacked While "Walking Peacefully".

"Worst of all," he argued, all this publicity was launched against him some time after the whole affair was ended. "I was walking peacefully along the path when suddenly assailed by the angry bull of excommunication."

The criticism of his failure to attend the "shadow cabinet" meetings gave the Welsh lawyer a chance to launch barbed shafts of his well known wit.

"I attended the meetings—God help me—more than any other of Lord Oxford's friends. Now they want to oust me because I was absent from merely one," he said.

Cites Simon's Panegyric.

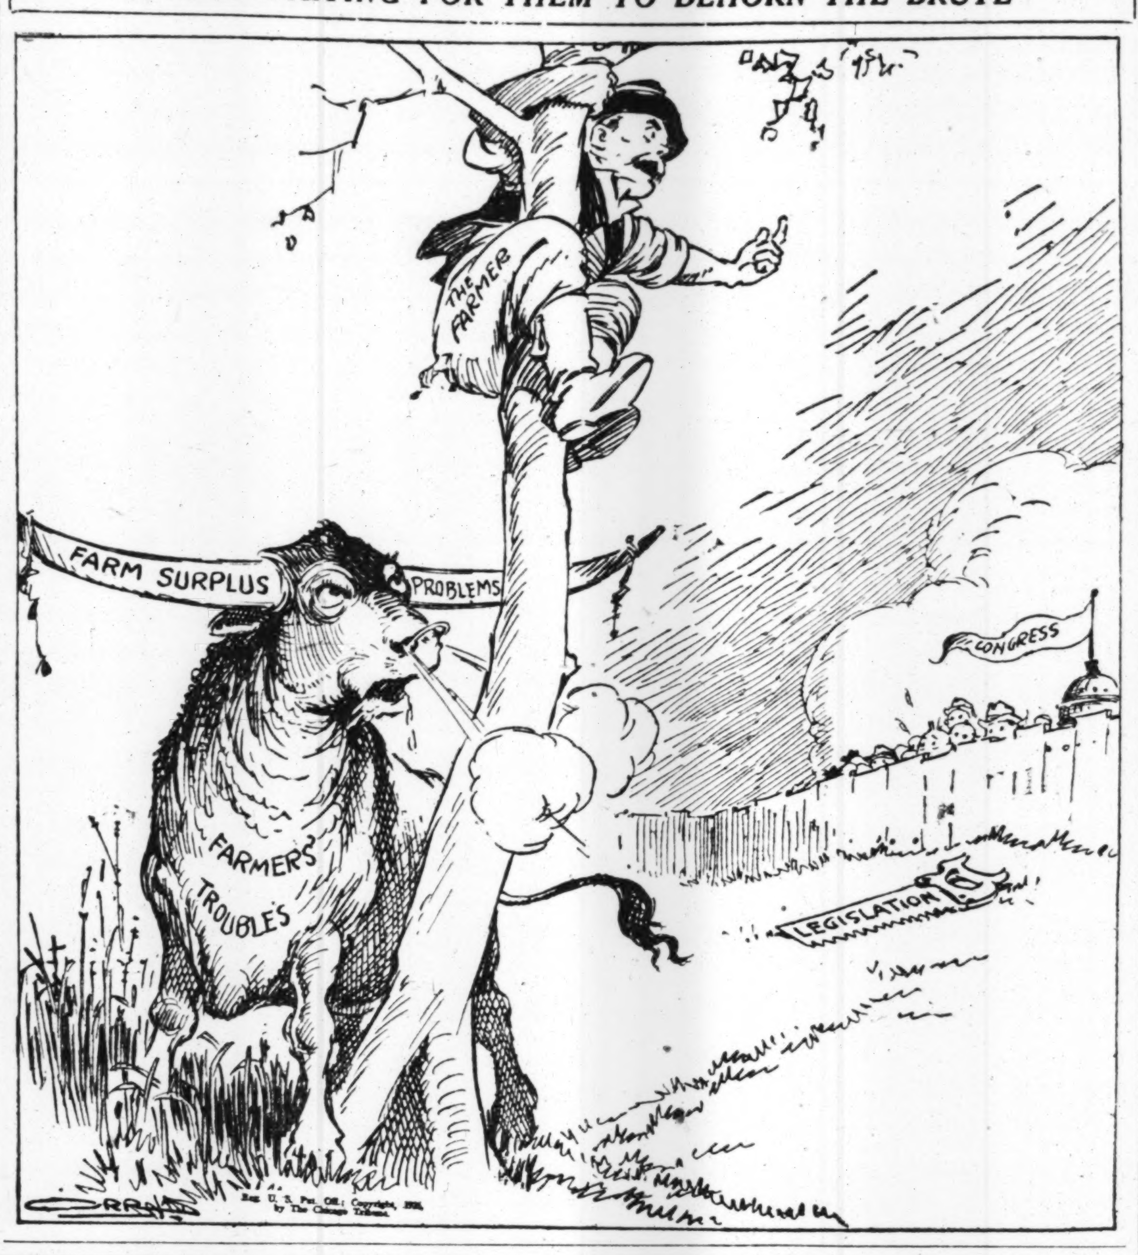
Meeting Sir John Simon's arguments, Mr. Lloyd George pointed out that Sir John only recently had spoken in his behalf, delivering a panegyric which made his ears tingle.

"Now Sir John changes his litany. How have I offended this deity?"

He recounted his record as a constant helper to advance the Liberal cause, concluding:

"Let us get back to work. You cannot found, but you can founder, a party on personal squabbles. I mean myself to get on with the job I have in hand."

STILL WAITING FOR THEM TO DEHORN THE BRUTE



HELD ON CHARGES OF BOY.

Frank Caroo, 29 years old, 567 Gilpin place, a teamster, was held to the grand jury yesterday in bonds of $5,000 on charges of an 8 year old boy.

11 CONGRESSMEN AT WHITE HOUSE FOR BREAKFAST

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—Resuming his practice of holding congressional breakfast conferences as a means of working out closer coöperation between the White House and the legislative branches of the government, President Coolidge today entertained eleven Republican members of the house of representatives at breakfast. While some legislative matters were discussed, Everett Sanders, secretary to the President, said the gathering was primarily a social affair. Among those attending were Representatives W. E. Hull [Ill.], Vestal [Ind.], Brigham [Vt.], Gibson [Vt.], Cramton [Mich.], Burtness [N. D.], Anthony [Kas.], Dowell [Iowa], Crowther [N. Y.], Lehlbach [N. J.], and Merritt [Conn.].

THEY ELECTRIFY FOR BEAUTY SPOT IN CITY'S HEART

Philadelphia's Chinese Wall to Fall.

We have been advised by real estate experts that the ultimate development of this great railroad terminal area—now known as the "Chinese wall," and carrying 16 stub-end tracks, and directly adjacent to the present business center of Philadelphia—may reasonably be expected to produce an increase in taxable values sufficient, at current rates, to net the city additional revenue of about $2,000,000 annually. Besides, there will be a still larger increase in taxable property values in the adjacent districts from which still further municipal revenues will be derived.

That the consummation of these plans will mark a new era of unexampled progress in the city's life, neither I nor any of my colleagues in the company's management have the slightest doubt.

GEN. W. W. ATTERBURY,
[President of the Pennsylvania Railroad.]

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 5.—[Special.] Good, old, easy-going Philadelphia may not be the quickest town on this continent, but it is so much quicker than Chicago that it did not have to have a brick house fall on it before it could see the preciousness of terminal electrification.

At least the Pennsylvania railroad, which, for 79 years, has been the shrewdest and most powerful section of the Philadelphia brain, did not require a convulsion of nature or a mandatory ordinance to make it see that there are millions upon millions of dollars' worth of salvage, and noble boulevards, and monumental buildings, and infinite cleanliness and expedition to be gained by lowering and covering its tracks and electrifying the trains running over them.

Down Goes the Wall.

Hence, down goes the notorious "Chinese wall," which for half a century has been a blight on traffic and a blemish on beauty in the very heart of Philadelphia, and in its place will come splendor, cleanliness, facility, and acres upon acres of modern palaces of business and pleasure.

The railroad gets what it wanted—you can trust the Pennsylvania invariably to get that—and the city gets what it needed. There has been good natured dickering—too good natured by half on the city's side, many economists would say—but what the city needed was the obliteration of the "Chinese wall," which is a steaming, smoking, sulphurous railroad right of way a block wide and seven blocks long.

Or, if you need a still more vivid picture of what a pest and impediment the "Chinese wall" is you can measure it as 16 tracks wide. It is nearly a mile long. It extends directly west from the city hall nearly to the east bank of the Schuylkill river, and it ruins seven streets that might be—and soon will be—very important and helpful crosstown thoroughfares.

What the Wall Means.

You of Chicago may gain some idea, but not a complete idea, of what a wicked anachronism the Chinese wall is to Philadelphia if you will imagine La Salle street station removed from its present site and fronting on Washington street, directly opposite our city hall, and then running out of that station to the south a railroad embankment 15 feet high, a block wide, and carrying sixteen tracks over Madison street, and Monroe, and Adams, and Jackson, and Van Buren, and so on to a total length of seven blocks.

To correct the actual equivalent in the heart of Philadelphia of such an imagined scandal in the heart of Chicago the Pennsylvania railroad is going to spend more than $50,000,000 on a comprehensive system of terminal electrification.

What the Railroad Gets.

What is the road going to get out of it?

First of all it is going to get enormously increased facility in traffic movement.

It believes that under electrification, as compared with steam, you can make one track do the work of two.

And, by lowering its tracks and covering them, it is going to obtain air rights for building purposes which very conservative capitalists with whom I have talked in Philadelphia estimate at a value of $60,000,000, and about the value of which others spoke thus:

"The value of those rights is simply beyond estimate. If they are worth $60,000,000 now, they will be worth $160,000,000 ten years from now, and probably more than that. As a matter of fact the value of more than 20 acres of absolutely new building lots dropped down in the heart of a city that did not expect them is beyond anything like exact calculation."

Now go back to the actual site of La Salle street station in Chicago and try to imagine the values in air rights—in building lots, in other words—that will one day be created when the vast area of tracks running into that station is decently lowered and covered and is built over.

Electrification of terminals—and that alone—makes possible such schemes of rehabilitation and expansion in metropolitan districts that now are gasping for room and are breathing soot.

The Pennsylvania railroad did not have to be forced into the decision to pull down Philadelphia's Chinese wall. The impulse to the great deed is the road's determination to solve its traffic problem. It has been neither hectored nor driven by any legislation or any rancorous agitation.

City to Pay Cost.

It simply knows a good thing when it sees it, and now it makes an elegant arrangement with the city—drives a good bargain would be too crass a phrase. In short, the removal of the wall is to be paid for by the city.

It will expend $16,000,000 in changing grades, street readjustments, relaying of sewers and gas mains, and in beautification of the west bank of Schuylkill river, on which the Pennsylvania's new main line passenger terminal station will rise, while its new underground suburban passenger terminal will deliver an enormous volume of traffic right at the base of City Hall Tower without cluttering the streets.

Will Beautify District.

The railroad is talking to the city in the terms of beauty as well as of business. For beautification of the actual Chinese wall area, and of the streets—Market and Filbert—which bound it on each side, is a vital phase of the tremendous project. Gen. Atterbury, one of the railroad's magnificoes, dares to sit down and talk friendly with the city authorities about architectural glories and sunset glows, and they respond with cheers.

"Can you not picture," said he to them recently in speaking of what is going to replace the Chinese wall, "can you not picture the unequaled vista of such a boulevard opening up toward the setting sun with monumental structures on each side and the new station and other great buildings planned with it in the distance—all completely harmonized from an artistic and architectural standpoint?"

Some details of just what he meant, the next dispatch will describe.

MOTORCYCLE RIDER, 18, KILLED BY TRUCK AS HE LEAVES GARAGE

Emerging on his motorcycle from a garage at 6322 Elston avenue, Helmuth Hollinger, 18 years old, of 6100 North Cicero avenue, was struck by a motor truck and fatally injured yesterday. The cyclist could not see the truck because of automobiles parked at the curb. Angelo Masino, 3222 West Seventy-fourth street, the truck driver, was held for the inquest tomorrow.

The death raised the county auto fatality toll for the year to 326.

Harry Horgimin, 21 years old, 1619 Lawrence avenue, was held to the grand jury by a coroner's jury on a charge of involuntary manslaughter. Driving his new automobile for the first time Friday, Horgimin ran over and killed Eugene Coyle, 3 year old son of Fireman Walter Coyle, 4807 North Paulina street, who was playing near a gas station at 1620 Lawrence avenue.

CHICAGO POSTOFFICE RECEIPTS FOR MAY DECREASE $23,578

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—While total postal receipts for fifty selected cities throughout the country for the month of May were about 4 per cent greater than in May, 1925, Chicago receipts showed a decrease. Receipts of the Chicago postoffice in May, 1926, totaled $4,815,509, a decrease of $23,578 from the May, 1925, figure, which was $4,839,087. The May, 1925, total for Chicago represented an increase of 9.12 per cent over 1924, which had, in turn, an increase of 10.80 per cent over 1923.

Wieboldt Stores to Open at 9:30 A. M. in the Future

Tomorrow the Wieboldt department stores will inaugurate their newly announced policy of opening at 9:30 a. m. instead of 8:30, thus cutting the working hours of employés to approximately 7 hours daily instead of 8. Announcement in the change in policy, made a week ago by Werner A. Wieboldt, president, is an innovation in Chicago. The three Wieboldt stores are located at Milwaukee and Ashland avenues, Ogden avenue and Madison street, and Lincoln and Belmont avenues.

GOV. AL SMITH'S DAUGHTER BRIDE OF MAJ. WARNER

Military Touch Is Given to Church Ceremony.

Albany, N. Y., June 5.—[Special.]—Miss Emily Josephine Smith, daughter of the governor, was married this morning in the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception to Maj. John Adams Warner, superintendent of the state police.

With the fullest military and ecclesiastical ceremony of state and church, Cardinal Hayes pronounced the nuptial blessing at noon in the presence of 1,500 guests, who comprised a blue book of society and politics.

And then the twenty-four year old bride and her husband walked out of the church under a canopy of swords, held by members of the governor's military staff.

Ceremony Is Impressive.

No effort had been spared to make the ceremony the most magnificent and impressive possible. The cathedral and mansion were decorated with carloads of flowers brought from New York.

Music by the choir of St. Vincent Ferrer church began at 10, an hour before the ceremony, and continued during the arrival of the guests and the singing of the nuptial mass, which lasted about an hour and fifteen minutes.

The crowd that moved past the guard of 120 policemen and state troopers into the church for the ceremony included persons from all walks of life.

Leaders of state and national politics had been pouring into Albany for two days to attend. Society of New York, Albany, and Rochester was there

Political Leaders Present.

Among the political leaders were Mayor Walker, George W. Olvany, George E. Brennan, Democratic leader of Illinois, candidate for United States senator; Norman E. Mack, Democratic national committeeman, and former Gov. Silzer of New Jersey.

The bride's gown was a cream tinted satin, a Chanel adaptation with the characteristic up in front drape, emphasized by a jabot of rose point lace down the entire front of the skirt. The deep cuffs of the long satin sleeves and the yoke were of rose point, while the same lace poised over net illusion made the train. The veil was of delicate net banded with rose point and orange blossoms with a bandeau effect of the lace caught on either side with clusters of flowers. The slippers were white satin, ornamented with seed pearls.

SEIZE RUNAWAY SOLDIER.

Floyd F. Beard, 22, admitted to be A. W. O. L. from the 2d cavalry stationed at Fort Riley, Kas., was arrested at Des Plaines and Randolph streets, and turned over to the military authorities.

SCOTCH GIRL TO PAINT PORTRAIT OF MRS. BORDEN

New York, June 5.—[Special.]—Miss E Hilar Strain, young Scotch portrait painter from Ayrshire, the county famous as the birthplace of Robert Burns, the poet, arrived on the liner Veendam today and left immediately for Chicago, where she is to paint the portrait of Mrs. John Borden of Lake Forest.

Miss Strain was selected by Mr. Borden for the work after he had viewed one of her portraits in a London gallery. He forwarded an invitation to the young artist, whom he had never seen, and she accepted it, although reluctant at first, it is understood, to make the trip to America.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Euphania H. Strain, a writer who spent some time in Somoa when the late Robert Louis Stevenson also was residing there.

DEMANDS ACTION BY ITALY TO SAVE SACCO, VANZETTI

Communist Deputy Puts Matter to Mussolini.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ROME, June 5.—Insisting that the innocence of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, two Italian socialists condemned to death for the murder of two men in Massachusetts in 1920, was "known throughout the world," the communist deputy, Ruggero, in parliament today demanded that the government explain the steps contemplated to save them from the electric chair.

The eleventh hour attempt to induce the Italian government to intervene with Washington for a new trial follows a campaign of certain newspapers to the effect that the state evidence upon which the conviction was obtained was framed up.

Paper Pleads for Pair.

In a general attempt to make this an Italian question, the Milan Avonti maintains:

"Whatever party Sacco and Vanzetti belong to, they basically are Italians and have a right to the protection of the Italian government."

The power of the organization of which Sacco and Vanzetti are members is illustrated by the coercion, threats and bomb plots against American embassies and consulates in all parts of the world. For more than two years American representatives in Italy have been threatened by friends of the convicted Italians in order to influence the American court.

As Deputy Ruggero demands a reply in writing, it is not expected that Premier Mussolini's answer will be announced until a few days.

The chamber adjourned, and the senate will open on June 8 to pass the budget and other laws already adopted by the chamber.

Hold 20 After Bombing.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, June 5.—(AP)—Twenty men whom the police charge with being radicals are under detention and have been put through a severe grilling, without, however, yielding any definite clew to the persons who bombed the American legation here yesterday. All deny knowledge of the outrage, which was committed while policemen, placed there since a similar plot against the American embassy in Buenos Aires, were guarding the legation. Police believe the plotters fled in an automobile.

[A report from Montevideo Friday said it was suspected the bombing was the work of radical sympathizers of Sacco and Vanzetti, the two Italian Socialists condemned to die in Massachusetts for murder.]

Lewis Institute Graduates Celebrate Its 30th Year

Hundreds of former students and graduates of Lewis institue gathered at the Furniture Club of America yesterday to celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the school. Since the establishment of the institute, which filled a want for special study courses, more than 50,000 students have been in attendance at various times. President P. J. Juhnke was the principal speaker at the reunion.

COFFEE DEALERS FAIL.

RIO JANEIRO, June 5.—(AP)—Puglisi & Co. of Sao Polo, manufacturers' agents, wholesalers and representatives of private bankers, have been petitioned in bankruptcy. The concern is capitalized at $3,000,000. Its liabilities are variously estimated at from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000.

35 INJURED AS ELECTRIC TRAIN HITS STREET CAR

Rips Into Trolley After It Is Derailed.

Thirty-five passengers were injured yesterday afternoon when a northbound surface line car and an electric interurban train bound for Joliet crashed at 98th street and Vincennes road. The accident followed the derailment of the rear trucks of the surface car, the interurban at high speed smashing the rear platform and crushing in the side.

Six of the passengers were taken to hospitals. The others were given first aid treatment by nearby physicians and sent to their homes. None of the injured will die, it was said.

Among the injured were Miss Mabel Hammerswith, 1444 West 99th street; E. Golthrot, 6830 Lafayette avenue, conductor of the surface car; Albert F. Schram, 656 West 87th street; Mrs. A. Bencik, 10510 Vincennes road; Miss Stella Bencik; William Klein, 2821 Emerald avenue; Joseph Oster and Mrs. Oster, his wife, 863 Western avenue, Blue Island; John Williams, 1042 West 112th street; Ernest Brockman, motorman of the interurban; Charles Darling, 10126 Parnell avenue, and J. H. Tucker, 7804 Emerald avenue.

N. U. GIFTS HONOR FIELD, FORGAN, AND STUDEBAKER

Three gifts typifying the development of finance, merchandising, and manufacturing by three eminent Chicagoans—James B. Forgan, banker; Marshall Field, merchant, and Clement Studebaker Sr., manufacturer—were announced by Northwestern university yesterday. The gifts will be used for three chambers or classrooms in the new Wieboldt hall of commerce now nearing completion on the McKinlock campus, by the lake.

James B. Forgan Jr. and other members of the financier's family have promised coöperation in the Forgan chamber of finance. John G. Shedd, president of Marshall Field & Co., has provided another, to be known as a chamber of merchandising, to help the students realize the principles of fair play typified in the life of Marshall Field.

The chamber of manufacturing has been provided by Clement Studebaker in honor of the life of his father.

TRIBUNE SERVES NEWS DAILY ON 100 BIG LINERS

Miniature Papers on 27; All Edited and Radioed.

New York, June 5.—[Special.]—Almost 100 ocean pasenger ships in the trans-Atlantic service are being served with world and domestic news by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

This development in the dissemination of news has been occurring quietly for the last three years, and has reached the proportions of a large international service.

The particular aim of THE TRIBUNE was to provide American news for American travelers, but the growth of the service to embrace a number of steamship lines flying foreign flags has enlarged the scope of the enterprise. The nightly news report for ships is being made up to contain a digest of the world's news, together with concise stories on American domestic, political, and governmental happenings, sporting news, and New York stock market prices.

Miniature Papers Printed.

Originally THE TRIBUNE sent its news summary only to ships of the United States lines, but now seventeen Atlantic companies are subscribers, along with two private yacht owners—W. K. Vanderbilt and Richard Howe.

While the ocean news service has been growing, THE TRIBUNE has also been extending its publication of miniature newspapers on ships in the Atlantic service. Some three years ago a paper was printed and distributed on the U. S. lines, but last year the White Star, Red Star, Royal Mail, and Atlantic Transport were taken into the enterprise, with the result that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE OCEAN TIMES is served daily to passengers on twenty-seven ocean liners during their voyages to and from Europe. A total of 65 other ships are subscribers to the news service, and use it in getting out their own newspapers for their passengers.

Headlines and All Radioed.

One interesting feature of the ocean news dispatches radioed nightly through a traffic arrangement with the Radio Corporation of America is found in the fact that prepared headlines are sent out as well as the text of various news items.

The New York correspondent of THE TRIBUNE, who edits this service, selects four or five leading news stories of the night, "makes up" an imaginary page 1 and radioes the stories in the order of their importance, accompanied by display headlines.

The radio operators on ships receive the news according to a standard formula and turn it over to the printers aboard ship. The type is then set—some of the ships have linotype machines and others set by hand—and the wireless news is then printed on blank pages left in predated newspapers of eight to twenty pages.

Through this system the printer aboard ship is given his news already edited and "made up," and when the passenger gets his paper at breakfast or lunch he has a complete although miniature metropolitan newspaper—edited on land, wirelessed out to sea, and with the wireless news section printed at sea.

The private yachts which received the service are W. K. Vanderbilts Ara and Richard Howe's Seaborn.

The Radio Corporation of America in transmitting the news to ships at sea uses 200 kilowatt power and sends on 13,500 meters wave length through WRQ at Marion, Mass. W. A. Winterbottom, traffic manager of the Radio Corporation, has directed the development and improvement of the transmission with such success that all static and other interference is overcome, so that no traveler on the Atlantic ocean need now be without his morning newspaper and his summary of the world's news.

And from the time American travelers disembark at a European port until they sail for home they need not be without American news, since the Paris edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE links up with the ocean newspaper and completes the cycle.

Identify Bones Found in Shark; Louisiana Soldier's

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, June 5.—The human bones found in a shark's stomach Tuesday were identified today as those of Private William Goins, who was drowned off Haliews beach, on the opposite side of Oahu island from Honolulu, on May 18. The identification was made from laundry marks on his swimming trunks. Goins' home was at Singer, La.

DENY EVANGELIST IS DISCOVERED IN EDMONTON

Los Angeles, Cal., June 5.—[Special.]—Telegraphic reports from Edmonton, Alberta, that Aimee Semple McPherson, missing evangelist, had been seen there today caused a revival of the hunt for her. Nothing had been seen of Mrs. McPherson, founder and builder of the famous Angelus temple, since she disappeared on May 18, when her secretary said that she was drowned while bathing in the Pacific.

The dispatch from Edmonton was signed by "Inspector Middleton of the International police." It declared that Mrs. McPherson was positively identified by three of his operatives when she arrived by auto at the Corona hotel in Edmonton. She was supposed to be in a party which went to the Canadian city in two automobiles bearing California licenses.

The chief of the Los Angeles police immediately wired the Edmonton official to question all of the party. The request was made at the plea of Mrs. McPherson's mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, who has offered a large reward for information which would lead to the return of the evangelist alive.

The Edmonton officials replied that the Californians there were James H. Gould, an artist; Mrs. Blanche Potter, another artist, and Mrs. Potter's guest, Mrs. Mary Phillips. All had gone there to fill orders for portraits and neither of the women resembled Mrs. McPherson. All however, were her friends and disciples.

The Edmonton police also asked further information in regard to "Inspector Middleton." They said they did not know him and were definite in declaring that he had no connection with the Northwest Mounted police, with which one message connected him.

'Keeping Up Personal Appearance' Has a Real Business Value, Says B. C. Forbes

By B. C. Forbes

While a Rockefeller or an Edison can afford to disregard the appearance of his clothes, it is frankly a mistake for you or me to do it. Good clothes have a cash value in most lines of business.

As a matter of fact, many employers will not engage any man who does not dress well and keep himself thoroughly groomed. The late John H. Patterson would fire an executive or salesman who neglected his appearance. "Slovenly dress reflects a slovenly mind," he declared.

While lamentably careless about my own clothes, I always take note of how another man is dressed, especially if I am meeting him for the first time. The slightest suggestion of down-at-the-heelness creates a most unfavorable impression. Whenever a man comes to see me with a new proposition I conclude that he has the failure habit if he looks shabby. A prosperous air helps to inspire confidence. Nothing succeeds like success, and we all like to pick winners.

Without question, every man who has his way to make in the world should wear the right kind of clothes and cultivate an attractive appearance.

The right kind of clothes help. Make a start with them.

GRANT PARK TO BE GARDEN SPOT OF WORLD CITIES

Land Alone Is Valued at $1,318,668,000.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

In Grant park Chicago offers visitors what no other American city has or can acquire. Travelers who have visited every city in the world have asserted that no other city on the globe has such a downtown park. This is primarily for visitors—not for Chicagoans. Residents come downtown to shop, work, or transact other business. When they go to a park it is to an outlying area. The Chicago visitors are the real beneficiaries of Grant park.

Its value in all directions is probably inestimable. But sliding down to the basis of dollars, its worth is almost unbelievable. A park in the downtown district valued at $668,000 might be considered large in some communities. One of $318,000,000 in any municipality would be considered a wonder. One of $1,000,000,000 would be staggering. But Grant park is worth all three sums put together as bare land alone.

Market Value Much Higher.

President Edward J. Kelly of the south park commission asserted yesterday that it has a market value of much more.

"But assume the low value of $100 a square foot," he went on, "and Grant park's market value is $1,318,668,000. It could be sold for much more. That unit price is the valuation which the Illinois Central railroad places upon its land north of Randolph street. It is upon that valuation that the railroad proposes to develop the air rights alone, retaining for its own use the surface and subsurface.

"To prove that such a unit value is low," he said, "just try to buy Michigan boulevard frontage at that price. Leases are upon a higher basis. If the Illinois Central can lease its air rights on the basis of $100 a square foot, the fee to Grant park would bring a much higher price.

A Playground for Visitors.

"But taking it on the extremely conservative figure, Chicago is supplying a downtown playground worth $1,318,668,000 for the benefit chiefly of visitors to the city. And that is for raw land alone—nothing more. Tell me the city which offers so much downtown to its visitors."

This $1,318,668,000 worth of land is merely the foundation of the park, however. That value does not include the millions being spent on its development. It does not include the bridges, the viaducts, the gravel walks, the broad pavements, the colonnades, the ornamental pylons, the rusticated wall and balustrade, the sunken panels, the flower beds, plantings, and other decorations of a formal garden. And Grant park is to be truly a formal garden of 303 acres.

It is named in honor of one of the three leaders in Illinois history. The Logan monument at the foot of Ninth street commemorates the memory of another.

Lincoln Statue Unveiled.

Recently there was unveiled a monument of Lincoln by that famous sculptor, Augustus St. Gaudens. This is the "colossal statue of Abraham Lincoln" for which the will of John Crerar set aside $100,000. This is one more feature added to the attractions of the Grant Park garden.

The Art institute, with its priceless collection of paintings and sculpture, is another example. It has been declared by trustworthy authorities to be the largest art school in the world. It alone attracts thousands and thousands of visitors annually.

The marble palace of the Field museum as a structure alone ranks with the classic buildings of the world. In this museum is a sample of everything and being of interest which research and money have been able to collect from every nook of the earth, and its scientists are still searching for more.

The John G. Shedd aquarium, to be located just east of the Field museum, is awaiting only the development of a suitable plan. Mr. Shedd has offered $2,500,000, and Architect E. R. Graham has been searching all Europe for ideas to put into the plan.

To the south of the museum is Soldiers' field, where $3,000,000 already has been spent and where $2,000,000 more is being expended by the south park commissioners to provide an aggregate seating capacity of 100,000. It is here that part of the Eucharistic congress will be held in June and the Army-Navy football game will be staged next autumn.

Between the inner and outer drives of the park, at the foot of Congress street, there is now being constructed the foundation of the $500,000 Buckingham Memorial fountain. It is being erected by Kate S. Buckingham, patron of art, in memory of her brother, Clarence Buckingham. This will be of marble, rivaling the famous Latona in the gardens of Versailles, France, but twice the size and having a flow of water three or four times as great.

For everyday use there will be a water flow of 1,600 gallons a minute, but the greater display requires 5,500 gallons a minute. The fountain garden itself will be about 600 feet square, with four minor pools surrounding the main feature. Combined with the 72 jets in the main fountain, shooting one column of water 70 to 90 feet high, is to be an elaborate electric lighting system, which will give varied colors to the beautiful display of water.

Airport South of Aquarium.

Still other attractions are being planned. On the island south of the site of the Shedd aquarium the park commissioners propose a temporary landing field for airplanes. Designs are now being made for a temporary bridge connecting the island with the mainland, and workmen soon will start to level off the area.

While the Grant gardens are primarily for visitors, about 10,000 Chicagoans are obtaining some temporary benefit. While the improvements are under way the park board is maintaining a parking space for nearly 11,000 autos north of Monroe street in a depressed area which later will be a sunken athletic field.

DOGS HAVE THEIR DAY AT BENEFIT

SOCIETY'S DOGS ON PARADE AT HINSDALE SHOW

Girl Scout Benefit Draws 100 Blue Blood Entries.

The country dog show which took place yesterday out in Hinsdale for the benefit of the Hinsdale Girl Scouts was an informal, friendly sort of affair with a touch of the rural in the leisurely method with which it was conducted. The benches, where were displayed about 100 pedigreed dogs, were of rough boards and were the contribution of the town carpenter. The ring was a square roped off in the middle of the Hinsdale High school athletic field, where the show took place.

There were real silver cups for the winners, however, and a real judge, John Burton, to determine the respective merits of the entries. The three Hamill girls, Katherine, who was supervising activities in the ring, and Emily and Frances, who were doing everything from corraling recalcitrant contestants to finding mothers for wandering youngsters and obtaining strawberry pop for some of the onlookers, were apparently the moving spirits of the affair.

Seven on the Committee.

The committee consisted of Mrs. James S. Knowlson, chairman; Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody, Mrs. William Hardy, Mrs. J. T. Thompson, Mrs. Ralph Kimball, Mrs. William Bruckner, and Mrs. John B. Hench.

Mrs. Peabody was wearing an attractive knitted sports costume of rose, with a tiny white hat edged in coral. Her young son, Patrick, entered his great St. Bernard, Bruno, which got the prize without a contest because he was the only dog in his class.

The Lake Forest contingent included Mrs. William R. Odell Jr., who showed Bebe, a gold brown cocker spaniel; her sister, Mrs. Charles W. Isaacs Jr., who entered a shepherd, Satan; Miss Sarah Brewster, wearing a yellow crêpe dress, who showed Mrs. Walter S. Brewster's Cairn terrier, Cairgowan Cynas of Cairn Tree; the Randolph Owsleys, escorting Strathway Skipper, a lively wire haired fox terrier; and Mrs. Hubert Burnham.

Mrs. McCormick a Spectator.

Mrs. Medill McCormick and her daughter Katrina were among the spectators. There were a number of dogs from the Stuyvesant Peabody place, Balleymooney farms. Other blooded entries were Mrs. John L. Cochran's English bulldog, Auburncrest Silver Dart, several of the Hamill girls' canines, Mrs. Robert W. Hamill's Flurry Knox, and Mrs. John Matz' Balleymooney Rose.

Ballymooney Buttercup, an Irish terrier owned by Mrs. Peabody, was adjudged the best dog at the show and its owner was awarded a cup.

Others of the winners were: Sandy Beach, owned by Mrs. J. W. Phelps, in the collie class; Katherine Hamill's beagle, Wiggins; Mrs. H. E. Hoover's chow chow, Ch. Mee Plos of Manchoover; Pansy Grangmead, owned by F. K. Babson, in the Springer spaniel class; Mrs. Mollie Brown's Boston terrier, Brown's Betty Beans; James and Edward Robinson's Irish setter, Oge's Pat; and Mrs. H. B. Hench's cocker spaniel, Bunty Gal.

Male Nurses' Association of Chicago Is Organized

Organization of the Male Nurses' association of Chicago was announced yesterday. Ernest Pearson, formerly of the McClean hospital, Waverly, Mass., was elected president. At present only two recognized training schools for male nurses exist in this community, it was pointed out by founders of the association, who added that the supply of men for this work is perpetually below the demand. They hope to improve these conditions.

SHOOTS WOMAN AND IS SLAIN BY POSSE IN SWAMP

Pontiac, Mich., June 5.—[Special.]—Paul Siko, 28, was killed by a posse today as he fled into a swamp after shooting Mrs. John F. Clark, 26. Mrs. Clark, who was wounded twice, said that Siko, a friend of her husband, shot her when she resisted his advances.

The posse surrounded Siko in the swamp after he had eluded the pursuit of his victim's husband. A gun battle ensued. Siko's body was found buried to the hips in mud, an emptied pistol in one hand. He had been wounded thirty times.

Angry Suitor Shoots Widow.

Eau Claire, Wis., June 5.—[Special.]—Enraged because she refused to sell her property here, marry him, and accompany him to the west, George W. Vest, 40, shot and probably fatally wounded Mrs. Bertha McFadden, 48, a widow, at her home here late yesterday. At the county jail today Vest, who was overpowered by the widow's son, after he had wounded the woman and had fired one shot at the boy, expressed regret that his plans to kill the woman and himself had miscarried.

LONGVIEW FIRE BURNS BANK.

Longview, Ill., June 5.—(AP)—Fire early today destroyed the Longview State bank and the D. O. Tate general store. The loss is estimated at $60,000.

By Buying COAL
Now!

Week-end excursions to resorts and golf clubs with all expenses paid—

Several building owners inform us that by storing their coal now they have saved enough by our low schedule of summer fill-up prices compared with what they otherwise pay for coal during the fall or winter, to pay the entire cost of their summer outing.

Our opening celebration schedule of C. O. D. summer fill-up prices, with exception of prices on lump and egg, which have advanced at the mines, will be continued until our recent low price purchases are exhausted. Thereafter we will have to raise our prices because the price of coal at mines has increased materially since the present schedule was made.

If you have not already done so telephone your order promptly—later may be too late.

If you are short of ready cash you can still take advantage of these, the lowest prices of the year by our deferred payment plan.

1914 AND THE INFALLIBLE GENERAL STAFF.

The general staff system of army administration was born at the time of the Franco-Prussian war. When the elder Von Moltke's forces forged through northern France and took Paris, all on clockwork schedule, the military leaders of the world sat up, took notice, and declared that their armies, too, must be governed by such a hierarchy as had won this extravagant victory for Bismarck's new German empire.

England and the United States were almost the only two great powers which did not immediately emulate the German example. It took the Spanish-American war to impress the United States with the need for a more efficient army command, and congress passed the bill authorizing a general staff in 1903. Great Britain received its lesson in the Boer war, and a British general staff was created in 1904. Convenient to convince military minds that they were on the right track came the Russo-Japanese war in 1904 and 1905. The victory of Japan, with its army closely molded on the German pattern, was proof to the doubting that the general staff system was invincible.

It was with this universal belief in the general staff that the world's greatest fighting machines entered the world war. To judge by all external indications they came out with their leaders' faith in the system unshaken.

Today, seven and a half years after the armistice, the popular conception is that the general staff system is the only possible system of military preparation and government in time of peace and of strategy and subsistence in time of war. It has even been proposed to congress to enlarge the federal control in time of war—presumably with the general staff as governing agent—to include not only the conscription of man power but of brain power, industry, and wealth as well.

As far as can be seen the world war pointed out no fallacies to the administrators and strategists who control military policy.

Perhaps the general staff system, despite certain outstanding evils inherent in it, is the best method of military government. No one at least has so far come forward with a method which bids fair to replace it. It has its grave faults, however, and chiefest of these is this disposition to disregard its own failings, to believe itself omniscient, self-sufficient, irresistibly independent of all outside aid and advice.

General staffs, like the rest of the world, need to tell themselves the truth about the war, and the truth about general staffs in the war will dispel some of the sacrosanct atmosphere with which they have surrounded themselves. There is, for example, the truth about the last five months of 1914. Too long has the magic phrase, "The Battle of the Marne," hid the fact that 1914 witnessed an inefficiency on the part of both the French and German general staffs incomprehensible in view of the long years they had had in which to prepare.

The German military philosophy, following precedents set by Frederick the Great and basing its strategic theory upon Hannibal's battle of Cannae, put its faith in the invincibility of the outflanking movement. Thus, in accordance with the famous Von Schlieffen plan mapped out as early as 1906, the German general staff began its attack on France by invading Belgium. The Von Schlieffen plan contemplated a holding battle on the western front between Metz and the Swiss border. In the meantime the major portion of the German army, pivoting on Metz, would sweep through Belgium and northern France, whipping the tremendously strong "hammer head" of its right flank to the west of and around Paris, thus enveloping the French left and rolling up the French line.

The tacticians of France's general staff, on the other hand, considered that they modeled their strategy upon the operations of Napoleon, whereby they were to project an overwhelming force upon a convenient and lesser body of the enemy, annihilate this force, and then turn their victorious troops upon such portions of the enemy as had not yet been engaged. To the French conception the German flank march through Belgium was a fortunate blunder, which kept a large part of the enemy's army away from the battlefield of French choice, between Verdun and Belfort. It was this French strategy which, instead of holding the Alsace-Lorraine frontier with a minimum force and sending every available soldier to the north, began the campaign with a series of attacks between Verdun and Belfort, which turned out as unsuccessful as they were violent.

Too late, the French staff directed its forces to the north and west of Verdun. The battle that followed has been called the "battle of the blind men" because of its haphazard, aimless action. Delaying, seesawing, fighting confusedly, the French army, instead of cutting off the German "hammer head," were driven back in a hurried retirement, which did not halt until it had passed the Marne and when the force of the German drive had been spent.

With the French army defeated at the outset through the ineptness of its commanding staff, it was saved at the last by an equal failure on the part of the German staff—the inexcusable blundering that caused the great Von Schleiffen movement to wear itself out and come to a stop before it had even begun its enveloping swing. With forty years in which to prepare, the German drive fell short. The "hammer head" lost its power. Von Kluck, its commander, got entirely out of hand, failed in his duty of protecting the German right flank, and so exposed the German army to the attack that finally drove it back from Paris.

Twice, immediately before the battle of the Marne, the German staff, after all its heralded precision, changed plans. It first pulled in the weakened "hammer head" to pass to the east of Paris and ordered a general converging movement both south and west of Verdun. Then, learning of the French concentration before Paris, it was forced, within forty-eight hours, to alter this order and instruct the German right to hold fast.

The French acted promptly to take advantage of Von Kluck's exposed flank, but military historians give credit for the promptness, not to Joffre and the general staff, but to Gallieni, governor of Paris. It was Gallieni and Maunoury who precipitated the battle of the Ourcq and forced Von Kluck to the desperate maneuver of turning his army to face the west. The movement created the chance of a lifetime for the French and English forces south of the Marne. Von Kluck had left a gap of twenty-five miles between his left and the right of Von Bülow's forces to the east. It was the opportunity of a century to drive through the gap, and, by the typical French method, annihilate Von Kluck. But the French and English staffs had no troops ready to send. Behind a screen of cavalry Von Kluck made good his withdrawal.

There followed the battle of the Marne and the general retirement of the German armies to the Aisne and the lengthening of the battle line to the channel. It was the end of the warfare of movement, it was the end of strategy, on the western front until 1918. Thus the first few months of the war saw the collapse of the general staffs of both armies. Each, without being able to put the blame on the superior efficiency of the enemy's staff, failed to carry out its long prepared plans.

A review of the failures of 1914 should be a part of every study of the general staff system. Such a review is of especial interest at this moment, when, beneath the seemingly quiet exterior of the United States' own military establishment, there is a muttering conflict between the selected officers of the general staff and those officers whose duty is the active command of combatant troops.

AGRICULTURAL RELIEF IS DEMANDED OF THIS SESSION.

The problem of agricultural relief is the most important before congress at this time. Its consideration should have the right of way over all other subjects. The differences of opinion which are sincere should be freely and frankly debated to definite conclusions. The debate should clarify honest opinion and result in concrete measures.

Is this a counsel of perfection? It is not if the leadership at Washington, in congress, and at the White House has a correct sense of the importance of action upon the agricultural situation—the political and economic and social importance of action.

THE TRIBUNE is quite aware of the complications which obstruct progress in agricultural legislation. Sectional, party, and personal factors entangle. But if there is a proper appreciation of the weight behind the demand in the west for sound and substantial measures at this session we shall have them. The west will not tolerate delays which it does not believe—and ought not to believe—arise from genuine difficulties. The west believes and is right in believing that congress is capable of working out proper legislation before it adjourns. If congress does not succeed in resolving its diversity of judgment and arriving at a productive conclusion it will not add to its credit as a competent and responsible deliberative body. On the contrary, it will produce a political situation in which wise action will be more difficult than it is or seems to be at this session.

We think there is an inadequate appreciation of the west's demand at both ends of Pennsylvania avenue. We think there is too much made of academic theories and too much play of sectional self-interest, shortsighted and self-defeating. We think there is too little candor in the study of proposals made for legislation by western students of agricultural conditions and a very regrettable unwillingness to resolve theoretical doubts in favor of a courageous application of well considered plans. The Haugen bill may not be perfect in details, and as to that we suggest that there are very few measures passed by congress in a state of perfection. But its main features have quite enough support from both academic and practical students of economic experience to justify their fair trial.

In any case the west has a right to demand, and it does most emphatically demand, that the consideration of agricultural legislation be now the main concern of the session and that congress do not adjourn before substantial measures are enacted. If the attention the subject deserves is given, such measures can be sufficiently deliberated and formulated, and the west will rightly and deeply resent postponement.

HANGING IN EFFIGY.

[New York World.]

We are gratified to note that the old custom of hanging in effigy has been revived. By this we do not mean that we share the sentiment of the farmers who held the Platte River ceremony: for all we know, Dr. Work, the secretary of the interior, whose image was hoisted, was perfectly right in cutting off their water until they paid their bills.

It is the rite, not the cause, that we applaud. In the last few years, for one reason and another, our politics has become oppressively decorous, and the most lamentable change has been the substitution of resolutions for hanging in effigy. If there is one useless excrescence on the body politic it is the committee on resolutions. Its findings are dull, windy and witless: they convince nobody, since nobody can read them: when they are finally approved, spread upon the minutes and despatched to congress, what they accomplish is nothing.

Hanging in effigy is far better. It is colorful and enjoyable, and in addition it gets results, as witness the scrambling around in Washington when news of the present disturbance came in over the wires. All in all, we hope that other states will follow the lead of Nebraska, and that before long this wholesome practice will be securely reinstated all over the country.

THE RELIGION OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

BY THE REV. WILLIAM E. BARTON, D. D., LL. D.

[Former pastor for 25 years of the First Congregational church, Oak Park, Ill., author of "Life of Abraham Lincoln," "The Soul of Lincoln," and other books.]

Abraham Lincoln had a deep religious nature and a genuine Christian faith. I have summarized his creed in his own words as follows: "I believe in God, the Almighty Ruler of nations, our great and good and merciful Maker, our Father in heaven, who notes the fall of a sparrow and numbers the hairs of our heads. I recognize the sublime truth announced in the Holy Scriptures and proven by all history that those nations only are blest whose God is the Lord. I believe the will of God prevails. Without Him all human reliance is vain. Without the assistance of that Divine Being I cannot succeed. With that assistance I cannot fail. I have a solemn oath registered in heaven to finish the work I am in, in full view of my responsibility to God, with malice towards none; with charity to all; with firmness in the right as God gives me to see the right. Commending those who love me to his care, as I hope in their prayers they will commend me, I look through the help of God to a joyous meeting with many loved ones gone before."

Yet Abraham Lincoln never united with any church. The reason, I believe, is that Lincoln never came into intimate personal touch with religious faith in any of its modern forms of expression that might have defined his own religious convictions. His faith was fundamentally right, but he was kept out of church membership by the dogmatism of a narrow and unreasonable creed. It is probable that during his first twenty-one years he never heard a minister preach who believed the earth was round.

There is good reason to believe, though the story has been enlarged and distorted, that while he lived in New Salem Lincoln was skeptical. It took him some time to emerge from that mental condition. Two books, both read after he went to Springfield, made a profound impression upon him. One was "The Christian's Defense," by the Rev. James Smith. It was the report of an extended debate somewhat like that which Lincoln later himself had with Douglas, but instead of being on politics it was on the evidences of Christianity. For the first time Lincoln learned the reasonable evidences in favor of the Christian religion. The Rev. James Smith was the Presbyterian minister in Springfield. Mrs. Lincoln was a member of the Episcopal church, but Mr. Lincoln and the family rented a pew in Dr. Smith's church and retained it from 1850 to 1861. Dr. Smith became his intimate friend and Lincoln himself is our authority for the statement that he was deeply impressed by the arguments in Dr. Smith's book.

The other book he read which made a deep impression upon him was by Robert Chambers, of the famous British publishing firm by that name, and was entitled "Vestiges of the Natural History of Creation." It was a pre-Darwinian exposition of the doctrine of evolution. Lincoln was moved and convinced by it. The third edition of the book had a supplement showing more clearly that the doctrine of evolution as therein set forth was consistent with the Christian faith. Lincoln procured that edition and again read the book. It became his treatise on the harmony of science and religion and many a man might read the same old book even now with genuine profit.

As a matter of fact, an inexpensive new edition of it was published not long ago. Whoever wants to know what Abraham thought of the controversies that have had their recrudescence quite recently might well buy that little book and study it from Lincoln's point of view.

He came to be a believer in what he called miracles under law. He could not rest his faith on an interruption of the natural processes in which he found the laws of God operative but had to find his faith in an ordered universe. He found it. He believed in a progressive God, a progressive creation and a progressive revelation. He always believed in God. He believed in prayer. Mrs. Lincoln said truly of him, "He was not a technical Christian; he was religious, but religion was a kind of poetry to him." That is to say, as I understand it, he had a deeper religion than he could express in logical terminology. His religion was not merely rationalistic, as it certainly was, but was also mystical, as it should have been.

It would have been worth much to Lincoln if he had had a minister as learned and logical as good Dr. Smith but with a more progressive theology.

Lincoln did not know the Universalist denomination and denominationally was not a Universalist. But the severe doctrine he heard preached in his boyhood drove him to believe in the final salvation of all men. He believed in future punishment and sometimes thought the doctrine was not preached enough. Law to him was stern, and a righteous God, he said, must punish sin, as a righteous government must punish violation of its laws. But he declared that he could not believe in an all-powerful God who would make any human soul and condemn it to ultimate and everlasting damnation. His conservatism drove him to that conclusion.

Some church members called him an infidel while he lived and others invented stories of his conversion to their faith after he was dead. He was not an infidel and he was not a convert to any form of orthodoxy as he knew it.

Certain unfounded stories have crept into the various lives of Lincoln. One recent author of a life of Lincoln represents his mother as singing to young Abe the well known missionary hymn, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains and India's Coral Strand." There was at least one good reason why she did not do so. That hymn was not written until after she was dead.

Lincoln's belief was stated to Henry Champion Deming shortly before his death and put on record by Mr. Deming in a memorial service before the two houses of the Connecticut legislature. Lincoln was showing Deming a fine new Bible which the colored people had given him, and the conversation turned to Lincoln's own faith. He said that formal creeds as he had known them were not for him but if any church would establish as its sole condition of membership the two-fold requirement of love to God and love to man, that church he would gladly join.

Just after the battle of Antietam, Lincoln told his cabinet he had promised God that if Gen. Lee were driven back from Antietam, he would free the slaves. This fact is testified to by Salmon P. Chase and Gideon Welles, both members of the cabinet, who recorded it in their diaries, and by Frank B. Carpenter, who painted a picture of the cabinet and published the statement while all the members of the cabinet were still living, and it was never denied. Abraham Lincoln was a man of faith and prayer, a man who believed in God, duty, and immortality.

A DEMONSTRATION.

"Goodness, Jane, what a kitchen!" exclaimed Mrs. Brown. "Every pot, pan, and dish is dirty, the table in a perfect litter, and——. Why, it will take you all night to clear things up! What have you been doing?"

"Sure, mum," explained the maid, "the young ladies has just been showing me how they bile a pertater at their cookery school!"—Surrey Comet.

NEWEST THING IN CONSUMPTION.

WHOEVER thought that man could catch consumption from a chicken? And yet that seems to be the newest thing in consumption.

Drs. Mayo and Hendricks report two cases of tuberculosis in human beings where the poultry bacillus was the cause. The people were operated on and they recovered. The organ affected was the spleen. The diseased area was cut away and sent to the laboratory and the report that came back showed that the poultry tubercle bacillus was responsible.

The history of the illness was about as follows: "General health not good. Moderate secondary anemia. Some pains. Enlarged spleen and liver."

Drs. Mayo and Hendricks say, considering all the evidence, we must believe that the bacilli are but variations of one species of organism and not different entities. They say that, in their opinion, the difference between the several types of tubercle bacilli is no greater than the difference between pneumococci and the several kinds of streptococci.

Prof. Jordan of the University of Chicago has recently published a study which shows how comparatively easy it is to change one subspecies of bacillus into another subspecies. However, he was not working with tubercle bacillus.

Mayo and Hendricks found cases of human tuberculosis due to the avian bacillus which had been reported by Lowenstein, Koch, Robinowicz, Lipschulz and Lederer. Lowenstein found that eggs from a tuberculous hen contained live tubercle bacilli. When these eggs were soft boiled the bacilli were not killed. Hard boiling the eggs did kill the bacillus.

In 1912, Dr. J. R. Mohler told of a lot of hogs found to be tuberculous on a farm where the cows were not infected. On further investigation they found most of the poultry had tuberculosis. It was the custom to throw the dead hens into the pig yard to be consumed by the hogs.

Mohler concludes that it is desirable to eradicate the disease from among the fowls before attempting to clean up the hog quarters.

Prof. Graham tells us that there has been an enormous increase in tuberculosis among hogs in the last fourteen years—nearly 400 per cent. Logic indicates that that increase is due to poultry tuberculosis.

We have been somewhat complacent about the increase in fowl tuberculosis because of the prevailing opinion that humans could not catch fowl tuberculosis. But this ease of mind does not seem to be wholly justified.

REMEDY FOR PINWORMS.

W. H. S. writes: Our children have been troubled with pinworms for the last year or two. I have tried different doctors, but they don't seem to help. I will appreciate a remedy.

REPLY.

The stock remedy is quassia tea made by the cold water method and given by enema. Salt water enemas are also good. When this method fails it is because the source of eggs is not reached.

It is said that eggs may hatch externally and the young worms find their way back to the bowel. To remedy this the parts should be washed with soap and water after each bowel movement.

The egg laying worms are sometimes high up in the intestines and are not reached by the enemas. In that case worm medicine by mouth and dieting may be used. The diet should be rich in meat, eggs, and milk. It should be low in sweets and starchy foods. This treatment does not take the place of enemas.

Is it possible that your children have been reinfested after being disinfested? They get reinfested from playing around infested animals, or infested children, and through filthy habits.

SHORTAGE IN ACCOUNTS.

Chicago, May 31.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A and B are working in a store. A is cashier and B relieves him when he goes for lunch. Recently, upon checking up at closing time, A discovered a shortage which was reported to the manager. The manager accuses A and demands replacement or face arrest. A is innocent but made good on the shortage. How can A recover the money?
I. B. H.

When the shortage was discovered we see no reason for blaming A more than for blaming B, but the circumstances of A having made the shortage good would look a good deal like an admission. At any rate A's chances of recovery are doubtful enough so that he should not institute proceedings without first going over the facts with an attorney.

A ONE-WAY LEASE.

Chicago, June 1.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Our lease reads, "no dogs, cats or parrots allowed in these flats." One tenant has a dog that barks all night every night and we can get no sleep. Consequently we have refused to pay our rent until the landlord enforces this clause. Can the landlord garnishee my husband's wages if we do not pay the rent on this account?
H. S.

If you re-read your lease we believe that you will find that it merely prohibits you from keeping pets but does not require the landlord to enforce a similar clause against other tenants.

CASH IN ADVANCE.

Chicago, May 29.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Is an employment agency permitted to demand an advance payment before they secure a position for a person in the state of Illinois? The other day when placing my application with an agency they said they would do nothing for me unless an advance payment was made.
L. F. E.

They are not supposed to. We suggest that you report the facts to the state supervisor of private employment agencies in the Transportation building, Chicago.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 6, 1861.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Reports of the steady increase of the rebel troops continue to reach here. An aggregate force of 20,000 men is reported to be concentrated at the Junction, Centreville, Fairfax Station and Fairfax Courthouse. Military authorities here think the number greatly exaggerated, but are vigilant to keep troops on both sides of the Potomac prepared successfully to repel any attack.

GALENA, Ill.—The demonstration in honor of the memory of Senator Douglas was the largest of the kind ever held here, and ceremonies of a most imposing character were performed. Every business house was closed during the day. At 10 o'clock a procession was formed, consisting of the city council, members of the bar, clergy, fire department, fraternal and benevolent societies, German rifle company and a large concourse of citizens. A large portrait of Senator Douglas, veiled in crape, was borne in the procession.

CHICAGO.—Bryan hall, where the remains of Senator Douglas lie in state, was visited throughout the day by thousands of all classes of citizens. The military were on duty within and at the entrances. The presence of a large police force outside kept the vast crowd in complete order and all transpired quietly and without confusion. For hours the continuous double file passed slowly through the hall, each visitor pausing an instant by the remains and then giving place to others. It is estimated that up to this time 50,000 persons have visited Bryan hall to take a view of the honored remains.

CHICAGO.—The alarm of fire sounded for the Sixth district last night was false.

CHICAGO.—The scandalous and dangerous condition of Lake street at the intersection and crossing of Clark deserves the immediate attention of some one authorized to mend matters there. Probably, however, it will fall to the city attorney in the shape of a thumping suit for damages.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 6, 1901.

CHICAGO.—The moral wave is sweeping on in the stockyards. A week ago Swift & Co. put a dictatorial muzzle on the men who swore as they worked, and now Libby, McNeil & Libby have posted an order prohibiting the chewing of tobacco. The Libby employés, however, are not debarred from profanity, and they took full advantage of this privilege when the order was posted.

BOSTON, Mass.—Mary Baker G. Eddy did not libel Mrs. Josephine Curtis Woodbury, according to the decision of the court which heard the case here. Mrs. Woodbury lost her suit for $150,000 for alleged libel.

BIRMINGHAM, England.—The chamber of commerce devoted a special meeting to a discussion of American trusts and adopted, after a long debate, a resolution declaring the earnest attention of the government should be given without delay to the best means of guarding the British trade and commerce against injury from American trusts, both from a national and commercial aspect. R. P. Yates, in proposing the resolution, emphasized the menace to Great Britain in the efforts of the United States to command the carrying trade of the world.

VIENNA.—A journal here declares that the United States contemplates accrediting a representative to the holy see in consequence of the large increase in Roman Catholic citizens resulting from the annexation of Cuba and the Philippines.

CHICAGO.—"There is absolutely nothing in the way of a third term for President William McKinley, in my opinion," said United States Senator Chauncey Depew at the Auditorium hotel on his arrival from New York for a short business visit. "The country has been phenomenally prosperous under his administration, universal confidence is reposed in him, and there is vast national pride in the results of his work."

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 6, 1916.

CHICAGO.—The Democrats made a clean sweep of the judicial election in Cook county, reëlecting to the Superior bench these judges: R. E. Burke, W. E. Dever, C. A. McDonald, W. F. Cooper, and M. M. Gridley. Joseph B. David was elected to fill the vacancy on the same bench and Municipal Judge J. J. Sullivan was elevated to the higher court. Among the Republican candidates who were defeated were Robert E. Crowe and Hosea Wells.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—For the first time since attention has been called to him as a presidential candidate, Justice Hughes, in an address, disclosed, partly at least, his attitude on preparedness. He declared the flag stands for "America first" and for an "undivided allegiance," and that it is the duty of the present generation to sacrifice and endure to uphold it.

CHICAGO.—Theodore Roosevelt sent word to the Republicans and Progressives, whose national conventions begin here tomorrow, that if the Republican convention nominates Justice Hughes for President he will accept the nomination and lead a third party. His ultimatum to the Old Guard that he stands ready to bolt the nomination of Hughes and lead a third ticket, as he did in 1912, was the most sensational development of the day in convention circles and upset the calculations of the Republican chieftains. Despite Col. Roosevelt's stand Hughes continues to hold the inside track for the nomination.

PARIS.—The German armies battling for Verdun continued violent assaults in the region of Dead Man's Hill, Hill 304, Fort Douaumont, and Fort Vaux, and were repulsed, the French official report says.

PETROGRAD.—Russian forces have won considerable successes along the front from Pripet marshes to the Roumanian frontier. It is stated that the Russians took 13,000 prisoners.

OPEN THE EXPOSITION ON TIME.

Chicago, June 2.—The committee appointed by Mayor Dever to formulate plans for the Chicago exposition in 1933 should thank Midwest for his cautionary remarks with respect to the lessons to be learned by Philadelphia's mistake in connection with the sesquicentennial exposition.

It is true, the Philadelphia exposition has been poorly exploited and advertised. Only two months ago I wrote the Philadelphia chamber of commerce to inquire whether there actually was to be an exposition this summer, for if there was, I was anxious to attend. Then came the disquieting reports in the newspapers that the exposition would not be complete much before the first of August.

That's one of the things that has been worrying me in connection with Chicago's forthcoming show: No matter how many years ahead such things are planned, it seems they can never be ready on time. Wasn't the World's Columbian exposition postponed an entire year? But 'twould be better to postpone such an event a year than to open it half completed.

Now, then, let's all work together to see that Chicago's exposition is completed on time.

THE MONITOR AND THE MERRIMAC.

Chicago, June 1. I would like to know just why John Ericsson, the builder of the Monitor, is accorded such a high position in American history. His ironclad was remarkable for nothing save its unique and ridiculous appearance. The general impression seems to prevail that the Monitor was victorious in its encounter with the Merrimac, but reference to any authoritative history in its ensubject will prove this not to be the case. The momentous conflict was a draw—neither side could claim any victory. It should be noted also, that several weeks later the southern ship deliberately challenged the "cheese box on a raft" to a second battle, but the northerner wisely declined. The contention that Ericsson deserves credit for ushering in the period of ironclad ships is absurd, as it was the southern sessel, the Merrimac, which really sounded the death knell of the wooden navies. Why not dedicate monuments to the true originators?
H. CARLE PETERSON.

ERICSSON AND TIMBY.

Chicago, Ill., May 30.—After reading about Capt. John Ericsson in THE TRIBUNE of today, I submit the following extract taken from Winston's Cumulative Encyclopedia: "Theodore Ruggles Timby, an American inventor, born at Dover, N. Y., in 1822; died in 1909. He invented the revolving turret for the original Monitor, the mole tower system of defense, the revolving tower and shield system, the American turbine water wheel and the method of firing heavy guns by electricity."

THE DOUBLE DRIVE.

Chicago, June 1.—Will you allow a humble citizen, who has lived thirty years on the lower north side, to answer Mr. H. M. Brown's letter and say a few words in behalf of thousands of poor mothers and children living in the 42d and 43d wards.

In that territory, from the river to North avenue, nearly three square miles excepting the small square in front of the Newberry library, there is not a square foot of grass where a mother can play with her child, or the children play. Now you have taken the park at Chicago avenue and now along the lake shore and the grass strip east of the drive. When a mother has dragged her children and carried the baby to the front at Oak street, she and the children are tired. But Mr. Brown says they might as well walk to Lincoln park—[illegible]

Have a heart, Mr. Brown! And don't take away that strip of grass and make a double drive for the benefit of car owners in Evanston, Rogers Park, Hyde Park, and towns far away, who nearly always have plenty of time, except when they step in a fast car, when even one minute's delay irritates them.

If Mr. Brown will step out to the front any hot evening this summer and look at that strip of grass so covered with people that he will find it difficult to step between them, perhaps he will change his mind.
ANDREW OLSEN.

FOR A NEW PARTY ALIGNMENT.

Bloomington, Ind., June 1.—The value of the two party system is often lauded. It ought to be. Two parties in a democratic state are certainly better than one, for they provide an effective critic for the party in power; two parties are better than numerous parties, for they make it certain that the party in power shall be a majority party (especially under the parliamentary system whereby a party goes out of power as soon as it is outvoted).

In order that the opinion of the people may be clearly expressed, however, the two parties should differ from each other on important issues. That is not the case in the United States today as regards the Republican and Democratic parties; it has rarely been the case since the civil war. James Bryce, the great interpreter of the American government, states that since the civil war the Republican and Democratic parties have been like two mills running at full speed but with nothing to grind. Not even does the tariff clearly separate them.

The prevalence of the Republican party in the majority of northern states and the prevalence of the Democratic party in the southern states is almost entirely a tradition growing out of the war—the north and the south have no issues separating them now. The fact that the city machine in New York is Democratic and that it is Republican in Philadelphia is almost an accident, for in principle they are the same.

Under the circumstances, the forming of "blocs" in congress is inevitable, for the "blocs" are based on real issues. It is a development that is to be welcomed.

Let us hasten the day when there shall be two parties in this country that shall be separated on real issues, and the biggest issue, probably, in all industrial countries is the extent to which the state shall participate in economic matters. Let us have a conservative party (whatever it be called) that shall stand for a maximum degree of industrialism; and let us have a progressive party (whatever its name) that shall stand for an increase in the amount of government ownership. People in all parts of the country can then vote on these issues without being interfered with by party tradition. The issue is not one that can be settled at a single election—it probably will require many years to arrive at a stable policy and in those years it will be well to have the conservative party in power part of the time and for the progressive party to be in power part of the time.

THE PRINCE'S HORSEMANSHIP.

Chicago, May 27.—For Pete's sake lay off of the prince of Wales. [illegible] unless he did in infancy. Riders are thrown off, usually going over jumps or when the animal stumbles, or falls. Riders are thrown from falling off, and the best of riders are thrown, make no mistake. Good riders are thrown more often than poor riders because the mediocre rider does not take chances. I fail to see any humor in the continual panning of a nervy bird like him by merry-go-round equestrians. Even though the idea of razzing the prince is about played out. take away that strip of grass and make a double drive for the benefit of car owners in Evanston, Rogers Park, Hyde Park, and towns far away, who nearly always have plenty of time, except when they step in a fast car, when even one minute's delay irritates them.

If Mr. Brown will step out to the front any hot evening this summer and look at that strip of grass so covered with people that he will find it difficult to step between them, perhaps he will change his mind. ANDREW OLSON.

FOR A NEW PARTY ALIGNMENT.

Bloomington, Ind., June 1.—The value of the two party system is often lauded. It ought to be. Two parties in a democratic state are certainly better than one, for they provide an effective critic for the party in power; two parties are better than numerous parties, for they make it certain that the party in power shall be a majority party (especially under the parliamentary system whereby a party goes out of power as soon as it is outvoted).

In order that the opinion of the people may be clearly expressed, however, the two parties should differ from each other on important issues. That is not the case in the United States today as regards the Republican and Democratic parties; it has rarely been the case since the civil war. James Bryce, the great interpreter of the American government, states that since the civil war the Republican and Democratic parties have been like two mills running at full speed but with nothing to grind. Not even does the tariff clearly separate them.

The prevalence of the Republican party in the majority of northern states and the prevalence of the Democratic party in the southern states is almost entirely a tradition growing out of the war—the north and the south have no issues separating them now. The fact that the city machine in New York is Democratic and that it is Republican in Philadelphia is almost an accident, for in principle they are the same.

Under the circumstances, the forming of "blocs" in congress is inevitable, for the "blocs" are based on real issues. It is a development that is to be welcomed.

Let us hasten the day when there shall be two parties in this country that shall be separated on real issues, and the biggest issue, probably, in all industrial countries is the extent to which the state shall participate in economic matters. Let us have a conservative party (whatever it be called) that shall stand for a maximum degree of industrialism; and let us have a progressive party (whatever its name) that shall stand for an increase in the amount of government ownership. GIRL QUIZZED AT INQUEST INTO 3 POISON DEATHS

Lay Tillman Tragedy to Temporary Insanity.

Pretty Edna Eddins, 29 years old, private secretary of Melvin D. Tillman, whose wife, Margaret, 32 years old, poisoned herself and two children Friday at their home, 1600 Wallen avenue, emphatically declared her innocence of any undue friendship between herself and her employer yesterday during a coroner's inquest at 1359 Devon avenue.

She had known Tillman four years ago in Birmingham, she said, and had worked for him there. Since coming to work for him in Chicago, where he is employed as assistant sales manager for the Alabama Pipe company, Miss Eddins had often visited Mr. and Mrs. Tillman at the home.

Never Seemed Normal.

"Mrs. Tillman never seemed normal during the times I was present at her home," Miss Eddins testified. "She appeared to be despondent, but as she never confided in me, I do not know the cause of her despondency. I did not suspect that she resented my acquaintance with her husband."

Tillman, on the verge of collapse and unable to answer questions coherently, was excused after a few moments of questioning by Deputy Coroner Charles F. Kennedy. He also refuted statements involving Miss Eddins in the death of his wife.

Child Hid Poison.

Little Margaret, 9 year old daughter of the dead woman, said she suspected her mother of wanting to die and for that reason hid the bottle of 100 lysol tablets which her mother purchased after the birth of her last baby in April.

"Mother cried a lot," Margaret testified. "She cried and she kissed me when I left for school yesterday. She must have discovered where I hid the poison."

Worried about the condition of his sister, Charles G. O'Bryant, 906 North State street, brother of Mrs. Tillman, said he came up from Birmingham two months ago to find out what was the cause of her trouble. Loneliness and a vivid imagination were given by O'Bryant as the reason for his sister's suicide.

A verdict of murder and suicide while temporarily insane was returned by the jury.

FAITH CHURCH'S NEW EDIFICE TO BE DEDICATED

Services beginning in the old church structure at 10:45 o'clock this morning will open a week of dedication services at the new Faith Presbyterian church, Pine avenue and Augusta street. Following a sermon by the pastor, the Rev. Howard Wright Johnson, the congregation will march to the new church, which is temporarily connected with the old, and will enter the building to the strains of "Open the Gates to the Temple," sung by a quartet. The dedication service will follow.

The completed unit of the new edifice, which is designed in Tudor Gothic and is built of brick and stone, contains the auditorium, the narthex, the choir room, the church office and the study, on the main floor. On the first floor are the assembly room, a stage, cloak rooms, a well equipped kitchen, and a dining room. The unbuilt portion will replace the old church, providing a modern home for the primary and junior departments of the Sunday school, a chapel, class rooms and a gymnasium.

QUIZZED AT INQUEST INTO POISON TRAGEDY

POLICE CHIEFS TO HOLD CONVENTION HERE ON JULY 19

Collins Plans Program of Four-Day Session.

Chief of Police Morgan Collins yesterday expressed the hope and the belief that the convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police at the Congress hotel on July 19 will be the largest meeting in the history of the organization.

"Every state and all the big cities of the country will be represented and there will be a number present from foreign cities," Chief Collins said.

The convention will continue three days and the program will cover all phases of police work. There also will be special exhibits gathered from all parts of the world. Chief Collins is making special arrangements to care for the visiting chiefs and their families and entertainment for the four days is included in his plans.

The complete police field, from the courtesy services to actual encounters with bandit gangs, will be depicted during the session. And the exhibits will comprise all sorts of equipment, including handcuffs, leg irons, patrol vehicles, armored cars, tear and gas bombs, and machine guns. On display also will be a lie detector, a special microscope, finger print instruments, and record systems.

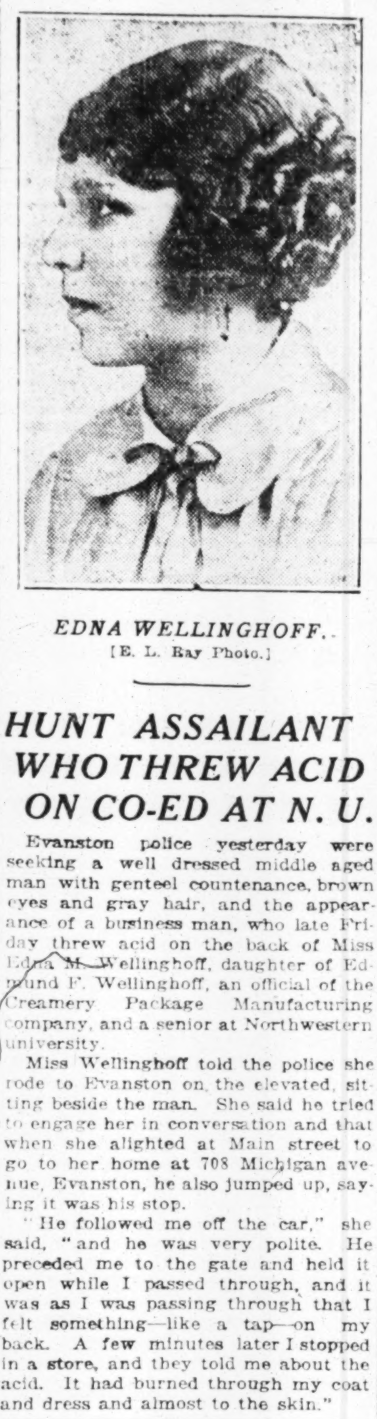
Speakers of prominence from all cities of the United States and Canada will discuss police problems. Among the subjects to be considered are: Crime, its prevention and control; police training and research; the narcotic problem; traffic regulation; extradition proceedings; treatment of discharged convicts and scientific aids to police.

The topic of safety will occupy an important place on the program and the best safety ideas in the country will be exemplified during the convention.

The special police exhibits will be in charge of Chief William A. Wiltberger of Evanston.

Samuel A. Dickson, chief constable of Toronto, Ont., and president of the association, has appealed to members to contribute any instrument or weapon of unusual interest for exhibition purposes.

HIT BY ACID



EDNA WELLINGHOFF.

HUNT ASSAILANT WHO THREW ACID ON CO-ED AT N. U.

Evanston police yesterday were seeking a well dressed middle aged man with genteel countenance, brown eyes and gray hair, and the appearance of a business man, who late Friday threw acid on the back of Miss Edna M. Wellinghoff, daughter of Edmund F. Wellinghoff, an official of the Creamery Package Manufacturing company, and a senior at Northwestern university.

Miss Wellinghoff told the police she rode to Evanston on the elevated, sitting beside the man. She said he tried to engage her in conversation and that when she alighted at Main street to go to her home at 708 Michigan avenue, Evanston, he also jumped up, saying it was his stop.

"He followed me off the car," she said, "and he was very polite. He preceded me to the gate and held it open while I passed through, and it was as I was passing through that I felt something—like a tap—on my back. A few minutes later I stopped in a store, and they told me about the acid. It had burned through my coat and dress and almost to the skin."

Pastor Ties Marriage Knot for His Widowed Mother

Dixon, Ill., June 5.—(AP)—The Rev. Gahlen Lehman, pastor of the Church of the Brethren of Batavia, Ill., today officiated at the wedding of his widowed mother, Mrs. Mary Lehman of Franklin Grove, to Emery Wolf, well to do retired farmer of that place.

HAGGLE AND BARTER.

Doubtless many individual merchants had tried one-price merchandise before George Fox required it of his religious followers, the Quakers. But religious support gave it the impetus that caused the displacement of the age-old habits of haggling and bartering. The better way became an almost universal merchandising custom among English speaking people.

Today, the well regulated institution goes a step further. Not only is there one price, but that price is so low as to permit only a just profit. And profits are, in a degree, subordinated to quality and service.

It is a distinct advantage to buy where the one price system is the sales plan.

5,000 CHICAGO R. O. T. C. CADETS MASS IN DRILL

7 Schools' Corps Named on U. S. Honor Roll.

More than 5,000 R. O. T. C. cadets representing twenty high schools in and near Chicago, staged a spectacular drill contest and review last night on Soldiers field.

With the award of the prizes Maj. F. L. Beals, director of military training in Chicago public schools, announced that seven Chicago schools had been placed on the R. O. T. C. honor roll by the war department—the largest number of such institutions named in any American city.

Gen. Graves Brings Order.

The official order from Washington was handed to Maj. Beals by Maj. Gen. William S. Graves, commanding the Sixth corps area, after the 1,500 members of the combined bands of the schools had played the national anthem.

The schools placed on the honor roll are Lake View, N[illegible] as Senn, Lane Tech, Crane Tech, [illegible]gan Park, Robert Lindblom and Edward Tilden.

In the drill contest for schools having more than 250 cadets Lake View finished first, Senn second, and Hyde Park third. Marshall won first in the contest for schools with less than 250 student soldiers.

Lake View Judged Best.

Lindblom took first in the band contest, Lake View second and Senn third. Lake View, among the larger schools, was declared by the judges to have made the best showing in the review. Hyde Park was second and Lane Tech third. Morgan Park, Fenger and Parker finished in order in the competition of the smaller institutions.

The review was held in connection with the twenty-second annual national interscholastic track and field meet under the sponsorship of the University of Chicago. Among the donors of prizes for the competitions were Maj. Gen. Milton J. Foreman, the Association of Commerce, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the Chicago American, the Chicago Daily News, and the 33d division.

Fitness of Cadets Praised.

Maj. Gen. Graves, Maj. Beals, Gen. Foreman, Superintendent of Schools William McAndrew and members of the board of education were in the reviewing stand. The appearance and fitness of the cadets was commended by them. A crowd of 20,000 attended.

Besides the military drills, special events were staged, including a musical drill by the Girls' Military Training corps of Austin High, tent pitching by the Lake View R. O. T. C., horsemanship and monkey drill by Crane High, fancy drill by Girls' Military Training corps of Calumet high, Zouave drill by Senn, calisthenic drill with music by Lake View, Senn, Austin, Lindblom, Lane and Crane High schools, and a military dance by girls of Morgan Park.

Locate Watch Stolen from J. R. Forgan 4 Years Ago

James Russell Forgan, banker, after a search of four years, had a 21 jewel watch which was stolen from his home at 1122 Greenwood avenue, Evanston, returned to him yesterday by Lieut. Edward Goggin of the detective bureau. The watch was found in a pawnshop at 3544 South State street, with the case number obliterated. Lieut. Goggin, with a microscope, was able to make out the numbers and to trace its ownership.

BORAH TO HELP DRYS FIGHT VARE IN PENNSYLVANIA

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 5.—[Special.]—Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] will lead the brigade of bone drys who will fight the candidacy of William S. Vare, wet Republican senatorial nominee, this fall.

Announcement has been made of the opening of the campaign in a prohibition field day here Oct. 7.

In the fight to put over William B. Wilson, Democrat and nominal dry, the Anti-Saloon league will draft in addition to Senator Borah former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, Richmond Hobson and Senator Frank Willis of Ohio.

"The Anti-Saloon league has not conceded the election of Vare by any means. In fact, the Anti-Saloon league has just begun to fight," Davis E. Crouse, spokesman for the league, said today in making the announcement.

SCAMPS FLOCK TO G. O. P. PLUMS, MRS. BLAIR SAYS

After first charging that the majority of political scamps were in the Republican, rather than the Democratic party, Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, vice chairman of the national Democratic committee, speaking yesterday at the Illinois Woman's Democratic club luncheon at the Sherman house, proceeded to give the explanation for the ratio.

It's not, it seems, that the individual Democratic soul is any whiter than the individual Republican soul; but it's because the collective Republican plum tree is larger than the Democratic one.

"'In Chicago,'" Mrs. Blair declared, "the Democrats gave you Dever; the Republicans gave you Small. It's the same all over the country. The Republicans gave you Daugherty, Fall, and Denby. The Democrats give you McAdoo, Al Smith, and men of that high caliber."

Mrs. Daniel V. Gallery, president of the club, presided, and introduced Mrs. William E. Dever.

NOTED SURGEONS TO SPEAK HERE AT DEDICATION

America's most noted surgeons will attend the dedicatory exercises of the John B. Murphy memorial at 48 East Erie street on Thursday and Friday evenings, it was announced yesterday by the American College of Surgeons.

Dr. William J. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., will deliver the oration in tribute to Dr. Murphy on June 10, when the $600,000 building is presented to the college of surgeons by the memorial association. Sir Berkeley Moynihan, famous London surgeon, was originally on this program, but has cabled that he will be unable to attend.

Leroy A. Goddard, president of the memorial association, will make the presentation and the memorial will be accepted on behalf of the surgeons by Dr. Rudolph Matas of New Orleans.

Prominent Surgeons to Speak.

The second evening program will be devoted to a discussion of modern surgery and its organized work. Dr. Matas will preside and addresses will be given by Dr. Franklin H. Martin, Dr. George W. Crile of Cleveland, Dr. W. W. Chipman of Montreal, and Dr. George David Stewart of New York.

The American College of Surgeons was founded in 1913 and is composed of about 7,000 of the leading surgeons of North and South America.

The work of the organization has been chiefly in advancing the standards of the hospitals where the surgeons work.

A minimum standard was adopted for hospitals, aimed at fixing the ethics and scientific qualifications on a basis justifying support of the public. A preliminary survey showed that only thirteen of every hundred hospitals in the United States were living up to this standard.

Standard Set for Hospitals.

The minimum standard, which has been in effect nine years, sets for the following principles applying to hospital efficiency:

Medical staff organized.

Members of the staff shall be full graduates of medicine, competent in their respective fields and ethical in their business relations with the patient. The practice of the division of fees is condemned.

Rules and regulations to govern the professional work of the hospital.

The staff shall meet at least once a month to review the professional work of the hospital.

Complete records kept of all patients treated.

There shall be necessary efficient diagnostic and therapeutic facilities, such as clinical laboratory, X-ray, etc.

Adopted by 90 Per Cent.

Last year's survey showed that 90 per cent of all the larger institutions have adopted the minimum standard. The campaign against fee splitting has been effective and a number of state legislatures have made it illegal.

The college has a literary research department. Committees have been at work studying and formulating data on cancer, bone sarcoma, etc., giving annual reports to the profession. The college is not an institution with teachers and classes but a guild. The work on scientific tabulation and research will be carried on in the laboratory and medical museum of the Murphy Memorial.

Fear Plan to Eliminate Norwegian in Church Name

Minneapolis, Minn., June 5.—(AP)—The committee on home missions of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America today recommended to the membership that "serious attention" be given to a plan which would strike the word "Norwegian" from the official name of the church.

Some Inside Information

HERE is an interesting fact much talked about among automobile manufacturers, dealers and salesmen.

It is extremely significant to the man about to purchase a car.

Do you know that Jordan challenged the entire automobile industry when we brought out the smoothest Line Eight motor that had yet been produced in the field below $2000?

Do you know that we challenged the whole industry when we introduced the all-steel, all-vision body in a quality car?

And no one has questioned the challenge.

But there are very few manufacturers in the industry who are not busy working toward the all-steel, all-vision body today.

The eight cylinder idea will have a tremendous effect upon the second hand situation one year from now.

Sixes are being produced in such tremendous numbers and the competition in the second hand market is so great that depreciation follows very rapidly.

The Line Eight gives you a standard of value in that market which means hundreds of dollars when you bring your car in for the trade.

The all-steel, all-vision body is the body of the future.

It is simple enough when you understand the manufacturer's point of view.

He must look for light weight, for economy, durability and safety.

He must eliminate all excess materials.

He must have a body which will not splinter or kill if an accident occurs.

Other manufacturers are hastening to adopt the all-steel, all-vision type.

It will take time.

Other manufacturers will come to the Line Eight motor.

Jordan is the leader in the eight cylinder field below $2000 today.

Now here are the facts for the man about to purchase an automobile.

Buy a car with the all-steel, all-vision body. It won't be obsolete a year from now. It will be just coming in with the mass producers.

Buy a car with a Line Eight motor—the Jordan.

It will give you lasting satisfaction in operation and won't suffer the depreciation of the six.

Lots of manufacturers are advertising steel bodies.

But they have simply introduced the narrow steel pillar in front.

Lots of manufacturers are considering the Line Eight motor—it is so much smoother than the six.

Buy a Jordan today and you are one year ahead.

JORDAN

BOSSES AND IRON WORKERS STAND PAT ON WAGES

2,200 Strikers Will Hold Meeting Tomorrow.

With both sides standing pat, officials of the Structural Iron Workers' union will make a detailed report at a meeting of the union tomorrow night of their negotiations with representatives of the Iron League of Chicago regarding the strike of approximately 2,200 iron workers.

The union meeting will be held in Musicians' hall, at 175 West Washington street. The walkout of the steel erectors was called last Tuesday morning when the employers comprising the Iron league refused to grant the demand of the union for a wage scale increase from $1.37½ an hour to $1.50 an hour.

Employers Say They'll Lose.

Employers contend that most of the contracts for steel work now in progress are on the $1.37½ basis and therefore a raise would mean losses. But Arthur Evensen, business representative of the structural iron workers, last night said:

"For two years members of the Iron League of Chicago have been fully aware that the structural iron workers would ask for a wage increase this year, and they had ample time to figure their work accordingly. In January we notified our employers in writing that the scale would be $1.50 after June 1.

"In our conference with the Iron league some of the employers admitted that our demand for a wage increase was justified, but on account of outside influence refused to support their belief.

"Others on the wage scale committee of employers, however, had the presumption at a recent conference to propose a wage reduction from $11 a day to $8 a day."

Tells Dangers to Workers.

Joseph Corr, another business representative of the union, declared the job of erecting steel is the most hazardous in the building industry.

"Since Jan. 1 approximately 150 members of the Iron Workers' union have been killed or injured while engaged on construction work in the Chicago district," he said.

"Insurance companies frown on the idea of issuing policies to men engaged in erection of structural steel. Their rates are too high for structural iron workers to pay. The union now is paying about $1,300 a month in benefits to injured members."

Another factor cited by both union leaders, which they believe should entitle them to consideration is that the iron workers accepted the Landis award and abided by its rulings.

WATER TRAGEDY

Daniel Thompson, who was drowned yesterday in the north branch of the Chicago river despite brother's efforts to save him.

Robert Thompson, who offered his life to save his brother from drowning, but failed in rescue attempt.

Negro Stabs Cop; Fireman Shoots; Crowd in Panic

Crowds around the corner of 60th and State streets were thrown into a panic as Joseph Thompson, a city fireman, fired five shots at a colored man who had just stabbed Thomas Lowery, probationary policeman, in the back. The Negro got away. Lowery and Thompson were standing at the corner talking when the Negro ran out of the alley with the knife. Neither son for the attack.

Germany, Denmark in Pact to Arbitrate Their Rows

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, June 5.—The Locarno treaties and Germany's prospective entry into the league of nations have resulted in the negotiation of a treaty between Denmark and Germany under which they will arbitrate before declaring war on one another. The treaty is the result of the socialistic government's plan for disarmament.

3 INDICTED BY U. S. IN $500,000 BROKER FAILURE

Accused of Mail Fraud in Sale of Stocks.

An aftermath of a La Salle street brokerage house crash of 18 months ago was revealed yesterday when Postoffice Inspector V. E. Albertie announced the indictment in Grand Rapids, Mich., of Ralph S. Hyney, Guy L. V. Emerson, and Arthur B. Wilson. The three, who were the officers of the firm of Hyney, Emerson & Co., are charged with using the mails to defraud.

GUY L. V. EMERSON.

The brokerage house went to the wall with liabilities of $500,000 and with less than half the sum in assets, according to Inspector Albertie, who was in charge of the local investigation which resulted in the indictments at Grand Rapids.

Liabilities listed by the concern included $205,000 owed to banks and $165,000 due to a group of 100 clients. Albertie said that before the company incorporated and failed it had owed $200,000 to the Fort Dearborn National bank, now merged with another loop bank, and that in the ten months prior to the collapse the concern had operated at a loss of $125,000.

Other Charges Made.

In addition to making fraudulent representations through the mails, it is alleged, the indicted men are charged with having sold bonds which they failed to deliver. It is said the indictments were returned in Michigan federal court because most of the alleged victims reside in that state.

Indict Prosecutor and Five Over Murder Fine

St. Louis, Mo., June 5.—(AP)—Circuit Attorney Howard Sidener and five other men were charged with conspiracy to "prevent and obstruct justice" in an indictment returned today by the grand jury, which investigated the William Allen Scott Rutherford murder case, in which the defendant was let off with a $500 fine.

SECOND DIVISION VETS DEDICATE WAR MEMORIAL

3 Day Convention Ends in Banquet.

Three thousand veterans of the Second division gathered at Rand and Ballard roads, near Des Plaines, Ill., yesterday, and dedicated a war memorial to their 4,000 heroic dead, firing a salute to their memory and sounding "taps" over their deeds at the conclusion of the ceremony.

The tract of land in the forest preserve where the memorial stands has been renamed "Belleau Wood" in honor of the Second's accomplishment at that battle; where they are credited with stopping the German advance on Paris, when the enemy was but thirty miles from their objective. This and other achievements of the division were recounted by Lieut. Col. Hanford MacNider, assistant secretary of war and president of the division association, who delivered the principal address.

"Yellows" the Real Menace.

Col. MacNider, a past national commander of the American Legion, paid tribute to his buddies "gone west," then launched an attack aimed at "the worst enemy this country has, the native yellow, those opponents of even moderate preparedness for war."

"The real danger in America," he said, "lies not in the foreign red, but in the native yellow. The reds are not in reality so dangerous. They are usually foreigners who do not as yet understand or appreciate America. They can be cured by education, experience, and information.

"But those native yellow—what they need is a good course in American history."

The invocation for the ceremony was delivered by the association's chaplain the Rev. Father H. A. Darche, and the benediction by the Rev. William E. Patrick, national chaplain of the American Legion. Mayor Charles S. Stewart of Desplaines welcomed the veterans to the new "Belleau Wood," and Mrs. E. W. Bemis, county commissioner presented the site of the memorial to the division. Archie M. Benson, president of the Illinois branch, was chairman.

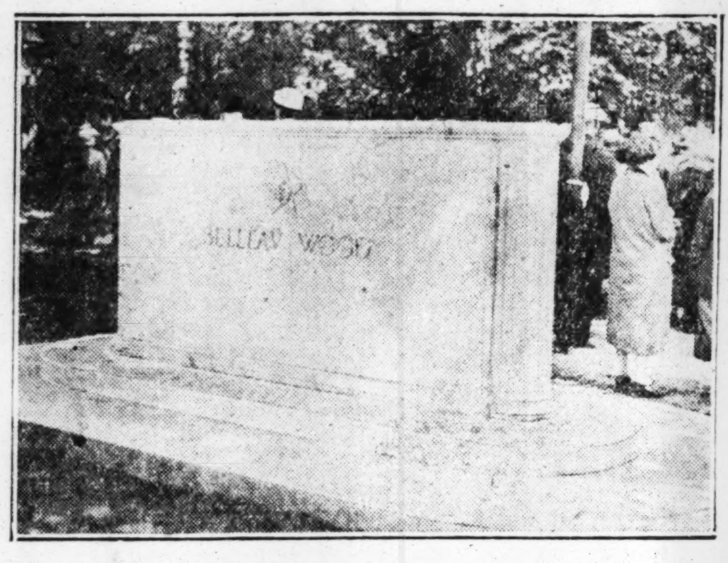
MacNider Boom Sprung.

The association closed its three day convention last night with a large banquet at the Hotel La Salle, at which Col. MacNider was brought forward as presidential timber in the future by Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord. Bedlam broke loose when the popular commander, who was yesterday reëlected president of the association, was named.

The demonstration continued as a crowd of his former buddies lifted him to their shoulders and carried him around the ballroom, together with Gens. John A. Lejeune, commandant of the marine corps, and Paul B. Malone, present commander of the division.

Twenty Gold Star Mothers of the outfit were guests at the banquet, at which former leaders of the division spoke. These included Maj. Gens. Harbord, Lejeune, W. C. Neville, Preston Brown, and Hanson E. Ely and Brig. Gen. Malone. Col. MacNider was toastmaster.

TO THE 2D DIVISION'S HEROES



The memorial to the 4,000 members of the Second division killed in battle, which was unveiled yesterday in the forest preserve at Rand and Ballard roads. The tract of land has been renamed Belleau woods, and the monument bears that inscription.

PARK OFFICIAL DIES SUDDENLY.

William D. Scott, 65 years old, 4406 North Lincoln street, a superintendent of grounds at Lincoln park, died suddenly of heart disease early yesterday at the apartment of Mrs. Frances Berndt, 3103 Sedgwick street. Mr. Scott was stricken while on his way home, Capt. Condon of Hudson avenue police said.

Now France Blames Occult Force for Crash of Franc

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, June 5.—Persistent rumors are current tonight in parliamentary circles regarding a cabinet reorganization to be made soon with M. Bokanowski, Nationalist and one of Raymond Poincare's lieutenants, succeeding Raoul Peret as finance minister.

It also is said Premier Aristide Briand intends to throw overboard several of the radical Socialists now members of the government and substitute new ministers from the moderate center parties, and thereby creating a new majority in the chamber outside of the left cartel, which gave him the last two votes of confidence.

M. Peret appeared pale, worried, and nervous today after the cabinet council, saying "The sudden fall of the franc is inexplicable—. I cannot understand it. It must be the result of secret and occult forces working against France and the franc. Nothing justifies the new depreciation and heavy foreign speculation surely is at th ebottom of the trouble."

Paralyzes Real Estate Market.

The fluctuations of the franc have paralyzed the real estate market, which already is at a standstill owing to the shortage of stores, offices and apartments. Practically no building has been done in Paris since 1914.

Owners of property refuse to rent on the regulation three, six and ten year leases. They fear the franc's further decline, and the strict laws which have been enacted by parliament, with an eye to the popular vote, protecting tenants against increase in rents or eviction.

Proprietors, dealing with foreigners, invariably demand the fixing of the rent in terms of dollars or pounds and although this is illegal, most people seeking locations grab the opportunity.

Stop Fixing Fares in Dollars.

A recent act of parliament specifically forbids any business being done in France except on the basis of the franc, the national currency. Not long ago steamship lines quoting passage fares in dollars and pounds were forbidden to give out rates except in francs.

Another expedient for protection against the depreciation of the franc is the quoting of rentals or prices of commodities on the basis of the Caillaux 4 per cent gold loan bonds, floated last autumn on the basis of the franc being worth 125 to the pound sterling. The loan provides for increased interest in whatever proportion the franc falls below the 125 mark and, since this was a national bond issue, transactions of this kind cannot be prohibited by law.

Technically, a tenant can agree to pay on the dollar basis, then refuse after moving in, but this is not feasible and is not attempted, as the proprietor immediately starts dispossession proceedings. As locations are so difficult to find at any price, tenants are glad to remain even on the gold basis.

How Shops Beat Law.

De luxe shops dealing with rich French people or foreigners evade the ban against the dollar prices by the stipulation that the goods were purchased when the franc was worth thirty to the dollar and if payment is not made in cash, reserve the right to increase the price in accordance with the dollar exchange quotation.

Personal Feuds Hurt Franc.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 5.—The British financiers, who are watching closely the development of the work of the French committee of experts in an effort to save the franc, are much dissatisfied, declaring it has become merely an arena in which is fought out the feuds of the French politicians. For instance, THE TRIBUNE is informed that Jean Parmentier, who is recognized here as the best French financial expert, was excluded from the committee on the demand of M. Finaly, chief of the Banque de Paris et Paybas, through whose enmity he was forced out of public office three years ago.

It's a Short Step from the Altar to the Kitchen—make it an easy one

In a twinkling the transition is made — the bride of today is the housewife of tomorrow. Does the knowledge of it cause her to turn back? No! Nor should it. For the modern bride knows that the home equipment which is available to her today has halved the problem of preparing the three square meals per day.

She will have a beautiful, spotless kitchen—a porcelain sink, porcelain cabinets, porcelain table and a glistening porcelain gas range—a Universal gas range with an oven heat regulator and many other improvements which lighten the problems of cooking. There is no drudgery in store for this bride.

Her husband will never find her with a polish can and a blacking brush, trying to make an ugly old-style stove look bright and clean.

Her Universal range will always be immaculately white. She will keep it so, easily and quickly, by merely wiping off the porcelain with a moist cloth.

Nor will the smart bride's husband ever sit down to a burned meal. The Universal Oven Heat Regulator will see to it that no expensive food is wasted by an over-heated oven. She will set this automatic heat regulator at the proper place and go about her other duties. Cooking will not consume her days.

So too, can the bride of years gone by have a brighter outlook on the future. A new Universal gas range will bring more sunshine and more leisure into any woman's life.

Universals are offered in many styles and trims and at prices which enable every family to enjoy one.

Call at any Authorized Universal Store and see the many new conveniences they include. Make the step to your kitchen an easy one.

MIRIAM LIFTS TALIESEN SIEGE; RETURNS HOME

Wright Offers to Pay for Sanitarium Stay.

Mrs. Miriam Noel Wright returned to Chicago last night from her unsuccessful attempt to force entrance into the architect's home at Spring Green, Wis. "I do not know what my next step will be," she said, "until I have consulted with my attorney."

Spring Green, Wis., June 5.—(AP)—The walls of Taliesen, the home of Frank Lloyd Wright, noted architect, were still intact late today, when his estranged wife, Miriam Noel Wright, after a three day siege of the place, took her departure by automobile for Madison, en route to Chicago.

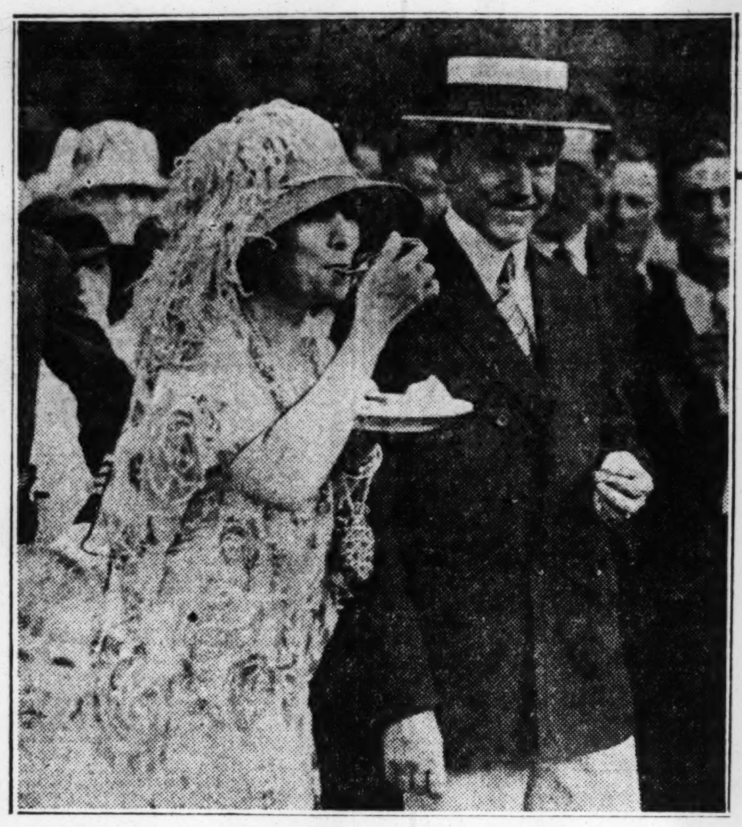
The siege was marked by an attack on the gates of the home over which she once ruled. Failing in this, Mrs. Wright's strength became exhausted and she was forced to her bed yesterday. Early today she complained of a heart attack, but her physician could find nothing organically wrong.

Mrs. Wright changed her mind several times during the early part of one day, but toward mid-afternoon decided to leave Spring Green. Her decision came with advice from her attorney in Chicago, Arthur D. Cloud, who urged her to return there.

Early today Mrs. Wright said her one desire now is to rest until her health is recovered. Wright agrees with her in this and has offered to pay for her treatment at a sanitorium until she is completely recovered from her nervous and mental exhaustion caused by her frantic efforts to regain her position at his home.

Since her attack, Wright, who returned here hurriedly from the east, has declared he is willing to pay for her support within his means, and all he desires is an opportunity to continue his work uninterrupted.

HOW COOLIDGES KEEP COOL



The President and his wife are shown on the White House lawn at a party they gave for disabled veterans on June 3. They are wearing summer clothes and Mrs. Coolidge is keeping cool by eating ice cream.

TWO DESPONDENT WOMEN ATTEMPT TO END LIVES

Fifteen minutes after she was discharged as an adding machine operator for the Public Service company of Oak Park yesterday, Miss Claire Mason, 29, 911 Pleasant avenue, was found in the washroom of the concern unconscious from chloroform she had taken. She was taken to the West Suburban hospital, where it was stated she may die.

Mrs. Mary Halperin Wilson was taken to the county hospital yesterday after she had shot herself in the chest in the home of her mother, Mrs. Lena Halperin, 3434 East 111th place. Mrs. Halperin said her daughter had been separated from her husband since July, and that she believed the young woman was despondent. Mrs. Wilson, although conscious, refused to tell why she tried suicide.

BRITISH DEMAND SEPARATE ARMY AND NAVY CUTS

Act to Head Off French Scheme in League.

[Copyright: 1926: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, June 5.—The first step toward the separation of the subjects of military and naval disarmament was taken today by the British, who, during the discussion of the general characteristics of naval armaments by the military subcommittee of the preparatory disarmament commission, asked that the concluding clause of the French memorandum, linking air, land and sea armaments, be held over for discussion until all the technical points in question have been resolved.

In view of the conflicting views on this subject, which appear to the observer moral and political rather than technical, it was decided to refer the British proposal to a drafting committee composed of representatives of Britain, France, Holland and Spain, who were asked to coördinate the views of the various countries. The United States was invited to participate, but Admiral Hilary Jones declined on the grounds that this subcommittee should be as small as possible. He expressly stated that the final phrase of the French memorandum should not be considered by the drafting committee.

The French Contention.

That portion of the French thesis dealing with the characteristics of naval armaments says:

"Naval armaments are generally slow of construction, costly and difficult to conceal. They require a high proportion of specially trained men who need a long period of training.

"They are mobile and highly suitable to rapid surprise action. Their field of operation is practically unlimited on sea, if they are provided with conveniently placed bases, ports of call, refitting docks and coaling and revictualing stations.

"Their action is limited to sea routes and enemy coasts, but they also can take action against the interior of enemy territory if they include air forces or if they carry landing parties. Thus their characteristics are such as to link them closely with land and air armaments."

Tie Up Air Armaments.

On air armament the French memorandum says:

"The greater part of air armaments comes organically within the composition of land and naval armaments and cannot be dissociated from them." The French go on to say of land armaments:

"If they belong to a state which has freedom of the seas, land armaments, like naval armaments, can extend their field of operations all over the world so far as the sea transport available permits."

These two conclusions mean that twice again before the discussion of the question is finished the British and Americans on the one side and the French and Italians on the other are going to clash on the question of separate consideration of disarmament in the various branches of the service.

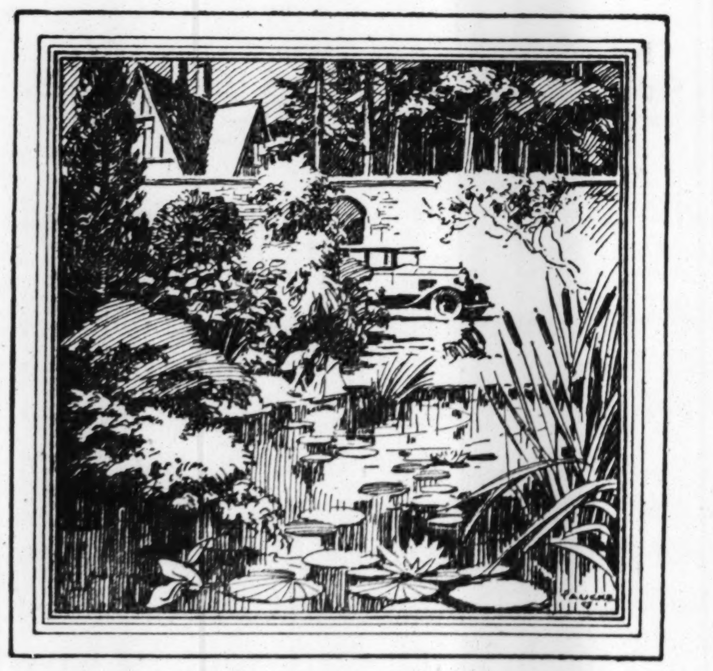
COOLIDGES MOTOR 100 MILES TO WEDDING OF WILLIAM V: HODGES

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—President Coolidge motored 100 miles today to be present at the wedding of William V. Hodges, treasurer of the Republican national committee, to Mrs. Catherine Beasley Lowndes of Baltimore. The wedding took place at Gleneig Manor, Howard county, Md., the country home of W. Blades Lowndes, a brother-in-law of the bride.

In addition to the President and Mrs. Coolidge the guests included Hubert Work, secretary of the interior; Senator William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican national committee; Everett Sanders, secretary to the President, and Mrs. Sanders; Senator and Mrs. Deneen of Illinois, Senator and Mrs. Warren of Wyoming, Senator and Mrs. Oddie of Nevada, Senator and Mrs. Goff of West Virginia, J. Butler Wright, assistant secretary of state, and Mrs. Wright, and Mrs. Alvin T. Hert.

The Triumph of a Principle

Eager Thousands Giving the
New, 90-Degree, Eight-Cylinder Cadillac
The Greatest Success In Its History



The buying habits of American motorists are undergoing a profound change and reaching up to something better. The new thousands who are aligning themselves with the old Cadillac army are symptomatic of general disposition to seek and find quality which is sound and assured. ¶ A new triumph is being spontaneously accorded to the time-proven Cadillac principle of manufacturing—hold fast to that which is good and strive constantly for the very best attainable. ¶ The effort to supplant Cadillac in public confidence has dwindled steadily through the years—Now Cadillac finds itself almost alone in its own fine field with new thousands flocking to the Cadillac standard.

This ☞ ———

Value! Weil-McLain offers unequaled boiler value largely because a corrugated design like this ∿∿ practically doubles the usual area of heating surface. And all without adding to size or price of boiler.

This corrugated heating surface permits heating your home more easily, with lighter firing and with less fuel. These are the extra values you get in the daily operation of a Weil-McLain Boiler.

Weil-McLain Boilers give you more heating surface

Heating Surface Increased

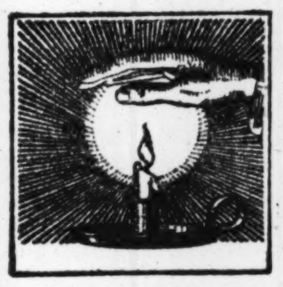
Less than five years ago Weil-McLain Boilers brought to the public a new conception of heating efficiency and economy. Home owners quickly grasped the fact that here was something far in advance of previous practice. They asked us the reasons for these revolutionary results. And here is what they learned.

By means of deep corrugations the heating surfaces in Weil-McLain Boilers have been tremendously increased. This has added greatly to the capacity and efficiency of the boilers without otherwise adding to their size or adding a single penny to their price.

You can easily figure it out for yourself. Picture these corrugations ∿∿∿ straightened out. They will make a surface as long as this ————. By means of these corrugations Weil-McLain put 40 per cent more heating surface into the same space.

This added heating surface in every section in Weil-McLain Boilers means proportionately greater heating efficiency—more heat per ton of coal or coke or per gallon of oil—lower fuel bills for you—a truly remarkable boiler value.

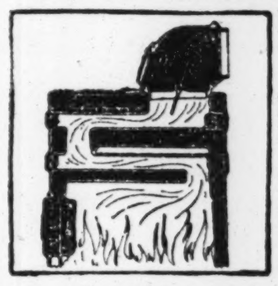
Fuel-Saving Corrugations in Every Section



The surface directly above the fire is most efficient. To prove this, first hold your hand at the side of a flame—then directly over it. You will find the hottest point directly over the flame.

The candle test (at left) demonstrates in a simple way that heating surface directly above the fire is the most valuable. The Weil-McLain "double-surface" crown sheet section directly above the fire has deep, fuel-saving corrugations to greatly increase the valuable heating surface at this most important point. All other sections have Weil-McLain corrugations to further increase efficiency and save fuel.

Back-and-forth Fire Travel



Long "back-and-forth" fire travel

But this is not all. Perhaps of equal importance is the famous Weil-McLain principle of long "back-and-forth" fire travel. In this modern boiler there are no short cuts to the chimney. The hot gases are baffled backward and forward through the corrugated heating surfaces, until the maximum number of heat units are absorbed and delivered to your radiators.

Scientific Combustion

And so it is throughout the entire boiler. Advanced designing has made possible Scientific Combustion which assures more complete burning of the fuel and more heat in the burning gases.

Weil-McLain Boilers burn any of the solid fuels (hard coal, soft coal or coke) and because of the forethought in their modern design they are unexcelled for oil burning.

Unexcelled for Oil Burning

The quick, intense heat produced by modern oil burners demands in a boiler a great amount of concentrated heat-absorbing surface, large water content and a long fire travel. You get all this in Weil-McLain Boilers through corrugated heating surfaces, large water spaces and long back-and-forth fire travel.

FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS MEETING ENDS

Organization Plans to Open Washington Offices.

BY KATE WEBBER.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 5.—[Special.]—With the post-mortem meeting of the board of directors this afternoon the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs ended after the most important eleven days' gathering since its first meeting in Chicago in 1889.

San Antonio, Tex., was selected today for the 1928 convention. The council of 1927 will be in Grand Rapids, Mich.

The privilege of individual clubs to vote as they please on legislative questions, whether in accord with or in spite of the indorsement of the delegate body, was the only note of dissension at the convention.

The seven delegates from the Louisville Woman's club, who led the objection, came armed with legal counsel and left feeling that their protests, although steam rolled this time, finally will result in modification of the ruling adopted by the biennial council at West Baden last spring. Under this ruling state organizations or individual clubs cannot conduct a campaign in the name of the state or club in opposition to action taken by the national organization.

Question of State Rights.

Reaffirmation of the federation's support to the proposed federal child labor amendment was the basis of the fight over the ruling, though the minority objected to every resolution approving federal action which might involve state rights.

The expected fight over the federation's stand on prohibition did not develop. The resolution as adopted pledged "loyal and uncompromising support to the enforcement of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act." This also is simply a re-affirmation of previous stands taken.

Other legislative measures receiving support include the Fess amendment to the Smith-Hughes act, providing appropriation for home economics work; a petition to the senate committee to grant a two year extension for provisions of the Sheppard-Towner maternity act; establishment of a federal department of education with a secretary in the cabinet; uniform marriage and divorce laws; the Smith-Lever act, which would make available additional funds for home demonstration work; support of the Merritt pure food bill, known as the "mis-branding act" of 1925, and continued work for abolishment of the prison contract system.

Favor Offices in Washington.

Recommendations were made for the establishment of a legislative bureau in Washington and the office of corresponding secretary was abolished.

Recommendations also were made that the women work for the teaching of citizenship and reading of the scriptures in public schools.

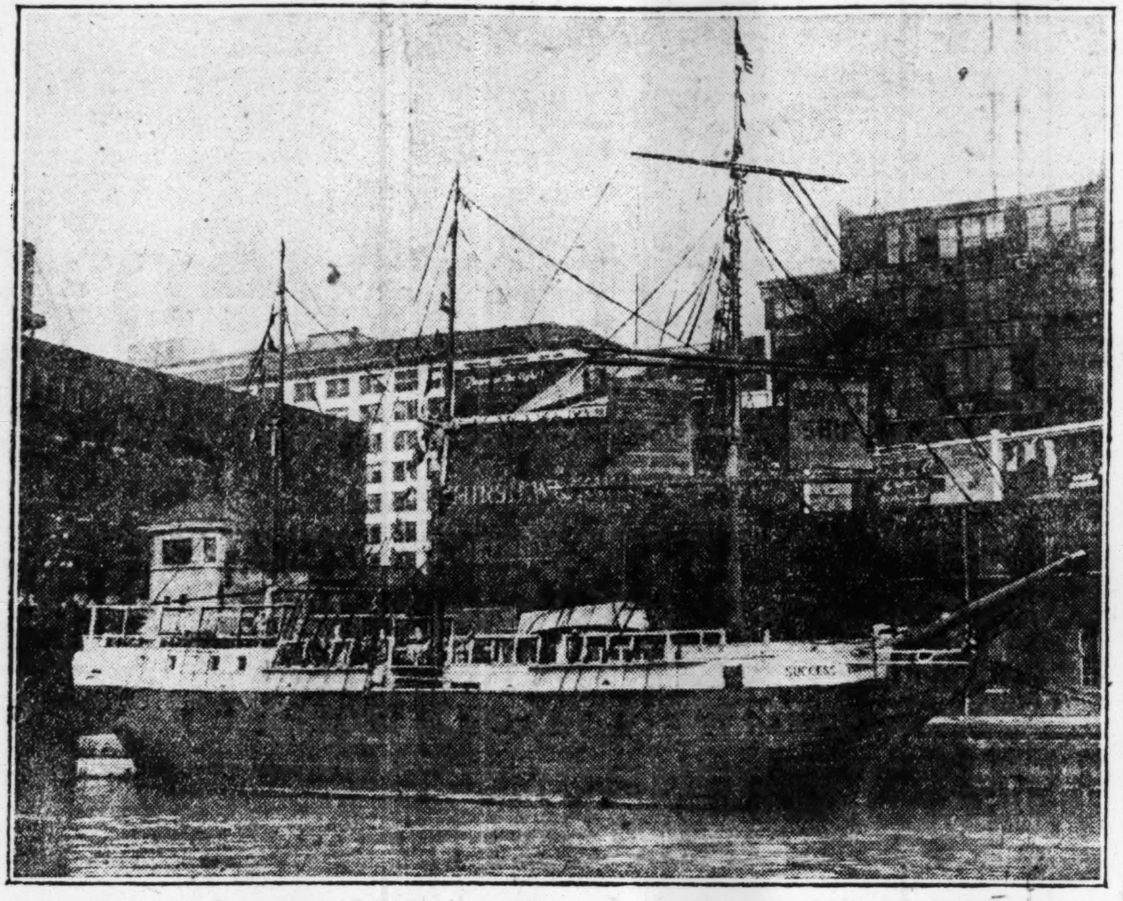
Considerable comment was caused by the announcement of Mrs. Alfred C. Tyler of Chicago, chairman of the motion pictures committee, that a policy for blacklisting undesirable films is to be inaugurated independently by the federation.

Since its withdrawal in 1925 from Will Hays' committee, because "so little had been accomplished to improve motion pictures, and there seemed to be no indication of change of policy," the federation has advocated the policy of recommending good pictures, without comment on bad ones. Mrs. Tyler proposes a clearing house which shall include checking and testing of pictures, and sending the information to state chairmen, who shall apply censorship locally.

Joliet High School Band Wins U. S. Championship

Fostoria, O., June 5. — (AP) — The Joliet [Ill.] High school band today won the national high school championship, winning over twelve other contestants, defeating the Fostoria band, last year's winner, by a fraction of one per cent. Ogden, Utah, took third prize over Louisville, Ky.

CONVICT SHIP AIDS TRIBUNE ICE FUND



The convict ship Success, which is now at the Madison street bridge of the river. Capt. D. H. Smith has donated it as a benefit for The Tribune ice fund on Monday, June 14. The boat was built in 1790 at Moulmein, British India.

PRISON SHIP TO GIVE FREE ICE BENEFIT JUNE 14

Proceeds of Day Go to Swell Fund,

THE TRIBUNE free ice fund called for friends—and the good old convict ship Success was first to answer "Here!"

Promptly as a soldier answering reveille, and with a great deal more alacrity, Capt. J. H. Smith, skipper of the ancient vessel moored at the Madison street bridge, appeared yesterday at Tribune Tower, offering with his genial smile to turn over the ship for a second time for the benefit of THE TRIBUNE free ice fund.

And, with the results of last year's benefit, held on June 15, in mind, wherein the day's business netted more than $600 for the free ice and the Camp Algonquin funds, his offer was gratefully accepted. June 14, Monday, has been set as the date on which the benefit will be held this year.

Over the Top for Fund.

"We're going to go over the top for the fund this year, and beat by a good deal the record we set last June," observed Capt. Smith. "We've got one of the really unique shows in the world—the ship fairly reeks with history. It's a chapter out of the past, preserved for the present generation. Boys who enjoy reading pirate stories can get twice the thrill out of treading the decks of the Success, where pirates really lived and roamed the seas.

"It carries you back in a twinkling, more than a century and a quarter, for the ship is older, even, than that. It was built in Moulmein, British India, in 1790. Figure it out for yourselves —136 years old. There isn't an older ship afloat. Can you name a better show than that, for a little old fifty cents?"

Interesting Historical Relic.

Few museums have more to offer the public in a historical way than this old craft, which has interested noted men and women the world over. It is made of solid Burmese teak, sturdily put together. Used first as a merchant vessel, it was captured by pirates, who ran up the skull and crossbones and for years preyed on trading vessels.

Finally conquered by the outraged British, the pirates were put to death and the ship itself scuttled and sunk. After another period of years it was finally raised from the bottom of the bay where it had lain so long and put to use again by England as a floating prison between England and Australia.

Every instrument of the inhuman treatment accorded these hapless men is preserved aboard the vessel. Tiny, airless dungeons, balls and chains, the "iron maiden," the "coffin bath"—all are there to be seen by those who visit the ship on Monday, June 14—and help out the free ice fund.

JUDGE FALLS FROM LADDER; MAY DIE.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 5.—[Special.]—Judge Edward W. Felt, 66, of Marion county municipal court was injured probably fatally in a fall from a ladder at his home today.

NEW REBELLIONS MENACE FRENCH MOROCCAN RULE

Three Chieftains Outside Riff Threaten War.

BY LORIMER HAMMOND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

FEZ, French Morocco, June 5.—Entirely apart from the Riff and Abd-el Krim, France has four seporate hostile fronts in Morocco and three other rebel leaders whose presence is a constant menace. News from these more remote North African troubles seldom is allowed to penetrate beyond higher military circles, and the spectacular nature of the Riffian war has hitherto detracted all foreign attention from the rest of the country.

The recent breakdown of the Oujda peace conference necessitated a delay in plans the French high command had formulated for a big operation this year against the rebel hordes in the Atlas mountains. All along the top of the ranges from Tounfit in the north to Tafilelt in the south, gun running and ammunition storing among the tribes has been going on for months. Two battalions of the French foreign legion, with several battalions of native troops now stationed there, fear an uprising at any moment.

5,000 Armed at Tafilelt.

At Tafilelt there is a secret concentration of irridentists numbering about 5,000 fighting men, all armed with modern rifles smuggled down from the north from stocks stolen from the French arsenals or captured by the Riffians, who have more guns than they can use. The Tafilelt people now are paying a current price of 2,000 francs [$64] per rifle.

One of the French methods of preventing trouble is buying back the arms from the natives at advanced prices. Early this spring they made a deal with one tribe, getting possession of 1,500 guns at 2,500 francs [$80] each. In the adjacent country known as Tache de Taza, the natives who are armed and equipped and unsubmissive are estimated at 2,500 to 3,000. Still another powerful element in the same vicinity is called the Oyaouizert tribe, but the number of its warriors the authorities are not yet able to determine.

Bandit Saint Threatens War.

In the wild hinghlands of the middle Atlas mountains lives Sidi Raho—the greatest independent rebel chief outside of Abd-el Krim. Raho is not only a soldier but a holy man as well, which makes him all the more formidable in a land where a religious war always is a threatening possibility.

It was Sidi Raho who laid seige to Fez in 1912, when the natives of that city rose against the Christians and massacred all but a handful of the entire European colony. Marshal Lyautey was in Fez throughout the disaster, but escaped with his life and led the French counter attack, after which Raho was driven out with his rebels. At that time he was enormously wealthy, possessing vast herds of sheep and cattle and many slaves. Since he turned actively against the French, he has lost all his property and now lives the life of a bandit saint—a Marabu—as the natives say.

His influence among the tribes of the Atlas mountains is just as great as Krim's influence among the Riffians, and Sidi Raho is counted by the French leaders and higher ups in Moroccan affairs to be a man who must be watched every moment. He has around him a regular band of about 3,000 well armed fighters, which he uses to intimidate the tribes into following him when he conducts raids. The French believe he was never long out of touch with Abd-el Krim.

Bel Kocem Worries French.

Bel Kacem is still another little known rebel whose activities give the French a good deal of care.

Then, far down in the south lives the all powerful Arab family named Glaouy, the ruling patriarch being friendly to the French. But a young nephew, next in line for the chieftainship, is a sworn enemy of all Christian invaders. The present leader of the Glaouy family is an old man nearing 80. His nephew, who will soon take over power, already has threatened to lead the tribes against the rich French city of Marakech. It is a fact known only to a few authorities here that last summer when Krim menaced Fez the Glaouys were on the verge of marching in arms against Marakech, which is never strongly protected, having a garrison of not more than one regiment of the foreign legion, while the tribes in that district are specially numerous and well armed.

I am told that all the tribes in the south under the Glaouy dominion consider their truce with the French has been broken and therefore will be more hostile.

MARBLE CHAMP

WILLIAM MARINELLE.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

William Marinelle, 12 years old, 1819 Dodge avenue, Evanston, yesterday won the schoolboy marble shooting championship of Cook county. The finals were played at Mason park, Evanston. William represented St. Mary's school. Romeo Francone, 6931 South Hermitage avenue, was second and Elwood Wagner, 1516 South Albany avenue, third. The winner will compete in the state-wide contest with other county champions and the state winner will go to the national finals in Atlantic City.

ASK OUSTING OF U. S. AUTHOR FOR ATTACK ON CHINA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, June 5.—The Chinese press today demanded deportation of Rodney Gilbert, American newspaper man and Harvard graduate, because of his book, "What's Wrong with China."

He says the Chinese are incapable of governing themselves and recommends international intervention and the establishment of foreign control of the Chinese republic.

Mr. Gilbert, a native of Lancaster, Pa. and a resident of China for many years, is employed by a British newspaper. He attempts to prove historically that the Chinese are only peaceful and prosprous when they are governed by foreigners.

Mr. Gilbert's book sharply criticizes the American policy toward China. He says the open door policy is a monumental mistake and that China should have been partitioned by the powers half a century ago.

Six Children, Trapped in Home, Perish in Flames

Tucson, Ariz., June 5.—(AP)—Six children, trapped by flames, perished here last night when the home of Colletauo Villa burned. The mother, her oldest daughter, and a baby escaped. The crackling of the flames awakened the mother, who attempted frantically to save her family, and who was forced to leave the blazing structure only after she had been badly burned.

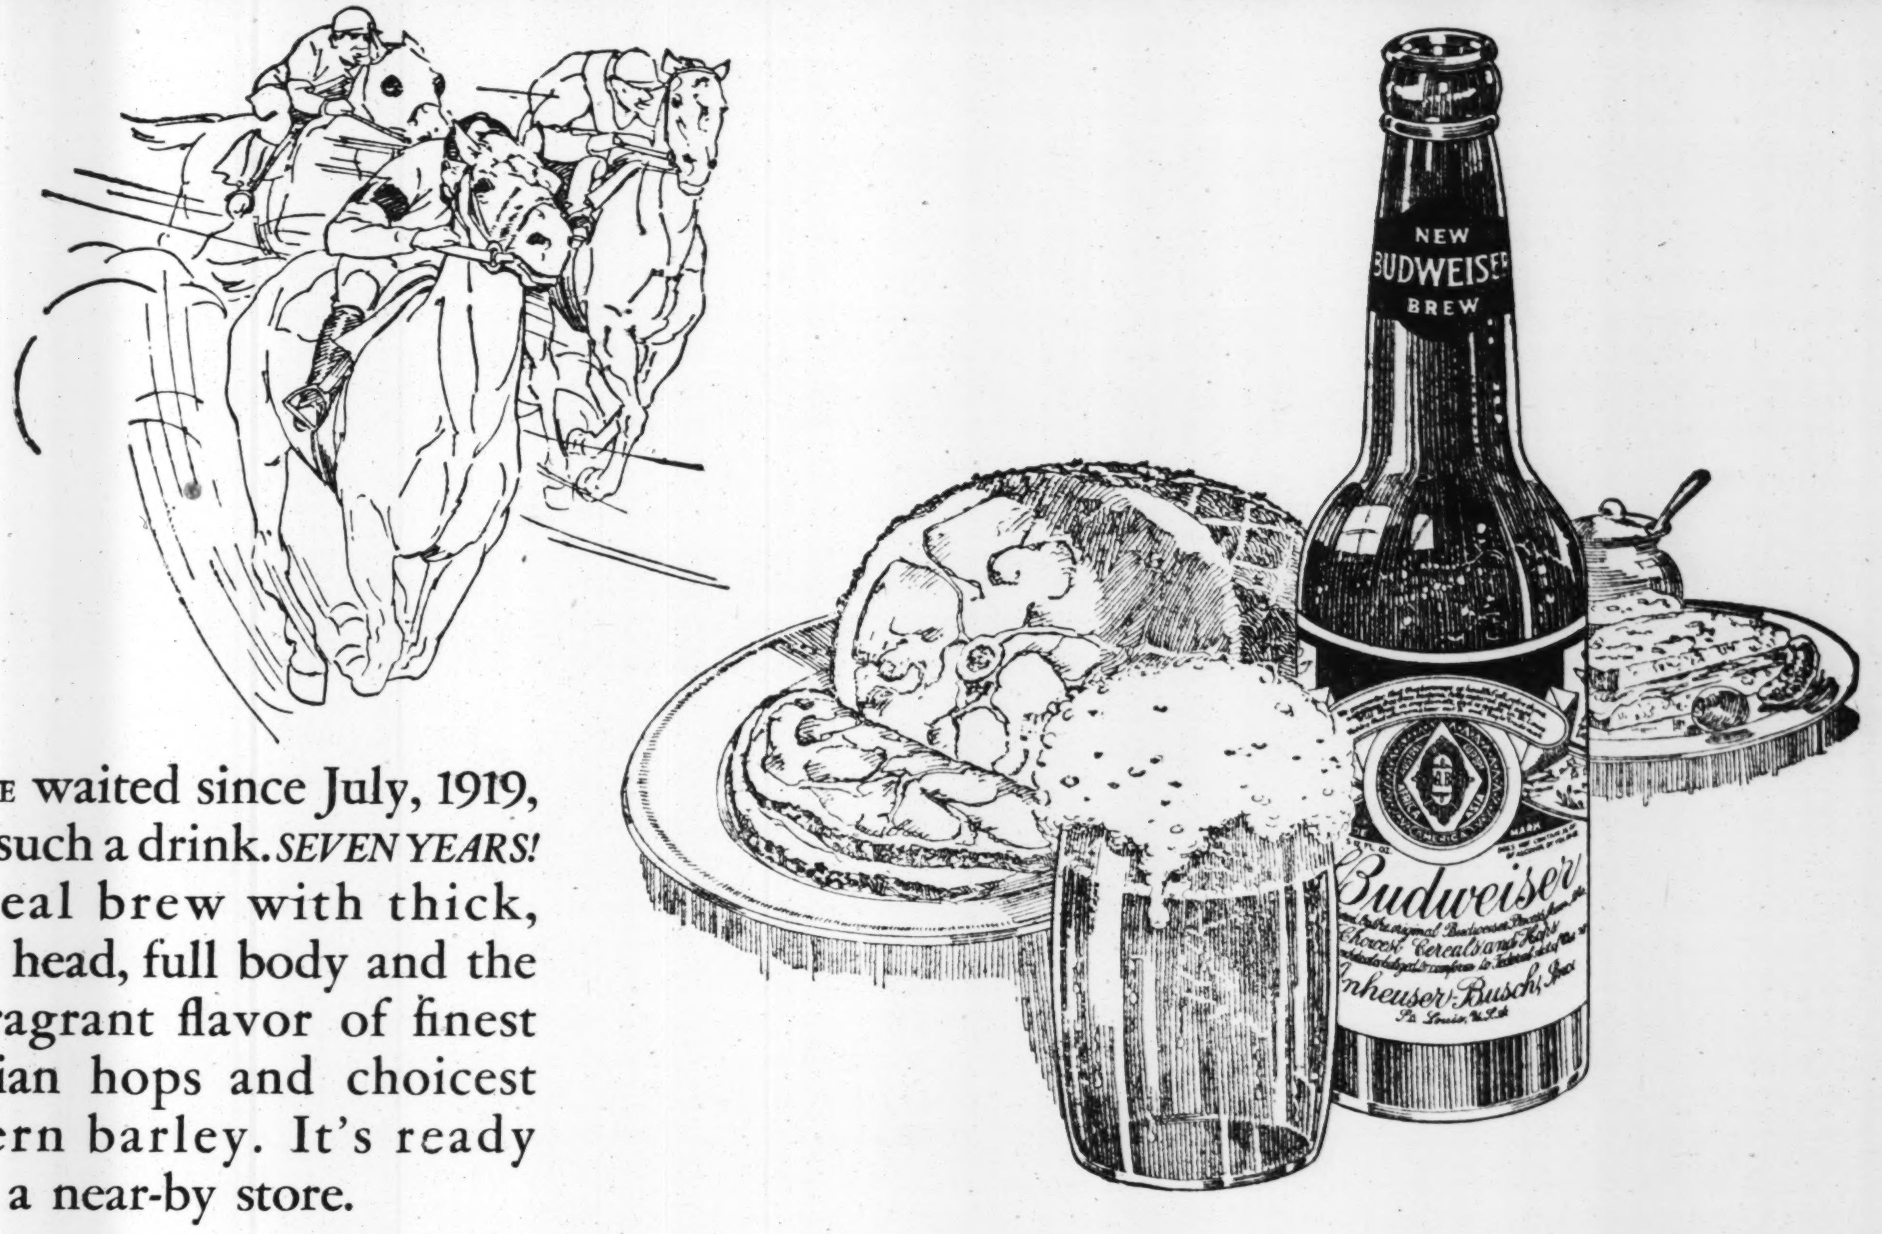
There's a Real Thrill in
The New
Budweiser

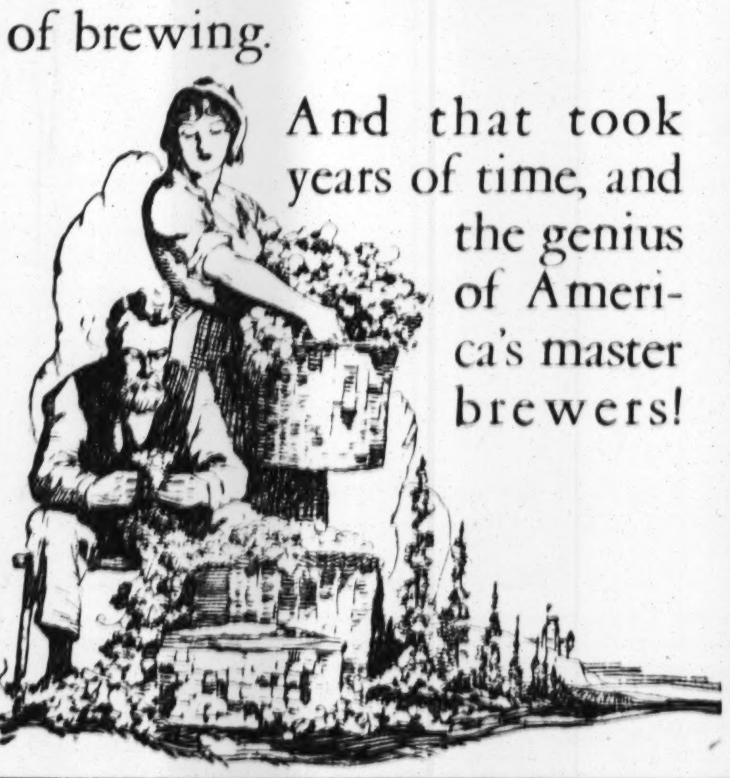


YOU'VE waited since July, 1919, for such a drink. SEVEN YEARS! for a real brew with thick, creamy head, full body and the rich, fragrant flavor of finest Bohemian hops and choicest northern barley. It's ready NOW at a near-by store.

THE minute you cascade your first glassful out of the bottle and raise it expectantly to your lips, you'll realize that The New Budweiser is as tempting a drink as any you knew in the good old days.

What a treat is in store for you! More life—more warmth—the thick, creamy head and full body you get only in a real brew. And a flavor so completely satisfying that it carries you back to happy pre-prohibition days.

Every mouthful of The New Budweiser proves how completely we have overcome the obstacles that arose during the last seven years. To us, each new obstacle has been a challenge and an opportunity, but before capitalizing our opportunities we had to perfect new and better methods of brewing.



And that took years of time, and the genius of America's master brewers!

For, before announcing The New Budweiser, we wanted to make sure that we had perfected a drink that would bring back good fellowship to America!

Not a Manufactured Product

The New Budweiser is not a manufactured product, but a real brew such as you thought would never again be found in America. There's nothing like it to top off the mid-day luncheon or that last sandwich just before you slip between the sheets for a good night's sleep.

You've waited a long, long time for such a drink. But it's ready now at a near-by store—in single bottles, in handy 12-bottle cartons and the 24-bottle case. A phone call will bring it to your home for you to enjoy tonight.

Ring for it now—and whenever good fellows get together.

The Fundamentals of Budweiser
are the soluble substances of barley-malt, rice and hops. We have the pick of the finest imported Saazer hops and those of New York, Oregon, California and Washington; also the choicest barleys and rice American soil produces. Mississippi River water lends itself exceptionally well to brewing, because it brings out better the natural flavor of the cereals and hops. The result—

PREMIER DENIES AUSTRIA IS FOR GERMAN UNION

Policy Though Popular Has No Official Support.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, May 20.—[By Mail.]—"In time the United States will understand that money invested in Austria is well invested, and this knowledge will be turned into practice by which we expect to promote our industry to a high degree."

Dr. Ramek, the prime minister of Austria, made the above statement in response to my question concerning the difficulties which still confront the struggling republic.

"Upon the establishment of the republic," the prime minister continued, "our greatest difficulty lay in the fact that the peace conference did not make any stipulation concerning the continuation of economic relations existing between the countries of the former monarchy.

"Our neighboring states blocked up their frontiers hermetically and it took a certain time to attain at least the most vital imports from our neighboring states. Since that time a regular exchange of goods has been established, though there still exist many restrictions which ought to be abolished as soon and as efficiently as possible to the interest of all parties concerned."

Long Term Credits Needed.

"What is Austria's greatest need today?" I asked.

"We need long term credits for our private industry," the prime minister replied. "I am sure that today the United States considers our situation more favorably than at the time when uncontrolled rumors declared our situation to be hopeless and ourselves to be principally responsible for this supposed hopeless situation."

Recalling the fact that the finances of the country have been under the control of an auditor from the league of nations, since the league promoted the $140,000,000 loan to Austria, I asked the prime minister if he cared to state the attitude of the Austrian people toward international control.

"The control will come to an end in several months," Dr. Ramek said. "We have endeavored to the utmost to meet our obligations to the league of nations. The abolishing of the control indicates that we have succeeded in this point. Of course, we could not but consider the control as a rather disagreeable, though unavoidable, measure. We shall always be grateful to the league of nations for the action it undertook on the instigation of the great powers for our benefit."

Unable to Find Markets.

"To what extent does the economic salvation of Austria depend upon a union of the country with Germany?" I asked.

"The international discussion about the condition of Austria has long ago revealed that Austria's most fundamental difficulty lies in the fact that her industries, which were destined before the war to supply an internal market of 50,000,000 people protected by import duties, are unable to find sufficiently receptive markets for their products.

"Since the creation of our state we have striven to gain such markets by the conclusion of commercial treaties, especially with our neighbors.

"It is to extend the possibilities of our export, or to enlarge our economic domain, as it has been expressed occasionally. In which way this end is to be attained is to be decided for the greatest part from the political point of view. It is a question of the peace treaties, the stipulations of which concerning Austria's relations to Germany are known to all."

Dr. Ramek declared that the coöperation of Austrian and German associations and societies for the unification of laws, regulations and procedures in preparation for an eventual union might be a widespread tendency in the direction of Austro-German union, but it was not a national policy and had no official support whatever.

I asked Dr. Ramek whether partition of the country was seriously considered by any part of the people in Austria as a solution of the nation's difficulties. I inquired particularly whether there was any possibility of Vienna being left alone as a free state.

"Such a proposition is not worth serious consideration," the prime minister replied. "The people of Austria have made too many sacrifices to maintain the existence of the Austrian state. These rumors of partition turn up from time to time, but they are never really founded on a serious basis."

SPONSORS REVAMP FARM BILL TO PACIFY FOES IN CONGRESS

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—Sponsors of the corn belt farm surplus bill at a conference today came to the conclusion that it is useless to attempt compromises to satisfy the southern cotton interests. Several modifications in the original bill were agreed upon.

It was the opinion of the conferees that the equalization fee for the reimbursement of losses in handling farm surpluses should be applied to cotton immediately instead of being postponed as proposed.

The modified bill will create a farm board and advisory council, will provide for the collection of an equalization fee when a majority of the producers of a particular commodity want it, and will create a revolving fund of $150,000,000 from which loans will be made to commodity equalization funds.

It is intended that there shall be no actual subsidy for any commodity. The bill will include no provision for maintenance of prices at the world price, plus the tariff, nor authority to embargo imports.

HAMLET'S CITY TO OBSERVE FIFTH CENTENNIAL SOON

Plan Shakespeare Fete at Danish Port.

BY J. AHL-NIELSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, June 5.—[Special.]—Elsinore, the Danish city immortalized by Shakespeare in "Hamlet," will celebrate for six weeks, beginning July 4, the five hundredth anniversary of the granting of city privileges to it by the Danish king, Erick of Pommern, an event which happened sixty-six years before Columbus discovered America. There will be a jubilee and a great festival lasting through the six most beautiful weeks of the Danish summer.

For seven centuries Elsinore, first a little fishing village and then a fortified harbor, has guarded the entrance to the sound; and for five centuries the cannons of the Cronborg castle, Hamlet's stronghold, have ordered passing ships to anchor and pay the fee exacted by the Danish king.

A carved stone from the Cronborg has been taken to Chicago and placed in the walls of Tribune Tower.

Shakespeare a Visitor.

Hamlet's castle is redolent of historical events. Old Dutch armadas rounding the northern point of Jutland to the Baltic cast anchor at Elsinore and paid their gulden to get passport from the sound to the Baltic straits. None was an able bodied sailor till he had had a drink in old Elsinore and a fight on the old wooden pier at the sound.

In the summer season some 30,000 ships stopped at Elsinore, some of them carrying adventurers; and among these latter, toward the third quarter of the sixteenth century, was William Shakespeare, who dwelt for some time in Elsinore and learned of Hamlet, an old northern myth giving him the material for his drama. Today any visitor at Elsinore may be shown the grave of the famous prince.

Sights of Elsinore.

Rich monasteries were built at Elsinore by the Carmelite monks, whose beautiful architecture is one of the sights of the Elsinore of today.

Since 1857, fees for shipping have decreased, but still the cannons of the old castle of Hamlet aim their muzzles in salute to passing ships.

The celebration of the five hundredth anniversary of Elsinore is attracting world wide attention, and its ceremonies will be attended by the royal court of Denmark while actors from the royal theaters of Norway, Sweden and Denmark give Shakespearian performances.

The city will be decorated to resemble as far as possible its appearance of five hundred years ago, with its gallant knights and noble ladies, its tournaments and its lynchings of witches.

Peary Really Discovered the Pole—But Cook Made the Biggest Fuss

They started to wear turned-up trousers in America—because it was raining in London

And

Fifteen months ago when we announced the new model eight-eighty-eight sedan—only 5 feet, 8 inches in height we predicted the passing out of the cumbersome top heavy motor cars.

It is interesting to note the sudden blare of trumpets as one by one—new cars distinguished for their lowness—are announced.

Two years ago we announced the metal side quarters—and one by one with extravagant use of superlatives they appear as French or English or what not, importations.

Fifteen months ago we predicted that the day of the big six was numbered and medium priced eights were the vogue. Since that time have come straight eights that on paper are the marvels of the age.

But our business has grown consistently based on a program of sincerity, and Auburn in its entirety is still as far ahead of the field as it was fifteen months ago.

We have found many motor-wise customers who being fed up on wild claims and bombast have accepted our invitation to ride in the new Auburn—drive it—now they are our owners.

They better than we can tell of the miles of satisfactory service they have enjoyed.

So we repeat—see the New Auburn—ride in it—drive it—if it does not sell itself you will not be asked to buy.

The Mark of Quality

The 500 Mile Speed Classic at Indianapolis has always been a Battle of Tires.

In 1911, Firestone won with fabric tires at 74.59 miles per hour. In 1920, Firestone won with cord tires at 88.55 miles per hour. In 1925, Firestone won with Full-Size Gum-Dipped Balloons at the record breaking average speed of 101.13 miles per hour.

In 1926, Firestone again won this great Speed Classic with Full-Size Gum-Dipped Balloons. The ten cars to finish "in the money" were all Firestone-equipped. These ten cars went the distance without a single blowout and with but two tire failures—one due to a puncture and the other to a leaky valve.

This performance is even more remarkable when you consider the terrific speeds at which the cars traveled over this fifteen-year-old, rough brick track.

Experienced race drivers will not trust their lives or risk their chances of victory on any other tires. And in the commercial field, large truck, motorbus and taxicab fleet operators, who keep careful cost records on their tire mileage are among the big users of Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires.

The City Transportation Company of Tacoma, Washington, writes: "One of our 12 buses on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires has gone over 40,600 miles and still looks good for many miles of extra service. I have no hesitancy in saying that for all around tire safety and mileage, Firestone cannot be beat."

From the Calumet Motor Coach Company, Hammond, Indiana, comes the following: "We operate 40 buses all equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. The very low cost per mile on which these tires operate is considerably less than that of any other make." In writing to express their satisfaction, the Hayes Bus Lines, Columbia, S.C., say: "We operate 19 buses equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. A number of these tires have run over 45,000 miles without ever having been removed from the rim."

The largest taxicab companies in the world standardize on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. William R. Rothwell, a taxicab operator of Detroit, Mich., writes: "Two of my Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have run 76,000 miles."

Hundreds of thousands of car owners voluntarily testify to the safety, comfort and economy of Full-Size Gum-Dipped Balloons. W. H. Peacock, Birmingham, Ala., enthusiastically writes: "I have had Firestone Balloons for thirteen months and they have delivered in that time 24,469 miles." H. C. Staehle, Minneapolis, Minn., says: "My Firestone Balloons have gone 49,900 miles and are still in good condition." W. H. Miller, Homestead, Pa., expresses his satisfaction this way: "Have driven my Gum-Dipped Balloons 30,000 miles and it is impossible to furnish better evidence of most miles per dollar."

These records of endurance, speed, safety and mileage could only have been made because of Firestone development of the Gum-Dipping process which insulates and saturates every fiber of every cord with rubber, reducing friction and heat and building greater strength and endurance in the cords—assuring you at all times—

COOLIDGE'S DRY ORDER O. K.'D BY DRY COMMITTEE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—Meeting in executive session this morning, a majority of the special subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee—Sentors Cummins [Rep., Ia.], Goff [Rep., W. Va.], Borah [Rep., Idaho], and Walsh [Dem., Mont.]—adopted a report upholding the legality of the order recently issued by President Coolidge authorizing the employment of state or city peace officers as $1 a year federal prohibition enforcers.

The majority opinion will not be disclosed until it has been presented to the full committee on Monday and at the same time, Senator King [Dem., Utah], the fifth member of the subcommittee, will file dissenting views. The Utah senator, it is understood today, has come to the belief that the executive order is "an authorized piece of executive meddling," which is "coercive in its nature," and tends toward the breakdown of state government.

On the other hand, his colleagues in their report will assert, it is said, that the order is not only legal and that the President was amply authorized to issue it, but will cite a number of United States Supreme court decisions in support of their contentions.

The report, according to information now available, specifically points out that it touches on the legality of the order and is submitted without any theory as to the wisdom of issuing it.

STUDENT POLL BY METHODISTS FAVORS DRY LAW

The result of a tabulation of ballots distributed among the students of thirty-seven universities and colleges, compiled at the University of Chicago and published in THE TRIBUNE last Thursday, indicated that 92 per cent of the students were dissatisfied with the present status of prohibition and 53 per cent favored modification of the Volstead act.

The Rev. J. T. Bradner Smith of Chicago, head of secular publicity of the Methodist Episcopal church, yesterday questioned the results obtained in this poll. He stated that the Methodist board of temperance in Washington had distributed ballots in a similar poll with the following results:

1. Should the eighteenth amendment be rigidly enforced?

Mount Holyoke college group	97% yes
Stanford university group	94% yes
University of Minnesota group	88% yes
Connecticut college group	87% yes
University of Michigan group	84% yes
Washington Square, New York university, group	80% yes
Smith college group	70% yes
Education, N. Y. U., group	68% yes
Amherst college group	64% yes
University of Texas group	64% yes
University of North Carolina group	73% yes
Commerce, N. Y. U., group	55% yes

2 Should the eighteenth amendment be abolished?

University of Minnesota group	90% no
Mount Holyoke group	83% no
University of Michigan group	82% no
University of North Carolina group	81% no
Connecticut college group	70% no
Smith college group	70% no
Stanford university group	69% no
Education, New York U., group	68% no
University of Texas group	68% no
Commerce, N. Y. U., group	56% no
Amherst college group	50% no
Washington Square, N. Y. U., group	57% yes

This Methodist poll indicates that 77% of collegians favored strict enforcement and 69% opposed the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

NONCOMS ARRIVE AT CAMP GRANT FOR TRAINING

Rockford, Ill., June 5.—[Special.]—Nearly 200 noncommissioned officers of the 33d division arrived at Camp Grant today for the fifteen day school of instruction under command of Lieut. Col. W. F. Hemenway, executive officer of the 129th infantry.

Headquarters of the school have been established at Division headquarters. Each company, troop, or battery in the division sent two sergeants or two corporals to the "noncom" school, which is held to prepare the entire division for the summer training periods at Camp Grant and Camp Knox, Ky.

ANNA E. ROOSEVELT BECOMES BRIDE OF CURTIS BEAN DALL

New York, June 5.—[Special.]—Miss Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, daughter of former Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, was married to Curtis Bean Dall, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Austin Dall, at St. James' Protestant Episcopal church at Hyde Park, N. Y., today.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Endicott Peabody, head master of Groton school, Groton, Mass., and was followed by a wedding breakfast served under a huge marquee on the lawn of Springwood, the Roosevelt country place. Dr. Peabody officiated at the marriage of the bride's parents in 1905.

SUPERIOR LEVEL FALLS; BLAME IS NOT ON CHICAGO

Lake Superior, which is entirely unaffected by the lake diversion through the Chicago river, has dropped nine inches this year, due to insufficient rainfall, according to a report submitted to the Mississippi Valley association by Hubert F. Miller of the Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday.

This discovery, according to Mr. Miller, has proved a boomerang to those who are leading the propaganda against the lakes to the gulf waterway and the Chicago diversion, as the lowering of the lake has always been the argument used.

Lack of Rainfall Cause.

"Lack of rainfall is the only possible explanation of the drop of nine inches in Lake Superior this year," said Mr. Miller. "It is to be regretted that the Canadian power interests and certain congressmen who have battled against the waterway bill are not so fair in facing the issue as is the government of Canada. The Hon. Charles E. Stewart, Canadian minister of immigration, says:

"'There is a very considerable lowering of the levels in Lake Superior, not affected by the Chicago diversion at all, so that irrespective of the Chicago diversion, we are coming to a period of drought that is having effect on lake levels.'

Hits at Propaganda.

"Lake Superior's outlet is through the St. Mary's river. This river's natural flow has been changed by the piers of an international railroad bridge, by the filling in of both shores, by the Soo canal and locks, by diversion of water for power development, and by regulating works.

"Even under complete control of regulating works, extraordinary lack of rainfall and extreme evaporation have lowered the lake nine inches in a year."

SENATE PLANS ITS FILIBUSTER ON WATERWAY

Move Made to Keep Bill Off Calendar.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—Organization of a filibuster to kill the omnibus rivers and harbors bill, with its provision for the completion of the Illinois river waterway, began in the senate today when the $52,000,000 measure authorizing appropriations for waterway improvements all over the country was received from the house and referred to the senate commerce committee.

With their leader, Senator Willis [Rep., Ohio], as a member of both the steering committee, which charts the legislative program, and the commerce committee, which must approve the various items in the bill before it can come to the floor, the senate anti-Chicago bloc enjoys unusual advantage at the outset of the fight.

Senator Willis has already warned Senator Wadsworth [Rep., N. Y.], chairman of the steering committee, that he will oppose to the last any move to give the rivers and harbors bill a place on the calendar.

Meanwhile Senator Deneen [Rep., Ill.], who will undoubtedly lead the Mississippi valley fight for completion of tht Illinois link in the great lakes to gulf waterway, is making plans to combat the filibusterers, both in the commerce committee hearings and later when the bill comes to the floor.

Senator Ransdell [Dem., La.], who as president of the national rivers and harbors congress has championed the great lakes to gulf waterway for years, is a member of the commerce committee and is depended upon by the waterway enthusiasts for much assistance in breaking up Senator Willis' program of delay in consideration of the bill.

Even at twice our prices you can't get better food

Glance over the following partial list of our breakfast items: Then come to the North American and try them. In spite of the fact that our prices are far below those you must pay in restaurants or hotels, where the food is served to your table, you'll agree you never had any finer food.

Bacon and Eggs 35c	2 Fox's Snowhite eggs, fried in butter and 4 strips of bacon. We know you cannot get anything finer—and you'll pay from 55 to 75 cents, or more, for equal quality in "service" restaurants.
Waffles and Bacon or Sausage 30c	Delicious honey waffles with bacon or Mickelberry's Old Farm sausage, butter and pure maple sap or honey. Our price is about what you will pay for waffles alone in restaurants that pay no attention to quality, and seek business only on low price.
2 cup pot of Coffee 10c	To get a 2-cup pot of good coffee you must usually pay 15 or 25 cents. Our price is only 10 cents.

And you save equally as much on all our other food items—whether for lunch, after shopping, dinner or after the theatre. Some 5000 people dine here every day, because they like this restaurant, the food and the prices. You'll also like it.

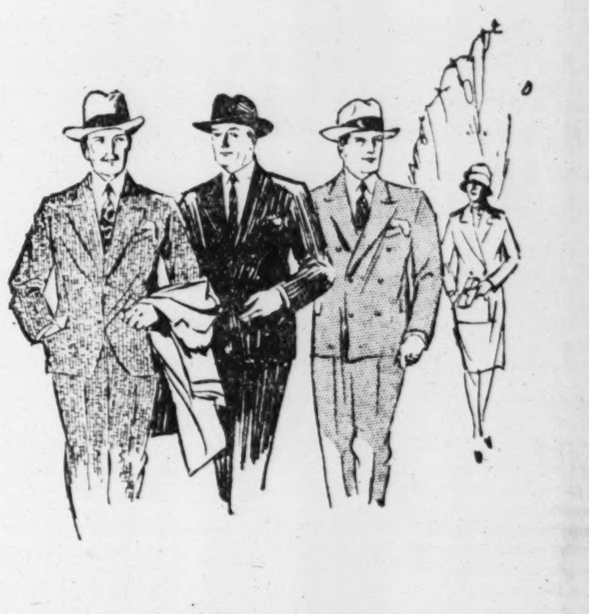
Are you the fellow who always buys a blue serge . . ?



You know him. He goes down to his tailor with his heart set on getting something different . . . That check suit he saw on Harry was nifty. Or that rich, brownish suit Joe had on—there was a suit! Style, class. . . .

But he looks over a lot of patterns and fabrics and then . . . orders another blue serge.

• • • • •

He blossoms out in his new suit—and no one notices it. . . . "You just can't change Bill," says his wife. . . . And Bill joins the blue serge army making resolutions about his next suit.

Do you buy automobiles that way? Do you keep on buying a So-and-So car because your last one was a So-and-So?

Why not become the envy of your friends, please your wife and surprise yourself by buying a Gardner Eight-in-line or a Gardner Six?

Experience that luxurious sensation of gliding at any speed without effort . . . "aircoasting," Gardner owners call it. Sense that feeling of being somebody as folks look admiringly after your car.

Exult in the freedom from being "three-dollared to death" for "adjustments." Own the car that you can forget—but that everyone who knows you will remember.

• • • • •

Break your shackles. Get in a Gardner and drive it. Try your friend's or take one of ours.

Find out what's been going on in advanced motor-car building while you've been driving So-and-So cars.

Find out why Gardner has been steadily rising higher and higher in public esteem.

It'll be a toss-up with your wife whether she loves you or the Gardner most.

And as for yourself . . . Well, you'll find the Gardner a real revelation in automobiles—for value, for performance, for looks, for durability, for all-round satisfaction.

BUTLER ASSAILS BORAH'S ATTACK ON REFERENDUM

Says Senator Talks Like Paid Dry Lobbyist.

New York, June 5.—[Special.]—Through Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, the wet Republicans of New York replied today to the recent attack upon the rum referendum made by Senator Borah of Idaho.

Dr. Butler, who sailed for Europe on the White Star liner Majestic declared before sailing that Mr. Borah's speech rang like the utterances "the paid lobbyists of the Anti-Saloon league expect and exact from their own group of senators and representatives in congress."

The referendum puts the question to the people: "Shall the Volstead act be modified to permit each state to decide for itself what is and what is not an intoxicating beverage?"

Not a Foolish Gesture.

Far from this being a foolish gesture, seeking to make congress do something illegal, as the Idaho senator suggested, Dr. Butler insisted that an emphatic affirmative vote in the Empire state would be heard from Maine to California.

"It will put new heart into every lover of his country, every effective friend of temperance, and every man who would strengthen the sanctity of law, by making sure that law is confined to its own proper business," he said.

Dr. Butler dismissed with a snap of his fingers the possibility that Senator Borah might assail the referendum in New York and thereby injure the candidacy of the G. O. P. white hope, United States Senator Wadsworth.

Means Votes for Wadsworth.

"Mr. Borah and the Anti-Saloon league together," he said, "will make four votes for Jim Wadsworth for every vote they take away."

"It won't do simply to make an issue of the liquor question," Dr. Butler said, "we have got to offer a constructive policy. In my judgment it should be this:

"1. Repeal the Volstead act and return to truth, decency, common sense, and law observance.

"2. Repeal the eighteenth amendment and return to the federal form of government established by the constitution which existed, despite every danger and every difficulty for one hundred years. Restore to the states the police powers which should never have been taken from them. Take out of the constitution the only provision that has no place in it, since the eighteenth amendment is a mere statute with no reference whatever to governmental organization or structure.

"3. For the state of New York adopt a plan of liquor traffic control based upon the principles of the Quebec law, to the end that (a) the private liquor traffic be made impossible by being made unprofitable, (b) that the saloon or public drinking place be abolished, and (c) that the civil and personal rights of the individual citizen be preserved and protected."

Senator Willis Announces He Will Seek Re-election

Columbus, O., June 5.—[U. P.]—United States Senator Frank B. Willis of Delaware, O., today formally announced he would be a candidate for renomination and reëlection. Senator Willis is completing his first term as senator, having been elected in 1920 over W. A. Julian, Democrat, of Cincinnati. He was governor of Ohio from 1915 to 1917.

DEPEW IS ONLY ONE OF HIS CLASS LEFT—CAN'T HAVE YALE REUNION

New York, June 5.—[Special.]—Chauncey M. Depew will not attend the seventieth reunion of his class at Yale commencement. If he did it would be a one man reunion.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW.

The ninety-three year old chairman of the New York Central's board of directors is the only "hale and hearty survivor" of the hundred young men who attended commencement exercises in 1856.

Depew is afraid he'd be too lonesome if he made the trip to New Haven.

"We had our last reunion five years ago," he continued; "there were only three of us of the class of 1856 present, although there were six of us alive. I invited them. They were my guests at New Haven. Just the three of us, and now the other two are dead. I'm the only one left."

"We three," he said, "shook hands when we parted. 'We'll be back in June, 1926,' I said, 'We'll be back,' but they are both dead. I would have been the only one present. Well, a man gets used to things at my age.

"There's still another classmate, Dr. Virgil Maro Dow, up in New Haven. But he's too feeble to be about, I hear, and confined to his bed. And, O, yes, Rackleff—James Lyman Rackleff, up in Portland, Me. I don't know about him. Haven't heard from Rackleff for some time. I suppose he's gone too."

BOY, 10, DIES OF POISONING LAID TO VACCINATION

Blood poisoning believed to have resulted from vaccination yesterday claimed the life of Kasmir Jeskey, 10 year old schoolboy of 1523 17th avenue, Melrose Park. He died at the county hospital.

According to Mrs. Anna Jeskey, mother of the boy, the children in his school were vaccinated three weeks ago. She said her son was ill after the vaccination and that last Friday, when he suddenly became very ill again, a physician ordered him sent to the hospital.

An inquest is to be held at the county morgue.

DRY ACT LOOMS AS WHITE HOUSE ISSUE IN 1928

G. O. P. Race May Be Coolidge Versus Borah.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., June 5.—[Special.]—While modification of the Volstead act to permit beer and light wine will be a paramount issue in New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, and some other states in the elections next November, events are steadily tending toward the injection of the whole prohibition question into the 1928 presidential election as a paramount issue.

It now seems highly probable that unless the matter should be disposed of earlier by national referendum, the people in 1928 will indicate by the president and the congress they elect whether they desire the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act retained intact or modified.

May Figure in Platforms.

If the issue materializes in that form we shall be offered the choice between a candidate for President and his party advocating modification, and another candidate and his party standing for maintenance of the prohibition status quo. That is unless the predictions of the more sanguine modificationists should be fulfilled and both the major parties declare for modification, differing merely in the kind and degree of modification proposed.

As the politicians forecast the future the Democratic party will take the wet, or at least the more moist, end of the argument while the Republican party will remain dry or at least considerably drier than its rival.

Gov. Smith Gains Strength.

The overshadowing figure in the Democratic party today is Gov. Al Smith of New York. He is a potential and a formidable candidate for the presidential nomination. He and his faction are far stronger than they were in 1924, while McAdoo and his faction are far weaker. The trend of events in the Democratic party is toward the nomination of Smith or of some other modificationists acceptable to the Smith faction.

Indications are not wanting that modification of the Volstead act on a state rights basis will find considerable support because of political expediency among the dry delegations of the solid south which will sit in the Democratic national convention. The theory is that a wet Democrat could carry the wet east, and that with east and south a Democrat could be elected.

If the Smith forces prevail the Democratic party will advocate modification of the prohibition law to allow states to define beverages non-intoxicating in fact. This state rights principle is stated in the New York referendum proposition drafted by Elihu Root, but it was given public enunciation for the first time by Al Smith when he approved the repeal of the Mullan-Gage state enforcement law.

Means National Showdown.

The nomination of Smith or some other wet by the Democrats would force a national showdown on the modification issue. The Republican party is the stronghold of the drys and the only question with the Republicans will be what, if any, concessions to make to the sentiment of dissatisfaction with the prohibition law.

One of the possibilities of the situation is a presidential primary contest with modification the issue on the Republican as well as the Democratic side. Within the last week Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho] has leaped to the fore as the darling of the drys. Immediately the politicians began to discuss him as a likely candidate for the Republican nomination sponsored by the Anti-Saloon league, the W. C. T. U., and other bone dry prohibitionists.

If President Coolidge should be a candidate for renomination, as most politicians believe he will be, and if he should not be satisfactory to the extreme drys, there would be room for a spectacular contest between him and Mr. Borah for control of the national convention and capture of the nomination.

It was his Baltimore address to the Presbyterian general assembly that put Borah into the running for the 1928 prize. He was immediately acclaimed by the drys as the evangelist who could save their cause. The drys were thrilled not only by his declaration that modification would be nullification but by his denunciation of intoxicating liquor.

"I believe the liquor traffic to be the curse of the human family," said Borah. "Whether sold in the open saloon or the brothel its natural haunt, or secretly purveyed in defiance of the law, the wicked stuff works its demoralization and ruin to individuals, communities and states.

"From the time it issues from the coiled and copper colored worm in the distillery until it empties into the hell of crime, dishonor and death, misery and poverty and remorse mark its maledict course."

The drys who hail Borah as their champion now and in 1928 propose to inscribe these burning words on every banner in the land.

President's View in 1922.

An inference that he regards the eighteenth amendment an unwise departure was drawn from an address which Mr. Coolidge made when Vice President before the American Bar association on Aug. 10, 1922.

"Behind very many of these enlarging activities," he said, "lies the untenable theory that there is some short cut to perfection. It is conceived [by the supporters of these activities] that there can be a horizontal elevation of the standards of the nation immediate and perceptible by the simple device of new laws. This has never been the case in human experience. Progress is slow and the result of a long and arduous process of self-discipline. It is not conferred upon the people, it comes from the people. In a republic the law reflects rather than makes the standard of conduct and the state of public opinion. Real reform does not begin with a law; it ends with a law. The attempt to dragoon the body when the need is to convince the soul will end only in revolt."

These are words which the modificationists would inscribe on every banner in the land.

3 YEARS IN PRISON FOR EX-PROHIBITION CHIEF OF WISCONSIN

Milwaukee, Wis., June 5.—(AP)—Clark M. Perry, former federal prohibition director for Wisconsin, was sentenced to three years' imprisonment and a fine of $3,000 in federal court here today. Perry had previously entered a plea of guilty to a charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition amendment.

Perry appeared to be sentenced on his plea of guilty to an indictment charging that he had conspired with others to remove a quantity of bonded liquor from warehouses at Plymouth, Wis. Several men were indicted and sent to prison in connection with the removal of the liquor.

Appearing in court today Perry was confronted with another indictment charging irregularities in connection with the operations of the Calumet Sales corporation, which operated the Chilton brewery.

INDIANA JUDGES PUT CLAMPS ON RUM SEARCH LAW

Indianapolis, Ind., June 5.—[Special.]—While police officers have a right to present evidence in court found in the public part of poolrooms and soft drink establishments raided without search warrants, they have no right to search behind counters or open safes without a search warrant, Municipal Judge Earl Cox ruled today.

The case was that of Henry Fleming, Republican politician, arrested recently when his soft drink place was raided. Fleming was discharged by Judge Cox.

In another case tried before Judge Paul C. Wetter, an arrest made by an officer in a house before the officer having the search warrant got inside and read the warrant was held illegal.

Judge Cox ruled in another case a search warrant held by an officer longer than twenty days before serving was not good. The officer testified he held the warrant for a suitable opportunity before making the raid.

WILL TELL AFRICA'S FUTURE.

The Rev. Johnston Myers will speak on "The Coming Continent—Africa," at a meeting of the midwest chapter of the Alden Kindred Society at the Woman's City club next Tuesday.

Coal vs Grain

All grain sold on the Chicago Board of Trade is inspected and graded upon arrival. The better grades bringing the higher prices.

Pocahontas coal gets no grading other than that given by the seller.

Our "Pet" (special) Pocahontas Run of the Mine Coal sells at the highest price at the mines because of its exceptional good qualities. Our price is $7.00 per ton in load lots or more. If you buy this coal, we agree that in case you are disappointed you may come to us before April 1, 1927, and we will refund $1.00 per ton.

This coal was introduced by us during the past winter—with the very highest degree of satisfaction to our trade.

As we have contracted for the output of this mine this coal can be had only of us. We deliver all over the city and adjacent suburbs.

WANTED
SIX SALES ENGINEERS

WE want to add six good men to our force in the central-western and southern territories. They must be capable, energetic sales engineers who are not only able to sell technical products to the highest class of technical men, but who know how to organize and develop territory as well.

We are the oldest and largest exclusive manufacturers of water softening and filtering equipment in America. We sell principally to the better class of boiler plants, central stations, textile mills, hotels, hospitals, laundries and other industrial plants.

We are large and consistent advertisers. Our name and products are known from coast to coast.

The positions open are permanent and the remuneration on a salary and bonus basis will be limited practically by the ability of the individual.

If you have the experience and qualifications for this class of work—if you are looking for a chance to establish yourself in a permanent, profitable and agreeable occupation—the opportunity is here.

If you have the above qualifications write us full details of yourself and your experience. But do not write unless you have a technical college education, experience selling power plant equipment or similar products, and are under 40 years of age.

TEN times as many men and women are seeking this car as ever before aspired to Paige ownership.

In the first four months of 1926—nearly three times as many Paige cars were built and actually sold as were sold during the entire year 1925.

The great Paige plant is one of the finest in the industry. It can build as many Paiges in a month as were formerly built in a year. And this year—if this stupendous and wholly unprecedented demand continues—Paige will build and sell at least 10 times as many cars as last year.

New thousands everywhere see in this latest and finest Paige a sheer downright dollar-for-dollar motor car value without equal elsewhere, and without precedent in automobile history.

They have searched the market in vain for a car as beautiful to look at and as beautiful to drive—and then they've bought their Paige.

An afternoon along Motor Row will definitely show you the reason for this amazing popularity. You simply can't find another car—at anywhere near $1495—that is as beautiful, as carefully built of quality materials, with an engine more modern, more efficient or more economical, with finer or more expensive brakes, or with features of vision, comfort, ease of handling and safety so numerous or so satisfying

There isn't the slightest obligation in asking for a demonstration drive in this remarkable new Paige—when may we bring one to your door?

VIRGINIA WATERS, England, June 5.—The American golf professionals went down to devastating defeat today before the assault of the English golfers in the fight for the Ryder cup. The results of the two days of play were 13½ to 1½ in favor of the Britons. The British pros easily took thirteen games and halved another, while the Americans only were able to capture one—that in which Bill Mehlhorn beat Archie Compston, by 1 up. The biggest surprises of the day were the defeat of Jim Barnes by Abe Mitchell, 8 and 7, and Walter Hagen's defeat by a score of 6 and 5 at the hands of George Duncan. The halved game was between Whitcombe and Emmett French.

ABE MITCHELL.

Barnes Apparently Shaken.

Mitchell's golf against Barnes was terrific. More than once it seemed that Barnes was unnerved by the way in which the Englishman outdrove him, although usually he is a poker-faced player.

Mitchell's main strength showed in the afternoon play. He had gathered a three hole lead on the first round. The second and third holes went to Mitchell in the first eighteen holes, after which Barnes squared with the seventh and eighth. At the eleventh Mitchell, with two strong wooden club shots, took the lead, and Barnes, taking three at the next, became two down.

Four Pars, Four Birdies in Row.

At the thirteenth Mitchell led by three and finished the round with that lead. When they started out again Mitchell's golf was overwhelming. He became four up at the fourth and took the eighth, ninth, tenth, and eleventh. On these last four holes of the match Barnes got four pars, but Mitchell got four birdies, a 2 on the eighth, a 3 on the ninth, a 3 on the tenth, and a 4 on the eleventh.

In the Hagen-Duncan match Hagen's defeat came as much from his extreme weakness as from Duncan's superlative play. Owing to Hagen accidentally knocking Duncan's ball in the hole the latter started with a win. Hagen squared the match at the third, but Duncan again led at the fifth. The latter made the turn with a two hole lead and, taking one more at the eighteenth, went to lunch with a four hole advantage over the American.

Hagen, Stymied, Gives Up.

Coming out in the afternoon, he did the first nine holes in two over fours, winning the seventh and ninth for a 3 up. A loss by him at the thirteenth stopped him for the moment, but the end came at the next, as Hagen got behind a tree, clean stymied. He hadn't a possible chance then of winning the match and finally conceded the hole and match to Duncan.

In the other matches Joe Kirkwood was beaten, 8 and 7, by George Gadd, and, although he stood a fair chance of halving, he walked to his ball, picked it up, and handed it to his caddie, conceding the hole to his opponent.

Mehlhorn Alone Wins.

Archie Compston, who shortly will go to America as a club professional, found that his hard hitting was not much good against Bill Mehlhorn. The latter went coolly around even when he was one down to the Englishman and, although he finished the first round to the bad, he was not abashed by it. He simply played his normal game, allowing Compston to get into all sorts of trouble and winning by 1 up.

By the time Emmett French and Whitcombe had halved their match the crowds lost interest in the results.

IN THE WAKE OF THE NEWS

CHICAGO'S CUBS.

CHICAGO'S Cubs, who so far this season have surprised diamond critics by their showing, start today on their first eastern invasion. Playing against western squads and at home against eastern teams, they have more than held their own until some enthusiastic partisans choose to see a pennant for the eighth placers of last year.

This prospect, although not impossible of realization, is more likely to simmer down to a place in the first division than to a title. The Wake would like to see a pennant float from the north side flagpole, but we do not want Cub fans greatly disappointed if their favorites climb in one year from the cellar to fourth place or better.

Two causes, in our opinion, have contributed to the present standing. One was condition, attained at Catalina island. That advantage naturally becomes less an advantage as the season progresses. The other cause is fighting spirit instilled by Manager McCarthy. Under this category we include the batting rampages which give such a high team average.

When The Wake this spring expressed to Bill Veeck the hope the Cubs would do much better than last year the Cub prexy replied, "We've got to win." That, too, is the spirit of McCarthy, and it has been communicated to the team.

Now a team which feels it's got to win always is dangerous. If the Cubs have been playing over their heads, as some critics in other cities assert, they may continue to play over their heads.

The Wake will be satisfied with any berth in the first division. That is asking enough, but it is not asking too much. If you will look at last year's standing of the eighth place Cubs you will find that if they had won three games which they lost they would have finished fifth. If they had won thirteen games which they lost they would have finished third.

Thirteen games may seem a great deal, but one timely base hit, or a bobble or a "break" decides many a game. More than thirteen games a season are won or lost this way. So even if the Cubs, as a team, were not stronger than last season, it would still be possible to finish third by such figuring just from the "breaks." It is a baseball axiom that a fighting team gets the "breaks."

Lake of the Woods! I never knew
So few words could express
So much of peace and solitude,
Such dreams of loveliness.

Kewahtin's pines—so tall and straight—
Kenora's sandy beach:
And a lake of filtered turquoise blue
As far as eye can reach.

Lake of the Woods! Thy name is fraught
With dreams of other days,
And ever while thy pines endure
My heart shall sing thy praise.

Our New Invention.

Whenever we play golf we spend a large part of the afternoon in traps because we never emerge on the first attempt and sometimes not even on the second or third. So we have designed a new niblick in which the steel is rounded up at the back like a dustpan. Striking low, the ball lodges in this receptacle and we then toss it over the bunker. As soon as we receive a supply from the manufacturer we will notify Helpers.

FOUR RECORDS EQUALED ON CINDER PATHS

Senn Takes Third with 14 Points.

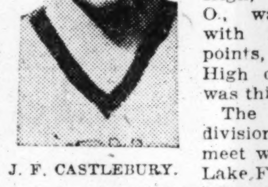
The national interscholastic track and field championship, won by Fort Collins, Colo., a year ago, was retained by the Rocky mountain preps yesterday when they scored 24 points in the University of Chicago's annual classic. East High, Columbus, O., was second with 17 points, points, and Senn High of Chicago was third with 14.



J. F. CASTLEBURY.

The academy division of the meet was won by Lake Forest academy by a substantial margin with 39 4-14 points, Culver Military coming second with 31 3-14, and Wentworth Military third with 30.

18 Points by Field Events.

The Fort Collins team went into the finals of the track events yesterday with a big lead over the other teams, having scored 18 tallies in the finals of the field events Friday.

One of the prettiest battles yesterday was in the two mile relay, in which Vernon, Tex., and Galesburg, Ill., were the favorites, the Shorthorns winning the grind in 8:32 3-5.

Of the showings made by Chicago high schools, that of Senn's three man team was the best. Bob Rodgers came from behind to win by a handy margin in the 220 yard low hurdles, and Bill Ramsey went right out in front to cop the first race of the 440 in :53.2.

Jimmy Paterson of Tilden Tech scored twice, getting a fourth in the 220 yard dash and fourth in the century. Kennedy of University High won fourth in his specialty, the 120 yard high barriers, and Tilden Tech's 880 relay team came in fourth in its event.

Yesterday's finals were witnessed by 15,000 persons, who were entertained by a dual program, Chicago R. O. T. C. units staging their field day on the infield while the preps performed on the track.

School Has 590 Students.

Fort Collins, the victorious team, represents a high school of 590 students, and has for eleven years won its state title. It won the national meet last year, placing second the year preceding.

Three high school and one academy record were tied yesterday, the world mark is the javelin having been broken Friday by Graydon of Little Rock, Ark., with a heave of 199 feet 5 inches. George Simpson, who garnered ten points to tie with Kizer of Wenatchee, Wash., for second in individual scoring, equaled the world's interscholastic century mark, breasting the tape in :09.6, as well as winning first in the 220 yard dash in :21.8. Harold Trumble of Cambridge, Neb., tied the world's mark of :15.4 in the 120 yard high hurdles, leading all the way. Winifred Crouch of Vernon, Tex., ran away from his field in the first half mile run to equal the meet record of 1:58.

TOM ECK, COACH AT CHICAGO FOR 11 YEARS, DIES

Noted Athlete in His Day; Trained Many Champs.

Tom Eck, for half a century a familiar figure in sporting and athletic circles in this country and abroad, died last night after an illness of four months. The last three weeks Tom had been confined to the Cook county hospital.

Eck spent the last eleven years of his varied career at the University of Chicago, training cross country teams and distance and middle distance runners. At the Midway Tom was known as the Oracle of the Locker Room, because of his sage advice to young athletes and because of the many droll yarns he liked to spin about his experiences in the sporting world, all of which pointed a moral to the listeners.

Born in Canada in 1858.

Tom was born in Prince Albert, Canada, April 10, 1853. He began his career as a jockey and when twenty-one years old was driving harness horses on Canadian tracks. He became noted as a cricket player, ice skater, bicycle rider and walker, developing into a "world's record class" all around athlete.

In 1875 he ran a record quarter mile in :52 2-5 at Toronto; the next year, using twelve pound dumbbells, he set a world's record of 13 feet 2 inches in the standing broad jump. In 1878, on a grass track, he walked a mile in 6.57. In the next ten years Tom won numerous cycling championships, in 1886 being the first man to ride 100 miles inside of six hours.

Improved Athletic Equipment.

Tom's firsts were not limited to those he won on the track and field. He originated ball bearing roller skates, the bike wheel sulky, the loop-the-loop, and many improvements in athletic equipment. He built the first board banked track for bike racing, put up the first rubbing board for training athletes, took the first American bike team to Europe and brought the first European team to America, and managed the first six day bike race at Madison Square Garden.

Tom did not confine his training of athletes to the boys at the university, but developed a number of girl athletes, including Helen Filkey, Nellie Todd, and Mildred Horrocks, and trained a number of outsiders, among them being Ray Watson and Joey Ray.

Few if any trainers have left behind them more or a greater assortment of champions than does Tom Eck. They include runners, skaters, bike riders, walkers, and jumpers.

Tom is survived by his widow and two daughters. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Texas Prep Star Races Despite Illness; Collapses

Ill as the result of an infection on his neck and with a high temperature, Castlebury, a member of the Vernon (Tex.) High school two mile relay team, aided his mates win that event at the interscholastic track and field meet at Soldiers' field yesterday.

Castlebury collapsed after the race, but recovered shortly afterwards. The team is holder of the world's record in the event, and rather than see his teammates beaten, Castlebury refused to withdraw after making the trip here.

No Bets or No Races--Crowe; Pillager Clips Aurora Record

Cogwheel Forces Him to Limit in Stretch.

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aurora, Ill., June 5.—Old time Chicago race goers who allowed a bit of sentiment to direct their betting operations here this afternoon reaped a handsome profit when Pillager, four year old son of Dick Welles-Ethelda, scored a thrilling neck victory in the Exposition Colony handicap.

JOCKEY WALTER ANDERSON.

If there is an old time Chicagoan who, in the heyday of racing hereabouts, didn't win one or a dozen bets on the famous Dick Welles, he hasn't been to the races here this year. And, regardless of past performances, these same told time Chicagoans usually have a little bet down on the sons and daughters of gallant old Dick.

Dick Welles sent a great son out to win today's feature piece, for Pillager not only triumphed after the hardest kind of a struggle but did it in track record time, clipping four-fifths of a second off the old mark when he ran the mile and seventy yards in 1:43 2-5.

Cogwheel Close Second.

Jockey Walter Anderson piloted Pillager to victory and he raced such popular local favorites as Cogwheel, Cross Bow, Sir Leonid and Smiling Gus into defeat but it took all both Pillager and his jockey had to withstand the final rush and challenge of Cogwheel, which a half furlong had carried him up on even terms with Pillager after the latter had been far in the lead from the start.

But Pillager responded to Anderson's whip and crawled up inch by inch until he had a neck margin, while Sir Leonid after racing from last place into a contending position finished third.

More than 10,000 came to the races this afternoon, and a great many of them spent the afternoon fighting their way to and from the certificate mutuel booths.

Two Betting Coups.

Pillager's sparkling victory came on the heels of another thriller in which Frank Gailor got up in time to drop his head down in front of Try Again. The race marked the dedication of the new Trimble course, 200 feet less than a mile and a quarter. Gailor came from far back and ran the distance in 2:04, which was extremely fast.

The day's racing brought two of the most successful betting coups of the season, killings having been made on Battle Shot in the first race and Johnny Jewell in the sixth race.

Battle Shot was much the best in his race and won all the way, but Johnny Jewell only lasted long enough to get the narrowest of head verdicts over Brownie Smile, while Fast Mail, after a bad ride by Jockey Gianelloni, was third.

Faenza, made the innocent victim of the poison plot here a week ago, probably was best, but was all but left at the post, and while the son of McGee closed up much ground he wasn't able to poke his nose into the money.

It wasn't a successful day for the lawnites, for while they got aboard Rosamond when she won the second race, they went down hook, line and sinker on Sanola's defeat in the third. Red Heart was the winner of this race with Miss Jennie second, while Sanola came with a rush to get third money. She might have been more prominent but for Jay Roberts' listless ride.

Attorney Plans War on Track Gamblers.

Horse racing in Cook county will be held without betting of any kind or there will be no racing this summer. State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe delivered this ultimatum yesterday afternoon to Joseph Murphy, racing steward, and Attorney Albert Sabath of the Hawthorne track.

ROBERT E. CROWE.

Prosecutor Crowe called the racing men to his office to tell them that any meet at Hawthorne or the proposed Homewood track must be held without betting of any kind. It had been rumored that the prosecutor was going to allow the use of the mutuel betting certificate system as is now used at the Aurora meet, but he stopped this gossip by his announcement yesterday.

Murphy Is Silent.

Murphy and Attorney Sabath made no comment either to the prosecutor or publicly after they had been informed that even the oral system that has been in vogue at Hawthorne for some time will be barred this year.

"Of course I cannot stop horses from running around a race track," said Crowe. "There is no law against horse racing, but there is a law against betting, and I will see that it is strictly enforced.

City's Clean, He Says.

"This community is well cleaned of the hoodlum element at this time, and I intend to see that it stays that way. I do not intend to allow racing, which is a magnet for this element, to be conducted within the county if I can stop it.

"If there is betting or any other acts of disorder at the proposed meets I will take immediate steps to put an end to it. If unfavorably known characters are allowed to infest the tracks I will see that they, too, are promptly taken care of."

JESS CONQUERS ILLNESS, FOES TO GAIN TITLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ABOARD S. S. AQUITANIA, June 5.—The story of how Jess Sweetser fought his way through the amateur championships at Muirfield and the Walker cup contest at St. Andrews when he should have been in bed nursing dangerous throat trouble became known today when Sweetser, arriving from Edinburgh this morning, embarked on the Aquitania under the care of a physician.

Several days before the Muirfield play he burst a small blood vessel in his throat during a practice round. He was warned that the consequences might be dangerous, but insisted on playing. Just coming on to the top of his game, Sweetser took a long chance and won out. The effort left him exhausted, however, and when he left Edinburgh he needed a doctor's care.

This evening aboard the Aquitania he is resting easily. Although Jess could not do much talking, the doctor insisted there is not the slightest danger of any serious complications. Before the boat docks at New York he will be up and around.

RAIN SAVES CUBS IN FINAL GAME WITH PIRATES

Boss Hints of Trade for Slugging Fielder.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 5.—No one on the Cubs team felt particularly peeved today when shortly after noon a gentle June drizzle crept over this smoky city and made it impossible to play the final game of the Cubs-Pirates series. Just at present the Cubs are not in shape for a tough fight and it surely would have been a tough one because the world's champions are in a winning stride.

For that reason the game was not called off until just a little before 3 o'clock, Barney Dreyfuss had his champs all harnessed up and the gates were opened and some 200 patrons entered. But Dreyfuss' appeals to Jupe Pluvius were scorned and the big champs had to be led back to their quarters.

Play Off Game July 6.

It wasn't that Dreyfuss mourned the loss of the gate receipts, because there wouldn't have been enough to have paid off all the ushers and groundkeepers, but he did figure the Pirates would surely knock the Cubs off again in the latter's present crippled condition. Now the postponed game has to be played as part of a double header on July 6 after a morning and afternoon game on July 5, which isn't so good. By that time the Cubs may have all their men in tiptop form and be champing at the bit themselves.

There seems to be something in the air that indicates the Cub team is to be bolstered up. At least, Boss McCarthy this morning hinted an effort is being made to procure a right handed slugging outfielder even if it is necessary to part with a seasoned pitcher.

Might Get Barnhart.

One right handed slugging outfielder who might be on the line for a trade is Barnhart of the Pirates, who has been supplanted from a regular position by young Waner, obtained from the coast league.

Both the Cubs and Pirates departed tonight for New York, where they open the eastern invasion tomorrow, the Cubs at the Polo grounds against the Giants and the Pirates in Brooklyn against the Robins.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

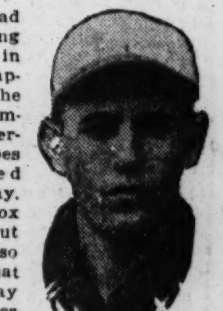
There are times when the long, loose, angular Howard Ehmke can be of considerable annoyance. He had hopes of being nothing else in the inaugural appearance of the Red Sox at Comiskey park yesterday, but his hopes were smashed without delay. The White Sox booted him about the premises so boisterously that he was on his way somewhere in less than two innings and the Collins ball players were on their way to an 8 to 2 victory.



TED LYONS.

The robust manner in which Ehmke was hoisted off the slab was about one quarter of the entire show. Another quarter of the entertainment was provided by the all around nimbleness of Honey Boy Hunnefield, the youthful shortstop. The remaining two quarters were supplied by Ted Lyons, the ex-collegian who attained his tenth victory of the season as further proof that he is about the best right hander in the American or any other league. Only five hits were notched off Ted, and that's pitching.

Hunnefield Helps Ted.

While Ehmke was on the slab doing the best he could he was the victim of base hits and lack of control. He passed three fellows in the first frame. Three others hit safely, the net result being four runs. A combination of similar happenings induced him to leave in the midst of the second chapter. A lad named Jack Russell relieved him and another single off the rescuer raised the inning's count to three. Then Russell went along pleasingly and all the Sox could tune in on him for was a run in the eighth.

There was only one chapter in which Lyons didn't bear the earmarks of the hurler he is. That was the second, when singles by Carlyle, Herrera, and Bischoff sent Boston's only runs over the plate. All that Lyons yielded after this was a double by Señor Herrera in the fourth and single by Todt in the eighth. Of course there might have been a couple others if Hunnefield hadn't had his hands, legs, and head working around the shortstop post.

How to Start a Ball Game.

The first inning started auspiciously with a pass to Mostil. Hunnefield followed with the first of his trio of singles and both advanced on Collins' sacrifice. Sheely, who tied Hunnefield for hitting honors and also gave him a run for some of the fielding glory, then singled Mostil and Honey Boy over the plate. Next came passes to Falk and Barrett, filling the bases, whereupon Kamm singled and scored two more.

Mostil also enjoyed the distinction of starting the profitable second, this time with a single. Hunnefield moved him along with a sacrifice. Collins walked and Sheely tore off a hit that let Mostil register. Falk scratched a hit through short and Collins ambled home. At this stage Ehmke strolled out of the picture and Russell appeared. Kamm's single off the newcomer scored Sheely with the third run of the inning. The only time the Sox broke out after this was when Hunnefield singled and Falk doubled him home in the eighth.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

BY DON MAXWELL.
(Sports Editor.)

There is a belief common to most of us who have difficulty totaling our golf scores that we will shoot a better game if we ramble o'er the fairways with good golfers. And I'm beginning to think the belief is based on error.

A friend invited us to play with him not so long ago and we demurred. "Can't do it," we said. "You're a good player, far better than we are, and your friends are good players, and we would only slow up the foursome."

"Come along," our friend answered. "I've got a fellow for you to play with who's so bad that you can't be any worse."

When the friend introduced us he said:

"I want you two to get acquainted. I know that Mac is the world's worst golfer and Don claims the same title. Fight it out among yourselves."

And what a battle that turned out to be! We played 27 holes (scores sent only on request, accompanied by stamped envelope), and at the end of the day my opponent led by one stroke.

He had played 10 strokes under his customary score and so had I. Of equal inability, we had worked hard for every hole, and as a consequence bettered our game.

When we had finished my opponent said:

"That's been the most interesting game of golf I've played for a long time. The trouble with me is that I've been playing with these topnotch shooters. I've been a sparrow among eagles. Get me a sparrow and I'll give him a battle every time."

This theory of like improving like probably is unorthodox. The experts probably will tell you that only by playing with experts will you learn how to become an expert. And maybe they're right. I only know that I've tried the other plan and it worked. Dub golfers make the most of it.

Aurora's Exposition park race track has drawn greater crowds thus far in its meeting than it's ever drawn before. Race track folks are wondering why. From one of them comes this answer:

"Enthusiasm for racing seems to run in waves. Folks are crazy about the horses for a period of years and they jam the turnstiles at the tracks. Then comes a wave of reform. Interest in the races turns to something else. Folks forget about the horse and get out of the habit of wagering. Chicago is emerging from one of these reform periods. It has taken two years of racing at Hawthorne track to get the folks interested again. And now they are. This is going to be the biggest racing center in the country in another year."

And with four tracks in the Chicago district, two old and two new, it seems as if the speaker might be right.

Tennis fans of these United States must feel disappointment mingled with sympathy as they read of Helen Wills' sudden illness. Sympathy for the plucky California girl whose record of triumphs on the tennis court include the names of all save Suzanne Lenglen — disappointment that a second battle between "Little Poker Face" and Suzanne is impossible this year. We were counting on cheering over Helen's victory.

Don Skene writes of a Scotchman he claims to have met while en route to Muirfield to write of the play for the amateur championship of Great Britain, which Jess Sweetser won. Skene says he was puzzled by seeing this Scot hop off the train at every station and hop on again as it pulled out. Finally he asked the Scotchman why he was hopping on and off in such a fashion. And he replied:

"Laddie, my doctor tells me I haven't long to live. And I'm buying my ticket from station to station."

If you've heard it before, cable Skene at your own expense.

Babe Ruth Hits No. 19, but Indians Maul Yanks, 15-3

Cleveland, O., June 5.—[Special.]—Tris Speaker day was celebrated today with the Cleveland Indians defeating the New York Yankees, 15 to 3.

Ruth made his nineteenth homer and George Burns hit his twenty-first and twenty-second doubles of the season. The Indians made a triple play in the seventh inning.

Pennock was driven from the mound in the sixth. Buckeye, Cleveland pitcher, held the Yankees to five hits and won his first game of the season.

NATIONAL GAMES HOLD GLARE OF TRACK LIMELIGHT

World Record Holders Enter Meet Here.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Holders of world and American records will be among the contestants in the annual individual track and field championships of the National Collegiate A. A. on Soldiers' field Friday and Saturday.

Although the entries will not close officially until tomorrow, nominations already received include the best intercollegiate athletes in the country. Performers who registered outstanding marks in the sectional intercollegiates will arrive early in the week to train on Stagg field.

Locke Enters Sprints.

Roland Locke of Nebraska, who unofficially has broken the world's records in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, will be among those to face the starter in both events. Bud Houser of Southern California, who won the eastern intercollegiate, is in Chicago. Houser is the world's record holder in the discus throw. He won this event and the shot put in the eastern intercollegiate and also in the Pacific Coast conference championships. He also was victor in these events in the 1924 Olympic games.

King of Stanford, winner of the running high jump in the Pacific Coast conference and eastern intercollegiate is here for his event, while Lee Barnes of Southern California, national intercollegiate record holder in the pole vault at 13 feet 9 inches, also is on the ground.

Star Hurdler to Compete.

Leighton Dye of Southern California, who won the 120 yard high hurdles in the Drake relays, Pacific Coast conference championships and the eastern intercollegiate, will meet the best in the country in his event. Grumbles of the same school will face Cuhel of Iowa in the 220 yard low barriers. The meeting of Dye of the Trojan squad and Capt. Guthrie of Ohio State, the Big Ten champion for the last two years, should peril the intercollegiate record.

Phil Northrop of Michigan, holder of the American intercollegiate record in the javelin throw, will compete, as will Kuck of Kansas State Teachers' college, Hoffman of Stanford and Cook of Southern California.

Kenneth Lancaster of Missouri, who has leaped 24 feet 4¼ inches, will be among the leaders in the running broad jump. Pete Wallace of Illinois, the Big Ten champion, and Phil Northrop of Michigan are other strong contenders. Missouri also will have Richerson in the discus throw and shot put and Kent Farley in the dashes.

Big Ten Runners in 440.

Kennedy of Wisconsin, who won the quarter mile in the Western conference championships, will be a contestant in this event along with Shock of Illinois and Stephenson of Indiana. Caine of Indiana and Martin of Northwestern will start in the half mile. Chapman of Wisconsin, Rose of Indiana and Gillette of Montana should engage in an interesting race in the two mile.

Lincoln Park Eight Beats St. Johns by Open Water

Delafield, Wis., June 5.—[Special.]—The Lincoln Park Boat club defeated St. John's Military academy eight oared shell on Lake Nagawicka today by one and a quarter lengths. The Chicago oarsmen took the lead in the first quarter mile and held it until the half way post was reached, when the cadet crew crept up. Near the finish the experience of the Lincoln Park men told and they won with open water between the shells. This is the twelfth race between the two clubs, each having won six times.

Rosy Ryan, Brave Hurler, Released to Toledo Club

Boston, Mass., June 5.—(AP)—The Boston Braves today announced the release of Wilfred "Rosy" Ryan, a pitcher, to the Toledo club of the American association. Ryan, who was obtained from the New York Giants, was formerly a star at Holy Cross college.

HYDE PARK IS ASSURED PREP TENNIS TITLES

The Cook county prep tennis championships in both singles and doubles have been cinched for Hyde Park High, Rexinger of Hyde Park having defeated his teammate, Budd, in the singles yesterday, 4—6, 6—3, 6—2, and Budd and Rexinger being scheduled to meet Calohan and Heyman of Hyde Park to determine winners of the doubles title Monday. Calohan and Heyman won their semi-final match Friday, Rexinger and Budd having gone into finals yesterday, by virtue of their 6—2, 6—3 victory over Flesher and Booth of Parker.

Maria, Chicagoan, Elected Notre Dame Track Captain

South Bend, Ind., June 5.—(AP)—The Notre Dame track and field squad has elected Della Maria of Chicago captain for 1927. He is a star sprinter.

Notes of Sox

THE Boston fellows will be at Comiskey park again today. Ted Blankenship will try to beat them. It may be Wingfield or Wiltse for the Red Hose.

Fitzgerald, who played left for Boston yesterday, is the lad who was with the Cubs during their training last spring at Catalina Island. The Red Sox purchased him from Wichita Falls, Tex., where the Bruins had sent him.

Pat Shores, a right handed first baseman, joined the Red Sox upon their arrival here. He is from Maryville college of Maryville, Tenn.

Coach Chief Bender made his maiden appearance of the season in White hosiery and was given a large hand when he took his position in the first base coaching box.

Hunnefield threw out Herrera to start the ninth, but managed it only because of Sheely. The throw was wide and high, but Big Earl reached up about ten feet and pulled in the pill with his gloved hand.

Barrett hoisted a fly close to the foul line back of third in the sixth and Fitzgerald made a great run for it, but coudn't hold the ball. Bill made two bases, but the official scorer happened to be cleaning his spectacles at the moment and recorded it an error.

Lyons was one of the few American league pitchers who won more than twenty games last year. At his present rate of progress he should come close to thirty this season.

HARMONS NIP KELLOGGS, 4-3

Giving the Kellogg Pep team two runs in the opening inning by a pair of errors, the P. T. Harmon club scored a 4 to 3 win over the visitors yesterday at Cermak-Mills stadium.

Bob Steele made his first appearance of the season and hurled a fine game. The west siders won out in the ninth frame, when Atkinson hit a triple, Pechous flew out, and Driscoll swatted a single to left, putting over the deciding tally. Score:

Crusader Wins 40th Running of Suburban

New York, June 5.—(AP)—Two gallant sons of Man o' War led a field of nine thoroughbreds to the finish line in the Suburban handicap at Belmont today. Crusader was first, four lengths ahead of American Flag, his stable mate, in the mile and a quarter race. King Solomon's Seal finished third, a length behind American Flag. H. P. Whitney's Macaw was fourth.

Crusader, permitting King Solomon's Seal and Macaw to make the pace, swung into the lead just before the stretch and finished with a great burst of speed to win in 2:03. The victory was worth $13,150 to the winner, $2,500 went to American Flag, and $1,000 to King Solomon's Seal.

BRADLEY TEAM EASILY WINS LATONIA DERBY

Bagenbaggage First and Boot to Boot Second.

Latonia, Ky., June 5.—(AP)—The thoroughbred team, Bagenbaggage and Boot to Boot, representing the Idle Hour farm, owned by Col. E. R. Bradley, won the Latonia Derby here today without being extended. Rhinock, which ran a game race, finished third, while Blondin and Navigator, prides of the east, came along in the rear with Recollection. Bagenbaggage's margin was a half length.

The race was a truly run contest, and there was no doubt the two which finished just as Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage did in the Kentucky Derby, were the best. The charges under the other jockeys failed to show the class with the winner.

Bradley Derby Winner.

This is the fourth time that Bradley has finished one-two in Derbies contested in this country, the first being at Churchill Downs in 1921 with Behave Yourself and Black Servant; the second at New Orleans this winter with Bagenbaggage and Boot to Boot; the third at Churchill Downs, Louisville, last month with Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage.

In today's race Recollection set the pace, closely followed by Boot to Boot, with Navigator third and the others strung out, with Bagenbaggage last.

At the head of the back stretch Bagenbaggage started on his way to victory with a steady even stride.

At the stretch turn Bagenbaggage took a half length lead over Boot to Boot which was two lengths in front of Rhinock with Blondin tiring to a walk at this stage.

Time Is Under Record.

Down the stretch the two leaders cantered and Bagenbaggage went over the line winner.

The mile and a half was run in 2:32 1-5, several seconds slower than the record.

The Idle Hour entry was the betting choice at odds on and the winner paid $3.20 for a $2 straight ticket to win.

The race was worth $27,500 net to Bradley as he scored in first and second position. Rhinock's owner was given $1,500.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Guy Cyrs, 4451 Congress street, Chicago, was awarded $5.

The Question.

Do you think the Cubs will return from their eastern invasion in the first division?

Where Asked.

Michigan and Monroe.

The Answers.

Miss Marice Murphy, 6107 Kenmore avenue, home girl—I have been a Cub fan for several years and have stuck with them when they were good and when they were bad. I'm hoping for the best this year and I think their present tour of the east will be a good index to their work the rest of the season.

Cyril Loades, 4116 Jackson boulevard, bus driver—There apparently has been more coöperation among the club members this year than in a long time. If that spirit continues on the eastern trip, the tour should end successfully. It's hard to beat a band of fighters, all working for one another.

John McCann, south park policeman—They don't seem to be going so well just now, but I look for them to come back from the east in third or fourth place. Much will depend, of course, on their pitchers. This trip will be a big test for Manager McCarthy, too. If he can continue to inject his fighting personality into the club, the Cubs will be hard to keep out of the first division.

Miss Gertrude Donaberg, home girl, 1062 Ainslie street —They've got to come back in the first division, if they hope to win the pennant. The north side is banking on them. They have made a fine start in the 1926 race and there is no reason why they should not maintain their current pace.

H. J. Mallhagen, real estate man, 307 North Michigan—The Cubs are a young team and I think they'll come back from their first swing through the east with at least as good a percentage as they had when they left. I'll be disappointed if they are not in the running for the pennant when the end of the race nears.

FRENCH, BEARING GIFTS, BEAT PATH TO HELEN'S DOOR

Miss Wills Can't Play for at Least Six Weeks.

BY DON SKENE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, June 5.—Officials at the American hospital at Neuilly caused rejoicing throughout the Paris sporting world this afternoon when they announced, "Miss Wills is out of danger, with no fear of any complications. She will be able to receive visitors Tuesday and will leave the hospital ten days hence." She will not be able to play tennis for at least six weeks.

Miss Wills was weak today from the shock of the ordeal, the ether, and the surgeon's knife, and was not allowed to see anybody but her mother. Admirers from many nations called at the hospital throughout the day with gifts, paying their most sincere respects and leaving heaps of flowers, candy, books, and fruit for the girl who has won the heart of the European tennis world since her arrival in January.

Suzanne Brings Peonies.

Miss Helen's mother received all the visitors and repeatedly declared she was deeply touched by the expressions of sympathy. One of the first callers at the hospital was Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, bringing with her a great armful of crimson peonies for the American girl who threatened her world supremacy on the courts in the most desperate struggle of the French champion's career—a battle which almost wrecked her own health at Cannes.

Medical experts this afternoon declared that Miss Wills might not be able to play even in the American national championships in the middle of August unless she made a remarkable recovery. The Wimbledon tournament, starting June 21, is, of course, out of the question, although for sentimental reasons Mary K. Browne, captain of the American women's team, has asked that Miss Wills' name be kept on the historic draw, even though the idea of her playing is fantastic.

Papa Lenglen Sympathetic.

Papa Lenglen, the shrewd old trainer who has made his daughter champion of the world, expressed sympathy for the "little American one's" illness and Mlle. Suzanne's mother sent her warmest good wishes to Miss Wills' mother.

Helen does not realize the seriousness of her condition. When she awoke this morning one of the first things she said was, "Mother, I will be well again soon. I am happy to think I can play at Wimbledon."

"I have not the heart to tell Helen she cannot possibly play for her country for a long time," Mrs. Wills declared, "When she is stronger I can break the news. It will be a bitter disappointment."

Suzanne Won't Play in U. S. Again; It's the Climate

PARIS, June 5.—(AP)—"I will never play in the United States again," Suzanne Lenglen said today when asked if she was planning to enter the Forest Hills tournament.

The French star declared the climate of the northern United States, like that of the Riviera, did not agree with her, and that if she makes another voyage there it will be as a visitor and not as a player.

Mlle. Lenglen asserted that she would play in the Wimbledon championships without fail.

Yanks Win 3, Lose 1 Paris Net Matches

PARIS, France, June 5.—[Special.]—The unfortunate elimination of Miss Helen Wills killed the chief interest in the Racing club tournament, but a capacity crowd watched today's play. Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen had the stands roaring with applause by her spectacular shots in the mixed doubles, in which she and Toto Brugnon defeated the strong Dutch combination of Miss K. Bouman and H. Timmer, 6—2, 6—2.

The French tennis queen, wearing a new silk costume with a baby blue bandeau and sweater to match, smashed and volleyed in the most sensational style of her career.

Richards and Kinsey Win.

Vincent Richards and Howard Kinsey beat P. Hirsch and R. Danet, 6—3, 6—3, 6—3, in a match featured by brilliant net work and cross court placements by Richards. It was the third American victory of the day.

Mary K. Browne and Elizabeth Ryan continued to march through the women's doubles by a victory over two sisters, Mlles. Des Landes de Danet-Vercken, 6—4, 6—2. Miss Ryan, paired with Kinsey, defeated Mme. Vaussa and F. Poulin, 6—3, 6—0.

The biggest dope upset of the tournament occurred when Mlle. Helene Contostavlos, the Franco-Greek star, crushed her cousin, Mlle. Didi Vlasto, finalist with Miss Wills in the last Olympic play, 6—2, 6—2.

Injured Borota Victor.

Another upset was the gallant Jean Borota's victory over A. H. Fyzee, the Indian Davis cup star, in a grueling five set match by a score of 6—2, 6—2, 2—6, 6—8, 6—1. Borota was playing against medical advice and suffered intense pain from a recent spinal injury. He almost collapsed after the third set, when friends urged him to abandon play. After fifteen minutes of rest the Bounding Basque returned and won.

The Americans suffered one defeat when Mlle. Contostavlos and Jean Washer defeated Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup and Lord Cholmondeley in the mixed doubles, 6—4, 8—6.

Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, the French stars, defeated R. Boyd and H. Cattaruzza, Argentines, 6—2, 7—5, 6—3.

N. DAME WINS NONCONFERENCE TRACK GAMES

Milwaukee, Wis., June 5.—[Special.]—Knute Rockne's University of Notre Dame track squad demonstrated its versatility today by winning a decisive victory in the first annual central intercollegiate conference track and field meet conducted by Marquette university.

Notre Dame scored 72½ points. Michigan State was second with 47; Marquette, third, with 35½, and Butler, fourth, with 10.

Fred Alderman, Michigan State sprinter, was high scorer for the day, piling up fifteen points on impressive firsts in the broad jump, 100 yard dash, and 220 yard dash.

The interest of the crowd centered in the pole vault, where a close duel developed between Frank Glazer, Marquette's sophomore star, and Paul Harrington, Notre Dame world's indoor collegiate champion. Summaries:

Beating its nearest competitor by nearly two minutes, Santome, one of the new R boats recently added to the fleet of the Chicago Yacht club and manned by Bill Faurot and Keath Pravier, yesterday won the club's race for R boats, held over the twelve nautical mile course off Belmont harbor.

Mitzi, sailed by Frank Merkle, finished second, and Clypso, the other new addition to the north side club's fleet of R sloops, third. The winner's time for the sail, made in a light southeasterly breeze, was 2:48:57.

Although Santome lagged a short distance behind Mitzi, Clypso, and Sari after crossing the starting line, the two pilots of the victor got it in hand shortly, and grabbed the leadership on the second leg, where Santome stayed for the rest of the sail.

With Santome in the lead the other boats jockeyed along until Mitzi and Clypso pushed in front on the final leg and figured in a duel for second position, the former winning out. The boats which brought up the rear had by this time cut sail and were looking for wind which had abruptly abated.

Piloted by Bill Johnson, Naiad won the pup class event sailed over the short triangular course, twice around, by a good margin, finishing in 1:49:05.

LOGAN SQUARES SWAMP MADISON BY 11 TO 3 COUNT

Logan Squares defeated the Madison, Wis., nine, 11 to 3, after a five run rally in the fourth at Logan Square park yesterday. Pitcher Dodge of the visitors was driven from the mound in that frame. Dennis hit a homer and counted Olson, who had walked. Two more passes and an error by Tesdietz accounted for three markers. Score:

Fifty-three Per Cent More Visibility!

Composite-Steel Body!

NEW PATENTED SAFETY VISION FEATURE!

¶ Leading again! Safety Vision! New Patented Steel Construction! "Blind zone" reduced 47%! Visibility increased 53%! An idea that other builders will follow. And now the body designers and engineers are attempting to reproduce this new idea, yet it will take them months to get into production; probably a year to make it available. But today, immediately, you may have this great patented feature in the Diana Light Straight Eight. An unrestricted panoramic sweep—different from anything you have ever seen before, and the most revolutionary step towards driving without hazard since the coming of four-wheel brakes. ¶ Statistics show that 80% of all motor accidents are due to the driver who didn't see the other car in time—couldn't see it, because the thick wooden pillar blocked it from view when less than two seconds (27½ feet) away. But now Diana Safety Vision removes the risk and speculative chance—the new patented Steel Construction cuts the "blind zone", and adds 53% to your visibility, doubles your safety. ¶ Of course, everybody wants it, wants vision, wants safety. And everybody wants it—without body roar, without metallic drumming. So Diana brings the new, patented Composite-Steel Body, hushed—made quiet, made proof to sound. Actually, at 71 miles an hour you can hear your watch tick. ¶ So, now, get in and drive. Get the full sweep of Diana Safety Vision. You'll never buy a car again without it.

SOUTHPAW LEADS FIRST ROUND OF PREP GOLF MEET

Alpert's 78 Is Low in City Tourney.

BOB STEWART

Samuel Alpert, 15 year old student of Marshall High, yesterday led the field in the first 18 hole round of the Chicago high school golf championship tournament at the Mid-City club. Alpert, who swings from the port side, shot a 39—39—78. Carroll Stewart, Lake View, turned in a 39—41—80 for the second low score of the day.

Miss Mildred Hackl, who is the same age as Alpert but a right hander, led the feminine flight with a 46—46—92. She was one stroke ahead of Miss Florence Beebe of Schurz, the long driving marvel. Miss Beebe was out in 50 and back in 43 strokes for a 93.

Meanwhile the quartet of young men from Senn was shooting a 343, topping the team event for the first round. Senn's team is composed of Leitzav, 85; Burroughs, 88; Haldeman, 88, and Stromberg, 82.

Drives Average 250 Yards.

Alpert is a slight youngster. He is 5 feet 5 inches tall. He was born left handed, he says, and when he took up golf four years ago he bought left handed clubs against the advice of many friends.

Miss Hackl lives at 2736 Mildred avenue. Her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Hackl, lived on that street fifteen years ago when Mildred was born and they named her after the street. If the girl keeps on playing the way she has since her debut last year she'll make the street famous.

Final Round Saturday.

The final 18 holes of the tournament will be played next Saturday, either at Evergreen or Mid-City. Yesterday's scores:

SENN—Leitzav, 85; Burroughs, 88; Haldeman, 88, and Stromberg, 82—343.

CRANE—Tamburino, 85; Dolan, 88; Tarsa, 88; Jones, 89—350.

SCHURZ—Rappaport, 92; Simpson, 94; Sammon, 82; Morgan, 83—351.

HYDE PARK—Ong, 91; Wheeler, 87; Lampert, 85; Rawkesin, 89—352.

BOWEN—Kistner, 88; Hill, 82; Cooley, 91; Oliver, 94—355.

ACACIA.

Leading scores in the qualifying round of the June handicap found W. L. Lawson first with 99—29—70. Other low net scores included Jerry Olson, 89—15—74; W. H. Weakley, 93—18—75; P. F. Willigeroth, 99—24—75; B. M. Hamilton, 85—10—75; G. A. Brown, 83—7—76, and G. C. Maistner, 96—20—76.

NORTH SHORE.

Qualifying rounds for the June class tournament were held with eight qualifying in each class for the first round next Saturday. H. H. Cole won the match play against par, full handicap, 3 up, with L. Maconder second, with 1 up. This morning the first competition in the Sunday eighteen hole low net medal play tournament will be held.

PARK RIDGE.

The only thing on the Park Ridge schedule was match play against par, won by F. I. Prentiss, 3 up.

INDIAN HILL.

Pairings for the Indian Hill cup tourney were drawn up yesterday as follows: H. E. Howard vs. G. Ridgway; S. Butler vs. D. G. McCloud; R. Sherman vs. W. D. Truesdale; N. L. Hoyt vs. A. T. McIntosh; W. V. McElvaine Jr. vs. R. S. Laird; A. B. Bradley vs. W. G. Walling; E. B. Price vs. W. H. Lyon, and George A. Kelly vs. A. E. McCordice. In the 18-hole match play against time, H. E. Howard was even up; Roger Sherman was 1 down, and T. S. Coyne, L. E. Hart, P. O. Lutz, and A. E. McCordice were 2 down.

BRIERGATE.

The Briergate ball sweepstakes were won by A. H. Ruth with 103—33—70. T. H. Ward was second with 94—23—71, and A. E. Patterson third with 90—18—72. The third round of the spring tourney was played.

RIDGE.

In a blind bogey tourney, between 83 and 93, bogey being 84, at Ridge the results were as follows: W. S. Kline, 81—3—84; C. B. Martin, 84—0—84; C. W. Mickleberry, 94—10—84, were first, and G. H. Nelson, 89—4—85; H. M. Serrers, 83—2—85; L. H. Powell, 85—2—83; R. J. White, 93—8—85; V. H. Barthomomew, 85—0—85, and D. Hayn, 85—0—85 were second, and G. R. Cain, 98—12—86; C. L. McGraw, 91—5—86; G. P. Mitchell, 92—6—86; H. F. Taylor, 103—17—86, and W. Vanderpool, 90—4—86, were third.

GLEN VIEW.

C. A. Donnell won the class A trophy for the match play against par. Donnell was 2 down to par. Thomas H. Eddy and R. E. Wilson were tied for the class B prize, both being 2 down to par. Eddy won the draw. The class C prize went to S. W. Bowker, 5 down.

SKOKIE.

A. C. Allen, who rivals Fred Hill for the title "golf's most popular devotee," had a good round and turned in a card of 93. Mr. Allen's handicap shaved the score 19 strokes and the net 74 gave him a tie with J. Chace, who shot an 88—14—74. Discussion as to who would get the Westward Ho cup, the Saturday trophy, extended throughout the dinner hour. K. R. Kimbark and Fred Hill were tied with 37 putts each for the putting prize.

NORTHMOOR.

S. L. Reinhardt, who as a football star at Yale was known as "Spider" Reinhardt, is the husband of Mrs. Elaine Rosenthal Reinhardt, western women's champion. He proved that he was capable of playing a good game of golf by shooting a 79—9—70 and leading the qualifiers for the Age Limit tournament. Spider Reinhardt is a big fellow—he hits 'em a mile.

DIXMOOR.

The low gross prize went to S. F. Federowski, who had a 78. W. D. Collins, with a 90, took the second low gross prize. J. F. Miller, 94—16—78, was the low net winner. D. F. Meyers, 98—18—80, was second, and T. B. O'Neil, 87—5—82, third.

OLYMPIA FIELDS.

Seven hundred members played the royal and ancient game. On the first course there was an 18 hole blind bogey contest and Dr. J. Gregory, 93—7—86, won the first prize. Course No. 2 had a match play against par competition and H. C. Austin, 2 up, won. Dr. F. Reed, who needed but 30 putts on his round, annexed the putting prize.

FLOSSMOOR.

Eighteen hole medal handicap play interested 200 golfers. C. G. Dowdall, 78—7—71, won in class A. Class B prize went to A. O. McLain, 86—13—73. J. E. Hunter, 88—16—72, won in class C, and J. E. Cornell, 106—25—81, took the class D prize.

THE eighteen hole best ball medal play handicap for the E. T. Erickson trophy at Riverside Country club yesterday was won by the team of J. A. Rosch and F. W. Walthers, with a combined score of 85—26—59. R. Steckel, 72—4—68, won the ball sweepstakes in class A. R. C. Harris was second with 82—9—73, while W. Hellyer followed with 72—12—75. Class B went to E. M. Love, 82—16—66. F. W. Walthers was second with 91—21—70, and W. H. Covelock was third with 91—20—71. In class C, the winner was T. J. Lawless, 98—30—68, followed by A. McArthur, 93—23—70, and H. Blakely, 101—25—76. The first round in the annual spring class tournament will be held next Saturday. Sixteen qualified in each class.

BEVERLY.

The members qualified for the spring trophy. Col. G. E. Ball, 91—24—67, was the medalist. The pairings for the match play follow: Col. Ball vs. John McKinlay Jr.; W. C. Butler vs. Leonard Hicks; W. G. Uffendel vs. Alex Smullan; E. J. Kelly vs. Harry Cory; A. F. Kruse vs. H. L. Butcher; W. J. O'Connor vs. J. H. McCabe; C. C. Hasely vs. H. W. Sever; George Reynolds vs. F. C. Gifford. In the blind bogey sweepstakes the following winners were announced: F. C. Gifford, W. P. Johnston, V. H. Munnecke, J. H. McCabe, S. K. Milligan, C. R. Walgreen, Dr. George B. Butt, Harvey Cory, and John Dickie.

ONWENTSIA.

Match play handicap against par was the only competition. Dr. E. S. Talbot, whose card read 46—42—88, and who had a handicap of 14, finished 1 up on par, as did Henry Porter Isham, who took 38—40—78, with a handicap of 6.

LAKE SHORE.

There were no scheduled tournaments. About 150 were out, many putting on finishing touches for their play in the two ball sweepstakes next Saturday.

MIDLOTHIAN.

Henry George Eckstein Jr. was a double winner. His card of 77—14—63 gave him the victory in the ball sweepstakes, class A and B, and the Dr. W. R. Gubbins trophy. Albert E. Mix, with 81—15—66 was second in the sweepstakes, followed by D. R. McCabe, 79—12—67; J. J. Rutherford, 86—17—69. Class C and D leaders were N. A. Anderson, 89—20—69; C. R. Holden, 89—18—71; S. M. Rogers, 92—20—72; G. E. Tultin, 92—20—72, and V. T. Sheean, 91—19—72.

EDGEWATER.

Close competition featured the first round of the spring tournament. J. F. Matteson carried his class A match to the nineteenth green before losing to C. T. Hayes, 1 up. In class B, A. S. Harmstrom took a 1 up decision from E. H. Lee on the eighteenth hole, while F. J. Ringley defeated A. E. Pyott, 2 and 1 in the feature class C encounter. The low net award for eighteen holes of medal play went to H. D. Fargo Jr. with 76—4—72. J. R. Murphy won the ball sweepstakes with 79—8—71. E. J. Balwin and R. J. Rich, who had cards of 83—11—72, tied for second.

WESTWARD HO.

The short hole contest was won by S. C. Iverson, who had a net score of 7 on the four short par 3 holes. The four man team event was won by F. P. Sullivan, Charles Harper, O. O. Zeigler, and J. McCarthy, with a net of 287. In the qualifying round for the President's trophy E. O. Eyman, with a net of 67, was the medalist.

IDLEWILD.

The semi-final round in the Founders' cup play has been reached, with T. Horwich, H. Lederer, B. M. Lewy, and H. R. Behr in the next to the last brackets. Horwich won his way to the semi-finals by defeating M. Santler, 2 up, while Lewy defeated S. H. Jarden, 4 and 3. The other two drew byes. In the two man best ball event H. B. Samuels and Ralph Kunstadter were first with a combined score of 156—12—144. D. Copeland and M. Mastar followed with 180—34—146. Other low scoring pairs included M. Kaplan and S. H. Isreal, 173—26—147; H. Ward and B. Lewy, 183—33—150; J. Snychecker and M. C. Myers, 183—32—151; J. M. Livingston and A. Levy, 187—35—152; S. Rosenthal and H. Solomon, 186—32—154, and M. Neufeldt and M. Levy, 185—31—154.

SOUTHMOOR.

In the qualifying round for the President's cup most of the golfers preferred to wait until today to complete their trial rounds. Thirty-two will qualify for this and the Directors' trophy tournament. Low cards in the first day's play belonged to R. M. Morange, 42—41—83, and H. J. Holstein, 45—42—87. Other scores included C. O. White, 50—49—99; R. Brown, 47—48—95; R. E. Galeski, 53—47—100; Paul S. Dougherty, 49—45—94; W. C. Howell, 52—47—99, and G. W. Nelson, 49—49—98.

EXMOOR.

Three were tied for the medal play handicap prize. They were L. L. Cooke, 74; H. W. Boyd, 74, and X. Vigeant, 74. They drew and H. W. Boyd won.

LOW gross and low net medal play featured the day's competition at the Evanston Golf club. W. W. Ahlschlager, shooting par for the course, took the class A loss gross with a 70. Howard S. Camp, 83—10—73, had low net in class A. Winners in class B were W. S. Ross, with a low gross of 85, and Thomas J. Dix, with a low net of 86—15—71. In class C, J. J. Glenn had 92 for low gross, while J. F. Craddock took low net with a card of 94—24—70. Edward D. Morton shot a 96 and was lowest in class D. Low net in the same division went to F. W. Freutag, who had 97—29—68.

KNOLLWOOD.

It was the biggest day of Knollwood's career. In the first place, the new Skokie Valley Electric railway ran a special train to the club and more than 175 Knollwood members made the trip. Among them were Thomas E. Wilson, president of the club; F. E. White, D. J. Malloy, John Howland, and Louis Davis Jr. The train made the trip from Chicago to Lake Forest in 50 minutes, which broke all present records. Then Dexter Cummings, former intercollegiate champion, played the Knollwood course and shot a new course record—a 70. He won the class A prize. A. J. Maloney, 93—18—70, won the B class prize and H. Wanner, 98—30—68, won the C class contest.

MAYWOOD.

Low net went to H. G. Pemberton and E. C. Grasser. Low gross prize was won by J. P. Dunlop, 38—38—76. Two hundred members played the course, a record for such an early date, according to Jack Yorgan, the pro.

GLEN FLORA.

More than 200 members played on the course during the day. Some were interested in matches in the spring trophy contest, but the scores were not available.

BROOKWOOD.

S. E. Morency and R. Warren led the ball sweepstakes with a score of 71 apiece. Morency's card read 89—18, while Warren's gross score was 101. The blind bogey tournament went to F. W. Land, with 124—30—94. The first round of the President's cup tournament found sixteen qualifying for the next play next Saturday.

NAPERVILLE.

This morning will find more golfers out in an endeavor to better the marks set by the early players who have already turned in some classy scores in the two day ball sweepstake tournament. A preliminary pep session in the form of a public social and dance was held at the clubhouse.

WESTMORELAND.

The following members were named as prize winners in the blind bogey contest: H. C. Johnson, 86—2—84; S. H. Harrison, 96—12—84; C. Kirk, 86—2—84; W. H. Nuschlet, 96—11—85; T. T. Julian, 85—17—68; J. C. Morrison, 88—17—71. Class C—James Rose, 92—21—71; A. H. Baker, 95—24—71. Lee Thiltges defeated W. L. Eulass, 2 and 1, and Joseph Bour defeated H. E. Lapp, 2 up, in the semifinals for the president's trophy.

NATIONAL OPEN.

M. J. Williams, chairman of the caddy committee at the Calumet Country club, announced yesterday that golfers who will qualify at that club for the National open tournament will be wise if they bring their own caddies.

SHORE ACRES.

More than 100 members played the course, but there was no club competition.

THE qualifying round for the Barkey cup interested the members of Glen Oak yesterday. The following qualified: M. Pittsford, J. B. Sarby, H. K. Nicoll, John Shean, E. C. McKinnie, R. S. Waterbury, W. S. Corbly and Fred Wilcoxen.

The match play in the spring tournament resulted as follows: J. E. Reardon defeated A. W. Dresshler on the 27th hole; M. O. Allen defeated J. B. Roberts, 1 up; H. K. Nicoll defeated E. J. Kneip, 1 up; John Morrell defeated W. S. Corbly, 2 and 1; R. Kearsley defeated George Vastine, 2 and 1; John Hackett defeated Dan Devaney, 1 up; R. W. Upp defeated Charles Irrgang, 2 and 1. W. W. Sine and C. G. Miller, each with an 82, were tied for the blind bogey prize.

ILLINOIS.

Announcement that work on the new clubhouse would be started within three weeks inspired the players traversing the course in the blind bogey tournament, with the result that some fancy scoring was turned in. L. H. Puls, with his round of 90, was near enough to capture the blind bogey, with F. W. Franklin and J. E. Carney following, each with an 89. L. J. Fogel had an 88.

OAK PARK.

J. P. Hook and W. H. Spear had 78 strokes each and were low in class A for the 18 hole medal play prize. S. T. Seitzer, 86, won in class B. A. MacFarland, 87, was the honor man in class C, and H. Struble, 97, won in class D. The ball sweepstakes resulted in a tie between J. P. Hook and W. H. Spear, who had net scores of 78.

CHICAGO GOLF.

There was no club competition. Eighty members played the course.

LA GRANGE.

W. K. Sanderson finished his last round in the Sports and Pastimes trophy contest with 300 strokes for the 72 holes. He won the prize. The choice Nine Hole contest went to E. B. Lapham, 47—16—31. The low gross score for the day was shot by Donald Heppes, captain of the Northwestern golf team, who had a 71.

OLD ELM.

The members played no official club competition, but wandered over the fairways at leisure and had a good day of sport.

WILMETTE.

The members played in a novelty contest, a "low score on the four par 3 holes." E. B. Wingate, 12 strokes, won. S. Moulding and W. S. Wylie, who had 13 strokes each, were second. More than 200 members played the course.

BOB O'LINK.

The four ball foursome prize went to M. W. Walker, A. D. Plamondon, R. J. Collins and Mont Tennes, who had a score of 306 for the 18 hole round.

Breeze Solves Trick Hole at Beverly; Shoots Birdie 2

BY MORROW KRUM.

Imagine being 40 yards short of the first hole at Beverly Country club on your tee shot! The hole is 378 yards long. Can you imagine how happy you'd be if you had slammed your drive 335 yards down the middle?

Slipper Breeze—his right name is James Alexander Walcott Breeze—was happy. He pitched the remaining forty yards, landed within eight feet of the pin, and sank the putt for a birdie 3. He was singing "O, to be in England, now that spring is here."

No. 2 Puzzles Slipper.

We turned to the second hole. It being Slipper's honor, he looked at the hole, then at me.

"What is the world is this?" he demanded.

"That's the famous No. 2 at Beverly," I answered. "Known all around the world. The great sugar bowl, dinner cup, soup tureen golf hole. Small green completely surrounded by wall three feet high. It hasn't been changed in fifteen years. It's 120 yards and requires a pitch and two putts for a par 3. But you have to pitch dead. Can't run up because there's no opening wall, except a two foot gate for the player. Your shot must be high. A low ball will bounce out. Got to pitch and stop.

Slipper's mouth was open.

"I am beginning to believe you've seen this hole before," he said. "Can you by any chance tell me how many blades of grass there are on the green?"

"Go ahead and shoot, Mr. Breeze," I answered.

Makes Birdie 2.

Slipper Breeze is a big fellow. He weighs 210 and stands 6 feet 3 inches. Arms, legs, chest, feet, hands, everything about him is big. One would expect a long drive, but not great delicacy. The spade mashie looked like a lead pencil in his big hands. He tossed the ball on the tee, spurning a little yellow perch I offered. He took an easy stance, facing the hole and half turned to address the ball.

He took an easy well timed stroke. The ball floated upwards, arched in its flight and started down, almost straight down. It landed within two feet of the cup, bounced back an inch and came to rest. Slipper had an easy putt for a 2, a birdie. He sank it later.

Pitch important Shot.

"The pitch is the most important stroke in the game," said Breeze afterward. "I practiced pitching at buckets when I was a kid. Hour after hour I practiced. That's why I have won so many British tournaments.

"This is a great hole. It's great because it brings out the most important shot in the game. Every golf course should have one."

Next week Slipper will try another difficult hole at another course. If you could watch Slipper's play you'd benefit. But you can't. He's a fable, a whole fable all by himself.

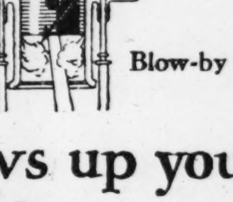
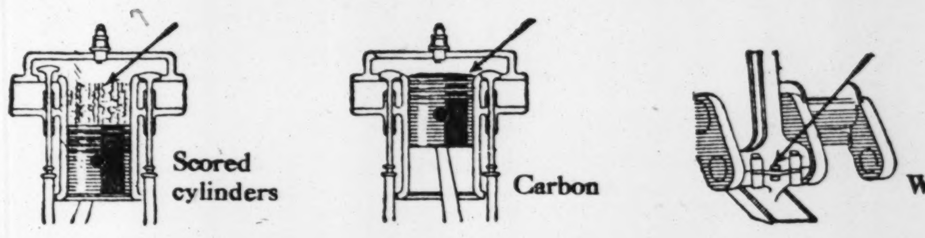
Don't let merely "good enough" oil steal your power and mileage ·· like this ··



"Good enough" oil slows up your car on the hills. ··· multiplies carbon deposits and wear — thus:



In short, "good enough" lubrication never is "good enough" for the man who wants real economy ·· because ··

"good enough" oils simply cannot give Mobiloil protection.

The Vacuum Oil Company specializes in lubrication. That is why 609 automobile and other automotive manufacturers approve the Mobiloil Chart. That is why 3 out of every 4 motorists who buy oil by name ask for Mobiloil.

And that is why it will pay you—before buying oil—to keep on driving until you see the Mobiloil sign. You won't have to drive far!

How to Buy

From Bulk 30¢—30¢ is the fair retail price for single quarts of genuine Mobiloil from barrel or pump.

For Touring Convenience—the sealed 1-quart can is ideal for touring or emergencies. Carry 2 or 3 under the seat of your car.

For Your Home Garage—see the new 5-gallon tipper box and the 10-gallon sealed steel drum with convenient faucet. Also in 15-, 30-, and 55-gallon steel drums.

This Happened in Chicago Last Week

A man said to a friend, "I know the Reo is a good car, but I don't like its looks. They're so old-fashioned."

He was thinking of the hundreds he had seen on the streets recently that looked like this 1921 model.

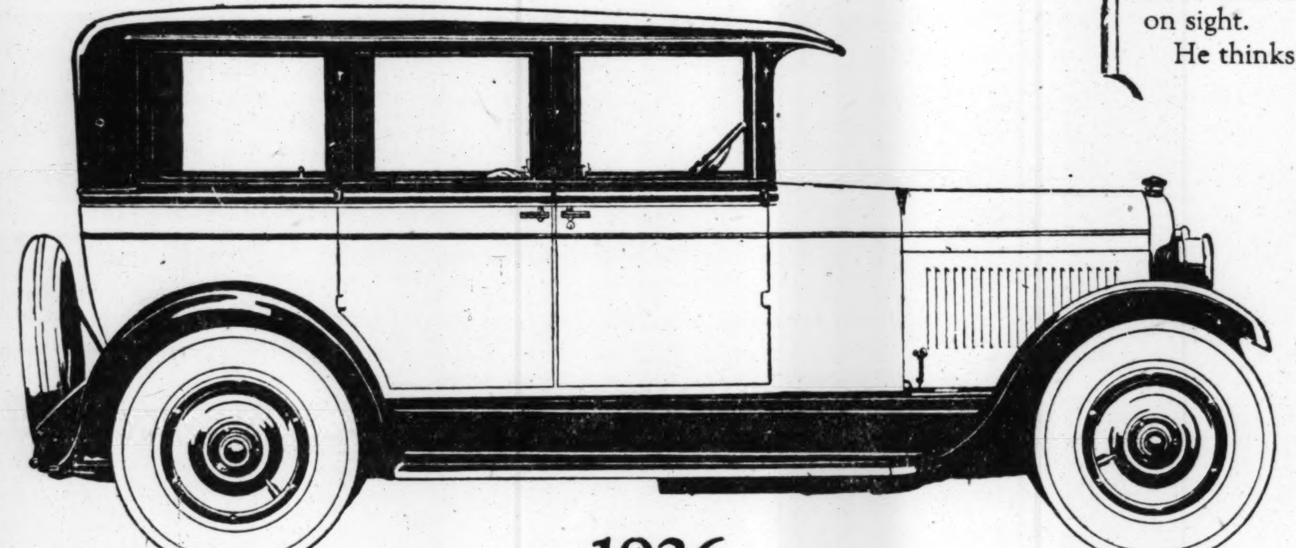
His friend had just bought a New Reo Sedan, so he asked, "Have you seen the New Reos?"

"No," was the reply.

When they finished lunch they went down to the Reo salesroom.

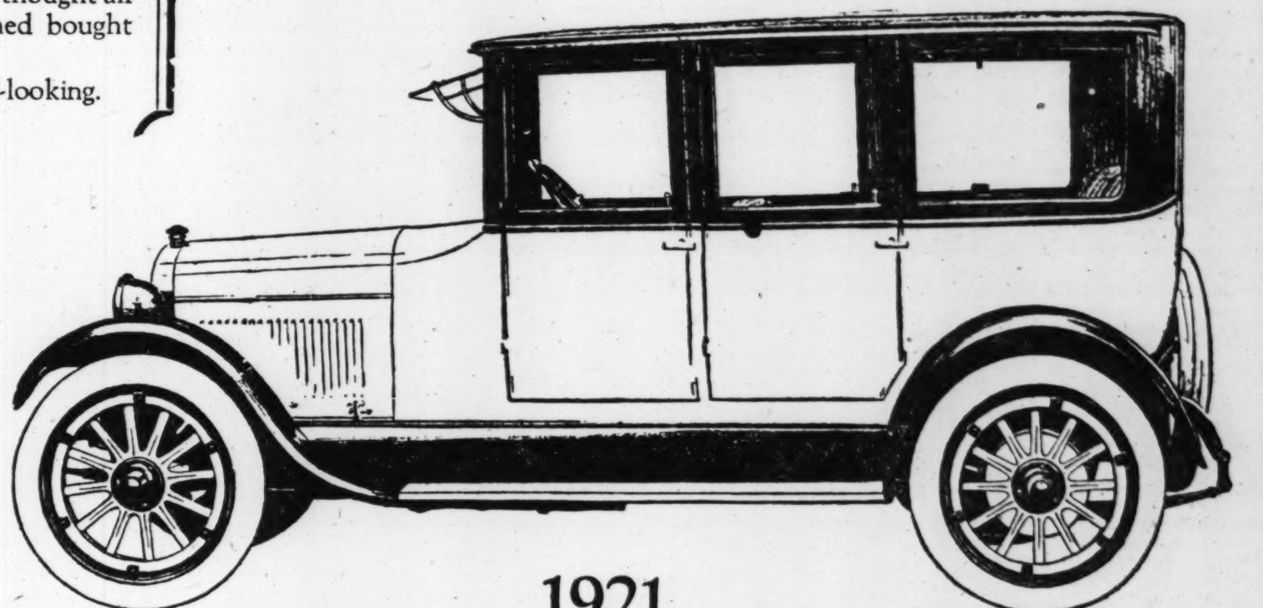
And they rode back in a Reo 1926 Sedan that the man who thought all Reos looked old-fashioned bought on sight.

He thinks it very good-looking.



1926

How America's Longest Lasting Car looks today—the New and Improved Reo Sedan of 1926



1921

Why judge the appearance of the New Reo opposite by the thousands of old Reos like this that are still running?

The Penalty of Being America's Longest Lasting Car

Everywhere, Reo pays a certain penalty for being so very well built.

It's the penalty of having so many old, old models still running that people judge present Reo appearance by that of the old cars.

It's unfair to any car to judge its 1926 lines by those of 1921. All cars have improved wonderfully in appearance in the last few years so that all old cars look old-fashioned when compared with newer models.

But no other car is judged by such old models as is Reo—because no other American car lasts as long as Reo.

Come In and See the New Reo

If you, like many others, have been judging the New Reos by the five, six, eight, and ten-year old veterans that are still giving faithful, economical service, you should see the New Reo.

The Reo of today is the same carefully built car as the Reo of yesterday.

But America's longest lasting car has changed its appearance. Come in and see it—and drive it.

A drive in the New Reo will show you that Balloon Tires can be handled easily and turned quickly—that you can have the comfort of riding on full balloons without the fatigue that comes from the straining and tugging necessary to guide them with ordinary steering wheels.

Split-Second Steering and Braking

You can turn them quickly when necessary—for only one and a half turns of the Reo Steering Wheel are needed to turn the front wheels from extreme right to extreme left position. Most cars require two and a half or three turns.

Split-Second Braking Plus Standard Control gives you all the familiar handling of the ordinary brake pedal and brake lever plus the added safety of the quicker acting Split-Second Braking system.

Come In and See This New Reo—the finest design of America's Longest Lasting car.

NOT ONE AMERICAN CAR LASTS AS LONG AS REO
Not One
REO

Reo does not claim to be the "best" car. But there must be some reason why the Reo, always a moderately priced car, outlasts even the finest creations of all other American manufacturers.

Surely Reo must be well built to make such a record.

Reo does not claim to be the fastest car built. But for emergencies there is the 62 to 65 mile speed that a Reo's honest speedometer will register when you let a Reo out.

More actual speed would mean that Reo's surging acceleration, unflagging pulling power on long and steep grades, huge reserve power at moderate speeds, would be hampered by changed gear ratios.

Reo does not claim to be more beautiful than all other cars. Automobile beauty to one person frequently means something different than it does to another.

But if you are judging Reo appearance by the eight to twelve-year old Reos still so common today, the very good looking New and Improved Reo will surprise you.

Reo does not claim to be the cheapest car to run that there is. But Reo's extraordinary long life means that depreciation, the largest single expense of automobile ownership, is cut to the minimum.

Come In and See the New Reo.

Iowa Paved Roads Legion Faces Its Zero Hour Drive

Election Expected to End in Big Pavement Program.

BY MALCOLM M'KINNON.

DUBUQUE, Ia., June 5.—[Special.] Believing that next Tuesday will witness the zero hour for a charge on behalf of the development of the whole state of Iowa, Maj. C. E. Douglas, city manager, leading veterans of the Rainbow division and other world war units, and followed by thousands of determined men and women of progressive stamp, has everything consolidated and in readiness for the battle of the ballots that is to determine whether this region is to remain in the dust and mud or is to proceed forthwith with pavement of its primary roads.

According to a communique issued by the major and his military associates, the outlook is good for success of the movement by reason of the recent state-wide veering of public sentiment to a position more favorable to paved highways; by reason of the intensive campaign carried on among the voters, and because of the probability that there will be a very heavy vote cast at the special election, which is also the time for the state, cogressional, and county primary balloting.

The Cummins-Brookhart contest, numerous spirited figts for county ticket nominations, added to the interest in getting improved highways, are expected to attract many to the polls. In addition to these favorable facts are that the registration, over twenty thousand in a population of about forty-five thousand in the city alone, is much larger than ever known at similar election in the past and that the electors in the city during the last two years have formed the habit of casting their ballots by reason of interest aroused by two school board elections in successive years when the so-called klan and anti-klan issue was to be determined. Of course, that issue has no place in the present contest over the paving of the highways, but it has served a purpose germane to the latter by getting five or six thousand additional voters on the poll books and teaching them where and how to operate the voting machines.

Iowa counties and the state as a whole are trying to extricate themselves from the predicament they got into seven years ago when the legislature, by a narrow majority, refused to indorse the Illinois state-wide paving plan sponsored by William G. Edens of Chicago, approved by Gov. Lowden and put in effect by the voters of that state in 1918 by a plurality of more than half a million. If the Hawkeye legislature had taken the opposite course, the primary roads of this state would all have been paved by this time and the resultant increase in general prosperity would have been proportionately as great as that which has taken place latterly in Illinois.

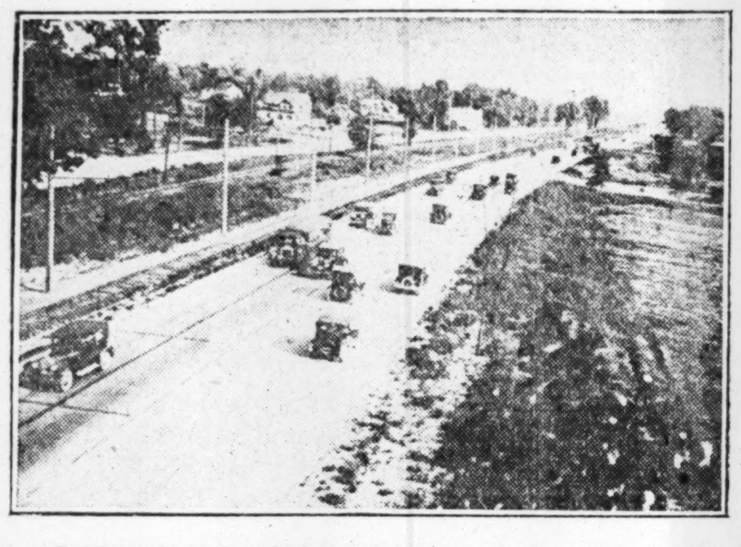
The citizens of Dubuque, according to Maj. Douglas and his aids, have a peculiar interest in the extension of paving at the present time, and the rest of the inhabitants of Dubuque county share this interest because whatever builds Dubuque will be of benefit to their communities and to themselves individually. Dubuque is the point of entrance to the surpassing scenery of the upper Mississippi region and is itself the scenic capital of the great valley.

The Grant highway, Illinois No. 5, will be completely paved from Chicago to the lower bridge sometime late this summer. All Wisconsin is connected with this city by the improved trunk lines of that state, which concentrate at the approach to the upper or Eagle Point bridge. In other words, Illinois and the Badger state have handed Dubuque an improved road system more than ten thousand miles in length. With half the world able to reach this city on all year roads Dubuquers are more than ever conscious that they ought to do their part for their own interest as well as from a spirit of service to the rest of the country.

Not only have Illinois and Wisconsin conferred gratuitous benefits on Dubuque but the joint board of interstate highways and the U. S. agricultural department have done this city a favor by routing more of the new United States highways through this point than through any other in Iowa. These are U. S. 20 an the Grant highway from Boston to Portland, Ore.; U. S. 61, from the Canadian line near Port Arthur, Ont., to New Orleans, coming from Prairie du Chien, Wis., here and going to Davenport by way of Maquoketa; U. S. 53, from Duluth-Superior, coming down the west side of the river through Guttenburg and terminating at Dubuque; U. S. 118, Madison to this city; U. S. 161, starting at Dubuque and going to Cedar Rapids on the Cascade road, thence through Iowa City to Keokuk.

Maj. Douglas' contention is that the speedy realization of Iowa's manifest destiny as a touring center, as well as the increased prosperity of the dairy and farming region hereabouts, is dependent on success of the paving program to be voted upon next Tuesday. Moreover, he is hopeful that his view is shared by enough of the electors of city and county to insure the victory of the paving proposition by a large majority.

MORE MOTOR ROOM



Breaking the back of highway congestion, now the vital issue about Chicago, has been actually accomplished in Michigan. Here is another view of the new 44 foot pavement which runs for thirty miles between Detroit and Pontiac, Mich., and affords four free lanes for heavy traffic. In the background is the roadway for the additional four lane pavement which will soon be completed. When it is finished, one way traffic will be established, with traction lines operating in the middle of the superhighway right of way.

News and Views of the Auto Trade

IN ADDITION to establishing a new record for efficient management under emergency on the part of speedway officials and race directors of the American Automobile association, the late lamented Indianapolis classic served to exploit full balloon tires on all ten cars that came into the money. All race cars with the exception of the foreign entries at Indianapolis were equipped with full sized, four-ply Firestone balloons. Lockhart's winning Miller came through the entire 402½ miles of the grind without a tire change.

All visitors who have registered estimates of the mileage that will be made by the Pontiac coach during its thirty days' nonstop exhibition run in the showroom of Community Motors, 2426 Michigan avenue, have been notified that the contest will end at 8 o'clock tonight. At that time judges will break the speedometer seal and announce the winner of the mileage contest.

Chevrolet fans have found a new feature in the Chevrolet chassis which, fitted with a "library" body accommodating hundreds of books, is entering its sixth year of service for the Evanston public library. This circulating library serves suburban residents during the months that school branches are closed.

Tom Hay & Son have added Pierce-Arrow sales and service to the firm's Chandler and Cleveland branch at 1338 Ridge avenue in Evanston, according to announcement by A. A. Crumley, general manager of the Pierce-Arrow Sales corporation. The branch will serve the north shore district.

A new two door sedan model has been added to complete the Willys-Knight "seventy" series, according to announcement made yesterday by G. V. Orr, president of the Overland Motor Company of Chicago.

E. H. McCarty, general sales manager of Nash Motors, announced yesterday that May sales for the company recorded a gain of 44.3 per cent over the same month a year ago.

Supercharger Is Seen as Future Car Equipment

STEADY progress has been made in the application of superchargers of various designs to racing cars and undoubtedly it will not be long until devices of this kind are adopted as standard equipment on passenger automobiles, according to C. W. Iseler, research engineer.

Advantages gained by the use of the supercharger are increase in power, mechanical efficiency, flexibility, fuel economy, and speed. Furthermore, it is possible to build the engine with a compression ratio that is lower than the highest possible ratio that can be used without detonation and yet obtain a surplus of power.

Owing to the increased quantity of mixture per charge, it is possible to open the exhaust valves later, thus utilizing more fully the amount of work available during the expansion stroke. In the supercharged engine, the mixture is forced into the cylinder irrespective of the rate of valve opening, hence the lift of the valve may be more gradual. Moreover, smaller valves that are lighter and less likely to overheat than the larger ones can be used. As a consequence, the total weight of the valve mechanism can be reduced and lighter valve springs used, thereby decreasing the wear of the parts as well as the noise of operation.

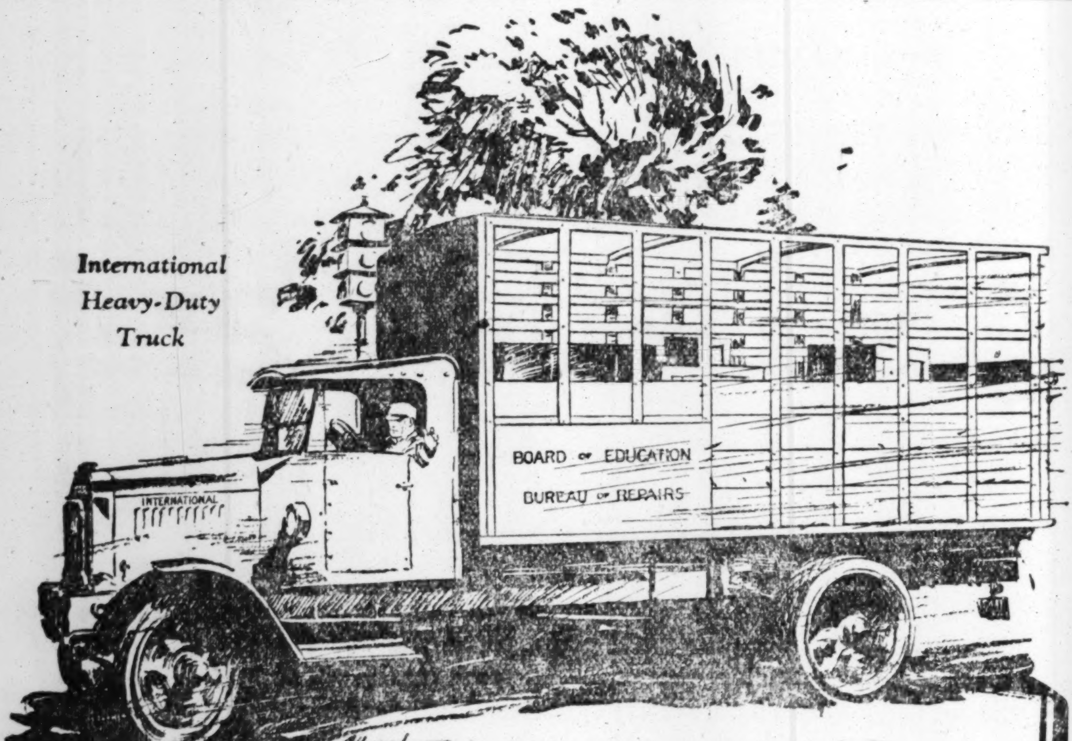
An engine of smaller piston displacement can be used, as the supercharger is the means of providing the excess power needed for accleration and hill-climbing. The most important of the many advantages derived from the use of a smaller engine is the reduced fuel consumption. Since the power that can be developed by the average modern automobile engine is greatly in excess of the power required to drive the car along the level road at constant speed, it is necessary to throttle the engine or run under part load. The most economical rates of fuel consumption are obtained under full and three-quarter load conditions, and the consumption increases rapidly as the load decreases.

FRIEND OF THE MOTORIST

A SCORE of complaints charging discourtesy, false arrest, attempted extortion and other abuses of vehicle law enforcement on the highways and streets of the Chicago district have been received by the Friend of the Motorist department since its organization a week ago.

These complaints are being investigated and will all be used in the campaign to wipe out graft, injustice and traffic plague spots on the roads about Chicago. When sufficient evidence is gathered against any one village, city district or arresting officer, it will be turned over to the proper authorities for immediate action.

Readers are again requested to report instances of injustice, brutality or extortion by letter to "Friend of the Motorist," Tribune Tower, Chicago, including all details of the instance and witnesses where possible in the report.



International Heavy-Duty Truck

A Great Truck for Work and great to work with

"STEER-EASY" STEERING GEAR

The Steer-Easy steering gear is a complete departure from present day truck steering design.

Rear Auxiliary Springs are inoperative under light loads and come into action when needed.

You can't blame your driver for wanting a truck with improvements up to the minute and with trouble reduced to the minimum.

Just because it's a truck for hard jobs doesn't mean it should make the job hard for the driver.

You'll find that your driver appreciates the Steer-Easy steering gear of the International. It enables him to sit as comfortably as in a passenger car and handle his truck as easily, and does it all without losing an inch of loading space. He likes the cab that's not a box—that doesn't roast him in summer or freeze him in winter. He likes the auxiliary springs that make the International ride easy, and the accessibility of the power plant that makes his minor adjustments and oiling an easy job.

The driver will tell you the International is a great truck for work and a great truck to work with. It is—come in and see for yourself.

The International line includes the new Special Delivery; a Speed Truck for 1-ton and 1½-ton loads; Heavy-Duty Trucks ranging from 1½ tons to 5 tons maximum capacities; and Motor Coaches for all requirements.

Marmon Progressive Illuminated Chassis Exhibit

VIEWED by THOUSANDS

During the past few days thousands have learned how a truly fine motor car is built.

In the Marmon Progressive Illuminated Chassis Exhibit they have discovered how many fundamental and costly features are found today only in Marmon and the world's highest priced European cars

The display is a graphic affair, studded with changing lights of various colors to permit an easy visualization of certain of Marmon's features. For example:

The New Marmon Engine, with double-fire ignition, which is the most highly developed motor of its size in the world.

The Marmon patented, shock-resisting type of frame—an exclusive design which helps make Marmon "the safest car in the world" and provides a rigid, unyielding foundation for Marmon coach work.

Marmon's exclusive system of compensating rear springs which cost far more than the ordinary type—but which are largely responsible for Marmon's unchallenged reputation as "the world's greatest road car."

Marmon's Safety Steering Gear, which is thirty times stronger than engineers consider to be actually necessary.

Marmon's noiseless, permanently adjusted rear axle, made in the Marmon plant, which is the strongest for its weight in the world.

To make such a car is an honor in itself, but to sell it at a list price less than $3500 is undoubtedly the greatest of Marmon accomplishments.

Under its new program, Marmon brought to the automobile industry a system of manufacture which completely eliminates handling equipment, drastically reduces pay roll and insures a turnover of materials previously unheard of in the fine car field.

The Marmon factory is perhaps the greatest stronghold of craftsmanship in America today—and at the same time one of the most advanced—the most efficient.

So that there can be no doubt in any one's mind as to Marmon's distinctive and unusual features of construction, we have arranged this graphic display. It will prove a most interesting and worthwhile fifteen minutes of your time.

[Actually the list price is only $3395 and upward, the base price applying to genuine four-door closed cars (not "coaches"). Prices f. o. b. Indianapolis, plus tax and such equipment as customer may elect. Cars sold, if desired, on convenient Credit Plan. Twelve distinct models to choose from.]

Old Gen. Demand Conquers Slump in Auto Industry

Big Plants Roar Ahead While Pay Rolls Climb.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., June 5.—[Special.]—The peak of the selling season which manufacturers of automobiles and trucks and also dealers have been looking forward to is now being realized. Weather conditions contributed toward making the buying season somewhat late in arriving, but with this satisfactorily adjusted the industry is doing everything in its power to take advantage of the possibilities that were held out for this spring's business.

The new demand has resulted in stepping up production in several of the plants and clearing the floors of what cars were in stock, an insignificant number, however, due to the manufacturers' policy of keeping production on an even keel with the demand. But the demand is, perhaps, a bit in excess of what manufacturers anticipated it would be when their schedules were revised a few months ago. On the whole, automobile builders guessed pretty close to the number of cars necessary to satisfy the spring demand. Shipments are going ahead rapidly and orders are now being filled with but little, if indeed any, delay. Loading docks along the river are busy places where continuous streams of vehicles of all makes and prices are being placed aboard the several lake freighters used exclusively for the shipping of automobiles and trucks.

After showing a decrease in the number of workmen in the various automobile plants and accessories factories for ten consecutive weeks, conditions were reversed this week, and an increase of 1,123 was reported. The number employed totaled 245,440, this number being an increase of 6,913 over the corresponding week of 1925.

To the unenlightened the recent steady decrease in labor throughout the automobile industry left the impression that the industry was headed for a severe slump. This, however, is not true, for when the employment figures were hovering around the 271,000 mark conditions were abnormal. The gradual decrease was nothing more or less than a return to normal.

In spite of considerable pessimistic talk that can be heard in certain misinformed circles about the outlook for the industry, it continues along the road of progress, making new high records of production and consumption. This is borne out by the following official figures comparing the record breaking period of 1926—the first four months—and the corresponding period of 1925:

January	284,153	213,851
February	335,639	253,955
March	399,376	334,214
April	402,574	393,262
Totals	1,421,742	1,195,282

An increase for the first four months of 1926 of 226,460, breaks all outstanding records for any similar period. In fact, all indications point to a continued strong market, and one of the best first half years the industry has ever experienced. With the beginning of the second half slackening of sales is confidently expected—but there is nothing in sight that in the least resembles a slump.

Among the companies which report no immediate decrease in output are: Chrysler, Dodge, Nash, Hudson, Ford, Chevrolet, Studebaker, and Reo. Ford maintained a daily average of 6,950 cars throughout the month of May. This concern is experiencing a somewhat delayed spring demand for its product, but May output exceeds that of the preceding month by approximately 10,000 units.

Manufacturers announce an unexpected demand for cars of the sport models, caused apparently by warm weather. This type of summer vehicle has a vast number of devotees who like its snappy appearance. Calls for "sports" have been increased to such an extent within the past two weeks, that immediate deliveries cannot be made by several of the leading builders, and the "waiting list" is growing daily.

Citizen Cops.

To suppress reckless and drunken motorists, the citizens' safety committee of the chamber of commerce in Philadelphia, Pa., has 275,000 persons watching for "hit-and-run" drivers. They report all license numbers of automobiles involved in accidents they may witness.

New Motor Cops.

Owing to the greatly increasing auto accidents on the Danish roads, a new system of road patrols, molded on the American system, is being instituted.

CHURCH CARS.

The Congregational church in Batavia, Ill., gives free automobile service for its members. The service is designed particularly for the shut-in or crippled, and those who live too far to walk and have no other means of conveyance.

Today's Chrysler "70"—changed in no way except new lower prices which save you $50 to $200—is more than ever the car of public preference.

Long lived; characteristic Chrysler beauty; compact to meet today's traffic needs; roomy for comfort and luxury; easiest to handle on any road; flashing pick-up; 70 miles an hour plus; safe—little wonder that none of its more than hundred thousand of owners who have driven their cars thousands upon thousands of miles, will ever willingly go back to the less modern type of cars.

And now with its savings of $50 to $200, Chrysler "70"—the identical car in every single respect that has won such universal enthusiastic admiration—is beyond all doubt the best motor car investment in its class.

We are eager to demonstrate its outstanding superiorities.

40% Bigger Output to Meet Heavy Demand for Franklin Sedan $2790

New Price F.O.B. Factory

Nothing shows the stored-up favor for the Franklin better than the rush of sales which greeted the new prices, forcing this great jump in production. Approximately two-thirds of the demand centers on the Sedan.

Ride in the Franklin, and you will discover that it is always more comfortable. Drive it, and you will find that it is always safer and less tiring to handle. Take care of it, and you will learn that it makes less work. Own it, and you will appreciate its complete freedom from cooling troubles.

What this means in sustained speed over the road is shown by its long list of road records. What it means in economy is proved by owners' cost-sheets. And what it means in endurance is clear from this: 75% of all Franklins built in 25 years are still in use.

The Franklin standard of style and quality is as high as that of its performance. There is no phase of ownership in which it does not give supreme satisfaction. Let us send a trial car to your door.

All Franklin prices include full equipment, even to spare tire, tube, cover and lock. Only tax and transportation are extra. Your old car can be applied in trade, and budget payment plan arranged.

fractions of a second may mean the fatal crash!

Fatal to those more precious than your life

There rides with you each evening the most precious cargo in the world—your wife, your children—protect their safety with a Fyrac Night Guide!

When danger from collision or ditch threaten, its bright shaft of light comes to the rescue instantly—shows you how far you may go to avoid collision—how close in you must keep to avoid the ditch.

Your right hand is quicker than the left, and Fyrac is a right hand light. Easy to direct as to point your finger. Point it in any direction and it "stays put", secure from road shocks.

How to Keep Cars Running Feature of Coming Shows

Public and Dealers Will Benefit by Exhibit Change.

MODERN methods of servicing motor cars and trucks will be made a leading feature of the National Automobile shows of 1927. The shows at New York and Chicago will contain a segregated operating and demonstrating service equipment section, according to an announcement made by S. A. Miles, show manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, which conducts the expositions. The service equipment section will be so conducted as to arrangement and hours of admission that it will appeal both to the trade and the public, with the object of promoting the use of modern machinery and tools and scientific methods in automotive service work.

Miles' decision was made on the recommendation of a group of service equipment manufacturers who conferred with him at Boston during the recent automobile show. The service committee of the N. A. C. C., which sponsored the two Detroit shows, was represented by W. M. Warner, service manager of Cadillac, and H. R. Cobleigh, service secretary of the N. A. C. C. The Motor and Accessory Manufacturers' association was represented by Neal G. Adair.

The conference unanimously recommended that the Detroit show be omitted and effort concentrated on the development of service equipment sections in the New York show, which will open Jan. 8, and the Chicago showing, opening Jan. 29. It was the concensus of opinion that shop equipment could be brought to the attention of motor vehicle factory service and sales executives at the New York and Chicago shows and that, in addition, equipment could be demonstrated before large attendances of men in the dealer and service trade who were unable the past two years to attend the special Detroit shows. Aggregate trade attendances at the New York and Chicago shows have been approximately 25,000 a year, and the conference felt that, with a demonstrating service equipment section as an added attraction and wide promotion of this feature, larger trade patronage could be obtained.

The service equipment manufacturers also favored utilizing the national shows to bring the subject of improved service with adequate equipment to the attention of the motoring public, believing that this would contribute to the general satisfaction in motor car and truck use and promote sales of cars, trucks, and other automotive products, as well as service equipment itself.

Good Polish.

A good glass and metal polish is made from 1 part of olive oil, 1 of spirits of ammoniac, 2 of lime, and 1 of water, mixed to make a thick paste. Glycerin makes glass waterproof, and, if added to the above, will polish the surface and protect it by a somewhat permanent film.

Retard Spark.

Broken starter pinion or twisted starter springs are frequently the price the motorist must pay for starting with the spark advanced.

HITTIN' THE TRAIL

THOUSANDS of the new 1926 vintage TRIBUNE road maps have been distributed during the week to the advance divisions of automobile tourists who are heading for the open road and summer vacations on the long trails.

The Chicago and vicinity guide, which shows in detail all roads, golf clubs and points of interest in the great Chicago vacation area, are the most popular of the new series. These maps are sold at cost, 15 cents, by THE TRIBUNE Public Service office, 11 South Dearborn. They can be had by mailing a request and inclosing the price plus return postage, or by a personal call at the office. A new official paved road atlas of the United States, at 25 cents, 30 cents by mail, is an added feature of the service series.

ECONOMY

Champion X, because they cost you less and give better service, contribute greatly to the economical running of Ford cars. For this reason Champion has been standard Ford equipment for 15 years.

HERE'S a new picture of holiday highways open to the Chicago driver who has nerve and patience enough to jam his way through the congestion that packs all gateway roads within a five mile radius of the city in order to enjoy an open country spin.

The best news in the map is the new heavy black line that runs north from Joliet on the west side of the river and comes north to join Ogden avenue into Chicago. This represents the new pavement on Illinois highway 4, which is now complete to a point just below Downers Grove and will soon be opened from that point into Lyons. Gravel roads can now carry the traffic north from the end of the pavement into Downers Grove to connect with Ogden. Another feature is the new forest preserve opened by Du Page county near Warrensville. Either Ogden avenue or the Butterfield road may be used in reaching this picturesque spot. Numerous short cut gravel roads are shown on the map for the benefit of drivers who want to escape the congestion of main pavements near Chicago.

Rates in Europe.

Tourists in London can hire many fine automobiles at the average cost of $20 to $35 a day, allowing a 50 to 150 mile trip, and about $12 to $20 in Paris, with a daily allowance of 50 to 100 kilometers.

National Toll.

Automobiles killed fifty-five persons daily during the month of April, estimates C. E. Robb, statistician, National Safety council, in making public the accident figures received from more than 100 American cities.

To Beautify Roads.

A landscape architect has been added to the highway department of Connecticut for the purpose of preserving the beauty of the roadsides and planting shade trees bordering the trunk line roads.

Smartly Finished
Fully Equipped

Dodge Brothers Special Coupe is referred to as SPECIAL because it includes every item of special equipment that could possibly accentuate the car's beauty and comfort:

Balloon tires; nickeled bumpers, front and rear; nickel-trimmed radiator shell; rear view mirror; automatic windshield wiper; scuff plates; cowl lights and natural wood wheels—disc wheels optional.

Hood and body smartly finished in tartan green lacquer, with cartouche yellow stripe; upper body in black lacquer, with glossy oven-baked enamel fenders and shields.

Genuine hand-buffed Spanish leather—grayish green; and wide-vision all steel safety pillars included among many other attractive features.

North Shore Town Heads First Speed Trap Report List

Forest Park and Other Towns Are Hit in Charges.

WINNETKA headed the speed trap list last week in the new general campaign launched to stamp out abuses that have grown up about vehicle law enforcement in the Chicago traffic district.

Backing up a number of complaints charging Officer E. Schubert, motorcycle patrolman of the Winnetka police department, with side street detective methods and unwarranted zeal in issuing court summonses for drivers in Sheridan road, two motorists made out affidavits to back up their charges in police court yesterday.

The affidavits, signed by Mr. and Mrs. Leo P. Coe, 3673 Michigan avenue, charge the arresting officer with "unwarranted and pernicious interference with law abiding people" as the result of one wholesale "pinch" which took place Monday morning in Sheridan road near Ash street. They declare that from 8:30 a. m. until 9 a. m. their sedan, headed north in Sheridan for Rondout, traveled behind an Illinois touring car which was rolling north at a steady and unvarying pace of 24 miles an hour.

"About 9 a. m.," says the Coe affidavit, "I saw in my rear view mirror a motorcycle policeman ride at a rate of about 45 miles an hour from behind a car some 300 feet back of me and, without diminishing speed, dash past us and stop the touring car we were following. I am positive that neither my car nor the touring car had ascended the Winnetka hill at a higher rate of speed than 25 miles an hour, and I am positive that the motorcycle policeman did not follow us at a rate of less than 45 miles an hour. The policeman gave the driver of the touring car a summons to court for speeding and then gave one to us, charging us with driving 33 miles an hour."

Affidavits from other witnesses were also produced to substantiate charges of the drivers involved.

Among other complaints filed for future action were several charging wholesale arrests on Roosevelt road in Forest Park, unwarranted arrests for speeding during the Memorial day holidays on the congested stretches of Marengo avenue and Madison street in Forest Park, and protests against the night activities of officers in Highwood, Ill., and Mount Greenwood, Il..

The campaign for just enforcement of the motor laws is not aimed toward persecution of police officers whose duty is to regulate traffic and maintain public safety on the streets and highways. It is recognized that many unfounded complaints will appear in the campaign, and these, following investigation, will be shelved. Receipt of a number of complaints against a single officer or district, however, will bring immediate and official action to wipe out the "plague spot."

Save Flowers.

A bill has been introduced in the New York state legislature to protect the countryside from the depredations of automobile tourists. The measure would make it a felony to remove flowers, plants, shrubs, or any article of farm produce from another's property.

Cars in Dixie.

The Dixie trade along with the export market, is one of the most promising fields of new business for the motor industry, according to manufacturers. In Kentucky, for instance, there are 3,876 miles of bus routes much of these serving communities which had no rapid transport service before.

The Question.

What are some of the benefits given Illinois by its paved highway system?

Where Asked.

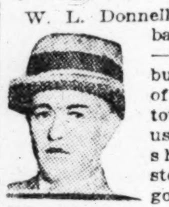
Michigan and Chicago avenues.

The Answers.

Miss Anna Gibbons, 1517 McHenry street, stenographer.—Friends miles away are near as the result of our Illinois paved roads. The people in small towns and on farms are able to enjoy the best the city has to offer and city people can enjoy the best the country has to offer. The roads have helped education in the state by getting all of the children to school easily.

Edward Libby, 720 Barry avenue, clerk.—Our paved roads have brought thousands of tourists into the state to spend their money and to settle here, and they have made it easy for farmers to get their products to market when the market it at its highest point. They have given us motor bus service to every part of the state and have been the biggest state improvement ever made for all of the people.

Henry Stray, 315 South Winchester avenue, operator.—The paved roads have helped city people learn what the country looks like, but they should be wider near Chicago to allow for more than two lines of cars on holidays. The good done by pavements about Chicago is spoiled by congestion now.



W. L. Donnellson, 3411 North Albany avenue, salesman—The paved roads help business in every part of the state. In little towns where business used to be done in shacks and frame stores, you now find good looking business districts, clean towns and up to date show windows. Roads make business for everybody and help city and farm people alike.

Frank Retmann, 3740 West Division street, mechanic. —Smaller towns benefit by the tourists and city drivers that are brought to and through them by paved roads and city folks are benefitted by the quick deliveries the roads allow farmers to make. They aid the automobile industry by making people want to buy cars. They are worth far more than the state paid for them.

New Race Boss.

Val Haresnape, nationally known racing expert, has been appointed manager of the contest board of the American Automobile association, which regulates and supervises all track and speedway sanctioned automobile racing events in the United States.

The announcement of Haresnape's appointment was made by Ernest N. Smith, general manager of the association of which the contest board is a division.

DANGEROUS PARIS.

One of the most interesting sets of figures produced dealing with the number of fatal automobile accidents in Paris in 1924 shows that 1,594 deaths were traceable to this cause, of which number 484 were chauffeurs and passengers, and 1,110 pedestrians.

Summer Campaign Launched to Save Lives of Children

COMMUNITY safety councils in 65 American cities are going to impress upon parents the importance of teaching their children how to play safely during the present summer, C. B. Scott, president of the National Safety council, announced yesterday.

Efforts will be made to reduce the number of child accidents which during 1925 resulted in the deaths of 21,000 boys and girls. More than 7,000 youngsters were killed on the streets and highways and at least thirty times as many injured, stated President Scott. Child deaths from burns last year totaled nearly 5,000. The remainder were the result of falls, poison, asphyxiation, suffocation, and miscellaneous causes.

"The chief cause of all accidents is carelessless or thoughtlessness," he declared. "A great many, probably a majority of child accidents, are due wholly or in part to the thoughtlessness or ignorance of the child. To stop these accidents we must not only have law enactment and enforcement and more careful driving on the part of motorists but we must also instruct the children—not simply tell them to 'be careful' but make them understand the hazards of modern life and how to avoid them. An educational campaign of this kind will be conducted by our 65 affiliated community safety councils whose officers will stage special meetings for both parents and teachers, deliver appropriate radio talks, and circulate timely literature.

"During the present school term millions of children have been receiving safety instruction in both parochial and public schools. We are going to continue this kind of work during the summer months when we aim to have safety talks delivered at parks and playgrounds, public swimming places, motion pictures, theaters, etc., where children assemble during vacation days. Constructive work of this character should result in a decrease in the number of child accidents."

REPAIRS EASIER.

Before attempting to do any motor repair work, such as removing the cylinder head or dropping the crankcase, it is a good plan to get the engine thoroughly warmed up first. All the nuts, bolts and screws turn with less effort when warm.

Wider Roads Give Michigan Chance to Raise Speed Limits

MICHIGAN will probably be the first state in the Union, and the first commonwealth in the world, to set a "reasonable road regulation" in the matter of speed for automobiles.

With highways throughout the state ranging in width from 204 feet down to 18, it is considered safe and "reasonable" to drive at a maximum speed of 50 miles an hour. A 60 mile gait within a few years is not improbable, and that the motorist will be within the law in driving his car at such a rate of speed. Danger is not in speed, but in careless driving.

PIONEERING

for your greater motoring satisfaction

Always alert to the needs and desires of the motoring public, Oakland has pioneered feature after feature that has since been adopted by the industry generally as essential to maximum motoring satisfaction.

Oakland was first to offer Duco finish, now universally recognized as the one durable and completely satisfying finish for automobiles.

Oakland introduced the Harmonic Balancer, one of the outstanding betterments of recent years, acknowledged to render the Oakland Six engine unmatched in freedom from vibration at all speeds.

Oakland was also first in its field with Four-Wheel Brakes—air cleaner—oil filter—patented interchangeable bronze-backed bearings—honed cylinders—automatic spark control—light dimmer on steering wheel—and many other major improvements.

Do you wonder that so many motorists everywhere regard Oakland as a pioneer leader in motor car manufacture? Do you wonder that they are turning to the new Oakland Six as the outstanding value in its price-field?

Steelcote

RUBBER AUTO ENAMEL

To Give Your Car a Beautiful Finish

Milking a Rubber Tree

The pure para rubber used in Steelcote makes it elastic.

Steelcote is made especially for the man who wants to paint his own car. It is easy to apply, flows on smoothly, and is self-levelling, leaving no brush marks or streaks. One coat does the work and no finishing varnish is necessary. Steelcote dries overnight.

Contains Real Rubber

The rubber that is blended into Steelcote produces a finish that is as permanent and durable as a baked enamel job. Sun and wind, ice and snow, even road oil and acid, do not affect its lustre. It is elastic and withstands the constant jolts, jars and vibrations that cause ordinary brittle paints to crack and chip. One quart covers a small or medium size car. Comes in sixteen attractive colors. Sold by

CHAIN STORES SERVE TO SPUR LOCAL DEALERS

BY HARPER LEECH.

How competition begets efficiency never was better illustrated than in the effect of the chain stores on their rivals. The idea that the big grocery chains necessarily must drive their competitors to the wall overlooks the fact that the growth of the chains produces an intensified competition, which results in the emergence of independent operators of far greater average efficiency than formerly—and with that some of the differentials favorable to the chain disappear. As a result there is a renewed quest for economies by both, and so on.

This writer has long suspected that such a result would follow. Some years' experience in the chain newspaper game demonstrated that the most important effect in several cities, which followed the invasion of the local field by a chain paper, was an improvement of the locally owned publication. There are instances where a moribund newspapers, suddenly pepped up by an invading rival, made a millionaire out of its publisher.

Statistics long have been available which show that the average life of a retail grocery concern is actually less than that of a farmer's coöperative, despite the fact that retail merchandising is an old established thing and coöperative selling is necessarily highly experimental, even today.

On the other hand, the literature of modern merchandising contains nothing more interesting than the propaganda for economy and efficiency which is being distributed among retail grocers by various agencies which have their own interests to serve in promoting the prosperity of the independent merchants. A few more years of this sort of thing and retailing will begin to approximate the exactitude and efficiency of manufacturing. They are reducing the various kinds of selling and delivery to comparative tables worked out in fractions of a cent and in seconds of time.

Some idea of the increasing cost of services the public demands with sales may be had from the various studies of retailing costs and margins. There is a great variety of such figures nowadays—some being based on income tax returns—others of greater value are based on studies of groups of stores by trade associations or by the business research departments of the universities.

One calculation is to the effect that in ten years the merchant has come to pay 13 per cent more of the dollar he receives from the consumer for goods, and in the same period his costs of operation have taken 18 per cent more of the consumers' dollar.

All the figures disclose that the retailer today is under greater pressure than ever to achieve efficiency and economy by getting more rapid turnover and a greater volume of sales in proportion to fixed charges.

On the other hand mere reduction of services rendered is not always the route to success. Few businesses are so fortunate as the automobile industry where increasing standardization of processes gives a product or a service which seems to meet with nearly universal public approval. In many fields there is a demand for variety which works against standardization. Retailing long will continue to be a field in which special abilities will reap rewards.

PRODUCE MARKETS

A weak market for strawberries was on Saturday, with 28 cars in from Illinois, Tennessee, Arkansas, Kentucky, and Missouri. The demand was fairly good and sales of 24 quart cases were at $2@2.75.

A good business in butter, eggs, and poultry was on during Saturday, with no change in prices.

Potato supplies were ample, with arrivals 45 cars each of new and old, with 124 cars old and 64 cars new on track. The market was easy, with trade not heavy.

On the Mercantile exchange trading in butter was at fractionally lower prices for futures and eggs at a small advance. Sales were 9 cars butter for spot and 26 cars futures, and of egg futures there were 24 cars storage packed and 76 cars refrigerator. Prices follow:

COTTON MARKETS

The cotton markets were easy and closed at nearly the lowest of the day, with losses of 3 to 11 points in Chicago, 1 to 11 points in other markets, with New York leading the decline. Liverpool closed 8 to 10 points lower.

Breaking of the drought in the Carolinas and Georgia was a feature which induced selling, while in Texas heavy rains were undesirable, but with light business there was little disposition to take hold.

Spot cotton was off 10 points in Liverpool and the trade reports were not of the kind to encourage speculative buying. Prices in leading markets follow:

Avoid Get-Rich-Quick Schemes.

If you are investing for future independence, avoid all get-rich-quick schemes.

Fortunes are not made that way.

For every investor who makes large profits in such schemes a thousand lose their savings.

The very people who can least afford to gamble are usually the ones who put all their savings into wildcat promotions.

They are persuaded by the lure of sure and sudden riches to finance various inventions, oil, mining, industrial or other enterprises with nothing to go on but the extravagant promises of high pressure salesmen.

The odds are at least a hundred to one against the investor in most of these "sure thing investments."

The "sure thing" is that the promoter gets the money and the investor holds the bag.

The more moderate the means of the investor the greater the need of caution.

It is a pretty good rule to mistrust the high pressure salesman on general principles. If his proposition is meritorious and sound he will not have to carry you off your feet to get you to sign up at once.

If it were all that he represents it to be he would be willing and glad to have you investigate it and confirm his statements.

If he is reluctant to have you do this, our advice is to have nothing whatever to do with him or his proposition.

The inexperienced investor is in no position to judge of the real merits of any promotional enterprise. He should not, therefore, attempt to finance it.

If you are so interested in what is made to appear to you to be a sure thing and you are afraid you will be losing the opportunity of a lifetime, if you do not go into it, at least consult your banker or some authoritative impartial source of advice before you act.

Those familiar with real financing and financial affairs in general are quick to detect flaws and defects which never would appear to the amateur investor.

Financial independence is built up by systematic saving and careful investing over a period of time. It does not come by chance investment or spring up over night.

It takes care and patience to build up a fortune. Haphazard investment rarely brings gain and, if it does, the money is usually lost again through similar transactions.

To be safe, avoid all get-rich-quick schemes, consult impartial authorities before investing in anything and be content with a reasonable return on safely invested money rather than promise of large gain on unproven or risky enterprises.

CHICAGO BANK SHARE OWNERS KEEP HOLDINGS

Despite the sharp advance in Chicago bank stocks in the last year, large holders did not sell any considerable part of their holdings, as shown by annual lists published yesterday in accord with the state tax law.

The investment of the N. W. Harris estate in the Harris Trust and Savings bank continues to be the most valuable single holding. The 10,224 shares have a market value of around $4,600,000, compared with a holding of 11,127 shares, valued at $4,288,000, a year ago. The Marshall Field estate ranks second, its same holdings of Illinois Merchants Trust, First National, and Northern Trust shares being worth $4,225,000, compared with $3,457,000 a year ago.

Some Changes in Holdings.

While the Harris estate decreased its holdings somewhat, the investment of Albert W. Harris increased from 5,576 to 7,388 shares, which constitute the third largest holding, with a value of $3,588,000. Similarly, while the personal holdings of Vice President Charles G. Dawes of Central Trust company of Illinois stock have been reduced from 3,141 shares to 1,551, the stock held by Dawes Bros., Inc., in that institution increased from 6,563 shares to 8,153. F. O. Wetmore slightly increased his holdings of First National.

Perhaps the most conspicuous change in large holdings was John A. Spoor's sale of most of his collection of bank shares. He now holds only 116 shares, compared with 4,724 shares a year ago.

Holds Above $2,000,000.

Other owners with holdings valued at $2,000,000 or more are: James A. Patten, whose bank stocks exceed $3,300,000; Prince McKinney, Eames and Franklin MacVeagh, Miami corporation, Dawes Bros., Inc., Mrs. E. S. McElwee, Oscar G. Foreman, Gerber corporation, Byron L. Smith estate, Gerhardt Foreman, E. G. Foreman Jr., and Harold E. Foreman.

Other large holders are: Madeline Foreman, A. K. Foreman, Guy H. Mitchell, F. H. Rawson, George M. Reynolds, John J. Mitchell, Mrs. Jessie S. Landon, Mrs. Hortense L. Acton, Edward F. Swift, DeSoto Securities corporation, Mrs. M. M. Sheriff, E. T. Jeffery, D. Clark Cummings, John G. Shedd and Edward Morris estate. The value of these holdings in each case is figured between $1,000,000 and $1,939,000.

Other Large Stockholders.

NEWS OF THE CROPS

B. W. Snow car window observations from Kansas City to Florence, Kas., found no sign of dry weather in going 200 miles. From Florence to Wichita, fifty miles, rains for the season went in strips and where they missed the crop is beginning to fire. No general harvest for three weeks and must have good rains at once as color shows even the best wheat is at limit of endurance. With much rain the crop will be a big one, but without it prospective yields will shrink rapidly. Lack of subsoil moisture and deficient streaked surface moisture since April 1 is the whole trouble. Hot weather in advance of general rain would be disastrous.

Le Count's report from Sioux Falls, S. D., said, "Wheat and oats coming along nicely where moisture is plentiful, but large areas will only have a light crop at best as stand is very thin. Thousands of acres have not half a stand. Cultivation of corn is general and plant looking good."

Kinyon's report from Salina, Kas., said: "Hastings to Concordia, wheat short; large per cent light stand. Harvesting waste great and many fields are not worth cutting. Improved from Concordia and through the valleys averages good. Wheat in soft dough. Recent rains with favorable weather will mature crop. Upland fields short and light; large per cent good. The poorest field promise with normal weather 6 to 7 bu per acre; balance, 14 to 20 bu. Oats poor the entire distance. Concordia north, some corn not up, but the bulk has a good stand, 6 to 8 inches high."

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Increased activity with advancing prices, in which the majority of issues participated, characterized trading in the local unlisted securities market last week.

By-Products Coke common was the leader in point of activity, the old stock improving 9 points to high sales at 110; while the new no par value, which was issued in the ratio of two shares for one, closed at 55. Creamery Package full voting stock continued strong and moved up a full point to closing sales at 33¾. The non-voting stock moved up accordingly, with sales at 33. Both Celotex common and preferred were traded in at an advance of 2 points, the former at 116 and the latter between 89 and 90. Midwest Box 8 per cent preferred was in demand at 90 without attracting sellers. The common was also wanted at 35. General Box units, consisting of one share of preferred and one share of either class A or B common, were wanted at 45c. Several transactions were reported in Fansteel Products around 125. Hall Printing common was active throughout the week, with numerous transactions between 27 and 29, up 2 points. At the close stock was offered at 28¼, with bids of 27½. Fouids units reflected a 3 point improvement in closing at 82 bid, 85 asked. National Theaters was easier, stock being in supply at 7¾, with best bids at 7¼, ex dividend 30 cents. Considerable inquiry developed for McCord Manufacturing common in the late trading, stock being wanted at 8¼, with limited offerings at 9. The debenture and preferred stocks were quiet, the former being quoted 14½ bid, 16 asked, and the latter 70 to 75. Palmolive common again changed hands between 113¼ and 114, and the preferred at 106. A few transactions were made in Van Ess Laboratories stock between 11½ and 12, showing practically no change over previous sales. H. Channon first and second preferred were in better demand, at 85 and 87 respectively. After selling at 168 in the early trading, Northwestern Yeast was offered at this price, with buyers at 166. St. Louis Stock Yards rose 1 point to 83. National Tea 6½ per cent preferred was ½ point higher at 99½. Butler Brothers was quiet, transactions between 28¾ and 29¼ showing no change over the previous week.

Acme Steel was in better demand, 65 being bid, with cheapest stock offered for sale at 67. Strength continued in Dolese & Shepard, transactions being reported between 89 and 91, the market closing with 89 bid and stock offered at 91. Great Lakes Transit was firm, with stock wanted at 25 and best offerings showing at 26½. Sales at 285 were made in Congress Hotel common. American Furniture Mart common was in fair demand at 5⅝, with a few shares of stock offered for sale at 6. The preferred stock was rather freely offered at 92, with transactions reported in the neighborhood of 90.

Bank stock, although rather quiet, showed a firm tone, with Continental and Commercial National rallying 2 points to sales at 448. At the close stock was wanted at this price, with offerings at 453. A good demand was noted for Union Trust at 391. Northern Trust moved up a point to 476 bid, 479 asked. Illinois Merchants was also in better demand at 592 to 596. After selling at 705, State Bank of Chicago was offered at 702, with best bids at 697, a loss of 5 points for the week. Central Trust company was stronger, rising 2 points to sales at 312 and 315. First National was better at 540 to 544. National Bank of the Republic was unchanged at 265 bid, 269 asked.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Continuing the trend of the five immediately preceding months, Dun's index number for June 1 shows another decline. The reduction, however, is only 0.7 per cent, under that for May 1. The downward course of the markets, though steady, has been gradual, the recession since last December having barely exceeded 5 per cent. Comparing with a year ago, when a small rise appeared, a decline of 3.6 per cent is shown. On the other hand, an advance of about 57 per cent is disclosed when comparison is made with the prewar basis.

Greater firmness featured the price situation in the wholesale commodity markets last week, 27 advances contrasting with 35 declines, and with 41 reductions and 34 increases last week. In a similar comparison for the corresponding week of last year, 35 out of 66 changes were in a downward direction.

Returns of bank clearings week, which are for five days only because of the holiday on Monday, show an aggregate of $8,717,222,000 at leading cities of the United States. This is 2.5 per cent less than the amount reported for the corresponding period of last year. Returns of failures show a total of 341 for the United States. This compares with 362 reported for a similar period of last year, therefore, showing a reduction of 21 defaults.

The United Profit Sharing corporation has declared a semi-annual dividend of 5 per cent in common stock. This will take the place of the quarterly cash dividends of 30 cents a share on the no par common and 15 cents a share on the $1 par common heretofore paid. The Francisco Sugar company has omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share due at this time.

The April production of electricity by public utility power plants of the United States totaled 5,784,532,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 12 per cent over April, 1925. Of the total production 2,315,369,000 kilowatt hours were produced by water power and 3,469,163,000 by fuels. The daily production in April was about 7 per cent less than in March and 5 per cent less than in January.

The Buick Motor company in May delivered 30,000 cars at retail and is now operating on a schedule of 1,000 cars a day. For the first five months of this year, retail deliveries totaled about 125,000 or 68 per cent more than were delivered in the same period last year.

Dodge Brothers retail deliveries in the four weeks ended May 29 totaled 37,660,000, a good gain over the last previous four weeks and compared with a gain of 12,735 in the same period of 1925. Deliveries in the United States from Jan. 2 to May 29 totaled 144,199, against 97,572 in the same period of 1925.

The Reo Motor Car company in May shipped 4,436 cars, trucks and busses, an increase of 12 per cent over April and the largest month in the company's history. Shipments are running at the rate of 170 units a day. For the fiscal year to date shipments show an increase of 10 per cent over the same period in 1925.

Negotiations are under way for the purchase of the Mortgage and Acceptance corporation by the Commercial Credit company, says a Baltimore dispatch. Details are expected within a few days.

Foote Bros. Gear & Machine company has purchased, out of profits, and redeemed 200 shares of its preferred capital stock, reducing the amount outstanding to 7,800 shares.

May production of copper by the United Verde Extension Mining company totaled 3,995,488 pounds, compared with an output of 3,625,253 pounds in May, 1925.

The David Pender Grocery company reports sales for May of $932,808, against $714,766 in the same month last year. Total sales for the first five months of the year were $4,164,603, a gain of almost 30 per cent over the corresponding period of 1925.

RAILROAD NOTES

Authority to procure authentication of $14,000,000 of first and refunding five per cent gold mortgage bonds was asked of the interstate commerce commission by the Chicago and Northwestern railroad. The bonds would be placed in the road's treasury to partially reimburse the road for additions and betterments expenditures.

In accordance with a resolution adopted at the last Lehigh Coal and Navigation stockholders' meeting authorizing the appointment of a committee of three stockholders and three managers to review the capital structure of the company and report to the board of managers their recommendations, President Warriner appointed William P. Gest, Erskine Hewitt and Walter C. Janney as members of the board of managers and W. L. Haehnlen, Thomas S. Gates, and Samuel S. Walker for the stockholders.

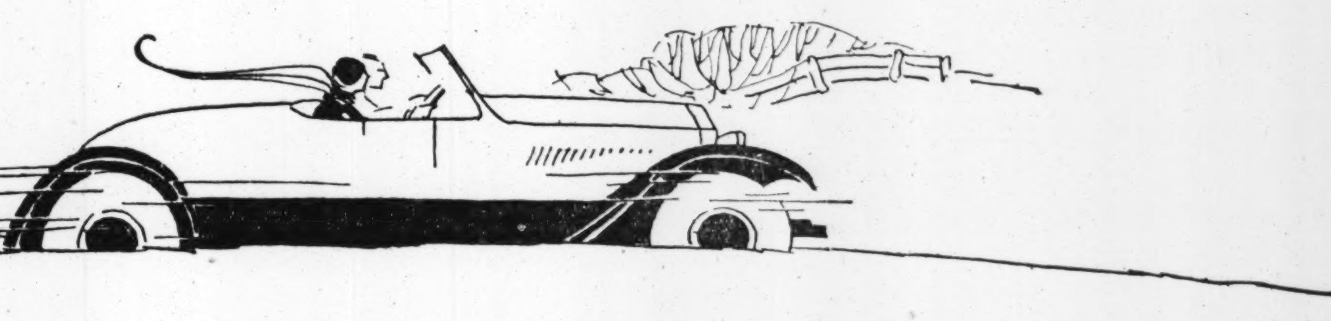
George P. McNear Jr., who with smaller bondholders and certificate holders of the Toledo, Peoria, and Western Railway company, are oppposed to the sale of the property, stated that the federal court had granted a hearing on this petition to intervene and postpone the sale. The hearing will be held in Springfield, Ill., early next week. Present poor earnings were continuing Mr. McNear said, illustrating the futility of trying to sell the road on a reasonable basis at the present time, that, given a reasonable time and a fair opportunity, present operating deficits could be converted into profits.

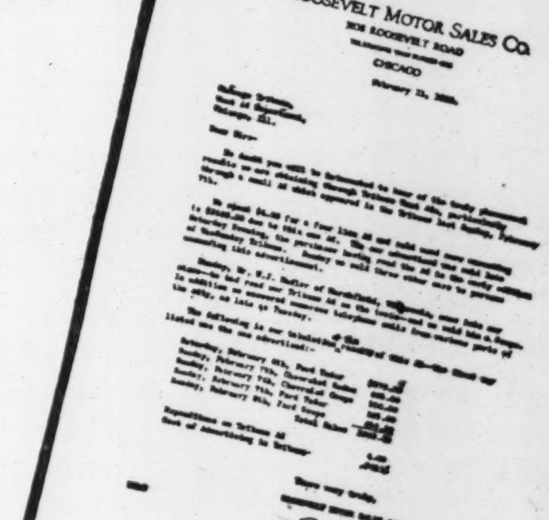
Baldwin Locomotive Works have booked ten Santa Fe and fifteen Mikado type engines for the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad and two switching engines for the Newburgh & South Shore.

METAL MARKETS.

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—COPPER—Remained quiet, buyers awaiting lower prices. Producing interests still asking 13⅝c for electrolytic delivered. This figure was entirely nominal, however, with small sales reported at about 13.80c, while comparatively few buyers were in evidence above the 13⅝c level. TIN—Has declined to a new low for the year in response to larger arrivals and continuance of the English coal strike. LEAD—Remained firm. Large producers well booked up for June. ZINC—Firmer in sympathy with the steadier London market, with better inquiry reported. ANTIMONY—Advanced, due to the strength in China, with a better consuming demand.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—LEAD—Strong at $7.50. ZINC—Slab, strong at $6.95.





ROOSEVELT MOTOR SALES CO.
ROOSEVELT ROAD
CHICAGO

One Automobile Dealer Sold $2,660 Worth of Used Cars Through a $4 Tribune Want Ad

The cost of a Want Ad does not depend upon the price paid for the space. What really counts is the cost of selling the merchandise. To illustrate: The Roosevelt Motor Sales Company wanted to sell some used cars, and they used The Tribune. One $4 Tribune Want Ad sold five used cars for a total of $2,660. The advertising cost was .0015%.

Advertising space cannot be bought as neckties or candy bars or furniture. You can't see the color, test the material, taste the flavor or note the strength of a Want Ad before buying. Bargains in Want Ads must be based on results in sales, not on the price per line.

But the Want Ad buyer, whether or not he has had actual experience in the use of Chicago newspapers, can determine to some extent the prestige of the newspaper, its "reader acceptance," the success of other advertisers.

By means of its news, its features, its fiction, its comics, its service departments, The Chicago Tribune has secured for itself the respect and interest of its readers. Advertisers benefit from this feeling of dependability.

When you have a used car problem, remember that successful automobile dealers and used car owners find that The Tribune brings them quickest resales—as shown by the comparative number of lines they use in Chicago newspapers.

Invest your advertising dollars in that Want Ad medium which has produced results for others—and can produce results for you.

The voluntary expression of an experienced advertiser, reprinted at the right, and the accompanying lineage figures plainly show which newspaper gets results for used car owners and dealers who want quick resales.

Brisk local demand offset the narrowing shipping outlet and hogs on the week-end session held firm at the recent advance, finishing 25@40c above the closing day of last week.

General average price at $14.15 stood within 15c of the highest in over five years and compared with $13.75 last Monday, the low day of the week. Better grades of 225@250 lb averages sold to the best advantage, bringing $14.15@14.40 mostly, with a few light at $14.60, the practical top, pig weights up to $14.75 being no criterion.

Prime 300 lb butchers reached $14.10 and 350 lb. averages $14.00. Sharp advances in provision futures had a favorable effect on the hog market during the week, with a bulge in the lard market tending to narrow the "spread" in prices.

Hog Receipts Smaller.

Hog receipts last week at 120,200 were 6,100 smaller than the previous week and smaller than any corresponding weekly supply in over five years, being 52,800 under the five year average. The estimated average weight of hogs at 251 lbs. was heaviest in many years comparing with corresponding weeks and 13 lbs. above the five year average. General average price of hogs for the week at $13.90 equaled the highest since week ending March 21, 1925, when $14.05 was the highest weekly average since 1920.

Despite the largest cattle receipts in a month's time prices moved up 25@50c during the first half of the week, in sympathy with hogs and lambs, which are practically at the high point of the year. Light steers and yearlings, however, slumped in midweek and finished on par with the close of the previous week, with medium and heavy beeves mostly 25c higher for the week. Prime 1,519 lb. Nebraska steers topped at $10.65, the highest since the middle of April. Country buyers paid $10.25@10.40 for 1,300@1,470 lb. fat steers suitable for a short turn in the feed lot. Butcher stock lost the gain of 15@30c scored during the forepart of the week. Calves advanced 25@50c. Stockers and feeders 15@25c higher. General average price of good beef cattle advanced to $9.60.

Sheep Market Erratic.

Matured sheep dropped to the lowest point of the year during last week, while lambs ruled strong to higher, establishing new high marks on active closing sessions. General average price of aged sheep at $6.50 was lowest since a year ago, while aged lambs averaged highest of the year at $16.00. Unsatisfactory markets for mutton, which were weakened by liberal supplies from the south largely from Texas was responsible to a great extent for the sharp break in sheep, medium and weighty ewes leading the downturn of mostly $1.00. Shorn aged lambs and springers finished fully 25c higher, feeders sharing in the advance. Top range spring lambs, $18.90 and shorn aged lambs, $16.90.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 20,000 cattle, 42,000 hogs, and 13,000 sheep, against 19,589 cattle, 40,307 hogs, and 9,895 sheep a week ago, and 15,854 cattle, 44,145 hogs, and 9,821 sheep, the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 59,000 cattle, 135,000 hogs, and 60,000 sheep, against 49,175 cattle, 146,278 hogs, and 58,518 sheep a year ago.

OPEN INTEREST IN GRAIN SHRINKS SINCE MAY 29

The open interest in wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade on May 29, the close of the month, was 73,289,000 bu, which also was the lowest of the month. The month's average was 83,808,000 bu, compared with 96,325,000 bu in April and 87,482,000 bu in May last year. Total sales of wheat on the Chicago Board of Trade for the month of May were 1,077,789,000 bu, compared with 1,347,285,000 bu a year ago, and in all markets, 1,221,128,000 bu, against 1,568,027,000 bu last year.

The official figures on trading taking the sale side, also the open interest in Chicago last month, with the last three ciphers omitted, follow:

KANSAS REPORT, SHORTS' BUYING ADVANCE WHEAT

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Unfavorable reports on the new Kansas wheat corp and bullish comments on the foreign situation largely were responsible for a wave of general short covering sweeping over the market that carried the July up 3¼c to $1.41⅝, the highest figure since May 3, when it sold at $1.44, and in the face of heavy profit taking the bulge was fairly well maintained, with the finish at $1.41¼ to $1.41⅛, with a net gain of 2⅝c. September was 2c higher at $1.35⅝ to $1.35½, and December up 1¼c to $1.37⅝ to $1.37½.

Corn made a poor response to the strength in wheat and closed ⅛@⅜c higher, with July 72⅝@72¾c and September 77⅝@77¼c, while oats were ⅜@½c higher, with July 40⅞c and September 41¾c. Rye advanced 2½@2⅝c on buying by houses with seaboard connections, and July closed at 90¼@90⅛c and September at 93¼@93⅛c.

Grains Higher for Week.

While local sentiment was bearish the greater part of the week, the grain markets gave an excellent account of themselves, and the finish was around the best figures, with net gains of 2⅝@4¼c on wheat, 1⅝@2⅝c on corn, ¾@1¼c on oats, and 4¾@7¼c on rye. Provisions sold at a new high for the season, with gains on lard of 97½c@$1.02; ribs, 70@80c, and bellies, 70@77½c.

Efforts on the part of local bears to depress wheat prices had little effect. July wheat in particular acted tight and showed the effect of the recent aggressive commission house buying which absorbed the surplus in the pit, and an estimate by the Santa Fe railroad that the Kansas crop might be as low as 125,000,000 bu, with forecast for generally fair and warm weather in that state, started general buying by commission houses and shorts, and the upturn was easily attained. Sellers of offers were forced to protect themselves on the way up.

The northwest as well as the southwest joined in reporting dry weather, and the effect of the recent showers in the spring wheat territory is rapidly passing. The weekly forecast indicated a period of scattered showers toward the middle and again toward the end of the week over the entire wheat belt, with temperatures near or above normal. Houses with eastern connections were good buyers at times.

Foreign news was bullish with Liverpool ⅛@⅝d higher, and Broomhall estimates that Australia has only 3,500,000 bu. left for export, the balance of the season. There were strong intimations that the United Kingdom would be in the market for supplies in the immediate future, but no business of consequence was reported at the seaboard during the day.

Smaller Trade in Corn.

Trade in corn was smaller, and local operators generally bearish due to the large arrivals at terminal markets, and the trade generally looks for a good increase to be shown in the visible supply Monday. Spot basis here showed little change, despite the liberal movement. Eastern demand continues slow. Weather conditions generally were favorable for the new crop. The strength in wheat was largely responsible for the upturn from the low point, and also had some effect on oats.

Rye showed strength and with aggresive buying headed by a house with export connections advanced rapidly. Crop reports from the northwest remain unfavorable, with rain badly needed.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Export demand for cash wheat at the seaboard was fair, but quantities sold were not given out. Winnipeg reported a better demand with some sales of Manitobas, but also failed to give figures.

Chicago handlers sold 7,000 bu wheat, 37,000 bu corn and 26,000 bu oats to the domestic trade, with 8,000 bu No. 2 northern sold in store at 13½c over July. Deliveries on June contracts were 5,000 bu corn and 5,000 bu rye. Charters were made for 120,000 bu corn and 160,000 bu oats to Georgian Bay at 2c for corn.

Demand for cash wheat continues brisk in all markets, with winter wheats here unchanged to 1c higher as compared with July, a car of No. 1 hard selling at 20c over the future. No. 2 red was nominally 12@13c and No. 2 hard 17@19c over. Premiums at Kansas City were 1@3c higher and at St. Louis 1@2c higher, while spring wheats at Minneapolis were 1c higher, with the demand in the latter market greater than the supply.

Offerings of cash corn were fairly good, but sold readily with the basis ½c higher to ½c lower, with No. 2 grades ¼@1c under; No. 3 grades, 2@5½c, and No. 4 grades, 4@7½c under the July. Outside markets were ½c higher to 1c lower.

Cash oats were wanted with the basis steady at ½@1c over July for No. 2 white and ¼@½c over for No. 3 white.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 24 cars; corn, 319 cars; oats, 80 cars; rye, 2 cars; barley, 10 cars.

PROVISION PRICES HIGHER

Good buying of provisions carried prices to new high levels, with lard 2½ to 5c higher for the day, short ribs up 15 to 27½c, and bellies 10 to 12½c. There was a good class of buying which closed around the top. In the general situation there has been little change, with sentiment in favor of buying on the decline. Hog prices were up to the highest in recent years, with receipts light, and a big run is not expected.

Packing in Chicago since March 1 aggregates 7,204,000 hogs, compared with 7,340,000 last year. The cash trade was good; exports from the seaboard on Friday were 3,908,000 lbs of lard and 2,119,500 lbs of bacon. Prices follow:

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

It was said at the close that all the big local shorts who sold wheat within the week on Kansas and Oklahoma prospects had covered their wheat on the bulge, making the technical situation weaker in case there should be a general increase in the selling movement on Monday. Some very big lines were covered by commission houses and through brokers, and while sentiment was more bullish, the disposition is to go real slow in buying except on breaks. Bids were in favor after the close.

A Kansas City man says that if Kansas gets rain crop prospects will improve. It is simply a question of moisture from now on. Personally he thinks that Kansas will have around 135,000,000 bu. Old wheat has been cleaned up in the country, and they had a better demand within the last week, with his own house disposing of its cash holdings.

Early in the week the local trade was especialy bearish and J. S. Bache & Co. were bullish and absorbed a good part of the offerings. On yesterday's bulge they were the principal sellers.

Crop Expert Snow is finding some bad spots in the Kansas wheat crop, and others who covered the ground that was reported as bad a week ago are confirming previous reports in northern Kansas.

PRIMARIES FOR WEEK

Primary receipts of grains last week were the largest in recent months, 15,448,000 bu, an increase of 3,400,000 bu over the previous week, and a decrease of almost 200,000 bu from last year. A feature was the increase in the movement of corn and oats, and a decrease in wheat, the latter being the smallest at this time in five years, and the former the largest for the period in four years. Take Inventory

THIS is an opportune time to take inventory of your securities. Business efficiency requires periodical inventories of stock on hand, but a security once purchased is so often never considered again. Bond Salesmen

A well known Chicago bond house participating in all leading syndicates and dealing exclusively in well secured general market bonds (no real estate or stocks) is looking for several men to represent them in Chicago and surrounding territory. Only bond men of experience with a clientele can fill this position. A salary of $300.00 a month and upward, and in addition a very liberal commission system far above the average, makes this offer exceedingly attractive to a producer. Replies will be treated in strict confidence and should give complete information. Offices St. Louis, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and San Francisco. Our own organization has been informed of this advertisement.

STOCK MARKET RALLIES AFTER EARLY DECLINE

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES

	High.	Low.	Last.	Net chge.
25 railroads	90.71	89.91	90.55	+.22
25 industrials	150.98	149.98	150.76	—.14
50 stocks	120.84	119.94	120.65	+.04

New York, June 5.—(AP)—Today's brief session of the stock market was called on to absorb a fairly large volume of profit taking and bear selling, but it developed splendid resistance to pressure. Closing quotations disclosed considerable irregularity. Total sales aggregated 652,200 shares.

Bear traders launched several selling attacks today against specialties believed to be under the sponsorship of pools, but they encountered strong support in practically all cases. The short interest, judging from the large number of stocks loaning "flat" or at a premium, is still of substantial proportions.

Steel Shares Show Strength.

Steel shares responded to reports of an increase in the price of heavy melting steel scrap and a better demand for pipe. United States Steel common closed nearly a point higher at 126½, after having sold down to 125¼.

Despite the generally favorable nature of the oil trade news, the petroleum shares were inclined to heaviness. Atlantic Refining broke to 116½, but later rallied to 118¾, where it was off 2¼ points on the day.

The few outstanding weak spots were American Woolen preferred, Punta Alegre Sugar, Wilson preferred (new), and Worthington Pump. On the other hand, bullish demonstrations were successfully conducted in American and Foreign Power, American Safety Razor, International Telephone, and Sterling Products.

Trading in the rails was quiet, but the undertone was strong. Speculative interest centered largely in Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central, and "Nickel Plate," all of which showed net gains of two points or more.

Bond Market Is Weak.

Realizing sales imposed considerable restraint on bond trading, with prices of all but high grade rail and public utility issues drifting irregularly lower. Foreign obligations forfeited a large part of the gains established earlier in the week. German corporation issues yielded readily to profit taking, although the government's bonds held firm around the year's top prices. Mexican obligations also were heavy.

The pronounced weakness of sugar company liens was the outstanding feature of trading in the domestic list. Losses of a point or so were recorded by Manati, Cuba Cane, and Franciscan issues. Skelly Oil 6½s fell back 3½ points and American Writing Paper 6s two points.

Buying interest was kept alive in a few railroad issues, but changes generally were limited to fractions. Rock Island refunding 4s, Northern Pacific 3s, Iowa Central 4s, New Haven 4s, and New York, Susquehanna and Western 5s were in demand, but the Nickel Plate and Erie issues lagged.

New York Banks' Loans Drop.

The weekly statement of the New York clearing house banks today showed an increase of $6,075,120 in surplus reserve to $11,728,000. Loans, discounts, etc., decreased $39,709,000. Net demand deposits increased $8,180,000. Time deposits decreased $5,595,000. Circulation increased $315,000. Aggregate reserve was $606,048,000. Loans, discounts, etc., totaled $5,374,280,000; net demand deposits, $4,424,189,000; time deposits, $570,272,000; circulation, $23,231,000.

Foreign exchange trading was of the usual quiet half holiday character with the principal rates holding steady. Demand sterling ruled around $4.86½, and French and Belgian francs were slightly higher around 3.08½ and 3.10½ cents, respectively. Polish zloty dropped half a cent to 9.00 cents.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE

Money in Chicago firm at 4½@4¾ per cent on collateral; commercial paper, 3¾@4½ per cent, 4¼@5 per cent over the counter. Bankers' acceptances, 2⅞@3¼ per cent. New York exchange by wire, par. Chicago bank clearings yesterday were $114,500,000, compared with $111,400,000 a week ago and $110,600,000 a year ago.

Day's sales ....27,000 Year ago ....27,000 Total, 1926 ....5,383,500 Year ago 5,834,852

Chicago stocks were active and strong in yesterday's week-end session. Trading interest centered in Balaban & Katz, which jumped 2 points on a turnover of 7,000 shares. Reports of an impending announcement on consolidation with Famous Players-Lasky on a higher price basis than the current market price of Balaban-Katz stock stimulated the demand. Auburn Auto advanced 1⅜, Real Silk 1½, and Illinois Brick a point. North Shore celebrated the opening of its new Skokie line by rising to 54, an advance of 7½ from the last previous sale. American States "A" and Thompson made fractional gains. On small sales Quaker Oats advanced 3⅞ and Gossard a point, while Middle West Utilities and Swift International made fractional gains. Diamond Match was off 3¾ and Stewart-Warner was fractionally lower.

WHAT MAKES H.O.STONE BONDS SAFE?

No. 10 of a Series

Properties Located Right
Built Right, Managed Right

OUR whole experience in the first mortgage bond business has resulted in this conclusion: Ample earnings are the one absolute essential of a safe and satisfactory bond issue.

Earnings pay the interest. Earnings pay off the bonds. The greater the earnings, the greater the safety of the bonds. How then are maximum earnings produced?

By a combination of three things—a location strongly in demand—a building designed and built to suit the location—and good management. Success can result only from the combination of all these essentials.

Analyze any of our bond issues and its fundamental safety will be found:—first, in a location where there is a proven demand for the service the property offers; second, in a building planned with scientific provision for the demand it is to fill; third, in management that knows how to attract, serve and please the class for which the property is intended.

Properties located right, built right and managed right have given this House its record of safety. Our bonds have never lost a dollar. For further information that will increase your appreciation of these desirable investments, call, phone Franklin 5600 or write.

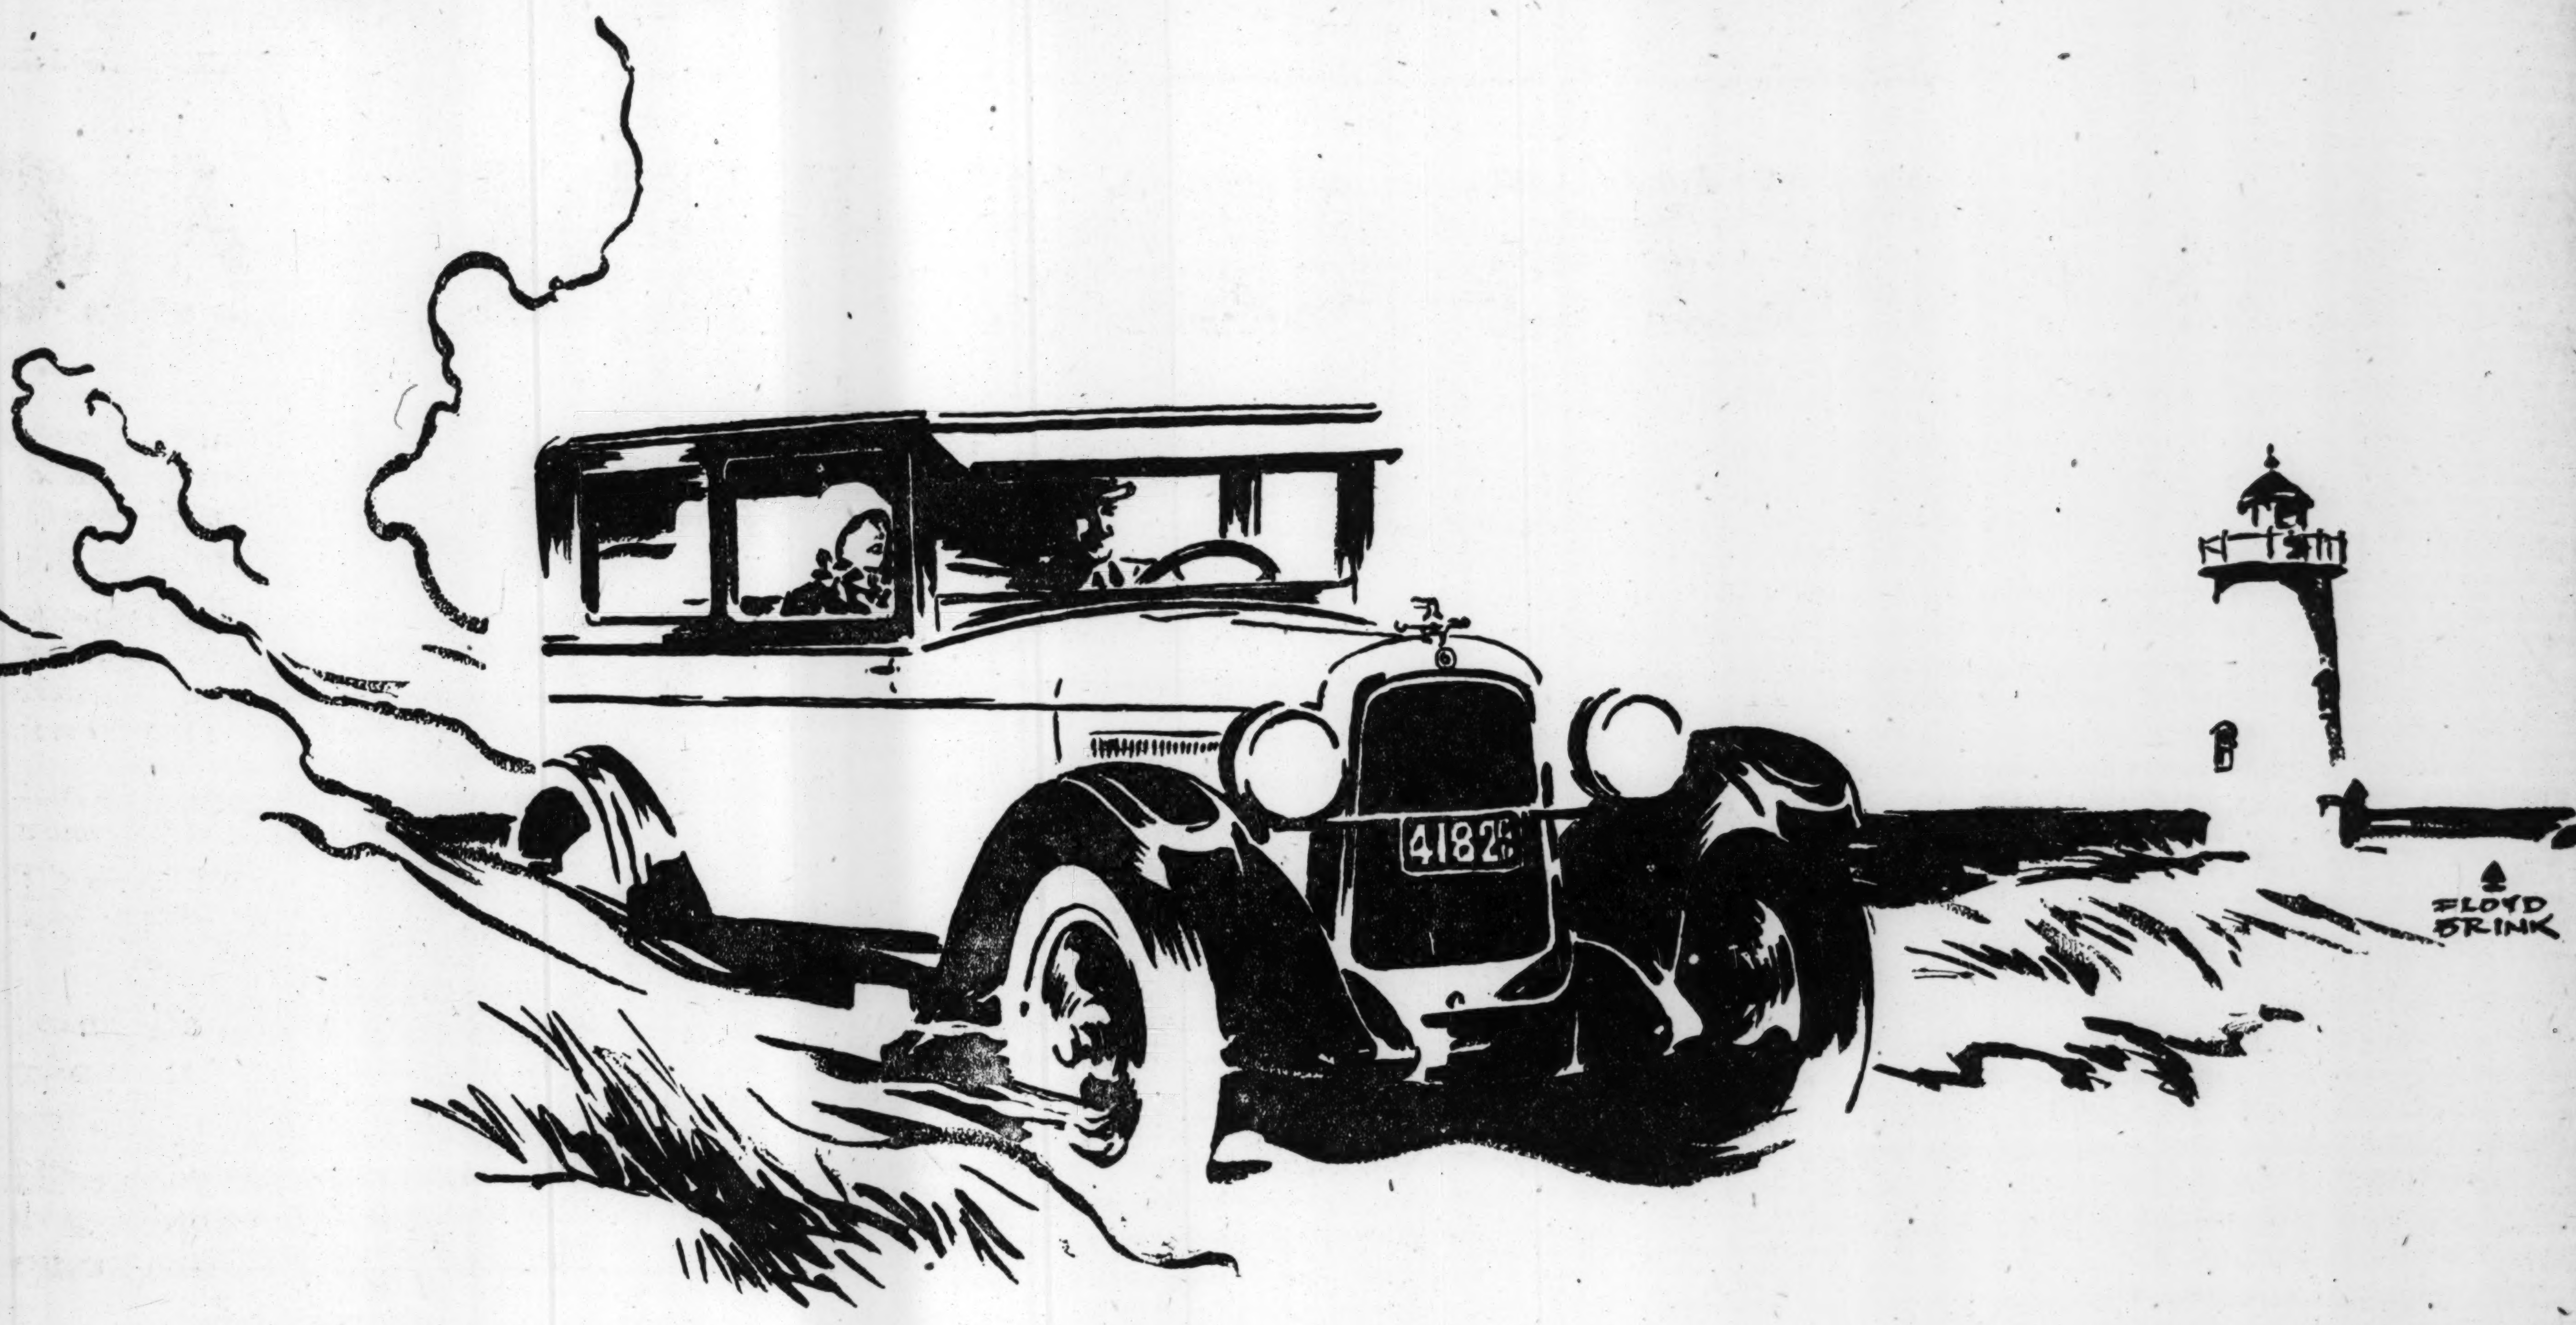
The Six that meets Chicago's performance standards



Chicago recognizes this new-type motor car as a revolutionary step in modern automobile design. Its sales have increased with leaps and bounds since its introduction over a year ago. No Six in its price-class is comparable to it.

BE prepared for a big surprise when you take your first ride in an Overland Six. A brand new kind of motoring experience awaits you . . . It's bound to change your whole idea of motor car performance.

It is not just a modern body on a chassis that's 5 to 10 years old. But a new and revolutionary type of car, modernly engineered and designed to give a new kind of performance, comfort and driving ease.

The motor is a new type power plant—hung low in the chassis to give a straight line drive—with more usable power delivered to the rear axle than you find in any other six of its price or class.

The center of gravity is lower—keeping the weight of the car down close to the ground—you get an entirely new feeling of security when you drive this car.

It is designed for a road speed of between 40 and 55 miles an hour—and engineered to meet the demands of such speed without wear or strain on the engine. The old-fashioned car reaches its safety peak at 35—and wears itself out in a hurry under modern traffic regulations on the highways.

A new departure in motor car engineering

The Overland Six will turn in a forty-foot circle. Rear springs are underslung and 52 inches long. 141 square inches of braking surface provide an ample safety margin.

It has more inside space. More cubic feet than the average car of this price.

The result is ample comfort for 5 full-size passengers . . . with plenty of room to step in or out . . . room to stretch your legs with the utmost ease.

The seats are wider, the windows larger, the doors much broader. All features you'll certainly appreciate when you inspect rival cars of this price. In style and body lines this car resembles the creations of famous European coachmakers.

Under ordinary production standards this Overland Six Sedan could not be sold within $200 or $300 of its price.

Yet, because of the tremendous purchasing power and production facilities of the great Willys-Overland organization, it now sells for only $935 f. o. b. factory.

Get the utmost for your money. Ride in this car—test it in comparison to the value others offer. In fairness to yourself buy no car until you do.

It is now possible to buy this car on the new WILLYS FINANCE PLAN which means less money down, smaller monthly payments, and the lowest credit-cost in the industry.

We reserve the right to change prices and specifications without notice.

CLAIMS WAGE RAISES MENACE BUILDING TRADE

Expert Sees Public as Sufferer.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Recent wage increases granted to approximately 100 building trades in twenty widely scattered cities throughout the country have already been reflected in high construction costs, according to A. W. Dickson, the executive secretary of the National Association of Building Trades Employers.

The Alberthaw index of building cost has been fixed at 199 as of April 1, an increase of four points over March 1. This increase is a minimum and will no doubt go higher when field costs begin to show the actual effect of higher rates.

Public Will Pay.

Practically all authorities are agreed that the action of the building trades in making demands for increases this year will bring about a serious reaction in the entire construction industry. It will be quite impossible to absorb the advances of this year as has been done during the last two or three years, consequently the added burden will be passed along to the building public.

"That there is no reason from an economic or busines standpoint to increase wages of building trades at this time is a well understood fact," Mr. Dickson asserted.

"According to the United States department of labor, the average union wage rate at Jan. 1 of this year would buy 37.1 per cent more of living on the 1913 standard than it would in 1913. Commodity prices are on the downward trend, as indicated in the last report of the department of labor which shows the price index to have been 151.5 on April 1. This is a drop of 3½ points in a single month and represents the lowest point to which the index has fallen in 18 months. With commodity prices falling and wage rates increasing the real earnings of workers in the building trades are constantly mounting. Consequently, there can be no justification of advances made on the grounds of economic necessity.

Abandon Projects.

"Higher construction costs are being resented by the building public, and each day brings reports of projects being abandoned. The public is of the firm opinion that costs were already too high, and when the announcement was made that the general trend was upward, owing to increased labor rates, reaction followed."

Mr. Dickson said there is every reason to believe that if the labor leaders, who insisted on boosting wage rates this year, had had their fingers on the pulse of the building public they would have learned that owners were in no mood to stand for any additional price advance.

He asserted that early in the year, every indication pointed to another season of intensive activity in the nation's building industry. And it is true that building permits for the first quarter showed a decided increase over the same period of last year. However, he pointed out, these operation were undertaken under the old wage rates, and before the higher rates began to be reflected in higher costs.

Face Loss of Jobs.

In conclusion the national builders' representative said that by the close of the year, thousands of building mechanics throughout the country are going to be faced with a situation of unemployment because of their short sighted policy of continually demanding higher and higher rates.

Statistics compiled by the Associated General Contractors of America show that building operations for the first four months of this year are 6 per cent greater than for a corresponding period in 1925. The volume of construction for April was reported as 27 per cent over March.

The number of strikes in the building trades this spring has been greater than for many years. It is estimated that shortly after May 1, more than 25,000 building trades workers were on strike in a dozen cities including Boston, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Cleveland, New Haven, Conn., Lockport, N. Y., Portland, Ore., Gary, Ind., and Washington, D. C., and in a number of other cities.

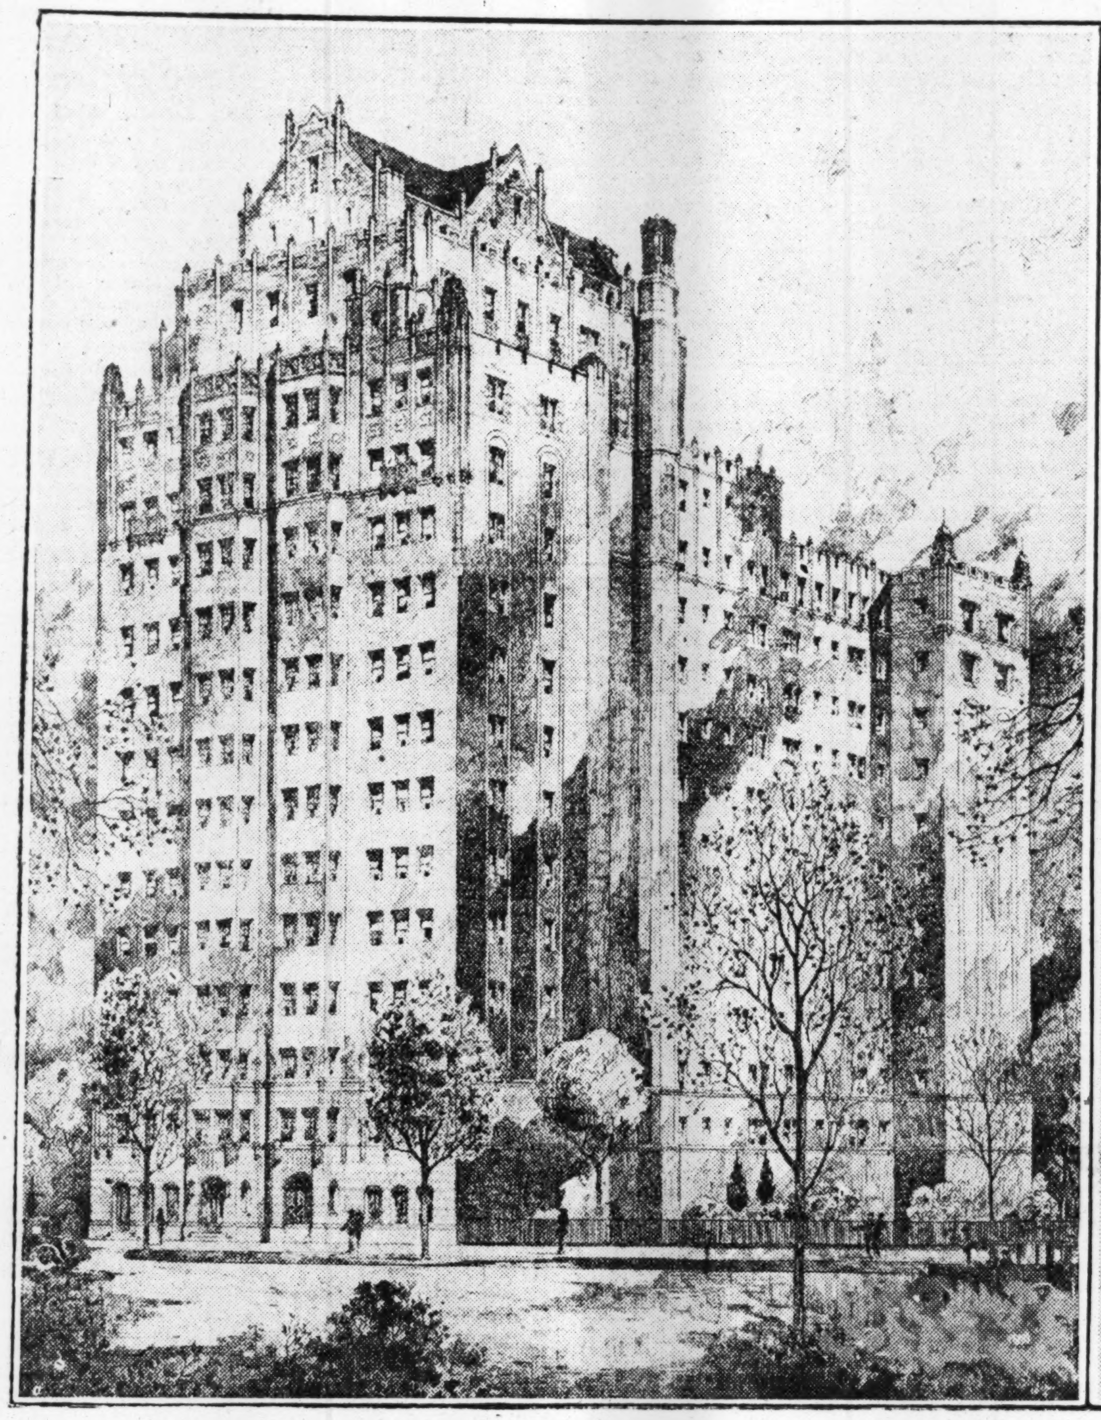
$210,000 PAID FOR APARTMENT IN AINSLIE ST.

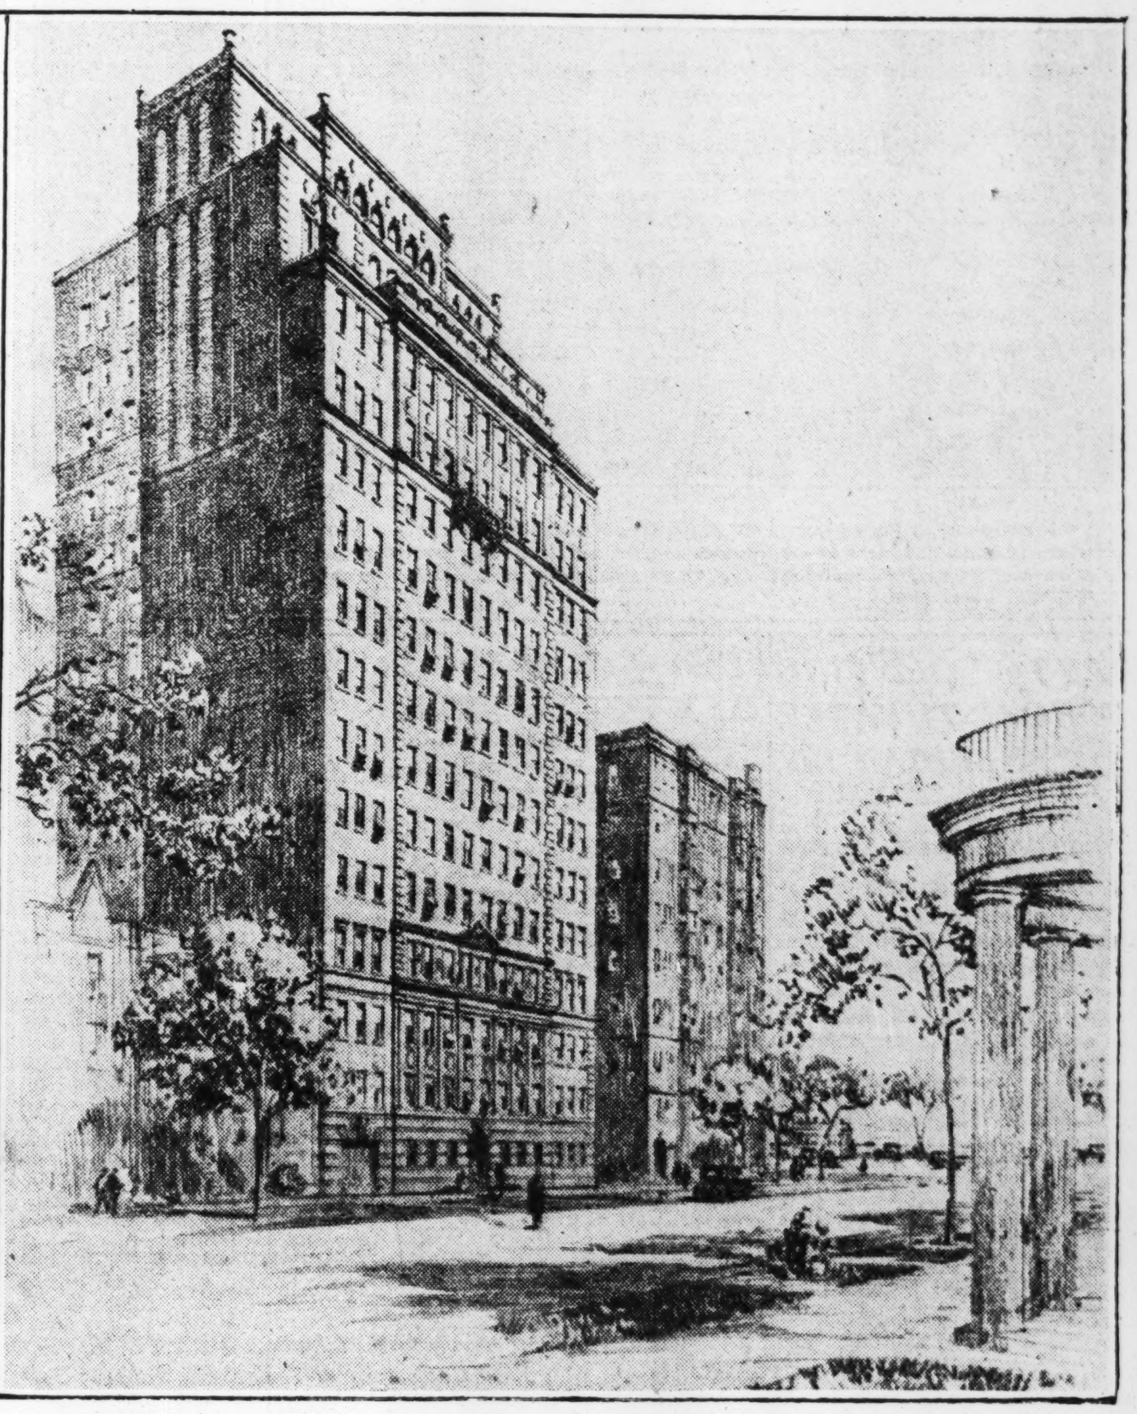
Joseph Handelsman has sold to Philip Jacobson the property at the southeast corner of Harding and Ainslie streets improved with a thirty-seven apartment building for a reported price of $210,000, subject to $155,000. Mr. Jacobson gave in part payment the property at the northeast corner of Robey and Iowa streets, improved with a thirteen apartment and two store building for a reported price of $90,000, subject to $62,500. S. Yaffe and Frank [illegible]llinger of Abe Wexler & Co. were brokers and Isador Fried and Irving [illegible] were attorneys in the transaction.

ELLIS AVENUE FLATS CHANGE HANDS: $245,000

Harry F. Fireman has bought the [illegible]-two flat building at 6107-15 Ellis from Harry Zisook for a reported $245,000, subject to $185,000. Joseph Rosenberg and Wolfsohn & Fireman were attorneys.

NORTH SIDE GAINS TWO MORE LARGE APARTMENTS

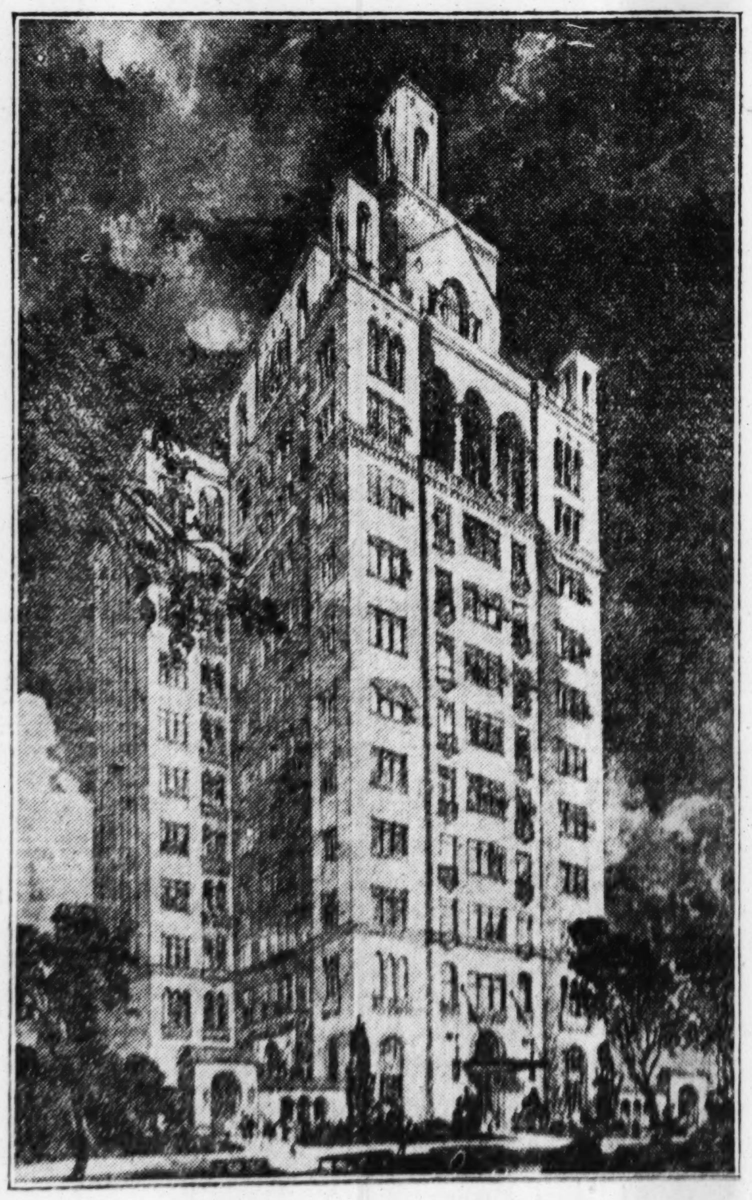




McNally & Quinn are architects of the above seventeen story apartments shown on the right, to be erected at 70 East Cedar street by the 70 East Cedar Street Building corporation, as told in this section two Sundays ago. S. W. Straus & Co. have underwritten a $750,000 bond issue. The total value of the project is placed at $750,000. Setbacks in the upper stories give the building an interestingly irregular sky line and hide the usually unsightly and conspicuous penthouses. John W. Arthur of George W. Ballard & Co., and Thomas J. Fleming of Ross & Browne were brokers in the site purchase. B. C. Greengard made the above rendering for McNally & Quinn.

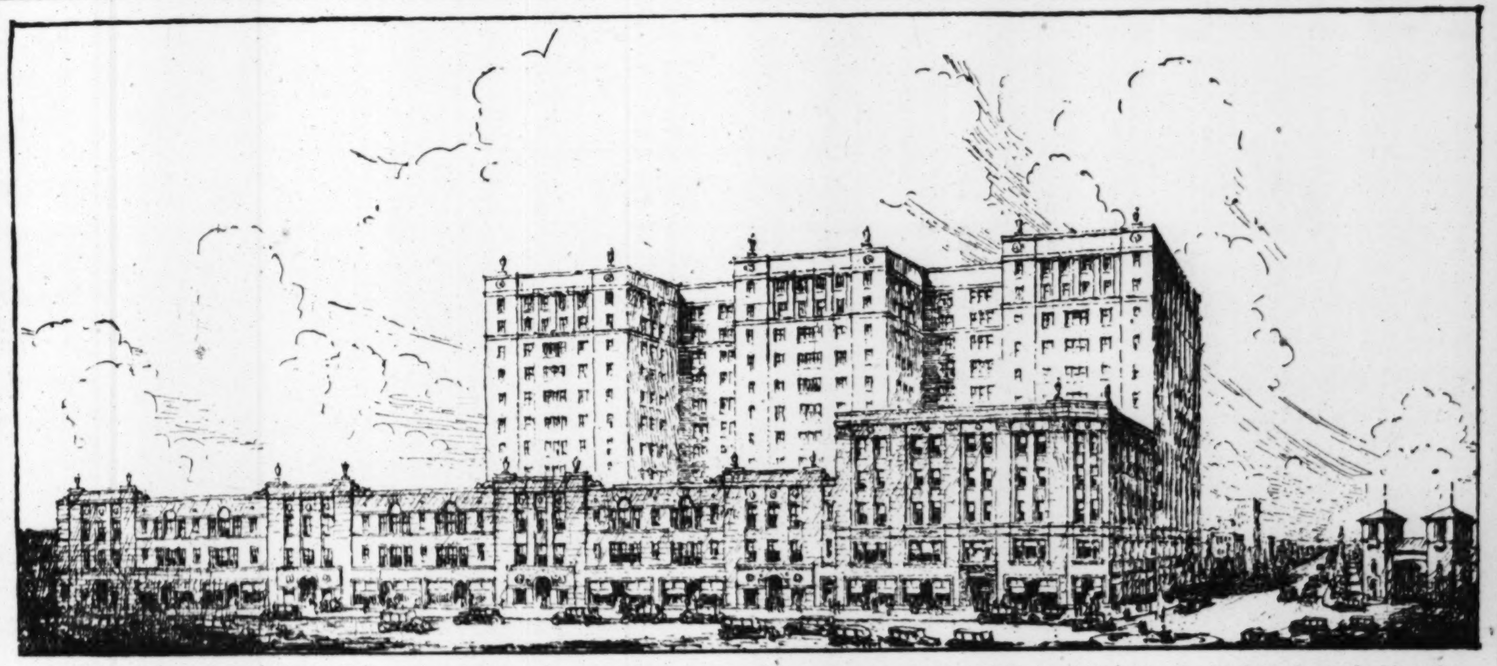
Hooper & Janusch are the architects for a combination co-operative and rentable apartment building, shown at the left, which will be erected 307 feet west of Sheridan road in Stratford place, extending through to Cornelia. The features of this unusually attractive building will be hidden penthouses and setbacks. When completed the project will represent an investment of $2,100,000. S. Chester Danforth made the above rendering.

THE LAKE SHORE TOWERS



Dr. Max Thorek will erect a twelve story apartment building at 8918 to 8924 Lake Shore drive to cost about $1,000,000. Roy F. France & Co. are the architects for the structure, which will be in the Italian renaissance style. The tower will hide the penthouses and will contain the elevator machinery. Charles Morgan made the above rendering.

BIG BUILDING PROJECT ANNOUNCED FOR SOUTH SHORE DISTRICT



A syndicate comprising B. F. Lindheimer, Henry Hedberg, James Bistor, and others will erect the above group of buildings designed by Alfred A. Alschuler in the block bounded by South Shore drive, Oglesby avenue, 70th place, and 71st street. A ten story hotel to cost $2,250,000, and a three and five story store, office, and hotel building to cost $950,000 are planned. The site is valued by the owners at $1,000,000, making the total investment $3,200,000. The hotel will front 144 feet on the boulevard, overlooking the South Shore Country club grounds and the lake, and 303 feet on 70th place. The office building will be 100x100, and the three story store and hotel will be 277x100. It'll have sixteen stores. The first unit of the project has been financed by the owning syndicate. Lindheimer & Wells will manage the properties. Further details are given in another column of this page.

FRANK K. REILLY AND CROISSANT END PARTNERSHIP

Frank K. Reilly has taken over the interest of G. Frank Croissant in the 116 S. Michigan avenue office and the partnership formerly existing between the two is dissolved. Mr. Reilly will continue the offices as before. The initial property which the firm will offer will be Avalon, located on the Illinois Central at Sibley boulevard and State street.

"SHORE HAVEN" NEW SUBDIVISION FOR LAKE GENEVA

Shore Haven is the name of a new subdivision that is to be opened shortly at Lake Geneva by the Jones & Winter Co. It lies just east of the Chicago club on the south shore of the lake, near the Northwestern Military academy, and was formerly owned by the Offield estate. The subdivision has a frontage of 275 feet on the lake shore [illegible] back 1,500 feet.

REAL ESTATORS TO STUDY "TORRENS" SYSTEM IN EUROPE

A. J. BROCKMAN.
[Matzene Photo.]

Albert J. Brockman and Nicholas J. Schmitz, members of the Cook county real estate board, will tour Europe this summer, partly on business and partly to study the working of the Torrens system abroad. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Schmitz, Mrs. Brockman, and Miss Marian Brockman. The real estators will bear greetings from Joseph F. Haas, registrar of titles; J. Scott Matthews, chief examiner of titles, and others to public officials abroad who are in charge of land registration. The Chicagoans will make an especial study of the Torrens system in England and Germany.

Birchwood and Robey St. Apartments Change Hands

The sixteen flats at the northwest corner of Birchwood and Robey were sold by M. Donahue to T. Steinert through L. M. Ellert & Co.

Super Highways to Be Boosted by DuPage-Cook-Kane Body

FRANK C. WELLS.
[Melvin C. Sykes Photo.]

In order to provide adequate, commodious, comfortable traffic lanes of sufficient size in advance of real estate development and increase in population, the Metropolitan Super-Highway Association of DuPage, Cook and Kane Counties, has been formed, with Frank C. Wells of Lindheimer & Wells, as president. Ray Rice, Harry Auspitz, of Auspitz & Oakes, and Fred Butler of the Butler Paper company, are vice presidents; E. L. Gates, superintendent of highways of DuPage county, is secretary and Grinnell F. Oliver, of the Oliver-Westrom company of Wheaton, is treasurer.

The association, composed of county officials, subdividers, investors, real estate operators, and others interested in the development of the three counties and their real estate, held its first meeting at the City club.

The new organization not only is pledged to coöperate in the development of superhighways across the three counties, but it announces that it will do all possible "to encourage high grade development and to interest itself in such zoning plans, regional ideals, subdivision activities and other constructive measures as will effectively create and permanently maintain higher taxable values, thereby assisting in the establishment of progressive and prosperous communities."

"DuPage county, for instance," said an interested party, "with its attractive rolling country, should not have even one subdivision laid out in square, 'checkerboard' streets. Yet it has many and more are contemplated. This is a crime against good real estate development that an organization of this kind can stop."

Waveland Avenue Flats Change Hands: $75,000

The twelve flats at the northwest corner of Lincoln street and Waveland were sold by Oscar Nelson to Albert Rothengass for a reported $75,000. The Roettgen Realty company was broker.

H. B. WHEELOCK AGAIN TO BE HEAD OF CHICAGO CHAPTER OF THE A.I.A.

HARRY B. WHEELOCK.

Harry B. Wheelock will be reelected president of the Chicago chapter of the American Institue of Architects at its annual banquet next Tuesday evening to be held in the main ballroom of the new Palmer house. All the other present officers will be reelected as there is only one ticket in the field. The banquet will be held at 7 p. m.

The speakers of the evening will be three Chicago architects who have recently returned from European tours and who will tell what they saw. They are: Alfred Granger, Irving K. Pond, and Arthur W. Woltersdorf.

Harper Ave. Apartment Building Sold for $80,000

The twenty-four flats at 6333 Harper, lot 100x140, were sold by Charles H. Launder to William P. Keevers, through Robert L. Gear, for $80,000.

WILL OVERLOOK SOUTH SHORE COUNTRY CLUB

Unique Roof Garden Is Contemplated.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Work is to start in two weeks on what is claimed will be the largest and most elaborate building project of its kind in the south shore district, involving a total expenditure of $3,200,000, at the plaza formed by the intersection of South Shore drive, Exchange and Yates avenues, and 71st street.

This project, comprising two big building units, calls for a ten story, fireproof apartment hotel, costing $2,250,000, and a second group containing a five story office building and a three story store and hotel building.

These buildings will cover the entire city block bounded by South Shore drive, 70th place, Oglesby avenue, and 71st street. They are to be erected by a syndicate headed by B. F. Lindheimer of Lindheimer & Wells and including Henry Hedberg and James Bistor of Hedberg & Bistor and others.

The ten story hotel, tentatively named the Bryn Mawr, probably will be the first hostelry in the world to have a private roof garden for its guests so situated on an adjoining building that guests may have the pleasure of viewing it from their windows as well as using it for summer strolling, idling on deck chairs under gay colored awnings, or dancing on the proposed large open air dance floor.

Plan Swimming and Wading Pools.

This unusual feature will be carried out by Mr. Lindheimer by having an elaborate roof garden, 277 feet long and 100 feet wide, on the roof of the three story building just south of the hotel. This means that instead of a large expanse of unsightly roof to radiate heat during the summer to the seven upper floors of the hotel there'll be a stretch of attractive greensward and shrubbery, a swimming pool, and a sand pile on the bank of the pool for the hotel youngsters to play in and probably a wading pool for them also.

It is probable that the dance floor will be placed on the roof of the five story section, which would give dancers a view over the lake and the grounds of the South Shore Country club, just across the boulevard. Both the dance pavilion and the large roof garden will be connected with the hotel building, across the alley to the north, by bridges. A chute may be built so that bathers can slide from the roof of the five story section to the pool in the garden on the top of the three story building.

Hotel to Face Tiny Park on West.

All of the 720 rooms in the hotel will have outside views. Those facing south in the three wings of the building will look across the attractive green lawns of the roof garden and over the south shore district. The west wall of the hotel will face a seventy-four foot strip of ground between it and Oglesby avenue, which probably will be landscaped, so that the hotel will have a permanent view over the Bryn Mawr district.

Mr. Lindheimer says the plans, by Alfred S. Alschuler, call for the use of the same materials on all outside walls. In other words, it'll not be a "shirt front" building. It is understood also that the usual roof penthouse atrocities that can disfigure any building, no matter how beautiful, will be merged in one set-back story of some sort and treated architecturally to make it an integral part of the structure.

May Be Built Higher Later.

Work is to start first on the five story "71st and South Shore Plaza building," at the northwest corner of the drive and 71st, and the three story hotel adjoining. Construction of the ten story hotel will start shortly afterwards.

The two buildings on 71st will have foundations capable of carrying several additional stories. The corner store of the office section will be leased by a well known chain drug store. The second floor will contain shops. The three upper floors will be specially equipped for doctors and dentists.

The three story section will have stores on the first floor and a 105 room hotel on the two upper stories. Completion of these is set for Dec. 1.

SYNDICATE PLANS $600,000 CINEMA, CICERO-BELDEN

The Midwest syndicate has just completed the purchase of a strip of land with 400 feet of frontage at the northeast corner of Cicero and Belden avenues.

On 225 feet of this a $600,000 building to contain a 2,000 seat theater, bowling alleys, dance hall, stores and offices, is to be erected. The syndicate has engaged George S. Walter of the Walter company as its consulting engineer. Work is to start within thirty days.

H. O. Stone & Co. will manage the property. The playhouse probably will be called "The Midwest."

Plan Twenty-five Brick Bungalows in Calumet City

Cryer & Co. have started construction of five brick bungalows in their Sibley Park addition, three blocks west of Torrence avenue, on Sibley boulevard, in Calumet City. The building program of Cryer & Co. calls for twenty-five brick bungalows in their Sibley Park and State Street additions.

DR. THOREK WILL BUILD 12 STORY FLAT BUILDING

Located at North End of Lake Shore Drive.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

(Picture on page 1.)

Lake Shore Towers is the name of a twelve story apartment building which will be erected soon at 3918 to 3924 Lake Shore drive. And for those who don't believe that there is any such address on Lake Shore drive it is explained that this is a section of the famous thoroughfare which extends north a block to Irving Park boulevard from the point where Sheridan road turns west.

DR. MAX THOREK. [Morrison Photo.]

The building will be erected by Dr. Max Thorek, head of the American hospital.

Designed by Roy F. France & Co., the structure is in keeping with the latest apartment building projects, which are swinging away from the old standards of severe architecture to something more agreeable to the eye. The style of the building, both exterior and interior, will be in the Italian renaissance.

Bungalow on Roof.

Each floor will be divided into three apartments, two of five rooms and one of six rooms. Of course they will represent the latest word in appointments, and one feature of note will be swinging wrought iron gates which will separate the living and dining rooms.

Dr. Thorek will have an elaborate duplex apartment on the top floor, with a two story living room. There will be iron balconies off the sleeping apartment. And a fortunate young man is Dr. Thorek's son, Philip, a student at the University of Illinois medical school, who is to have a Spanish bungalow on the roof. Surrounding the bungalow will be an Italian garden.

Lake Shore Towers will be built of terra-cotta, stucco, and press brick, with the same material used on all four sides. The tower, from which the project gets its name, will hide the penthouses and will contain the elevator machinery.

Garages for Tenants.

The first floor is to contain a vestibule, lobby, lounges, and children's playrooms. There will be two entrances to the vestibule, one from Lake Shore drive and another from the side, which will be off an automobile runway. The runway will continue through the building to the rear, where a two car garage for each tenant will be located.

Work is expected to start within six weeks on the structure, which will overlook a section of Lincoln park now being filled in from the lake. The project, when completed, will represent an investment of about $1,000,000.

CHICAGO GROUP BUYS NORTHERN WISCONSIN LODGE

A group of Chicagoans and a number of citizens of Wisconsin cities have purchased 5,000 acres in the Eagle river district of northern Wisconsin which they will call Inawendiwin lodge, said to be the Chippewa Indian word for friendship. They will build a $120,000 clubhouse to contain 120 rooms. Each member is to have a site for his own home. There will be a nine hole golf course. The club owns a number of lakes, including Indian, Sugar Camp, Thunder, Rice, Columbus, Burnham, and Deer. It is located seven miles southwest of Eagle river.

The officers are: President, Kent G. Chetlain; vice presidents, R. C. O'Hair and O. A. McNeil; secretary, Ning Eley, and treasurer, Andrew J. Schultz.

VILLA VAUPELL IS NEW RESORT AREA NEAR McHENRY

Le Villa Vaupell is the name of a new lake resort subdivision which has just been opened by Magee & Worth, Inc., thirty-two miles from Chicago to the northwest. The property is five and a half miles northwest of Wauconda and three and a half miles southeast of McHenry. It has 4,000 feet on Lake Griswold, and is connected through a creek with Fox river, where it has 3,000 feet of heavily timbered river frontage. The property is owned by Dr. H. H. Vaupell and Jacob Vaupell.

Church Street Residence in Evanston Sold Twice

Judge and Mrs. Samuel W. Greene have sold their residence at 1315 Church street, Evanston, to Mrs. Evangeline S. Reid of 1710 Asbury avenue. Judge and Mrs. Greene are moving to Boston. Hokansoff & Jenks also report the resale of the residence at 1315 by Mrs. Reid to Mrs. Edith H. Howe of 913 Lee street, Evanston. Miss De Golyer represented the buyer.

CENTRAL MANUFACTURING DEAL.

J. Klein & Sons, metal dealers, have bought the three story building, 66x150, at 3544 South Morgan, in the Central Manufacturing district, for a reported $75,000, and will occupy it. E. N. Duerlein & Co. were brokers.

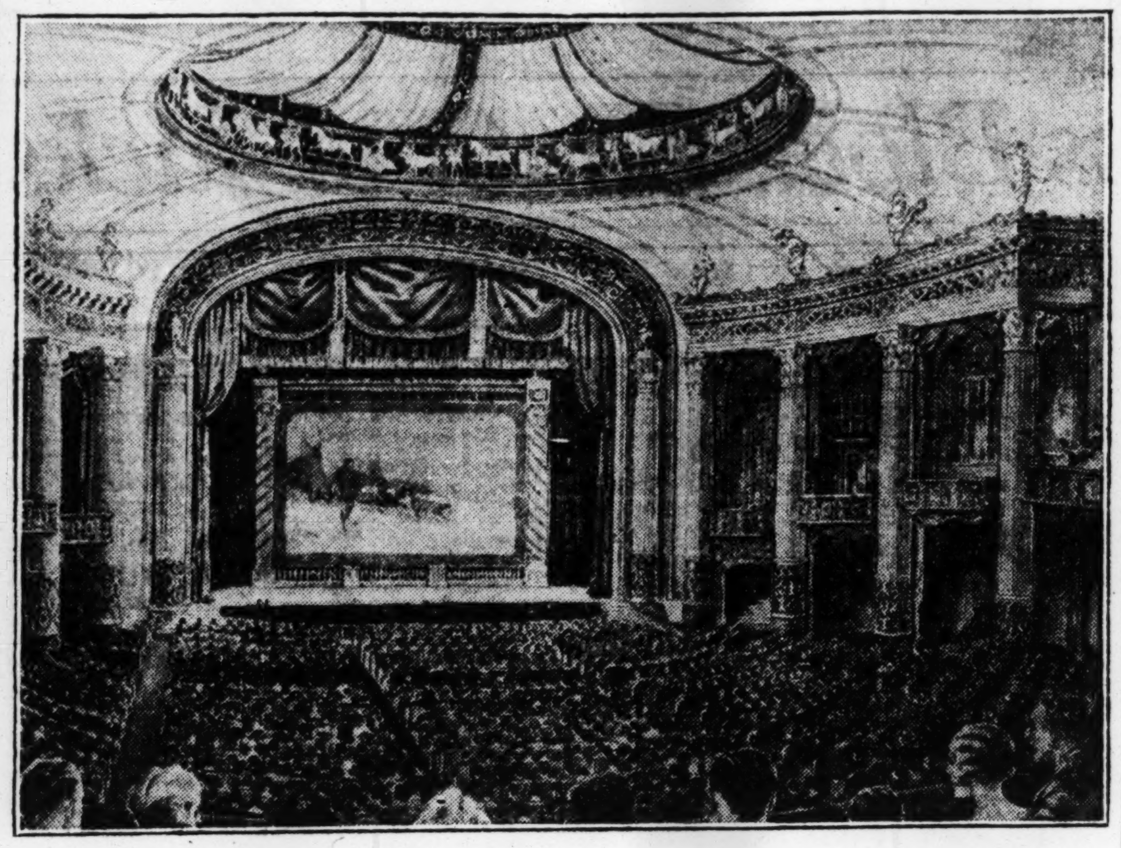
New from the Old



The romance of the ancient Greek playhouses in the land along the Mediterranean, especially in Sicily and southern Italy, will be found in the Sheridan theater, which is being erected by Ascher Bros. in Sheridan road just north of Irving Park boulevard. J. E. O. Pridmore is the architect for the structure, which will cost about $1,000,000 and seat 4,000.

DAYS OF OLD FIND ECHO IN THEATER ON SHERIDAN RD.

Designed Like Greek Playhouses.

Here's a new wrinkle in Chicago theatrical architecture that gets its freshness from a period of some 2,000 years ago. J. E. O. Pridmore, the architect, has taken his design for the auditorium of the new Sheridan theater, being erected for Ascher brothers in the west side of Sheridan road, just north of Irving Park boulevard, from the old Greek theaters which were popular along the shores of the Mediterranean, especially in Sicily and the southern tip of Italy.

He was especially influenced by a theater of the year 300 B. C., which he found in a beautiful valley near Naples. This theater was once the rendezvous of the wealthy and cultured of a Greek colony in the district.

May Step Into Romance.

So those fortunate enough to have best beaux or best girls, or what have you, may, in a few months, drop into this Sheridan road house and envelope themselves in the shades of romance of a long forgotten day, while the automobiles of our own hard boiled time whizz by outside.

The audience will see much the same surroundings, according to the architect, as did the Greeks of yesteryear. There will be a huge elliptical dome, embellished with a procession of heroic figures. Beyond this one sees what apparently is the open sky, partially hidden by a great canopy. The moon and stars may be seen in the uncovered spaces.

A Large Stage.

The theater is to have a handsome marble lobby sixty feet long, twenty-two feet deep, and sixty feet high. From this one enters the foyer, with a width of twenty-four feet and a length of 108 feet. The width of the auditorium is 108 feet, its depth is 104 feet, and the height from floor to ceiling is eighty feet.

The stage is 26x108 feet and is equipped for every kind of a performance. The structure will seat 4,000 and will cost about $1,000,000. H. O. Stone & Co. are underwriting a 6½ per cent bond issue on the project.

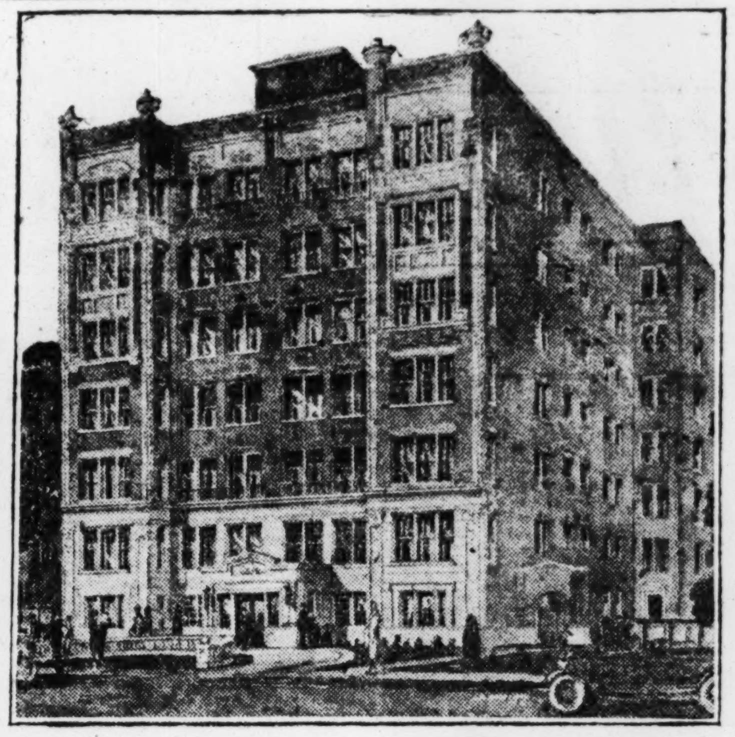
News of the Architects

Edward A. Nitsche has moved his architectural offices from 8 East Huron street to 28 East Huron street. His telephone number is unchanged.

Central Park Avenue Flat Building Sold for $65,000

The eleven flats and one store at the northeast corner of Grenshaw street and Central Park avenue were sold by Eva Green to Esther Savin for a reported $65,000. Charles B. Goodman represented both parties.

Madison Park Apartment



Harry J. Kusel & Co. are erecting a seven story apartment building at 1234-36 Madison park, for which the First Trust and Savings bank has underwritten a $210,000 bond issue. The plans call for twelve apartments of eight rooms each. The first floor will have a handsome lobby of Spanish design and also a number of clubrooms. The building will be ready for occupancy Oct. 1. Thomas R. Bishop is the architect and L. B. Sugarman made the above rendering.

$210,000 IS PAID FOR BUILDING IN AINSLIE STREET

The thirty-seven apartment building at the southeast corner of Harding and Ainslie has been sold by Joseph Handelsman to Philip Jacobson for a reported $210,000, subject to $155,000. Mr. Jacobson gave in part payment the thirteen apartment and two store building at the northeast corner of Robey and Iowa at $90,000, subject to $62,500. S. Yaffe and Frank Hilfinger of Abe Wexler & Co were brokers and Isador Fried and Irving Flam were attorneys.

The New Four Million Dollar Illinois Women's Athletic Club Will Be Equipped With Holmes Roller Beds

After the most careful investigation the women of the Building Committee of the Illinois Women's Athletic Club selected specially designed Holmes Roller Beds for use in the guest rooms of this beautiful Gothic club, which is one of the most remarkable achievements of Chicago's womanhood. Extreme discrimination has been shown in the selection of the most modern equipment and furnishings of this ideal Women's Club Building, which is distinctive for the grace and beauty of its design, the perfect harmony of its interior decorations and the refinement of its furnishings.

Visit Our Display of Holmes Concealed Beds

at 422 Garland Building and inspect our exhibit of handsome new model concealed beds equipped with improved full coil, resilient spiral springs that insure restful, refreshing sleep. They are graceful in design, and may be equipped with solid wood head and foot ends, beautifully finished in American walnut or mahogany.

Holmes Concealed Beds are ideal for use in bedrooms, guest rooms, living rooms, sun parlors, and sleeping porches, not only because they increase the sleeping accommodations and can be concealed completely during the day, but also because they give more restful sleep, greater comfort, convenience, better health and economize floor space.

REALTORS HERE LEAVE FOR BIG TULSA MEETING

Nineteen Chicagoans Will Address Convention.

Around 120 members of the Chicago real estate board are leaving the 12th street station via the Illinois Central this morning for St. Louis en route to the annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, which meets this year in Tulsa, Okla., from June 7 to 11.

JOSEPH K. BRITTAIN. [Walinger Photo.]

The national convention is the big event of the year in the American realty world and delegations will attend from practically every city in the United States and Canada.

The Chicago delegation will stop off at St. Louis for a jaunt around the city, after which they will be the guests at a dinner to be given by Joseph K. Brittain, president of the board. They will leave at 12 o'clock for Tulsa, arriving there Monday morning in time to attend the committee meeting which will be held prior to the convention.

Nineteen on Program.

The delegation will be in charge of President Brittain; Past President Charles S. Iversen, the national counselor; Past President Henry G. Zander, a director of the national association, and Albert W. Swayne, chairman of the national committee of the local real estate board.

The Chicago board is among the oldest and largest in the country and its representatives will play a large part in the work of the convention. Nineteen Chicagoans will take part in the program. They are:

George P. Ellis, "Cost of Doing a Brokerage Business."

Chester H. Green, "A Comparative Analysis of Current Sales Methods."

Maj. C. G. Kinney, "Comparative Legal Value of the Lease and the Shares of Stock in the Ownership of an Apartment Holding."

Harry H. Decker, "The Achievements of the Coöperative Apartment Movement."

Charles Randolph Thomas, "The Farm Land Dealer's Advertising Problem."

Fred M. Clarke, "Country and City Exchanges."

A. J. Berge, "Selling Through the Closed Door."

Henry A. Babcock, "The Relation of Income to Value."

Lou Harrington, "Membership Problems."

Pierce W. Jones, "Board Education."

Ernest M. Fisher, "Report on Standard Test."

David L. Wickens, "Financing Industrial Property."

J. H. Van Vlissingen, "Financing Industrial Property."

Irving D. Chandler, "The Use of Data Equipment in Business Building."

Benjamin F. Bills, "Building Up a Clientele."

Leo J. Sheridan, "Services of the Property Manager Before the Erection of a Building."

Charles P. Gray, "Capital Requirements for Purchasing, Developing, and Marketing a Subdivision."

Edwin T. Keiser, "A National Survey of License Law Problems."

Gen. Nathan William MacChesney, "Present Status of License Laws."

Will Give Trophy.

Among the most interesting events of the meeting will be a contest with a trophy donated by the Chicago board. The contest is one in which members of a number of boards are given five minutes to expound on the merits of their home towns. The winner will secure for his board the privilege of holding a silver cup for a year.

An elaborate entertainment is being planned by realty and business men of Tulsa, with exhibitions by Indians, dances, banquets, etc.

NOTED TRACT IN DU PAGE COUNTY BRINGS $130,200

One of the most interesting acre sales in months has just been reported from Du Page county, where George W. Prassas has purchased the 108 acres at the northeast corner of Joliet and Butterfield roads from Edward R. Johnston for a reported price of $130,200, or at the rate of $1,200 an acre. Mr. Prassas contemplates developing the property.

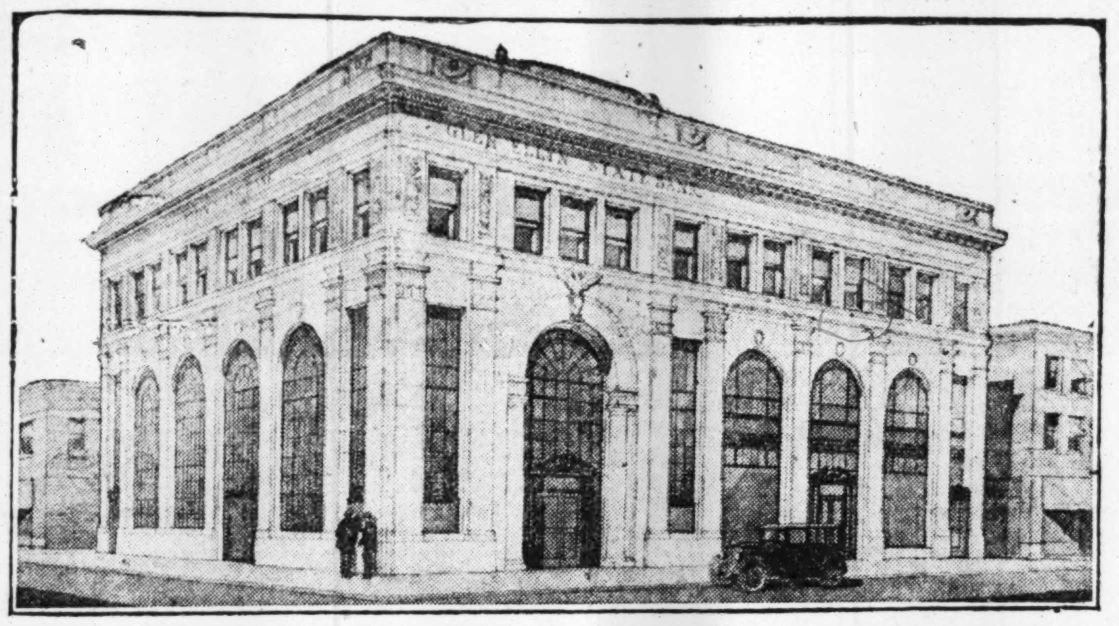
This property was the site of the Indian village of Bonaparte and lies opposite the Bonaparte school. It was in the ownership of the Davis estate from 1840 to 1903, when it was acquired by Mrs. Carrie Davis Burnidge, who remained in ownership up to last year, when she conveyed it to Mr. Johnston.

The property fronts approximately three-quarters of a mile on Butterfield road and about the same distance on Joliet road. E. L. Adams represented the seller and Lindheimer & Wells the buyer as brokers. Edward Johnston handled his own legal details and Sonnenchein, Berkson, Lautmann & Levinson represented Mr. Prassas.

BUYS FILLING STATION SITE.

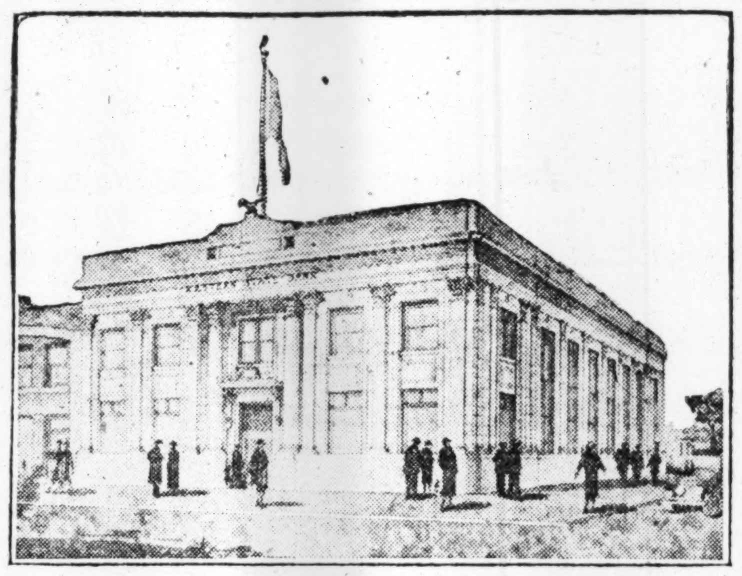
The Standard Oil company has purchased the southeast corner of Stony Island and 82d, 48x125, from Catherine Patterson for a filling station.

Glen Ellyn's New Bank and Postoffice Building



Wreckers have started demolishing the east half of the thirty year old building at the northeast corner of Crescent boulevard and Main street, Glen Ellyn, to make way for the new $200,000 three story Bedford stone building to be erected by the Glen Ellyn State bank to house both that institution and the post office. Joachim Guarino, for many years with Weary & Alford, bank architects, designed the above. The first section is scheduled for occupancy about Christmas. Joseph R. Smith is president of the bank, which is twenty-one years old.

Will Guard Against Holdups



Work will start shortly on a new building for the Western State bank at the northwest corner of 22d and 56th avenue, Cicero. Emil Liska is the architect and he has designed a building which will be a modern adaptation of the Greek Corinthian. The exterior is to be of Bedford stone with a base of highly polished granite. A feature of the interior will be a system of watchmen's galleries with bullet proof shields to guard against daylight holdup. The building will cost $175,000. The bank was organized in 1913 by Frank Kirchman and John W. Jedlan as the Kirchman State bank and was later reorganized and given its present name.

Pays $175,000 for Factory; Will Add Several Stories

The Barrett-Cravens company has bought from Walter Schroeder of Milwaukee the three story building at the southeast corner of 30th and Spaulding, for a reported $175,000. Several additional stories are to be added. The buyer manufactures trucks and elevators. William Kaplan represented all parties.

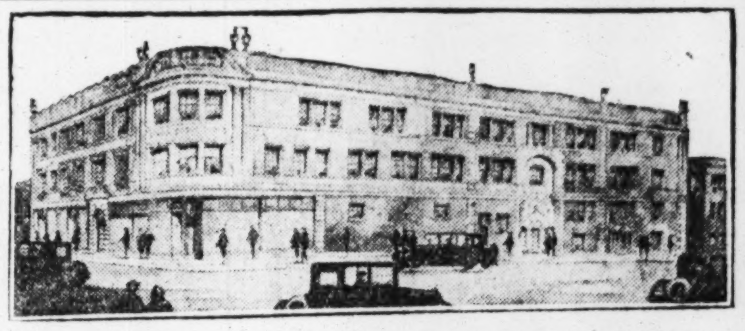
SALE ON BROADWAY.

Arthur Kruggel & Co. have purchased the business property at 5420-24 Broadway, on a lot 60x125, from Fannie Weis for a reported $65,000. The purchase was for investment.

Pays $300,000 for Building Near 75th-Cottage Grove

Edward M. Donnelly bought the Mannos building adjoining the northeast corner of 75th and Cottage Grove, containing stores, lodge halls, and the Mah Jong Gardens, for $300,000, according to Pickett & Walsh, brokers.

At North Shore Avenue and Clark



Loewenberg & Loewenberg designed the above three story building under construction at the northeast corner of North Shore avenue and Clark street by H. Cohen. It will contain three stores and fourteen flats and will be managed by Hogan & Reilly. S. Chester Danforth made the rendering.

Pays $143,000 for Kimbark and 54th St. Flat Building

Susan B. Levis has bought the twenty-four flats at the northeast corner of 54th and Kimbark from B. H. Gwathmey for a reported $143,000, subject to $96,000. Sam Glover of Leon Kirk & Son was sole broker.

Skobel & Greenberg to Build $45,000 Garage

Skobel & Greenberg, builders and realtors, will build a garage at 1415-17-19-21 Irving Park boulevard to cost $45,000. Maurice L. Bein is the architect.

PARK CASTLES
100% Co-operative

A Villa in Spain Would Not Rival a Park Castles Home at $4,200 to $8,500

PARK CASTLES, near Western and Lunt Avenues, is a splendid example of the advantages and economies possible in a 100% co-operative home. An individual residence of comparable comforts, conveniences, beauty and luxuries would cost many times the price of a 4, 5, or 6 room home in beautiful Park Castles.

Park Castles is the third unit in Gubbins, McDonnell & Bleitz's co-operative development on Indian Boundary Park—a 15 acre State park free from traffic and of unrivaled beauty. This development is said to be one of the finest and soundest co-operative projects ever undertaken in America. Indian Boundary Park merges, without streets between, into picturesque Italian gardens as one approaches Park Castles.

The apartment homes themselves are flooded with light, are roomy, conveniently arranged and beautifully equipped. Artistry prevails in every detail—yet nowhere at the expense of substantial, enduring quality. Park Castles was built for permanent owners—not for tenants or speculation. Sold on the exact plan that is recommended by authorities on co-operative investment, Park Castles offers you the home of your dreams at the price of a simple bungalow—with an initial payment as low as 1-3 of the equity.

Do not be misled about co-operative ownership. All nonspeculative 100% co-operative ventures have proven highly successful. First, come and see Park Castles. Drive to 7000 North and 2400 West. Take bus from Loyola "L" station or surface cars to property. Then investigate from every angle the proposition offered by Park Castles.

NOTABLE CO-OP ANNOUNCED FOR STRATFORD PL.

Hidden Penthouses and Setbacks Features.

If it may be judged from a photograph, one of the most attractive apartment buildings in the city is about to be erected at 535 Stratford place, extending through to Cornelia street. Two features make the structure outstanding among the common packing box variety of apartment building architecture. One is the use of setbacks and the other is an unusually pleasing architectural treatment of the penthouses on the roof.

This building will be located 307 feet west of Sheridan road, and it will have a frontage of 75 feet on both Stratford place and Cornelia street, with a depth of 200 feet between the two streets.

Adaptation of Gothic.

Hooper & Janusch are the architects, and their design is an adaptation of the Gothic. The building on the Stratford place side will be fifteen stories in height, with setbacks and a peaked roof, which will inclose the penthouses. On the Cornelia street side it will be twelve stories high.

Following the growing consideration for the beauty of the city, all four sides will be of face brick with heavy cut stone trim. The first two floors of the Stratford place side will be of cut stone, well designed.

The building will be divided into two sections, the Stratford side being coöperative and the Cornelia rentable units. The respective sides will have separate entrances. There are to be twenty-six coöperative apartments, ranging from six to eight rooms, and 112 renting units of from two to four rooms.

Wood Burning Fireplaces.

The coöperative apartments are to have the very latest equipment, including wood burning fireplaces, and the rentable units will have carpeted floors and other features.

Work is to start in about thirty days on the improvement which will represent an investment of $2,100,000 when completed. The owner is the Stratford Place Building corporation of which Albin J. Liepold Jr. is president and John Hicks, secretary and treasurer. Liepold & Hicks, Inc., will handle the sale of the coöperative apartments as well as have the management of the supporting units. George M. Forman and company have underwritten a loan of $1,220,000 at 6½ per cent. Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautmann, and Levinson handled the legal details for the owner.

$117,500 IS PAID FOR INTEREST IN PLANTERS HOTEL

W. E. Bayfield has sold a half interest in the Planters hotel, located between Madison and Washington streets on Clark, to George W. Youst for a reported price of $117,500. Mr. Youst for twenty-five years has been assistant manager of the Great Northern and Grace hotels. Frank W. Warden owns the other half. W. E. Schofield was broker in the deal.

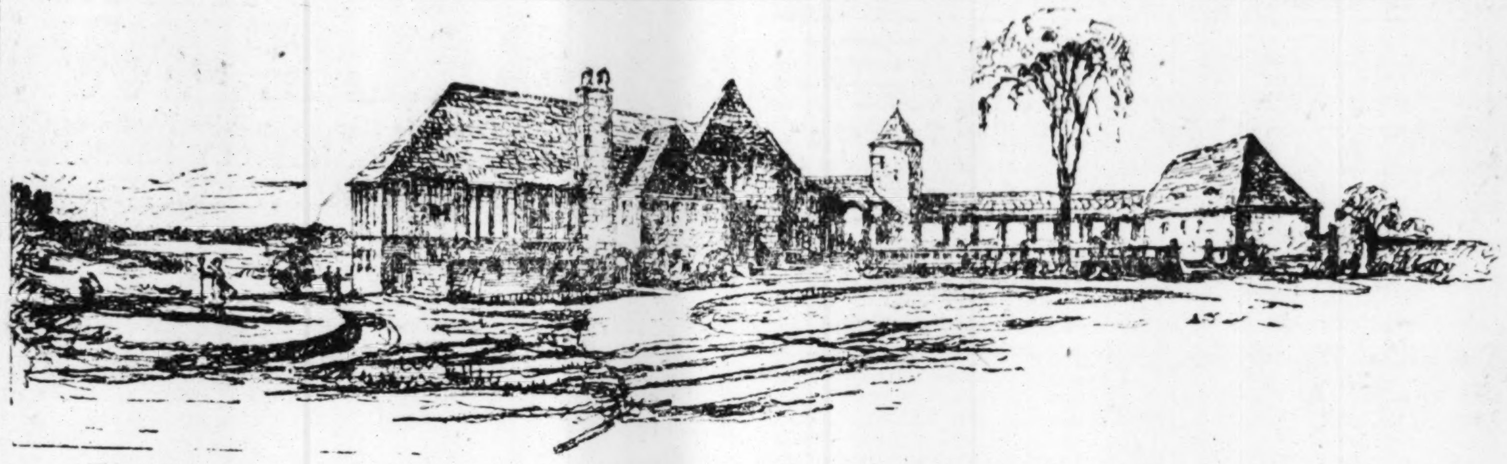
Start Building Program in Highmoor Subdivision

Work will start at once on several houses, the first unit of a comprehensive building program, by the J. C. Sterett company on the eighty acre "Highmoor" subdivision of Albert Pick, just west of Highland Park and scheduled for annexation to that town. The property is on Half Day road and is being laid out with winding roads and large lots.

Pays $40,000 for Vacant in South Ashland Avenue

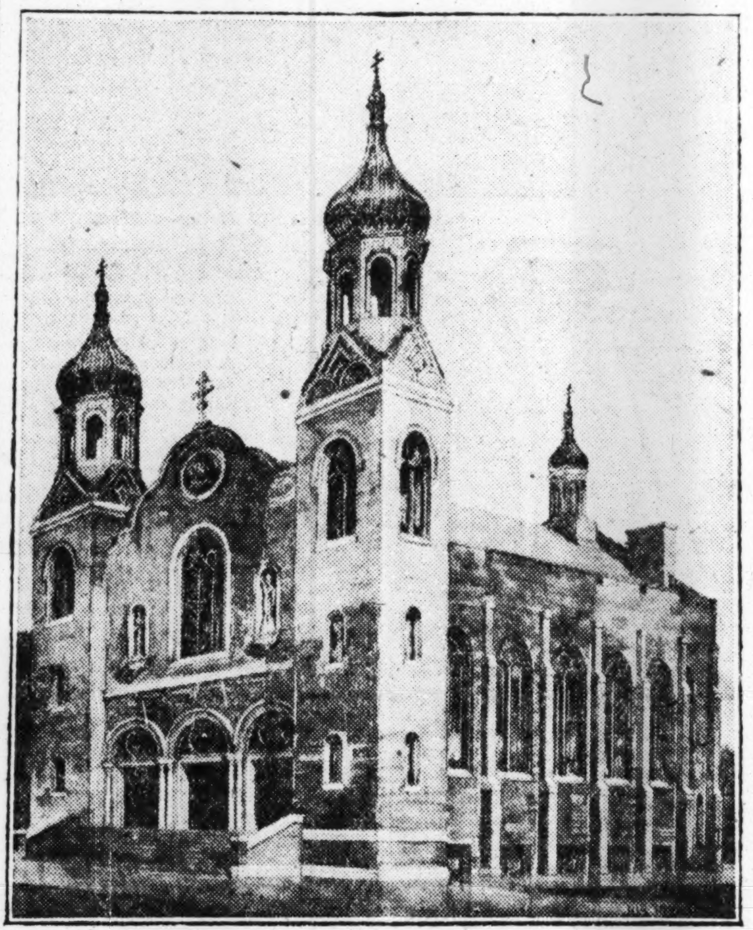
Stella M. Theede has taken title for an undisclosed purchaser to fifty feet of vacant property, east front, in South Ashland avenue, 193 feet south of 80th street, for a reported price of $40,000. The purchaser plans to improve the property shortly. W. E. Kaiser of the Ashland Realty company represented both parties.

Fox Lake Golf and Country Club



This is the new clubhouse of the Fox Lake Golf and Country club, to be erected from plans by Betts & Holcomb. The club has 120 acres at Fox Lake, Ill., and will operate as a winter and summer club. The nineteen hole course is rolling and dips down to Grass lake on the north and east and Fox, Nippersink, and Pistakee lakes can be seen from different parts of the grounds. Nine holes of the course will be ready by July 15, it is promised. The club has 100 members and will be increased to 350. F. Morse Holcomb made the above rendering.

Greek Catholic Church



Joseph J. Bednarik is the architect who designed the St. Mary Greek Catholic Russian church which will be erected at the northeast corner of 50th street and Seeley avenue. The cost will be about $75,000. The Rev. Max Relich is the head of the church.

Pays $30,000 for Six Flat Building in Calumet Ave.

James Casey sold the six apartment building at 5326-28 Calumet avenue to S. Murray Harris for a reported $30,000, subject to $20,000. Joseph A. Feldman of E. B. Woolf & Co., and P. J. Donahue were brokers, and Joseph J. Lelivelt handled the legal details.

MANY CITIES WAR AGAINST 'FREE LOT' OPERATORS

Force New Yorkers to Return Cash.

The real estate men who masquerade as Santa Claus in giving away "free lots"—with ropes attached to them—are receiving rough treatment in many cities throughout the country, according to the National Association of Real Estate Boards, which is carrying on a campaign against the sharp practices of these groups.

As is commonly known, it is the practice of some realty concerns to distribute cards in theaters and other places to be signed by the patrons. The cards are collected and shortly thereafter the holders are notified that they have won "free lots."

It usually develops that a lot won is large enough for a fair sized doll house and if any practical use is to be served another adjoining must be purchased. Or else the lot is so patently worthless that the salesman offers to use his influence with the "boss" to have the value applied on another lot. The value of the new lot of course is placed at a high enough figure to absorb the value of the "freet" lot and give a handsome profit.

Just Within the Law.

There are other twists to the free lot offer and usually the giver stays just within the law in carrying out his schemes.

The Real Estate board of New York has come to the aid of those simple souls in the metropolitan district who believe that there is any one in this twentieth century who is giving something for nothing, and jail sentences are planned for those convicted of fraud in connection with "free lot" schemes.

The officers, one a disbarred lawyer, of one group are under suspended sentence pending their return of $100,000 alleged to have been received through fraud. Another shady realty dealer has been given a fine of $250 or sitxy days in jail, while still another has forfeited his $10,000 bond and may now be on his way to Alaska to sell "free lots" at the north pole to the Eskimos.

Forced to Close.

In California the state real estate board commissioner has forced a "free lot" promoter to close up his real estate business. The Denver Real Estate exchange cited a member to appear before the ethics committee for using a "free lot" scheme in advertising and he withdrew from membership.

The Minneapolis Real Estate board announces that it has practically stopped the business of "free lot" operators in the Minnesota city. And from the real estate boards of Indianapolis and Fort Wayne, Ind., and Orlando, Fla., come notices of action against these tricksters in Santa's clothes.

Brokers' Notes

The Lascelles Realty company has opened a new office at 619 Davis street, Evanston, under the management of Miss Ida B. Lascelles. Miss Lascelles has been engaged in the real state business on the north sidef or several years.

Charles E. Nathan & Co., formerly Ludwig-Nathan & Co., Inc., announce the removal of their offices to suite 1220, 155 North Clark street.

Matthew J. McGrath will be in charge of the real estate office opened by Marcus Mullen at 2112 E. 83d street.

The real estate business of Crawford & Griffin at 1116 Bryn Mawr avenue has been sold to R. G. Ingersoll & Co., at 1110 Bryn Mawr avenue.

Walter C. Hoppie, for several years with McKey & Poague and also with J. M. McMinn & Co., has been appointed sales manager for Leon Kirk & Son of 220 East Garfield boulevard. He will continue to specialize in south side property.

Callistus S. Ennis & Co. announce the removal of their office to suite 1122-1134 Jewelers building, 35 East Wacker drive.

EUGENE DUPEE TO ADDRESS COUNTY BOARD'S CLASS

EUGENE H. DUPEE

Eugene H. Du Pee, an attorney, will speak before the real estate and law class of the Cook County Real Estate board on Tuesday evening, June 8, on the subject of "Public condemnation proceedings in connection with the right of eminent domain." Mr. Du Pee is an authority on the subject, having taken an active part in the proceedings in the cases of Wacker drive and Michigan boulevard.

William Zelosky, noted in subdivision circles, talked to the class last week. He stressed his belief that no subdivision should be platted in a section remote from transportation to await chance for it.

SYNDICATE BUYS 1,100 ACRES AND PAYS $377,300

A Chicago syndicate composed of Lee Lesser, Thomas Moulding, and others yesterday paid $377,300 for 1,100 acres in Cook and Du Page counties. There were five parcels. One comprised 447 acres in Lemont township, between 131st and 135th, on Archer.

Another contained 100 acres in Du Page county, a few miles south of Clarendon Hills, on the Plainfield road, near the town of Lace. A third was 190 acres west of Waukegan on Grand avenue, near Millionaire's lake.

A fourth was 282 acres near Palatine and the fifth was eighty acres south and east of Chicago Heights, on the County Line road. Newton B. Lauren & Co. were the only brokers.

PRAIRIE-48TH FLATS SOLD.

Cora Kirk has sold the thirty-two flats at the southwest corner of 48th and Prarie to Lew Balch for an undisclosed consideration. Levinson, Hoffman & Rein were attorneys for the seller.

KEWANEE
Steel+Rivets=Strength

The Steel Age
OUR modern world has grown around a steel skeleton. Back of everything we do lies the steel backbone. The houses we live in, the conveyances which bear us to work, our offices and shops, our tools of employment, and our toys of pleasure are all dependent on steel. It is as essential to our present-day life as air and water and fire.
—Collier's Weekly Editorial

Absolutely true! It is proved wherever you look—wherever you go. The country's strength and prosperity stand on a foundation of steel. It is the lasting element which grabs and holds your confidence.

And that's why Kewanee Boilers are made of steel. Nothing else is just as good or half as good as steel plates riveted together. That's why Kewanee Boilers are sought by smart men who realize the false economy of inferior types which cost less in the beginning and far more in the end.

The apartment you live in, the hotel you stop at, the church you attend, the building where you work, the big theatres you visit, every form of transportation you use, are all built of steel.

The boiler is the heart of the building. It's renting and selling values rise or fall according to the boiler which heats it. Buildings in which Kewanee Boilers are used are never a drug on the market and the ability of the Kewanee Boiler to burn any grade of coal without smoke, makes it a high-class economical asset.

NEW PROFESSION IN BUILDING GAME EXPLAINS AIMS

Quantity Surveyors Will Meet Tomorrow.

Members of a profession comparatively new in this country, but in standing in England and in Europe for thirty years will hold a convention at the Hotel Sherman from June 7 to 9. This profession is that of the quantity surveyor—an individual whose business it is to take an architect's blue print and from it draw up the exact amounts of material required for a project.

C. T. BURMAN. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Quantity surveyors from all over the country will attend the meeting which is expected to be of especial interest to builders, architects, and real estate men interested in building.

Chicago has a number of pioneers in the field in this country, among whom are C. T. Burman of the Burman Quantity Bureau and Anton Peterson of 715 Barry avenue.

Many Blue Prints Required.

As it now stands contractors bidding for the various items all must have blue prints. Beside considerable confusion, there must be, according to Mr. Burman, important unnecessary expense under the old system. Taking the 1925 figures for Chicago, Mr. Burman says that of the $361,825,000 spent for building, approximately $19,538,550 was expended in the taking of estimates or quantity from architect's plans and specifications. This, Mr. Burman says, is 5½ per cent of the total cost. He says that quantity surveyors might have reduced this figure to $5,427,375, a saving of $14,111,175.

According to Mr. Peterson and Mr. Burman, the experienced quantity surveyor is able to make a far more accurate estimate of the material and labor requirements than under the present system. It is also possible to center responsibility, difficult when there might be any number of blue prints in the hands of contractors.

Gain By Economy.

Under the generally used system contractors must add to their bill the cost of making the estimate for the materials required. This would be obviated, according to the preponnents of the methods, by the quantity surveyor who would make one estimate for each of the bidders. Owners would gain by not having to pay for unnecessary material bought through slip-shod estimates.

The backers of the method also submit a number of other technical advantages over the present system that are too lengthy for discussion here.

In England the fee of the quantity surveyor usually is 2½ per cent of the amount of each individual contract.

LOOKING BACKWARD

To June 6, 1916: 10 Years Ago Today

An event of much importance in connection with the present agitation regarding "padded" flat leases, the over loaning and over building in this field, was the action taken by the Chicago Real Estate board at its monthly meeting last week in instructing the apartment building committee to investigate the matter of the alleged "padded" leases and report at the next meeting of the board. The committee is composed of Adolph Kramer, John A. Carroll, Warner G. Baird, J. J. Harrington Jr., and Homer H. Schneider. The committee has it in its power to do much to restore the confidence of investors in this class of property and it is hoped and believed the matter will be treated in the broad and thorough manner it deserves.

JOHN A. CARROLL.

The Bohemia club will add one story to the former residence of William Lorimer at Douglas boulevard and Lawndale avenue which it purchased in 1912 from Mr. Lorimer for $30,000. The addition will cost the club $20,000.

Paul Steinbrecher & Co. sold for Lucy P. and Dora Allen to Charles E. Kremer, the maritime lawyer, the three story stone front dwelling at 1142-44 North State parkway for $20,000. Winston & Co. were associated in the transaction.

Albert F. Keeney has sold to Raymond G. Hancock a tract of sixty-five lots, comprising the remaining lots in his first and second subdivisions, the consideration given being $35,000. The lots are thirty-one feet front on Waller, Mango, Hunter, and Mansfield avenues, between North and Wabansia avenues, and will be improved with high class brick bungalows. Maurice Greenspan represented Mr. Hancock and Rick & Divine Mr. Keeney.

To June 6, 1896: 30 Years Ago Today

The corner stone of St. Boniface school will be laid tomorrow, the Reverend Father Fischer officiating. He will be assisted in the ceremonies by Henry J. Schlacks of the firm of Schlacks & Ottenheimer, who are the architects of the building. The new structure will be one of the finest parochial schools in the city. The first and second stories will contain six schoolrooms. The basement will be divided into two large playrooms, one for boys and the other for girls. The third floor will contain a large entertainment hall. The front of the building is designed in the Corinthian style of architecture.

HENRY J. SCHLACKS.

Upwards of $300,000 worth of lots has been sold in the last sixty days in the Surrenden subdivision, at the terminus of the Northwestern "L." All the half mile frontage on Sheridan road has been sold with the exception of three lots. The purchases are evenly divided between those who desire to build homes and those who buy for speculative purposes only. A large apartment house, with the appearance of a residence, to be equipped with the best conveniences, is planned for one of the lots fronting on Sheridan road.

Rounds & Wetten state that the demand for good locations for lease along Lake street and Wabash avenue is on the increase, the inquiries coming from new and eastern firms.

W. D. Kerfoot has sold for the Parkside company the property at the northwest corner of Lake View avenue at St. James court. The tract fronts 158 feet on Lake View avenue, and the price paid, $50,000, is at the rate of $316 a front foot.

To June 6, 1906: 20 Years Ago Today

Another important improvement on Michigan avenue is promised in case the city council adopts the recommendation of the finance committee with reference to the offer of J. L. Kesner to erect a building at 148-149 Michigan avenue to house the Municipal courts of the first district. Mr. Kesner's proposition, which was submitted by H. O. Stone & Co., involves the construction of a twelve story building. Mr. Kesner holds the property under a long term lease from the Fowler estate at an annual rental of $10,000.

J. L. KESNER.

An interesting west side transaction involves the construction by Hyde & Behman of a new theater at Madison and Green streets. The site has been purchased for $66,700. It includes 40x50 feet at the southwest corner of Madison, improved with a four story building bought from Mrs. Jacob Wolford for $35,000. This will become the entrance. It adjoins in the rear 100 feet on Green street and is 120 feet deep. It was bought from three owners. The theater will, it is understood, be devoted to burlesque and construction is to begin at an early date.

The Mount Glenwood Cemetery association has purchased from George M. and John S. Williams a tract of 141 acres in Bloom township, about three miles of the city, for $150,000

Last week a photograph was printed in this section of John F. Wallace, chief engineer of the Panama canal, as interested in a real estate sale in 1906. The photograph should have been of John F. Wallace, a real estate man.

Vincennes-47th Corner Changes Hands: $135,000

L. H. Hanson has purchased from Ann Cherner and Philip Cohen the nine stores and sixteen apartments at the northeast corner of Vincennes and 47th, 120x125, for a reported $135,000. Harry C. Moylan of Draper & Kramer was broker.

Plan $150,000 Building at Ashland and 69th St.

Peter Tampourlos, Nick Gianacakos, and James Pappadimitrio have bought the northwest corner of 69th and Ashland and contemplate erecting a $150,000 store and office building, according to Allen & Nikopoulos, brokers.

Bryn Mawr and Wayne Flat Building Sold for $55,000

The six apartments and five garages at the northwest corner of Bryn Mawr and Wayne avenues have been sold by Nels B. Johnson to John J. Moser for a reported $55,000. May Bradley of M. Hoffman & Co. closed the deal.

PLASTERING—

the Only Satisfactory Interior Finish

WATCH the Plasterer—he transforms the rough wood studs or masonry into beautiful rooms with perfect ceilings and walls. No other mechanic in the construction industry has more responsibility in the transformation of chaos into livability.

Down through the ages of architecture, plaster has been the standard interior finish and will so continue. It is not possible to straighten walls or ceilings or to completely seal the rough construction, nor to present an unbroken decorative surface, unless it is put on in a plastic state to harden and set upon the walls.

No precast or machine-made product has this property nor does it effect such lasting economy as plaster.

When you consider plastering and its importance, consult your architect and contractor as to the greater economy of Better Plastering on Metal Lath. Get alternate bids and know the low cost.

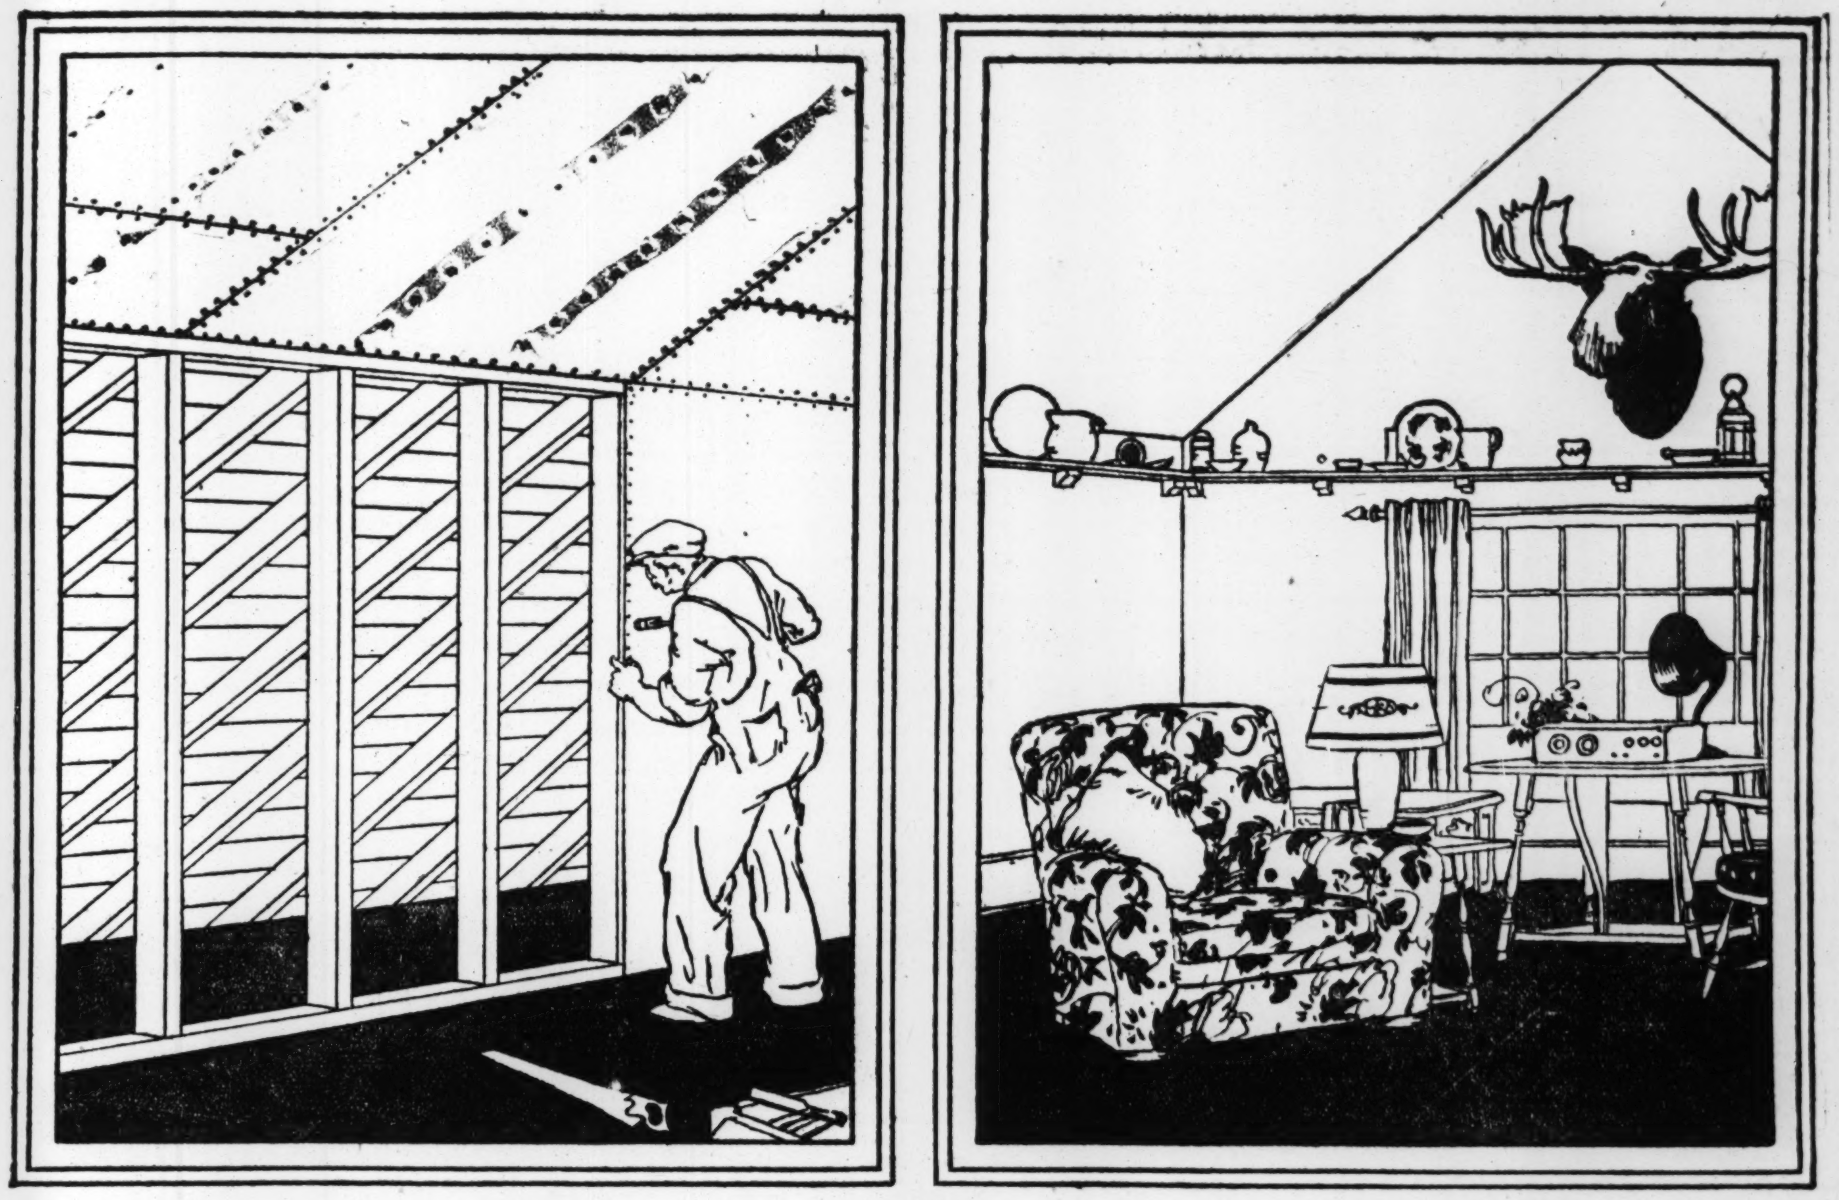
LOOK HERE!

— the same money buys this superior plaster wall board!



For perfect walls and ceilings

BEAVER BESTWALL is a superior plaster wall board—an improved plaster wall board. It offers decided advantages—but it costs no more than other plaster wall boards.

How Bestwall excels

Beaver Bestwall is made of purest gypsum rock from Beaver mines, reduced to a fine plaster in Beaver mills, then formed into rock-like slabs 4 feet wide and 6 to 10 feet long, and of uniform thickness.

These clean slabs of Beaver Bestwall are faced, not with the usual paper, but with an improved, very tough, fibre facing, made by Beaver fibre experts. Combined with the hard plaster core, this tough fibre facing produces a remarkable strength. Actual "break" tests, as well as exhaustive laboratory experiments, prove it.

This means that walls and ceilings made of genuine Beaver Bestwall offer a maximum resistance to the strains, knocks and jolts that walls receive in daily service.

Yet, because Beaver Bestwall is 100 per cent Beaver-made—from the gypsum rock in the mines to the exclusive fibre facing—it costs you no more than the ordinary paper faced plaster wall boards.

Added advantages that insure beautiful homes

Another quality of this improved Beaver fibre facing is its hard, smooth surface. It offers an ideal base for charming decorative effects.

Being calendered and sized, paints bond to it perfectly. They dry out evenly and with full richness of color. There is no dullness due to absorption. There is no unevenness due to poor surfacing.

Furthermore, there is a decided saving in decorative cost. Note by the "water glass" and the "paint" tests that Beaver Bestwall, due to the fibre facing, is unusually non-porous and non-absorbent. It does not soak up paint or calcimine or other finishes. A little goes a long way. You save both in labor cost and in materials.

Even wall paper goes on easier, more smoothly and stays tight. It can be removed later without damage to the tough, hard surface. Thus redecorating is possible whenever desired—a very important feature.

See your Beaver Products dealer

These are some of the reasons why Beaver Bestwall insures strong walls—serviceable walls—permanently beautiful walls, yet cost no more.

Why deny yourself these added advantages? Why be satisfied with less when you can have more—at no greater cost?

There is a representative building supply or lumber dealer selling genuine Bestwall in every locality. You can tell it by the cream-colored fibre surface and the famous Beaver trademark.

Insist upon this improved board. If you do not know the Beaver Bestwall dealer, write us.

BEAVER
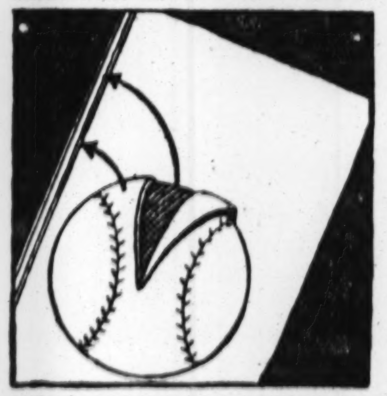
the superior plaster wall board

You can tell the genuine Bestwall by its exclusive cream-colored surface.



A Simple Comparison

Its tough cover enables the golf ball or baseball to withstand terrific impacts of club and bat. The same thing applies to plaster wall board. The extra tough fibre facing—permanently bonded to the rock plaster center—gives Beaver Bestwall its remarkable strength.

The "Water Glass" and "Paint" Test

Place a sample of Beaver Bestwall over a glass of water. Invert the glass so sample is underneath the water. Also apply paint to a sample. Note how little is absorbed in each case. Very economical.

The "Fire" Test

Every panel of Beaver Bestwall—the superior plaster wall board—is approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, and manufactured under their laboratory supervision.

The "Surface" Test

Swiftly rub your finger tips over the fibre facing of Beaver Bestwall. Note that it does not scuff up and become woolly—a feature of the fibre facing which is sized and calendered.

The "Strength" Test

Lay a piece of Beaver Bestwall across two piles of bricks or between two chairs. Pile heavy weights on the center. Note the surprising weight it will hold without breaking.

Easy to Apply

Saws and nails like lumber. Quickly applied to studding over old walls or ceilings. Will not warp, buckle, crack, crumble or fall. Is fireproof, moisture-proof. Produces smooth, clean, permanent walls and ceilings.

Many Uses

Use it for durable, fireproof walls and ceilings in new dwellings and buildings of every kind.

For quick, permanent, economical repairs for remodeling at low cost—reclaiming wasted attic space; lining garage or summer cottages; adding needed rooms, or walls in the cellar; making partitions in stores, factories—and for 101 other uses where a smooth, clean, permanent wall that will not warp, crack, crumble or fall is required.

THE SUPERIOR PLASTER WALL BOARD

FARM AND GARDEN

City Consumer Is Going to the Farm to Buy Vegetables

And Avoids the Price Tacked On by the Middleman.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

MARKET gardeners in the Chicago trucking district are gradually developing profitable casn and carry, direct-from-grower-to-consumer, businesses where the farmers pass their fresh vegetables on to their city customers over unpretentious stands at the garden gate, instead of selling their crops to central marketing agencies. Thousands of these stands are located along the highways that lead out from the city and they are furnishng keen competition for the green grocers in Chicago and its suburbs. From the last of May until the first of November literally thouands of housewives, cooks, and commissaries drive out to these country roadside stands two or three times a week, and sometimes daily, to buy their vegetables direct from the man who grows them.

The roadside system of marketing is a direct blow to the middleman, and its development indicates how producers of farm products and city consumers are getting together in a quite but effective way to settle their mutual trouble over prices. Kicking about the low prices they are paid for their products brought little relief to farmers, and kicking about the high prices they pay for the farmer's products brought little relief to the producer's city customers. But buying at the farmer's front gate is effective. The consumer is now able to buy vegetables without the middlemen's profits tacked on and the farmer gets more for his crops, sold over the roadside stand, than he is paid when he hauls them into the city market.

Selling Direct.

Selling direct over counters along the highway naturally eliminates a lot of extra handling and service, which costs money and must be paid by the consumer who buys from the neighborhood grocer. It shortens the route from the field to the table. Farmers have the satisfaction of knowing that their high quality products get into the hands of their customers in first class shape. The city consumer gets the vegetables when they are fresh; the products are in much better condition because in most cases they are in the home within a few hours after they are pulled, picked, or cut from the garden. With automobiles and hard roads the truck gardens with their roadside retail stands around the rim of the city are the next thing to having a home garden at the consumer's own back door.

Fred Bestmann, a vegetable gardener on Ballard road, a mile east of Des Plaines, Ill., is an example of this new type of producer-retailer. Last year he sold over a stand in front of his home all the vegetables grown in his own twenty-two acre field, his father's twenty acres, and a part of the crops raised on his brother August's truck farm near Palatine, Ill. Last season they averaged selling more than $40 worth of vegetables every day, including Sundays, from the latter part of May until the first part of November. During the busy part of the season it was common for their total sales from Saturday morning to Sunday night to run around $250.

Demand for Mr. Bestmann's vegetables has grown to the point where he has added a third more acreage for this season, in addition to forty acres of crops coming from his brother's farm, making a total of seventy-two acres of vegetables that are being grown to pass over the stand this summer and fall. This is in reality the equivalent of more than 200 acres of vegetables, for each acre will produce about three crops under the planting system followed by the Bestmann brothers.

When Honesty Pays.

Fred Bestmann is frequently referred to as one of the most successful truck gardeners in Cook county—not merely a skillful producer of high quality products but a salesman. He knows what it takes to bring more and more customers to his front gate. Every other market gardener knows Fred Bestmann's formula for getting customers, but not all of them follow it. Bestmann puts only fresh vegetables on his roadside counter; he offers them at reasonable prices; he is liberal in measuring and weighing, and knows the value of satisfying a customer. These simple principles, which have built many successful businesses, are adhered to day in and day out as hundreds of cars are loaded by Mr. Bestmann, his wife, an their two helpers.

Honest methods of salesmanship are kept in mind by him from the time he buys his garden seed and prepares the hotbeds and fields for planting and transplanting in early spring until the vegetables are put in the hands of the consumer. He grows about every kind of vegetable listed in seed catalogues and selects varieties that fit into the quick methods of marketing that can be practiced over the roadside counter.

While Mr. Bestmann walked around on his hands and knees in his garden the other day, pulling up some of his earliest radishes and bunching them for the roadside stand, he took the time to give me the variety names of the different crops, beginning with the vegetables which he starts early in the season and transplants as soon as it is warm enough.

What Mr. Bestmann Raises.

Here are the notes I jotted down on my pad as Mr. Bestmann crawled around and talked:

"You want to know what I planted in my hotbed?" he said. "I can work and talk, too. You write 'em down as I tell it to you. Head lettuce—I have good luck with Big Boston and Iceberg varieties here in this sandy loam soil. I grow about a half acre of heads. I use Black Simpson leaf lettuce. It's the variety I start in the hotbed the same time I start the head lettuce. I use the same variety of leaf lettuce later when I can start the seeds in the open.

"Kohlrabi—White Vienna is my choice.

"Tomatoes—I'll give you the varieties in the order in which they ripen. Early June Pinks come first; John Bears next; Ponderosa, the one that makes the large beaf steak slices, is third, and Beauty last.

"Beets—Crosby's Egyptian and Detroit, the dark red variety of beet.

"Early cabbage—For the first crop I use early Jersey Wakefield, Copenhagen for the summer crop, and Buchner for sauerkraut.

"Pepper—Bull Nose, finger pepper, and the large hot pepper.

"I also start German celery in my hot beds," added Mr. Bestmann.

Selling Only the Best.

"What's the idea of throwing away radishes like that?" I asked him as he split a radish in two with his thumb nail and tossed it into a furrow.

"I always throw away radishes like that one," he said, picking up the gnarled root to show me where a worm had gnawed into one side. "You can't fool a customer who buys from the stand. They find the ill shaped or inferior vegetables when they prepare them for the table. I might leave them in if I were selling them on the market in town."

There is apparently keen competition among vegetable gardeners who sell their vegetables direct to consumers. It is common to see cars lined up by the dozens at one stand, while clerks at other stands, often less than 100 yards away displaying about the same kinds of vegetables, will be standing with their arms folded.

Bestmann says that customers shop up and down the highway and soon locate the stand where they get the most for their money. He says that a penny's difference in the price of a bunch of radishes, a pound of beans, a bunch of lettuce, or a quart of peas will often take business away from the other farmer.

Then I asked him to give me some idea of how he prepared his vegetables and what prices he charged in order to compete with others in his neighborhood.

Why Customers Buy.

Beginning with the earliest crops offered for sale over the stand at Mr. Bestmann's front gate, here are the prices he charges:

Rhubarb, 12 stalks in a bunch, 5 cents.

Asparagus, 12 tips in a bunch, 2 bunches for 15 cents.

Green onions, 24 in a bunch, 2 bunches for 15 cents. These are onions grown from seed sown in the open garden in the fall.

Radishes, 25 to 30 in a bunch, the earliest ones were sold this spring at 4 cents a bunch and a little later they were offered in three bunch lots at 10 cents, or 50 bunches at 2½ cents a bunch.

Lettuce, 2 quarts in a basket, 10 cents.

Spinach, 10 to 15 cents a peck. Later prices change depending upon supply and demand.

Early bunch beets, 5 to 6 in a bunch, the first ones selling at 3 bunches for 10 cents. Later they are sold at 2 cents a bunch.

Carrots, 5 to 6 in a bunch, with prices about the same as beets.

Early June peas, which ordinarily are ready by June 15, but will be coming on the market about the first of July this year, are usually sold over Bestmann's stand at from 3 to 4 cents a pound.

String beans, 2 quart basket of the early Weber wax, a stringless variety, sells at 10 to 15 cents a basket. Later the long measure green bean sells at the same price.

Peppers of different kinds are sold in 2 quart baskets at 10 cents a basket.

Cucumbers, the small size for pickling are sold for prices that run as low as $1 for 75 pounds. The first ones are sold at $1.50 a bushel. The long green slicing cucumbers, 2 cents each.

Muskmelons, 5 to 20 cents each, depending upon the size. Some of these weigh as much as eleven pounds.

Sweet corn of the Evergreen Bantam variety sells at 20 cents for a dozen ears early in the season, dropping down to 10 cents a dozen later in the year. White Evergreen, sold for corn relish, coming late in the fall, sells at 10 to 20 cents a dozen.

Cabbage sells at 5 to 10 cents a head, weighing from ½ to 5 or 6 pounds each. Late cabbages used for sauerkraut are sold by Mr. Bestmann at from 40 to 75 cents a dozen heads.

Tomatoes of the Early June Pink variety sell at 5 cents a pound; the John Bears at 3 to 4 cents a pound, and the Ponderosas sell at about the same price as the John Bears.

German celery, four bulbs in a bunch, sells at 10 cents a bunch.

Summer squashes, 3 and 4 for 10 cents, and the yellow crook necks at about the same price. Acorn squash, a new kind of baking squash, 4 for 10 cents; the Hubbard squashes, 5 to 15 cents a piece.

Garlic, 8 bulbs for 10 cents.

Horseradish, 8 to 10 cents a pound.

Curly parsley, 2 handfuls for 5 cents.

Herbs, such as sage and thyme, 5 cents a handful.

Popcorn, 3 pounds for 25 cents.

Mr. Bestmann says there are times when a gardener can sell his crops on the market for more than he can get over the roadside stand, but the trucker who expects to keep his customers year after year must keep his stand open; he can't afford to close it one year and open it the next.

PRODUCER AND RETAILER

ROADSIDE VEGETABLE STAND.—Fred Bestmann, a trucker near Des Plaines, Ill., wears the counters of this roadside stand slick every year handling all of the vegetables grown on his 32 acre farm. Everything grown on his truck farm and the crops grown on his father's 20 acres, besides many dollars' worth coming from his brother's farm, were handled through this stand last year. Seventy-two acres of crops will be retailed here this season. Mr. Bestmann, on the right, is shown here coming in from the field with fresh asparagus tips. Mrs. Bestmann was snapped selling radishes and asparagus to a Chicago customer who has been buying from Bestmann's stand for several years. From May to November an average of more than $40 worth of vegetables a day is sold by Mr. Bestmann direct to his city customers.

Complete Garage Satisfaction

BELMONT garages are built complete—and guaranteed to satisfy. The garage itself is of the finest construction—built to last a lifetime. But there's far more to BELMONT garages than that. Every part of the job is right: The cement floor is four inches thick, laid on a four-inch bed of cinders. The electric wiring is neatly installed, with a ceiling light and trouble light on a fifteen-foot cord. Water is installed through a deep trench—no danger freezing in winter. Then the paint—white lead, oil and turpentine, two good coats and trim—any colors you wish. Every part of our work will please you.

ABOVE all, you have the BELMONT guarantee of satisfaction—the guarantee of a responsible, financially sound corporation. You take no risk and you save money. Naturally, operating our own lumber yards and construction department enables us to save you the middlemen's profits. Look into this. Make us prove to your satisfaction that the BELMONT garage is the best—and cheapest in the long run. For full details, mail the coupon above. You will not be obligated to buy.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

LOUISE BARGELT.
[Chambers Photo.]

A house in the achitectural style of the medieval French chateau has been designed for today by Lyman C. Jones, 19 South La Salle street, Chicago.

In this department, from time to time, numerous designs have been shown of dwellings small and large, in the Colonial, the English, the Dutch, the Spanish and the Californian. There have also appeared several instances of small French cottages, which always find favor with many people through their exterior charm and their interior conciseness of arrangement.

But this is the first time that the chateau of old France has been shown in an up to date American version of a home, fashioned primarily for the small family, but possessing in its arrangement distinct possibilities for enlargement later on if desired.

Nor could any residence of similar size present more of the present day demands of the average home builder.

Garage in Right Wing.

A garage in the right wing, a sun porch in the left, a lavatory on the first floor, and two baths on the second, not to mention the abundant provision for closet and storage space throughout the house. If desired, with little extra expense, a bath and extra room could be installed on the third floor.

Following out the color scheme of the old French chateau, the exterior here is of cream colored stucco, trimmed in gray stone or gray brick. The roof is of purplish gray shingles. Whatever woodwork is on the exterior is stained a golden brown and the outside of the windows is painted a light bluish green.

The doorway of the house shows how attractive an old French adaptation can be when it is used in moderation and restraint. A stone entrance, with a simple yet dignified touch of ornamentation, has a wood paneled door leading into a tile vestibule.

There is an oak seat on one side of this and a closet for wraps on the other.

From this opens the square hall, with a gracefully ascending stair occupying one end. Opposite it is an extra closet for first floor utility, and a lavatory at the extreme rear.

It can easily be seen how light and airy the first floor will be, owing to the full length French windows. These same windows make of the sun room a practical sun porch in the summer time, although the room is finished completely for inside use the year around if desired.

An Up to Date Kitchen.

The kitchen is amply provided with cabinets, outside refrigeration, and also an electric fan to exhaust heat and eliminate odors. At the right is the garage, attached to the house, and so designed as to keep intact the chateau outlines and spirit.

The stairway construction as suggested is of dark English oak, which is perhaps the greatest favorite in stair construction. Pine and spruce are either of them excellent, however, and take a dark stain extremely well. With an oak, chestnut, or cypress stair the stain should be used sparingly if at all. The natural beauty of these woods is sufficiently enhanced by rubbing in oil, shellac, and wax. Besides this, they darken with age and their decorative value is gradually increased.

The stair is three feet wide. Two and a half feet would be sufficient if more space seemed to crowd the hall.

Has Two Baths.

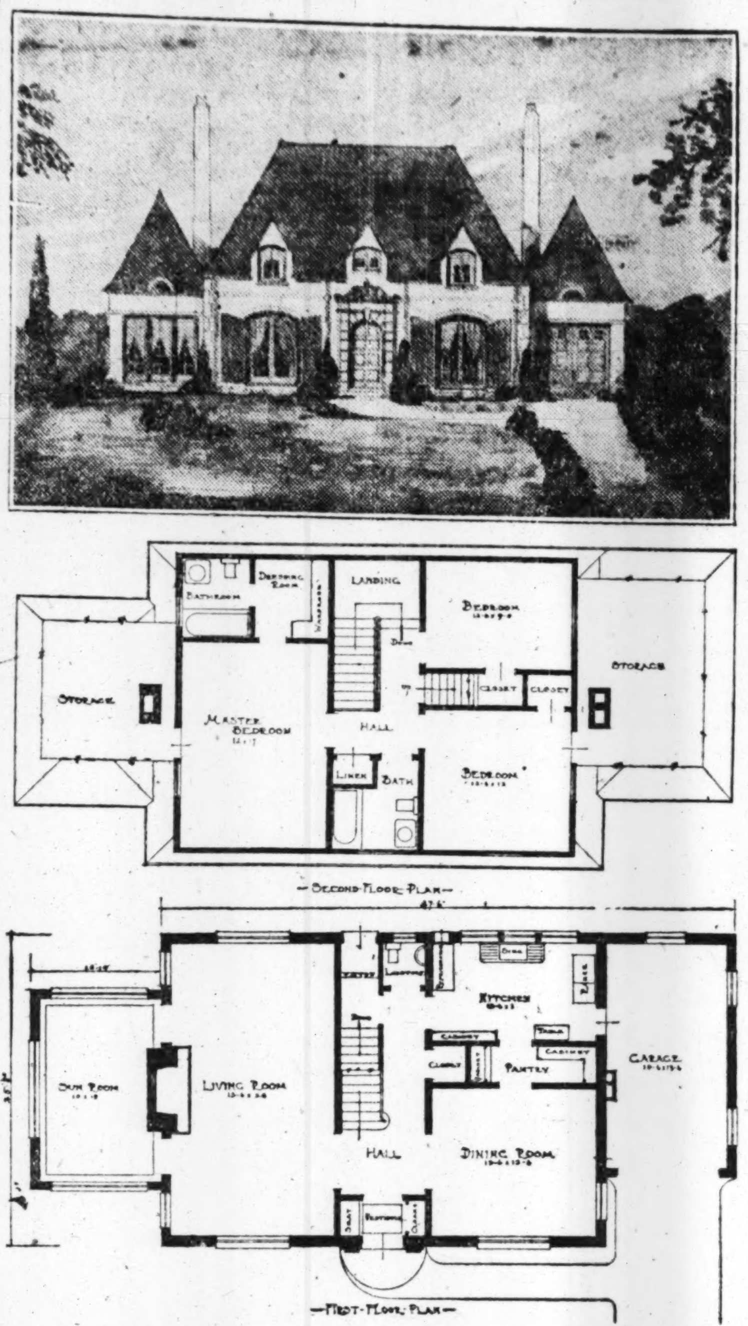
On the second floor are two baths, three bedrooms, and two large storage rooms at either end. These storage rooms could easily be converted into sleeping rooms, or sleeping porches by slightly raising the roofs. This could be done at an approximate cost of $1,000. If desired one bath could be eliminated, thereby saving the greater part of the price of this rearrangement of storage room.

The basement is under the entire house and has a fruit room, a laundry and heating room. The house is heated by hot water.

This house can be built on a lot of 75 feet frontage, or on a corner lot of 50 feet by placing the house lengthwise of the lot. By slightly rearranging the garage it could be placed lengthwise on a lot of 50 feet frontage.

The approximate cost of this house, with its general overall of 47.6x25.8, can be built at present prices in the Chicago territory for between $14,000 and $15,000. The same type of house, with smaller rooms and one bath, could be built in the neighborhood of $12,000.

For the Romantic



This house, which can trace its ancestry back to the chateau days of old France, is of cream colored stucco, trimmed with gray brick, and has a roof of purplish gray shingles. Romance of a bygone day hovers over its exterior, but within its walls can be found all the conveniences the modern American home owner demands. Designed by Lyman C. Jones.

BUILD $100,000 PARISH HOUSE FOR ST. PETER'S

Erect Structure at 621 Belmont.

Work is now under way on a new $100,000 parish house for St. Peter's church, Episcopal, at 621 Belmont avenue. The building will be in the English Gothic style of architecture and it will include a gymnasium, a Sunday school and rooms for the various special parish uses.

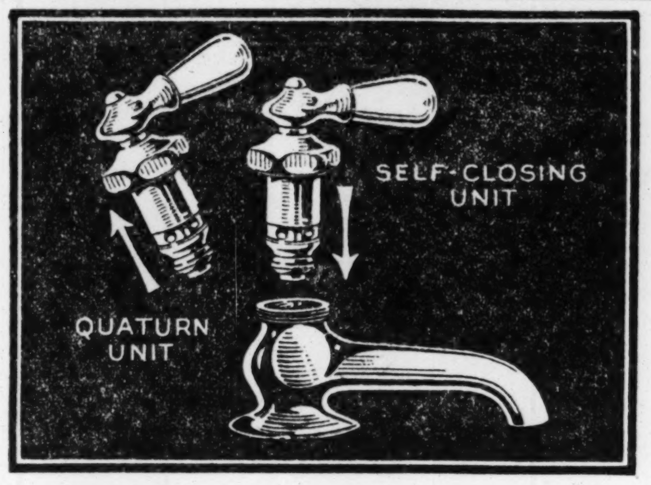
William C. Jones is the architect for the building, which will have a frontage of forty-five feet on Belmont avenue. The parish house and the church building adjoining will represent a total investment of $300,000.

The Rev. Harold L. Bowen is the rector of St. Peter's which is one of the largest Episcopal churches in the city. The increasing activities of the church necessitated the new structure.

The members of the parish's building committee are J. Charles Maddison, general chairman; Austin J. Lindstrom, chairman of the executive committee, H. H. Adams, Claude B. Davis, Albert A. Reeve, and Chester L. Brundage.

Plans Department Store at North Shore and Clark

Philip Horwich, an Indiana department chain store owner, has bought the northwest corner of North Shore and Clark, 86x125, now occupied by a portable school, at $450 per foot, and will erect a three story business building, to contain flats and a department store. Hogan & Reilly were brokers.



Quick Compression or Self-Closing

IT takes just one minute to change any Chicago Faucet from "quick compression" to "self-closing" type.

You only have to change the working unit—as easy as replacing a burned-out electric bulb. You can change back again just as easily.

Either unit contains all wearing parts—seat and washer. Both are replaceable for a few cents.

Nothing else can wear—hence Chicago Faucets are good for the life of the building.

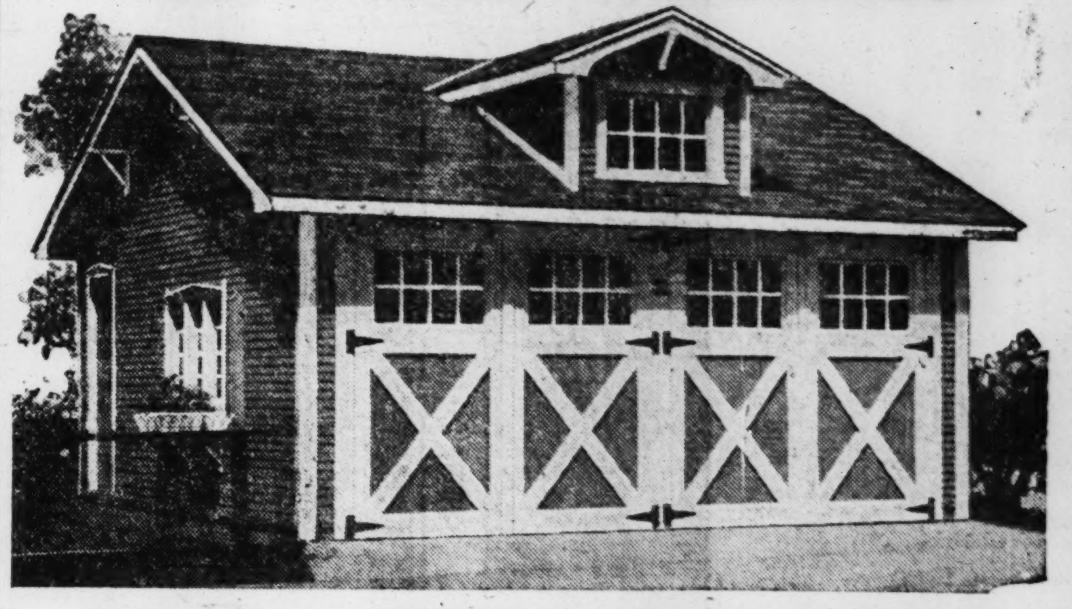
BILTRITE
Insulated GARAGES



$10 Down—Balance in 1 to 2 Years

Chicago architects recommend them because Biltrite Garages are known for their superior workmanship and materials, and continue to lead in better construction at low prices. Greater warmth, strength and appearance have placed them in a class far beyond the ordinary type.

WE WILL TELL YOU WHY in our free booklet, which shows every detail of construction in Biltrite Garages. Details do count, and only by comparing every feature can you determine the best value.

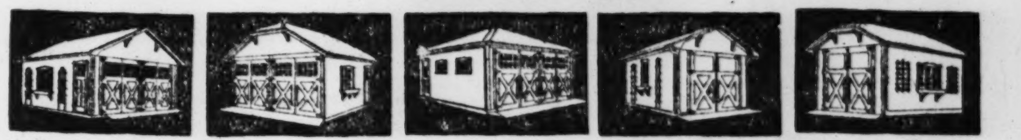
Insulated at No Extra Cost!!

Every Biltrite garage is lined with Koro-Kraft cellular insulation, insuring you of far greater warmth and at no increase in price. Do not confuse with inferior paper or "felt" linings that offer little protection against the cold. Biltrite is ready for the cold winter months.

Why Biltrite Owners Are Satisfied

1. Biltrite Garages have many other exclusive features besides the Koro-Kraft lining and Biltrite Special Hardware—found in no other building in Chicago.
2. Heavier construction from floor to roof than you will find elsewhere.
3. Our printed guarantee that you must be satisfied.
4. The big saving of middlemen's profits.
5. Rigid inspection of every building, and erection by trained, competent workmen.
6. One of Chicago's oldest and largest builders, with a reputation for honest and square dealing.
7. Financially strong—protecting you against mechanics' liens of material dealers.
8. A building complete, with floor, lights, water, and driveways if desired.
9. The most complete printed garage specifications in Chicago.

Special Offer $237 18x18 "Economy" Garage Erected



Fifty distinctive styles and sizes to match the architecture of your home and your personal requirements. The models range from the lowest priced durable garage made to the most pretentious, with the latest folding doors—from a firm specializing for six years in garages exclusively.

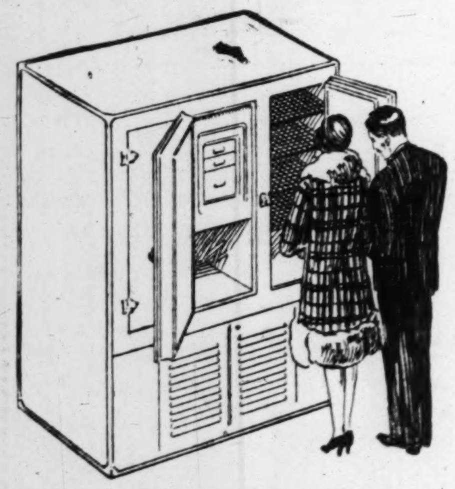
The design shown here in both perspective and plan won the First Prize in the Frigidaire Architectural Competition. It was submitted by Mr. Harry P. Braisted of New Haven, Conn.

We Offer You—a Book of Prize Winning Kitchens Equipped with Frigidaire



There is a complete range of metal cabinet Frigidaires, sized to fit every home from the smallest apartment to the largest residence. Their smooth steel sides are finished with lustrous white Duco, long wearing, and very easy to keep clean. Bright metal trim adds to this beauty. Five of them are lined with seamless porcelain enamel. They are the finest electric refrigerators built—yet they are priced as low as $245, plus a small charge for freight and installation. Mechanical units for converting iceboxes into Frigidaire Electric Refrigerators are priced from $190 up, plus freight and installation.

Frigidaire is a product of General Motors—made and guaranteed by Delco-Light Company, Dayton, Ohio, the world's largest builder of electric refrigerators. There are more than 150,000 Frigidaires now in use.

THE development of Frigidaire Electric Refrigeration has brought about a new type of kitchen architecture—more convenient, more attractive, more efficient—designed without the handicap of providing for an outside ice supply.

Such a kitchen is illustrated above in perspective and plan. It was the winner of the first prize in a nation-wide architectural competition, in which plans submitted were judged by Miss Katharine A. Fisher, of Good Housekeeping. Miss Mable Jewett Crosby, of The Ladies' Home Journal, and Messrs. Charles A. Schneider, James Wilson Thomas, and John Henri Deeken, prominent and successful residence architects.

And now we offer you a beautiful bound collection of the most interesting and valuable of these plans, together with the comments of the Jury of Award. They contain many ingenious suggestions for time-saving and labor-saving kitchen arrangements. They show how the use of Frigidaire can greatly improve the plan of the kitchens for new homes—and they show, too, how Frigidaire installed in your own ice-box can produce a remarkable transformation in the convenience and efficiency of your present kitchen.

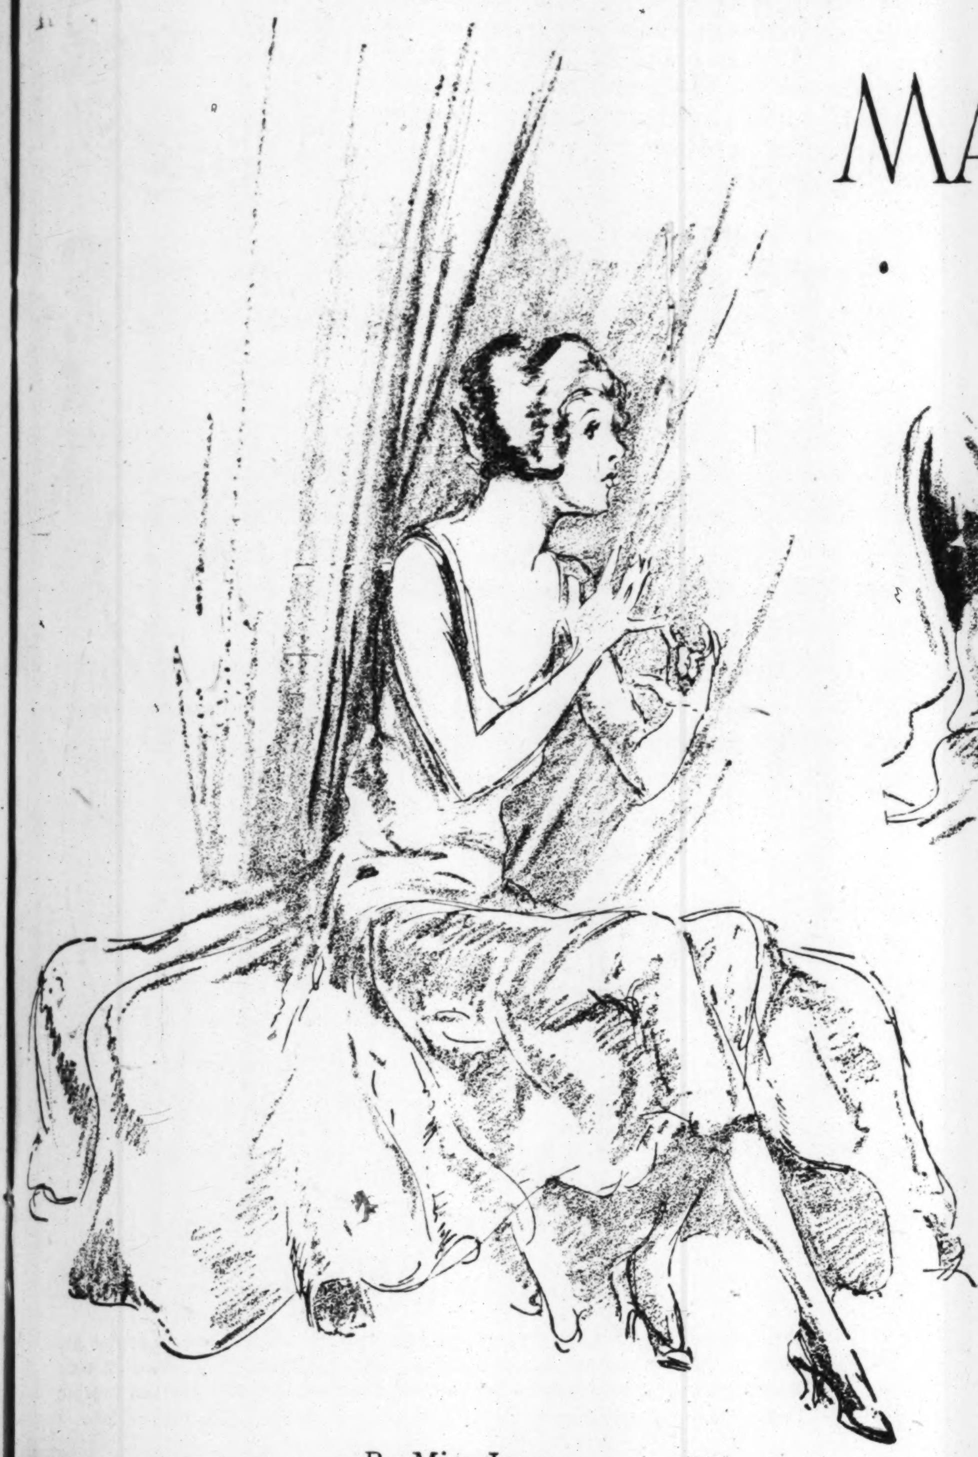
MAIDEN MEDITATIONS

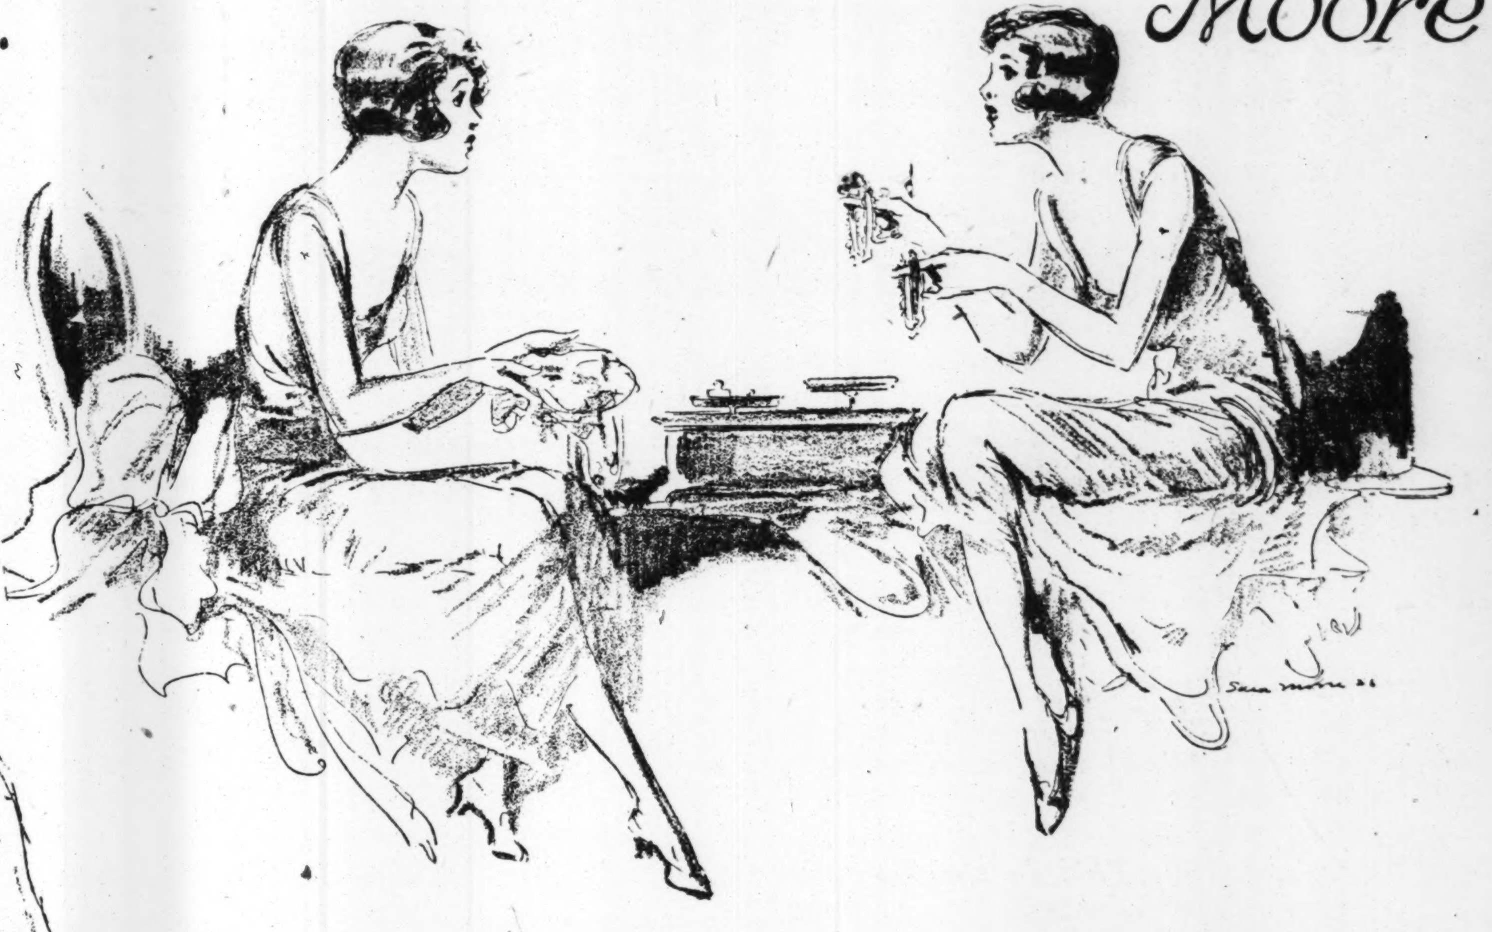
by Sara Moore



Re Miss Joyce.

A source of inspiration, Peg,
Who weds so well—and easily.
She makes one see that humbler aims
Are measly.

Five times the bride of millionaires!
She's proved how blithely rich men fall.
So, cheerio! For even Peg
Can't wed them all!



Reactionary.

(Summer costumes for smart women will weigh not more than eight ounces. The conservatives may don about ten ounces of wearing apparel.—Fashion news.)

One does not often care to live
The life of a conservative;
Reluctantly a maid announces
That she will wear the whole ten ounces.

She'll keep her buttons and perhaps Retain sustaining shoulder straps.
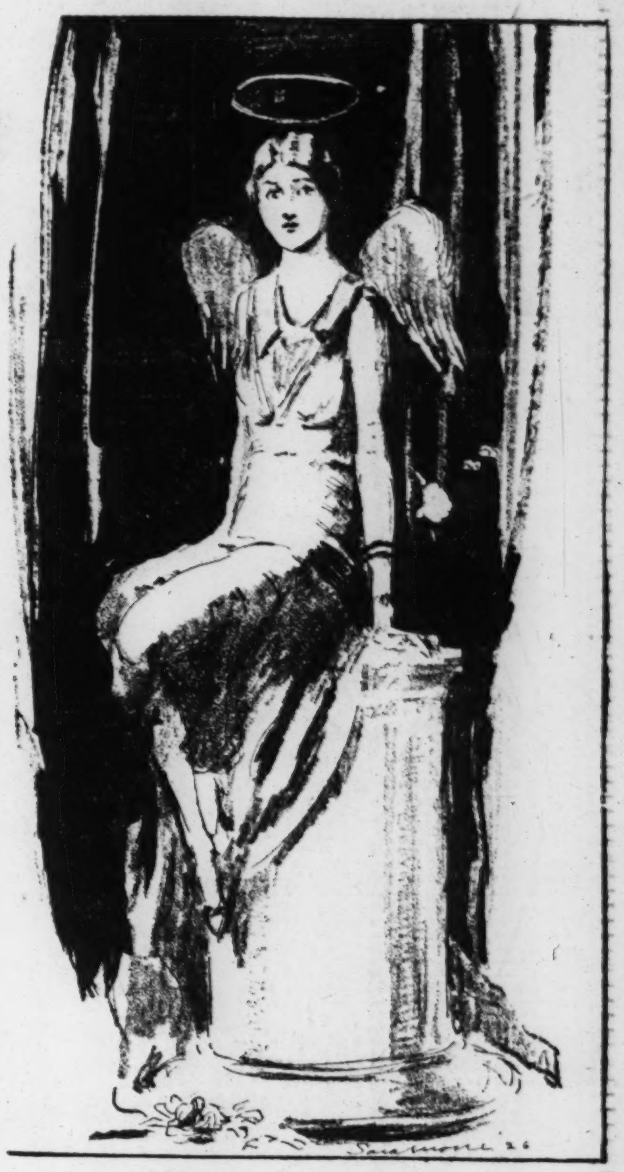
By weight the items that I mention
Will rate two ounces of prevention.



Mayme Hickey's Diary—1926

(In reverse.)

Lost out again. He has married another!
Nearly blonde. File clerk. With nerve triple ply!
Caught him, she did, with an eye and an ankle,
Him that I picked for a sensible guy.
Well, it's a lesson. I'll buy me some lipstick,
Marcel my mop and set out to find why;
Casting sedateness most firmly behind me.
She worked a system, so why shouldn't I?

Cooking I learned. How to sew, how to save, too,
Tricks that no marrying man should despise.
She learned to kick her spike heels in the Charleston
And, like an actress, her face to revise.
Gee, but I'm jarred. When one meets competition
Talents domestic will not cop the prize.
So, in the future, this erstwhile young Maltese
Plans to adopt a young wildcat disguise.

LIME AS A REJUVENATOR

by Antoinette Donnelly

"If You Want to Drink of the Fountain of Youth, Take Milk," Says Dr. Lorand.

DOROTHY DULIN

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—If you want to live to a ripe old age and be young every day of it, partake plentifully of foods containing lime.

No cell growth can take place without lime. If animals are fed on a diet containing no lime they soon become weak and drop off early. Not only children but adults as well require lime, since life involves the process of continually renewing worn out cells.

Lime is indispensable for our bodies, for it has a favorable influence upon the work of the heart, the secretion of stomach juice and the movements of the intestines. It increases the quantity of the urine and it dissolves uric acid. The condition of the teeth depends also on the richness of our bodies in lime.

It is known, of course, that milk is the best means by which to get the maximum quantity of lime into the system. So when you are advised to take a quart of milk daily you are not being invited to partake of a disagreeable medicine, but are being offered an invitation to drink at the Fountain of Youth.

It is not necessary to drink the quart of milk by glassfuls. You may figure in your day's allowance the food items that are prepared with milk, not forgetting that butter is a milk product, as also is cheese.

Reclaiming Their Youth.

Dr. Arnold Lorand, internationally known through his connection with the famous Carlsbad watering place, in his book, "Old Age Deferred," recites instance after instance of patients looking better and younger after large quantities of milk had been added to the diet.

"It is not surprising that persons using large quantities of milk daily look fresher and younger if we consider that when we take much fresh raw milk we are also taking extracts of various ductless glands, and especially of the thyroid," says Dr. Lorand.

It has been shown by physicians that the internal secretion of the thyroid passes into the milk. Dr. Lorand explains that the iodine in our body comes mainly from the thyroid, which, of all the glands, is the richest in iodine, and this iodine enters the milk that is consumed.

Beside its contents of internal secretions, valuable ferments and mineral matters, milk must be considered as an ideal form of nourishment, owing to the fact it contains all the necessary elements of human food. It is the most nourishing of all foods, since it contains in large quantity albumin, fat and carbohydrates, the three main elements of human food

It is raw milk, understand, that is the youth preserver. There is a great difference in the effects of boiled and raw milk. Any mother of an infant will testify to the unfavorable effects of boiled milk.

Those who do not like milk in large quantity may add a little cocoa, or a little weak coffee to it.

Bacteria Checked.

If milk is taken in large enough quantities it will check the formation of bacterial and toxic products in the intestine, which, as we know, is enormously rich in such products, especially after animal food, like meat, has been eaten.

In addition to the above mentioned properties of milk, this food has also the great advantage of throwing the minimum amount of work upon those organs whose duties are concerned with the assimilation of food and the elimination of its waste products.

"It is certainly a boon," says Dr. Lorand, "to an overworked stomach, which is otherwise normal, when we prescribe a diet of raw milk, which for many persons is more digestible than most other foods. It is a fundamental principle in the treatment of old age to give a rest to those organs of the body which are the most active. Such a rest will certainly do good to the stomach, especially in the case of heavy eaters, and will improve its vitality. The same maxim holds good for the liver and the kidneys.

"There can be no doubt that, for those who can stand it in large quantities, milk is an excellent aid in the fight against old age. As most constituents of the blood enter the milk, perhaps it is not too daring to say that drinking milk, in a measure, is drinking blood. There is, however, no general tendency to such bloodthirsty methods at the present time, but maybe it will be used in the future. In the meantime, let us drink milk, the most valuable food there is."

Foods Containing Lime.

An idea of the amount of lime content in milk may be gained from the table below showing the lime contained in some common articles of diet.

	Milligrams.
Cow's milk	1,510
Strawberries	483
Figs	400
Yolk of eggs	380
Human milk	243
Prunes	160
Peas	137
White of egg	130
Dates	108
Potatoes	100
Graham bread	77
Beef—Only	24

Another most important mineral salt is iron, this being an essential element of the blood. The best way to take sufficient iron in the body is to choose a food that is rich in its content.

Articles of food that contain a large percentage of iron are spinach, asparagus, yolk of eggs, beef, cabbage (green leaves), apples, red cherries, lentils, carrots, strawberries, white beans, peas, grapes, and the skin of baked potatoes.

A good many vegetables and fruits are rich both in iron and lime and are consequently able to do us a good service in the prevention and treatment of the condition of acid intoxication that underlies a good many feminine beauty ailments, such as poor complexion and hair, unpleasant breath, and poor teeth.

Vegetarian Diet Helps.

A vegetarian diet, when supplemented by milk and butter, can be indulged in for a considerable time with advantage particularly to persons suffering from nervous disorders.

Lorand tells an amusing story about a rich Dutchman en route to an Austrian watering place for the treatment of obesity. He was arrested in Germany for some imprudent utterances, termed in the old days "lése majesté." After having been kept in prison for four months on a largely vegetarian diet he went home a slender man, cured comparatively inexpensively of his corpulency.

The straight vegetarian diet is not sufficiently nourishing to keep you robust, young and fresh looking. Moderation in the matter of meat consumption is strongly recommended, however. And if milk is taken in sufficient quantity, reducing or limiting the meat helpings may be done with comparative ease and with real benefit to the entire system.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

by Antoinette Donnelly

HELEN X.: DECOMPOSED MATERIAL often collects at the root of the tongue and unless proper means are used to eliminate it by careful cleaning with a tooth brush, foul breath will result. In doing so, be careful not to touch the roof of the mouth with the brush. In this way you avoid gagging. Some authorities claim this is more often the cause of foul breath than digestive disturbances.

Y. R.: TO REMOVE DANDRUFF you must shampoo the hair frequently enough to keep the scalp clean. Once a week is not too often to wash it while the dandruff continues. Any good pure soap may be used. Apply the following preparation every two or three days: Sixty grains of sulphur to an ounce of vaseline. I have instructions on shampooing in printed form. Send along a stamped, addressed envelope.

M. T. W.: YOUR WEIGHT IS standard for your age and height. It will not be necessary for you to reduce, but you will have to watch yourself now to keep at just that figure, being careful to have well balanced menus. The average person of sedentary occupation requires only 2,000 calories a day. I have in printed form the calorie values of foods generally used, which I shall gladly send to you on receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope.

N. R. D.: THE LOCAL TREATment for fever blisters is to apply spirits of camphor as soon as they appear, but in your case I feel there is an underlying cause—indigestion—brought about by your eating all kinds of indigestible foods. You must regulate your diet, cutting down on the sweets and pastries—or, better still, eliminate them entirely. Eat fruits and green vegetables and drink plenty of water.

FRED M.: THE COLD SHOWER every morning is healthful, but in addition one should take at least three warm baths a week in order to keep the body sufficiently clean. It is the practice of many to take a warm bath before retiring and a cold plunge in the morning.

BESS: LET YOUR BREAKFAST consist of fruit, cereal, or egg and rolls or toast. A nourishing and satisfying luncheon would be soup, a salad or omelet, graham or bran muffins or whole wheat bread, and a simple dessert. I shouldn't take meat orders at noon. Meat should be eaten but once a day, and you will naturally wish it with your dinner. If the noon meal is a heavy one you become sleepy and lazy, and it is much harder to apply yourself to your work.

MILDRED: HERE ARE SOME EXercises for reducing the diaphragm: Lie flat on your back on the floor and try to bring your toes up and over your head, touching the floor back of the head with your toes. This you will find quite strenuous at first, but gradually you come to do it without effort.

Stand with arm stretched out wide, feet two foot lengths apart. Without bending the knees touch the fingers of the left hand to the toes of the right foot. Then, with the fingers of the right hand, touch the toes of the left foot. Repeat ten to twelve times, gradually increasing to twenty times.

F. X. G.: UNLESS THERE IS some natural wave to the hair, the water wave is not effective. It does not remain in long enough. A marcel wave would be better for you, and if done by an expert operator will stay in for a week or ten days in most cases. Continue to brush the hair, even though you have it curled, as the brushing is necessary to keep the hair in a healthy condition.

JENNY: YOUR ANKLES MUST be very weak when you turn them with such frequency. If you do not wish to wear high shoes on the street you could keep a pair of them at your office and change your shoes, wearing the high ones during the day. This would give support to the ankles. I have some exercises which will be found helpful in strengthening them, but you must send stamped, addressed envelope.

HILDA: FIVE FEET FOUR, AGE 25, your weight should be 128 pounds, according to standard tables. The candy and pastries are responsible for much of your excess. You will have to eliminate them from your diet. Send stamped, addressed envelope for my reducing instructions, which not only give the diets you ask for but some good exercises to be done at the same time.

JENNY: THE PORES OF THE skin will become enlarged through the constant use of hot towels unless they are followed by cold rinses or ice rubs. First cleanse the skin with a good cold cream, then apply the hot towels for a couple of minutes, scrub the face with soap and face brush, rinse with lukewarm water, and follow with an ice rub. Your skin will respond to this treatment.

Embarrassing Moments

Not for Her.

While at college I lived at my sorority house and was madly in love with a boy who dated me regularly. One evening I came in and saw George waiting in the living room. I immediately dashed up to him, exclaiming how nice it was of him to surprise me.

Imagine my embarrassment when another girl in the house came down ready to go to a class dance with him. E. T.

"Chicago, Please!"

One day as I was on my way to work I picked up a booklet telling of Chicago's parks and amusements. At the top of the booklet the word Chicago was printed in large type.

I arrived at the building in which I worked, entered an elevator, and awaited my floor, with my mind still on the word Chicago.

So when the elevator neared my floor I said to the operator in a rather loud voice, "Chicago, please."

I never was so embarrassed. The other passengers looked at me and began to laugh. I was glad to get off, especially when one of the passengers happened to be my boss. W. M.

Doing It Twice.

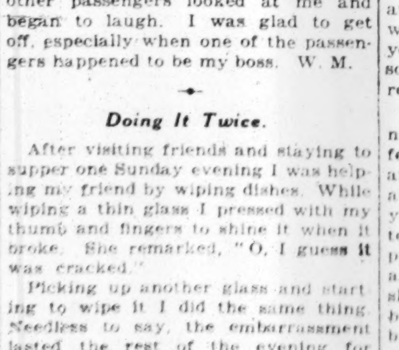
After visiting friends and staying to supper one Sunday evening I was helping my friend by wiping dishes. While wiping a thin glass I pressed with my thumb and fingers to shine it when it broke. She remarked, "O, I guess it was cracked."

Picking up another glass and starting to wipe it I did the same thing. Needless to say, the embarrassment lasted the rest of the evening for me. T. E.

Insulting the Owner.

Recently I was prompted to open my back door upon hearing the pitiful "meow" of a cat. As I put down a saucer of milk for pussy, I called to my next door neighbor, "Look at this starving, homeless cat!"

Imagine my chagrin when she replied, "That is my cat!" I have never fed stray kittens at my back door since. F. H.



Wavy—Curly Glossy Hair

By Edna Wallace Hopper

The thousands who see me daily on the stage know how my hair waves and glows. It seems doubly abundant because of the curl. Nearly every girl and woman who sees it would like to have hair like mine.

But I never go to a hair dresser. I have never had a Marcel wave. I simply apply a hair dress which experts made for me. Neither you nor I will probably ever see anything else to compare. It makes the hair curly, keeps it in place and gives it a lovely sheen.

This hair dress is now known as Edna Wallace Hopper's Wave and Sheen. All toilet counters supply it at 75c per bottle. It will bring you added loveliness more quickly than anything else I know. My guarantee is enclosed with every bottle, so it costs you nothing if it doesn't please. Go try it at my expense.—Adv.

Making the Wedding Enjoyable

By Persis Standish

"WHY is it," demands the conversationalist, "that women always cry at wedding ceremonies?"

"Because," answers the cynic, "they know that the dullness of the reception is yet to come."

How many weddings have you gone to and been so bored, in spite of the b-e-a-u-t-i-f-u-l bride and the bridesmaids that you wished you had your present back and they the invitation? If you answer honestly you'll admit quite a few. And sadly enough, the reason you are so bored and have such a dreadful time is because everyone has gone to an extra lot of trouble to make you have a good one. Nobody thinks of a wedding as just a party to celebrate a happy occasion. O, no, they get all formal about it and make a lot of false moves and extra ceremonious provisions that take everything but the hospital out of hospitality and make the wedding guests feel as though they are going to a hanging, or are to be presented at court.

But a wedding is just a party, after all—a lovely party to celebrate a happy occasion, a party every one should remember as the nicest one Mrs. Jones ever gave. For Mrs. Jones is still the hostess, remember, at her daughter's wedding. A great many people forget this, too. They act as though the bride were the hostess, or as if the groom's mother or Aunt Nell were, or any number of other officious persons who act as though everything they did was ex-cathedra. It's good for Mrs. Jones to be a hostess—it makes her forget she's a mother and that her beautiful pink and white baby is now a grown woman who next year may have a baby of her own. If Mrs. Jones is looking out for the comfort of her guests and seeing that every one meets every one and that there is much merriment and good cheer, it will help her to get through the ordeal, somehow, of giving her precious child to a life more individual than being just Mrs. Jones' daughter.

Too Much Formality.

One reason most weddings are such chilly affairs socially is because they are more pretentious than they should be. Few American homes are equipped to dispense formality, and therefore when their owners try it it not only fails ingloriously, but makes everybody miserable in doing so. A business man of my acquaintance waxes as funny as the cleverest play when he tells how uncomfortable they made him for three weeks preceding his daughter's wedding.

This family lived in a suburban house with a sweet little garden, an ideal place for a simple wedding, but mother and daughter had been reading in the overblown periodicals about the wedding at Biltmore and other country estates, so they must needs put up a dance pavilion on the tiny lawn, and arbors in the garden, and move all the furniture from downstairs to father's sleeping porch, and hang the dining room in green satine with an improvised altar, and a lot of other funny stunts. When the wedding day arrived it rained and it was altogether a fizzle, and father, as shouldn't, is still laughing—and in all probability paying the bills.

Many letters come to me asking how to conduct a home wedding reception in the country. There, if anywhere, one can make it simple and charming. All one needs to do is to move into bedrooms or attic such furniture as may get knocked over. Things like statuary on pedestals and small tables with ornaments and bric-a-brac are included. Then fill the house with whatever flowers are available at the season: lilacs, or spring flowers, or whatever the gardens provide. Next, have a lot of soft but not bright lights, and above all good food—not too much or too little, and invite your friends just as you would to any other party. If you have room clear enough space so they can dance. If not, just let them amuse each other and themselves, as they will if they are let alone. Be sure to invite enough young men so each girl will have a beau, and there will be some extra, if possible. If supper or breakfast is served at tables see that the older people sit with the older people and that the young people sit with young people so the conversational ball will be kept rolling. That is all there is to it.

A wedding should be just an extra nice informal party with these added features to make it attractive: bride and groom, who are the center of attraction and look as lovely as happy young people should look; their attendants, also looking lovely and happy; the bride's and groom's mothers and fathers all forming a line that shakes your hand and smiles at you, but doesn't stay put too long and breaks up and mingles with the other guests; a bridal table that everybody can see, with a lovely cake and the ceremony of cutting it; the excitement of seeing the girls trying to catch the bride's bouquet, and finally the excitement of trying to throw rice at the bride and groom as they depart.

Conducting a Small Wedding.

The wedding should be just the same in town. If you live in a small apartment don't attempt to have a big wedding there. If you can't afford to have it at an hotel or a club don't have a big wedding, because nothing is so distressing as a crowd trying to be pleasant in a small space. Better just have the immediate families and one or two friends who will not tell that they have been invited, and that is all. A tiny wedding can be the pleasantest of all, because one can serve the supper on tiny tables and put just cronies at each one and every one will have a good time.

If your wedding is in the morning the question of what refreshment to serve is answered by having a nice luncheon menu. If it is in the early afternoon you may have the same refreshments that you would have for a high tea: sandwiches, coffee, and tea, ices or ice cream, cakes, and nuts, and olives, and bon bons, of course. If it is in the late afternoon a dinner may be served after 6 o'clock, though to have a formal dinner at a wedding is not looked upon with fashion's favor just at present. If the wedding is in the early evening, or even later, a nice supper menu is correct. One hot dish, like lobster newburg, or chicken au gratin, or sweetbread patties may be served, followed by a green salad and ices. Or one may have cold salads, such as lobster and chicken with Virginia ham and hot rolls, followed by a heartier dessert, such as meringue glacé. Coffee should be served, of course, and punch, if possible and safe.

The decorations of the bridal table should be in white, or white and pale yellow, since yellow suggest gold and gold and silver are allowable in the bridal costume and equipment. The bridal cake is always a white cake with a white frosting, while the groom's cake is a dark fruit cake. But serving the latter has more or less gone out of fashion.

Points to Remember.

The main things to remember, then, in order to have one's wedding a successful social event are:

1. Do not make it too formal.
2. Do not try to have it too sumptuous.
3. Remember that it is just an extra nice party.
4. Remember that the bride's mother is the hostess and therefore allowed to do as she likes in seating guests, etc., and no one else must arrogate these prerogatives.
5. Don't turn the house upside down, because if you do it will not seem comfortable.
6. Have good food.
7. See that congenial people sit together.
8. Don't mix up the young and the aged and expect either to be merry.
9. Don't "entertain;" allow your guests to have a feeling of liberty and ease.
10. Don't keep the line to long, and don't wear a "social manner" while you are in it.

How to Order Clotilde Patterns.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin [coin preferred; wrap it carefully] for each number, and address your order to Clotilde, CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE.

Note—Clotilde patterns are made in New York exclusively for THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE. They are perfect in fit, up to date in style, and the easiest of all patterns to use.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

PATTERN NO. 2658 is a charming design for an afternoon frock, and should not prove difficult either in the cutting or making. It is a slip-on dress, cut with a square neck in front, and has short kimono sleeves. There is the usual one piece section with which to lengthen the sleeves if you desire. In the middle of both back and front the dress preserves an unbroken straight line, while at both sides there are circular insets. The dress, for size 36, measures at the bottom about 2⅜ yards. Always measure the principal length and width points on a pattern before using it, to be sure as to whether it does or doesn't agree with your own measures. If there are any slight changes they may be marked on the pattern, saving one a lot of trouble later on. If there are no changes to be made so much the better.

Join the under arm and shoulder seams, making French seams, unless the material should prove too heavy. If crêpe, taffeta, or satin is used, run the first seam by hand, and before stitching the second seam by machine try on a piece of the material to see if it is going to be smooth. Sometimes it is better to run both parts of the seam by hand, taking an occasional backstitch.

The next step will be to set the side pieces in place, clipping the edge of the dress around the curves and turning in about one-half inch. Then there can be two rows of stitching, one on the edge and the second about one-quarter of an inch inside. The square neck in front, the edges of the short sleeves, and the bottom of the dress will look well finished with a narrow binding of the dress or other material. It should, however, match the neckband trimming piece.

This band is in three pieces, being joined where the shoulder seams come. Perforations on the pattern show where it is to go. It should be most carefully basted in place so it will not slip at any point in stitching. The long sleeve is finished with a turned back cuff.

Pattern No. 2408 is a pretty design for a girl's dress, and one of the fine checked woolens will be especially attractive looking. The dress is in two pieces, front and back, and closes down the front. A round collar and long or short sleeves finish it prettily. There are also pockets with welts and a narrow belt, all of which add to its attractiveness. Then the cape is made of the dress material and lined with the color that cuffs and collar are made of. This cape is turned in along the upper edge and stitched at the edge. Then it is fastened to the dress under the collar with small snaps, and also along the shoulder seams.

Pattern No. 2684 is for a jaunty little frock, suitable for many materials and occasions. The back is cut in one piece and the front in two. Long shoulders form short sleeves, and one piece sections, gathered into narrow wristbands, make full length ones. The lower front section of the dress is cut circular and ripples prettily across the front. The joining is concealed under a sash that ties in a bow in the middle of the front. Full directions with the pattern tell just how to baste and fasten in place. The dress is a slip-on one, the front being slashed down from the neck in the middle. This opening is underfaced and rolled with the collar—the tie strings being cut in one with the collar.

VACATIONS

What is your notion of the ideal vacation? A fishing jaunt, an ocean trip or a lake voyage, a stay at a fashionable resort, a stretch of lazy idleness in the woods, a long motor tour—or what? Write us your idea of the ideal vacation. We'll pay $1 for every letter we print. Address Vacations, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

Quiet and Restful.

My vacation is the one brief period in all the year when I can afford to be downright lazy, and after a strenuous 12 months in the office that is my one desire—to be lazy.

And so I spend my vacations with some quiet folks who have a diminutive cottage in Michigan, where a breezy little lake encroaches upon the front yard and a fragrant pine woods provide a cool and restful shelter. Two sturdy pines support my hammock, and here it is that I do much of the reading which crowded hours do not permit. There are delightful jaunts to a near-by beach, and long, quiet hours in which to lie upon the white sands and rest and dream, with only the gentle, rhythmic lap of the lake upon the sands and a mild breeze to break the stillness.

Meal time brings vegetables and fruits fresh picked from the countryside and milk—real milk!

Two weeks of idle living supply not only a rested body but a rested mind, a mind cleared of a year's accumulation of petty discontents and irritations. R. E. S.

Wild and Woolly.

As a kid my greatest desire was to live on a ranch in the wild and woolly west and ride with the cowboys over the ranges, where there were no fences to cross or cars to dodge.

Last summer my desire was gratified. I had the satisfaction of spending a month on a regular cattle ranch in the mountains of Wyoming, fifty miles from any town, railroad, or other sign of eastern civilization.

The ranch was reached after a four hour ride through the mountains in the family flivver, over roads that would be called impassable in the east or middle west. The ranch was a typical western one, with wooden corrals, log houses and barns, and cowboys dressed in fur chaps and broad brimmed hats wandering about them.

The month was one round of bliss for me, consisting of daily rides with the boys out over the fenceless range to round up horses, myself clad in the fur chaps and broad hat of the cowboys, fishing trips up in the mountains, where the trout were as thick as flies and just as hungry, and hunting trips through the mountains or over the ranges, where the sage chickens were as plentiful as the sparrows are here.

All this, coupled with the congeniality of the fellows and the wonderful cooking of the ranch mother, made it a vacation that is not soon forgotten. L. M. A.

Trip to Europe.

An escorted tour to Europe, without even the trouble of worrying about tickets, accommodations, etc., would be my idea of a real vacation, especially if accompanied with plenty of money, oodles of time, and no cares. V. C. K.

Doris Blake's Answers TO LOVE PROBLEMS

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped addressed envelope.

Silence Tells the Tale.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a young man who has moved. Before he went he told me he loved me. I write, but he does not answer. Please advise. BLUE EYES."

I shouldn't waste any more time writing to one so negligent. His silence indicates he didn't mean what he said, dear.

Clear It Up.

"Dear Miss Blake: Until recently I had been going with a young man. Owing to a slight misunderstanding on my part we do not speak. What can I do? KATE."

Do not hesitate to offer any explanation which will clear up the misunderstanding, Kate. By doing so you will undoubtedly reëstablish the old friendship.

Needs Encouragement.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a fellow who dances and fools around with me, but never takes me home. Do you think I stand a chance. "TEDDY."

It may be that you haven't offered him any encouragement. Boys need to be encouraged, you know.

She'd Rather Not.

"Dear Miss Blake: I asked my boy friend's girl to give me an introduction to a pretty girl. She always changes the conversation. What will I do? JACK."

It's quite apparent she has no intention of doing what you wish, Jack. If I were you I'd try some one else.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

"Purges" and "Physics" Bad for Old Folks

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative that helps to "regulate" the bowels of old folks. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but each dose helps to strengthen the bowel muscles, shortly establishing natural "regularity." It never gripes, sickens, or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

If past fifty, buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

KIP Kills Insect Pests

THE discovery of Kip means a new way to exterminate insects that is effective, safe and pleasant. Kip kills flies, mosquitoes, moths, roaches, bedbugs, waterbugs, and other annoying pests.

Kip is effective. Its work is thorough. Kip kills grubs, and larvae as well as mature insects.

Kip is safe. You can use it anywhere without fear. It is harmless to people or animals. Furthermore it can safely be sprayed on clothes or walls. Kip will not damage the most delicate fabrics or the lightest wall paper.

Kip is pleasant. The odor of Kip is clean and invigorating, but even this disappears quickly when the room is aired. Kip is pleasant and simple to use. It is easily applied with a sprayer which produces a very fine fog. This soon evaporates and leaves no trace.

If mosquitoes get through the screen of your porch—spray Kip about and they will soon disappear. To protect your clothes from moths without making them "smelly"—spray them with Kip before packing away. If flies persist in getting into the house—kill them with Kip. Even the persistent ant finds Kip an effective barrier.

This pleasant method of exterminating insects makes it easy to get rid of pests that are a nuisance and a menace to health.

Kip is an important contribution to the science of comfortable, healthful living.

JUNE 6, 1926.

IN SHELL PINK OR PALE BLUE THE JUNE BRIDE MAY NOW ARRAY HERSELF

by Corinne Lowe

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—For many years the bride of a formal wedding ceremony would never have dreamed of appearing in anything save white. She would have regarded variation from this snowy tone with the same indignation that a Halloween cat might hear the proposal, "Do change from your black to an innocent gray or white." However, time has made some changes in this narrow point of view. No longer is the snow line drawn so tightly.

The first move in the direction of tolerance was made by the admission of silver cloth into the group of available wedding gown materials. Cloth of gold was subsequently used, and only last year we witnessed faint rose spreading over the countenance of the bridal gown. It was Molyneux, I believe, who inaugurated those famous wedding costumes of a dawn-like rose and his innovation of the last year has been succeeded this spring by several bridal garments of the most wistful and ineffable of blues. Yes, the bride of today may go up the aisle in either softest of pinks or softest of blues. Let it be added hastily, however, that she seldom avails herself of the privilege. Either white or silver cloth continues to represent the taste of the conservative woman and a normal craving for variety is appeased by all the many novelties in the detail of gown and veil ushered in by the spring.

The shoulder cape, so beloved of Lanvin, is one of such details which make for freshness of interest in the time honored materials. This, together with the shoulder cape's first cousin, the bertha, are encountered frequently in some of the most beautiful examples of what the designer can do for the bride. Still another touch which brings the June wedding gown into communication with the vogue is the incorporation of the train.

Many of today's youthful brides continue to find in the picturesque elements of the robe de style the solution of that age old problem, "Which type shall I choose?" That is the reason why two of the wedding gowns illustrated on our page are dedicated to showing you recent theories concerning the construction of the period gown.

The one at the left in the center panel is especially noteworthy in both harmony of color and adaptation of new fashion notes to the wedding gown. Here is a satin of heavy and lustrous quality which is chosen in that tint of pink now permitted to the bride—oyster pink. Now nothing is quite so exquisite in alliance with this faint, almost swooning, rose as is silver and so we find the metallic note sounded in various ways. First of all, a hem of silver net is applied in scallops to the skirt and is echoed again in that curving line of the front corsage.

Of course, the hem of net is a haunting presence on today's robe de style designed for less ceremonial occasions, but its application to the wedding gown is exceedingly interesting. It is made more so, too, by an exquisite choice of trimming. Both on corsage and skirt the silver net is joined to the shell pink background by a tracery of silver thread interspersed with pearls. Pearls? But wait a moment. These are not the habitual adornments of the bride. No, like the frock itself, they are a faint pink. You see these pearls functioning in a fairylike design on each scallop of both hem and yoke of the front corsage.

The second theme of silver is struck up by a heavy lace band which is stretched across the front in the new off-the-shoulder line and which merges in the back with a court train of silver net, finishing its course in the shell pink satin of the gown. The lace borders the entire stretch of metallic net and is accompanied in its career by an embroidered line of the same shaded pink pearls. The satin edge is left untrimmed.

As to the veil, this is eloquent of all those modern coquetries of today's accessory. It is of shell pink net to match the gown and confirms the metallic theory by daintiest of all-over motifs done in silver thread interspersed with the rose tinted pearls. The latter function more aggressively in a tiara-like headdress. As will be seen, the veil is not long. It dips down in a curve to a point below the waist line and so confers to the back the coveted appearance of the shoulder cape.

This frock could, of course, be developed in white satin combined with white net and white lace, but it would undoubtedly lose much in the translation. When, indeed, I remarked that few women availed themselves of modern privileges concerning color in the bridal gown I did not mean to cast any aspersion upon those who do. Indeed, we have the highest social precedents for the departure. For example, Miss Cathleen Mann, who married the Marquis of Queensbury this spring, appeared in one of these exquisite alliances of shell pink and silver.

The train possesses more than ordinary transportation facilities for excess chic. Almost as various as are the new types of wedding veil are the new types of wedding train. The one accompanying the period gown, stretched at the right in our central panel, illustrates the caprices to which this detail is constantly subject.

This model certainly spells cur-tail-ment of the activities of the page in the wedding procession. For all that there is to carry is a loop of heavy white satin affixed to the shoulders and dipping upon the ground. For the rest, the model depends for its novelty chiefly upon those bow knots of pearls which are distributed over the white satin surface of bodice and skirt. Cream lace form the shallow yoke in the front, the deep yoke in the back, hem, and tiny cap sleeves. These last named bear as their final touches four tiny tailored bows of white satin. The tulle veil is caught at the sides with clusters of orange blossoms.

Nor is the side train sidetracked this season. Far from it. Witness the model of white satin in the center of our panel. In this the side trains at the back are cut in one with the skirt and each train is forked to produce a double effect. Here again we encounter the shallow yoke which, in this case, is of fine white silk net and is finished with the same self-cording that defines the waist line. The veil also of fine white net, is bordered with lace.

More and more as time goes on there seems to be a disposition on the part of the designers of wedding gowns to make the robe itself merely a background for such decorative elements as the veil and the train. A certain dignity is undeniably gained in this manner, a dignity that can never be won through the over-elaborate gown. And when the robe itself occurs in such sumptuous media as silver cloth or silver lamé a crowd of trimming is bound to spoil the effect.

There is the same old interchange of civilities between silver and white tissues which we have been observing for many a year. Thus, the sumptuous and simple gown of metallic lamé will often add a court train of point d'Engleterre or some other gorgeous white lace. In similar friendliness of spirit the gown of white satin frequently rounds out its destiny with a silver lace train or perhaps a veil bordered with silver lace.

Head-dresses don't seem to make much headway against those venerable traditions of the medieval, the halo and tiara which have bedecked the brow of the bride so long. However, there are a few brand new ideas on the subject among which are to be mentioned the beret type, so much in line with our present day partiality for the draped crown. These head-dresses are usually of tulle and manipulate their characteristic fullness over a tight fitting band of satin punctuated with orange blossoms.

There are so many types of wedding gowns this year that it is much easier to compile a complete list of what one may not wear than of what one may wear. There are versions of the bolero, of the two piece gown—this second usually makes the corsage of lace to contrast with skirt of satin or silver cloth—the cape frock, and a dozen other successful aspirants. Among all these, however, the draped model never loses its prestige. And some of the most stunning gowns now being prepared in New York drape the front of the skirt in connection with a simple, tight fitting corsage with long sleeves and V front neck line.

So far as exuberance of tint is concerned, the bridesmaid seems to stand in inverse ratio to the bride herself. As the latter takes a more liberal hold upon the color card, the former retreats into a novel sanctuary of neutral tones. For instance, both parchment tint and beige are now considered chic for the bridesmaid, and both of these tones are represented in the bridesmaids' gowns sketched respectively at left and right.

At the extreme left we find a gown of parchment colored satin trimmed with cream lace and topped by a hat developed in pink, orchid, and blue. The satin crown alternates these colors in bands and makes the brim of tulle and lays one color over the other to be finished with a shirring of orchid tulle.

At the extreme right we encounter beige shadow lace over a taffeta slip of self-color. Deep rose taffeta ribbon applied to the slip is veiled by the lace and escapes only in a bow at the front and the two streamers in the back. The hat of beige horsehair is trimmed with frayed taffeta ribbon in the same deep rose. More rose is found in the occasional clusters of flowers, all attached to the outside of the frock.

[Copyright: 1926: By The Chicago Tribune.]

2—In the center panel, at the left, oyster pink satin is combined with silver net and silver lace.

3—Next, a white satin gown with forked side trains is finished with self-cordings and a touch of white silk net.

4—At the extreme right in the center panel a period gown of white satin finished with white lace shows bow-knots embroidered in pearls over skirt and corsage.

5—Beige is another tone favored by this season's bridal attendant and the only imposition is that it show some touch of color. At the extreme right, beige lace over self-colored foundation of satin receives the requisite contrast through the use of deep rose ribbons and several clusters of roses. Also the hat of beige hair is trimmed with rose ribbon frayed at all edges.

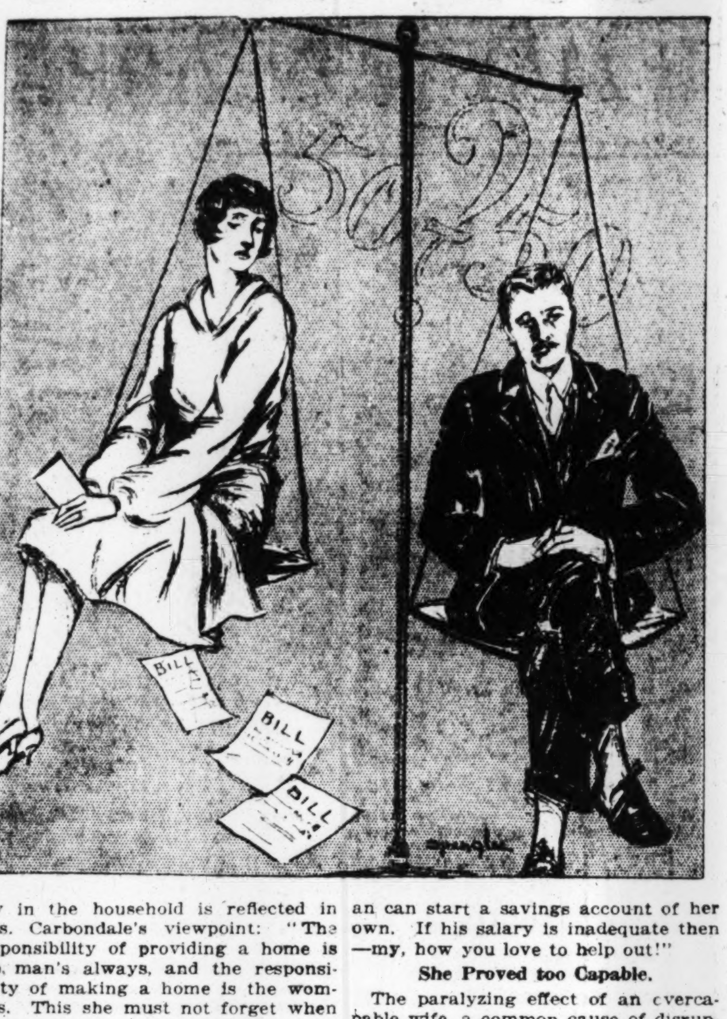
WORKING OUT A TRUE PARTNERSHIP

by Doris Blake

Answers to an Article on the Fifty-fifty Marriage and Its Chances for Success.



A FEW Sundays ago I solicited opinions from my readers on the subject of the fifty-fifty marriage.

The fifty-fifty marriage supposes that husband and wife are equal partners in a business—which is the home. Each puts in the same amount and, presumably, takes out the same profit. In personal finances each is supposed to be absolutely independent of the other, having his or her own income.

Leaving aside for the time being the question of whether the fifty-fifty idea is a step forward or backward in the evolution of marriage, I read from the hundreds of responses to my request for personal experiences the reason for a number of failures in the fifty-fifty plan is the woman's inability in matrimony to interpret a business proposition in a straight business-like way. It is evident, in many instances, the wage earning wife brings to matrimony the anti-feminist sentiment that man should be the provider and the caretaker of all household expenses. In other words, she wants her salary and no questions asked.

On the other hand, there is revealed also in the letters received that universal human weakness to let the other fellow assume responsibilities that have been too willingly lifted.

In between there is a class that interprets the fifty-fifty marriage plan fairly and intelligently, and these couples seem to have wrested the secret of how to make this modern marriage problem not a problem.

Need for Education.

It strikes me there is need of educating those women who assume marriage with the understanding they will keep on working to help out the family budget. If this is the way the marriage contract is accepted then there should be no resentment if electric light bills, gas or grocery bills have to be reckoned with out of their weekly stipend. The woman's salary is not for clothes and personal luxuries, as a number of them believe.

In illustration of the way a certain type of feminine mind operates, Mrs. L. L. says she is earning $35 a week, her husband $55. There are no children, consequently she cannot see why her husband cannot maintain all the expenses of the small apartment they occupy. They're not getting ahead, and she is slowly losing respect for "an able bodied man who, if he were the right kind, would lose all respect for himself in not being able to fully provide for his wife." Her salary is hers; she earns it. And he has no right to expect her to help in the expenses of the home. The fact that it isn't a home and she is doing nothing with her money to help establish an atmosphere of home entirely escapes the wage earning wife.

Extra Money Helps.

A better consciousness of the happiness possibilities of the "extra" salary in the household is reflected in Mrs. Carbondale's viewpoint: "The responsibility of providing a home is the man's always, and the responsibility of making a home is the woman's. This she must not forget when she goes out to earn a salary.

"Every housewife in moderate circumstances knows the many things the feminine heart longs for that cannot be indulged in on poor hubby's salary. Perhaps you want to surprise him with a nice den fitted up for his own enjoyment, or maybe he longs for a radio. Some evening you'd like to surprise him with tickets to the theater, or be able to entertain a company of friends. Or maybe you long for a set of blue willow ware, or a colonial spread for your four poster. Or, when Easter comes instead of having to dust off the old hat and don the suit which has been turned wrong side out, you are able to afford a new outfit for an admiring husband to parade with.

"The running expenses of the home can be figured pretty accurately—but always on the basis of the husband's income. If his salary is sufficient to meet all the bills with a reasonable amount left for savings and investments, let him pay them, and the woman can start a savings account of her own. If his salary is inadequate then—my, how you love to help out!"

She Proved too Capable.

The paralyzing effect of an overcapable wife, a common cause of disruption, is portrayed in some of the experiences related to me. "A Disillusioned Wife" is a case in point. From a splendid position she married a man who was making, fourteen years ago, a good income. They both had refined tastes, and wanted to live in a good section of the city.

They got into a nice social set, had a car and other luxuries. A bad fire wiped out her husband's business. The woman went back to work at a higher salary than his new venture netted him. This she kept up for years, slowly rising in her profession.

They moved west. Here the woman lost her health. From an income of $5,000 a year they went down to less than half of that.

"It was my husband's attitude," she confesses, "that kept me from getting well. He seemed to resent my illness as cutting down our income. In all my married life I've paid my doctor's bills, my dentist, clothed myself from head to toe and bought furniture, paid for vacations, and all the rest of it.

Drifted Apart.

"Finally we drifted apart. There will be no divorce. Neither of us cares for one. He now has his own fairly successful business. I am climbing steadily in my profession. This last year I bought myself a fine fur coat, a new car, sent my younger sister to college, made my parents more comfortable, put money in investments, etc.

"My husband often said he resented the fact that I could and did earn more than he. The worst of it is that it does weaken a man. He comes to lean on your income. He expects you to do things for yourself. I have watched it in the lives of my friends and it does not mean happiness.

"From a bitter experience I would warn any girl not to marry a man unless she is willing to live on his income. If it is too small, don't marry him. One can't help but lose respect and love for a man when you see his moral fiber weakening. A married woman earning an income more or nearly that of her husband brings unhappiness upon herself and weakness upon her husband. From actual experience I can testify to the truth of it."

Mrs. Mary F., another correspondent, believes that the title "fifty-fifty" is the reason for many marriage failures.

Stating the Case.

"When the average working class couple marry," she says, "the idea is that the husband earns the money to run the home. That's his part, and the wife cooks, cleans, and spends the housekeeping money to the best of her ability. If she finds she can do these things in a short time and has leisure to earn money outside of the home, she should by all means do so, but her money should not go toward the every-day expenses of the house. That's where the trouble starts. If the husband loses his job, the wife's money will tide them over. How much better it would be for both the man and his wife if he had to say: 'Well, I will have to get work at once, because my wife is keeping her wages for a time when an emergency may crop up.'

"In my own case, as a wife who works, my husband and I play a game of make-believe in regard to my salary. When we are tempted to dip into it, we just say: 'How would we manage if we did not have it?' In this way we get along on my husband's wages. People who say they cannot marry on any other basis than the fifty-fifty must have extravagant notions, because in the days when a married woman could not get a job unless she was a widow, couples got married and on one salary often owned their own homes. Homes cost more now, and that's what my salary is being saved for."

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail, a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

WORK FOR SHUT-INS.

THIS letter explains a situation without needing comment:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am interested in a family where help is needed at once. The husband has been a semi-invalid for a long time, and the wife has worked, earning enough, with what the husband has made when well, to take care of them and their two children. Now she is sick and the husband is feeling badly. He is sick again, and can't seem to improve because he feels he has been a drag on the family rather than a help.

"If he could find some lighter work that would suit his condition and enable him to earn money more steadily—enough money to pay his expenses through the year—he would feel better and the wife's earnings would be free for herself and the children. Can you suggest any way to do this?"

Helping Them to Earn.

Thanks to the work of a group of Chicago women there is a splendid way. The Vocational Society for Shut-ins, located at 112 East Walton place, is an organization which devotes itself to solving just such problems, providing work for shut-ins, paying them for it, and selling the product on the open market. Here are some of the people they have helped:

Miss L., formerly an active girl and now 26, suffered an attack of heart trouble a year ago and was confined to bed. Like the man in the letter above, the greatest difficulty in helping her has been to overcome her depression, for she felt, and rightly, that her illness was a terrific burden on her family, and the lack of activity was exceedingly trying. After studying her needs, the society sent an instructor who taught her to hook rugs, furnished the materials and bought her output, paying her once a month. She is making enough to pay the expenses of her illness, is happy, and thanks largely to her improved spirits, is improving in physical condition.

Mrs. T., a widow, broke down two years ago under the strain of providing for herself and four daughters, and her family situation seemed almost hopeless. But the society's instructor decided upon a kind of work she could do, even though bedridden, taught her to do it, and now Mrs. T. earns enough, not only to support her family, but to continue making payments on the little home she was buying when she was taken ill.

Paid Every Month.

Many more stories could be told, but there is no need. Mrs. S., who wrote to me, will find that the society is exactly the organization to meet the need she mentioned in her letter. Its work is distinctly not charity, save for the help obtained from membership fees. The workers are paid every month for what they produce, and the society, like any business, assumes the risk of being able to sell the goods. In this its chief need is to have its activities known, for high standards are maintained, and the knitted goods, hooked rugs, and similar wares produced by the people it helps are excellent in every way. It is a case of helping shut-ins to help themselves.

I can do no better in the case Mrs. S. mentions than suggest that she consult the society. And if you would like to help in this or similar cases, I suggest that you acquaint yourself with the society. I am sure you will be glad to coöperate, once you see for yourself what a valuable work it is doing.

Starting to Work.

"Do you think there is among your readers some one who has something suitable for a young girl to wear in an office? I am writing for a young, ambitious girl who will go to work in June. Her mother will need everything she earns and she will need some simple little dresses, plain and neat. She wears size 16 or 18. I. R."

Since appearances mean so much to a young woman in the business world, we'd like to see this girl just beginning her career get some of the dresses she needs.

For a Worthy Cause.

"I represent a philanthropic organization financing the care of dependent children in private homes. We are much in need of a good typewriter for the use of our workers, and am sure if you will tell the world about it some one will volunteer to donate one to this organization. MRS. W. N. H."

This is indeed a worthy cause, and if you have a typewriter not being used I can think of no better use for it. You will be doing your bit for the youngsters who benefit by this organization.

Shouldering a Man's Burden.

"We have discovered a small newsboy, who is trying with the aid of his 10 year old brother to support his mother and sister, aged 4, by selling newspapers. In their two bare rooms which are spotlessly clean they have little or no furniture. They need a bed, a couple of comfortable chairs, and some rugs. Almost anything will be useful. J. V. B."

Can you relieve this little man of a bit of his burden? A comfortable chair, an old rug or any other piece of household furniture would help.

Free Music Lessons.

"This school gives a summer normal course for piano teachers, from June 28 to July 30. To demonstrate teaching, a small class of children, 6 or 7 years old, is used. The class meets downtown from 10 to 11 o'clock, three mornings a week. These children have, therefore, fifteen music lessons with no charge. There is, of course, no possible obligation about their future study. All we ask is regularity of year you sent us a nice class, and we attendance during the five weeks. Last are wondering if again, among your readers, there are some who would care to have their children in this group. They must be beginners, having had no lessons, and must have a piano at home. Only fundamental work is accomplished in fifteen lessons, but it is an astonishingly good foundation. We desire to give the lessons to children who are really musical in tendencies. There will be a tryout held on Thursday, June 10, at the school. We feel this a worth while thing and are most appreciative of your coöperation and the use of your fine column. "D. P."

This is an opportunity which should not be overlooked, as it will afford many children who could not otherwise take music lessons the advantage of a splendid course. If you are interested, write us at once.

A New Deodorant
Especially Recommended to FAT PEOPLE

Send for a Free Sample Today!

FOR YEARS WE have been in touch with fat people and have been able to make a study of their troubles—Swollen feet, excessive perspiration, chafing, sores, are only a few of the annoyances they are subjected to during the hot weather—A reliable effective deodorant especially adapted to relieve FAT people was greatly needed. BON ODOR (a soothing, refreshing powder) has been sold during the past year to our own customers with remarkable success—We have now decided to put it on the market and we will be glad to send every reader of this paper a free sample of BON ODOR, together with an interesting booklet.

We consider BON ODOR the ideal deodorant for everyone but more so for FAT People because while it relieves excessive perspiration it does not entirely suppress the necessary amount needed to promote healthful conditions—Health authorities agree that to keep well a certain amount of perspiration is needed—BON ODOR answers this purpose and will not clog the pores as many pastes and deodorants do. It quickly does away with unpleasant odors and greatly relieves sores, chafing, redness. When shaken on swollen, aching feet there is a great beneficial effect—if a foot bath is taken twice a week with two spoonfuls of BON ODOR mixed in warm water, walking should become a pleasure—BON ODOR is advised for men as well as women.

BON ODOR is guaranteed not to contain any ingredient injurious to the most delicate skin—Sells for 50c a large sized can (comes in one size only) at all good drug stores—If your druggist is out of it order directly from THE SCIENTIFIC CO., 1841 Broadway, New York City.

Escape the part of Ironing that makes Young Women Old

The Sunbeam's All-Over Heating Unit Ends Arm-Aching Pressure!
Saves Hours of Drudgery! Cuts the Monthly Light Bill!

10,000 Hours on Steady Current failed to Burn it Out—Equal to Over 30 Years' Home Use

THE ironing board claims a month a year of a woman's time. Yet it can be quite delightful to iron with loving care her own pretty things and the clothes of her dear ones. Or it can be downright drudgery. The difference depends on her iron—see this:

What an iron fails to supply in HEAT a woman must furnish in ARM-ACHING PRESSURE. If damp pieces cool the iron, she must stop in the midst of her work and wait while it heats again.

To heat and stay hot, the heating unit inside the iron must cover the entire bottom—must heat not only the point and center but the very edges, too, where an iron meets the damp cloth FIRST.

That's what the Sunbeam All-Over heating unit does. That's why the Sunbeam, by actual experience, saves women an hour to half a day, depending on the size of their washing. For Sunbeam stays hot where other irons cool!

It thus ends arm-aching pressure, saves hours of work, and reduces the light bill by shortening your ironing time.

The Sunbeam's famous All-Over Heating Unit is the growth of 16 years of research. To perfect it, the Sunbeam engineers worked in repair shops, taking other irons apart to find out why they failed. Five of the types of units shown above were rejected by them. Step by step they designed the large unit illustrated above, and it overcomes all faults.

Then, too, these engineers made this iron of full ironing weight, but with such precise balance that it FEELS decidedly lighter. They gave it a double-nickeled, mirror-smooth bottom that glides over any fabric like glass, and will never peel off or wear through.

They gave it square heels that iron into corners and gathers on the backward stroke, so women need not twist the iron around.

Women who use the Sunbeam can sit down to iron if they like. But standing or sitting, their work is quick and easy, and their light bills are less.

Should a woman accidentally let the Sunbeam over-heat it will heat as well as before. This in itself ends 70% of the repairs to irons.

MR. NICKELDICK

MAKES A PROMISE.

BY WM. DONAHEY

Mr. Nickeldick opened his eyes and looked around. Everything seemed strange about him. There was a perfectly huge chair and it was sitting before the biggest fireplace Mr. Nickeldick had ever seen. He saw a big iron pot as tall as himself, including his ears. He puckered up his eyebrows and tried to think.

Pulled out his rabbit watch.

"Let's see!" he said to himself. "Is this yesterday or today? Am I here, or some place else?" He puzzled over the last remark for some little time, but it didn't seem to help him a bit. Presently he noticed that he carried a bunch of wild flowers in his right paw and a look of fear came into his eyes.

"THE WOLVES! THE WOLVES!" he cried as he jumped to his feet. "Now I remember. I was walking in the woods picking wild flowers. I went to sleep and when I awoke it was dark, and I got lost, and the wolves chased me, and I saw this house with the door open and I ran in and slammed the door. OH, IT WAS TERRIBLE!"

He pulled out his rabbit watch and looked at it. "Oh, my ears!" he exclaimed, "it's half past eight. I must be getting home." He listened at the door, first with one ear and then with the other. "I believe the wolves have gone," he said. "I'll open the door a crack and look out." He looked for the latch; it was high above his head.

"Lawsy!" he cried. "Giants must live here. I'll get a chair and climb up on that."

He tried to drag over the big chair by the fireplace, but it was terribly heavy. He couldn't move it.

There was only one room in the house and the rabbit hunted and hunted for some piece of furniture on which he could climb up to the lock, but everything was much too heavy for him to move. There wasn't a window in the place, and it began to look as though he was a prisoner.

"If the folks who live here are not friendly I'm a goner when they find me," he thought to himself. "I've got to get out."

He stared up at the table and wondered if there was anything on it that might help him to make his escape.

"If I had a good sharp knife I might be able to carve my way through the door," he said to himself.

There was one of the big chairs near the table, so he stepped back several feet and taking a good run he gave a mighty leap and landed safely on the seat of the chair. From the chair he could see over the top of the table. There was a huge bowl, with a spoon in it, a dish of honey, a book, some salt and pepper, and, sure enough, a big knife. It was a terrible task, but he finally managed to climb to the top of the table.

Mr. Nickeldick glanced into the bowl as he passed by. It was half full of oat meal and the rabbit's eyes opened wide when he saw the spoon.

"Mercy on us!" he exclaimed. "That's a regular giant's spoon. One spoonful of that size would do me for two meals."

He started across the table for the knife, but his eye fell upon the book, which lay open. He was instantly frozen in his tracks. It was a cook book. His eyes fairly popped out of his head, for this is what he read:

FIVE WAYS TO COOK A RABBIT.

"MY WHISKERS!" he gasped. "One way to cook a rabbit is too much for me. I've got to get out of this place."

He caught up the big knife and threw it to the floor, then jumping to the chair he quickly followed.

Poor Mr. Nickeldick was so scared he could hardly handle the big knife, but he began to hack at the door with all his might. He had only been working a short time when he heard footsteps approaching. His heart nearly stopped beating. Some one was coming towards the door. He dropped the knife and scampered under a bed, just as a key rattled in the lock.

It wasn't a very good hiding place, but it was the best the frightened rabbit could find. The door swung open and two large bears walked into the room.

Mr. Nickeldick felt the goose flesh breaking out on his ears, his tail grew cold, and his teeth chattered like a telegraph key.

The rabbit could only see the feet and legs of the bears, but he knew one was a lady bear and the other a big gentleman bear.

The bears slammed the door and then Mr. Nickeldick heard them sniffing.

"They probably smell me," thought the poor rabbit.

"Hokey pokey, how do you do;
I smell the tracks of a rabbit stew."

It was the gentleman bear talking and Mr. Nickeldick trembled so with fear he nearly shook off his vest.

The bears must have heard the frightened rabbit's knees knocking together, or it might have been the chattering of his teeth. Anyhow, they stooped down and glared at him under the bed.

"Come out of there," growled the big bear, and reaching under the bed he caught the rabbit by the leg and dragged him out. He set the rabbit on his feet and then he happened to see the bunch of wild flowers Mr. Nickeldick had brought into the house.

"WHO PICKED THOSE WILD FLOWERS?" he roared, glaring at the rabbit.

"Please, your highness," answered Mr. Nickeldick in a weak voice, "I-I-I-I did, sir." The frightened rabbit tried to curtsy, but he was so weak he nearly fell down.

"Don't you know that wild flowers can't be tamed?" bellowed the bear. "They belong to the woods and you kill them when you pick them. They wilt and die before you can get them home. A rabbit that would pick wild flowers would kill robins. He's a no account rabbit. Into the pot with him! INTO THE POT WITH HIM! Save the wild flowers and make a stew out of him."

"We will have to have some water, my dear," said the lady bear, handing the iron pot to the big bear. "You get some water for me."

The big bear took the pot and shuffled out of the door as poor Mr. Nickeldick burst into tears.

"Don't cry, poor rabbit," said the lady bear kindly. "It was wrong of you to pick the wild flowers. My husband never eats a rabbit without a good excuse and you certainly gave him one by picking the wild flowers. I feel sorry for you, and if you will promise never to pick another flower I will let you escape while he is away after the water."

"I-I-I p-p-promise," gasped Mr. Nickeldick. The bear opened the door and told him to go. Mr. Nickeldick went.

Mr. Nickeldick went.

He ran as he never ran before and in a short time he found the road to Puckerbush, When he got home he hurried in to his writing desk, where he kept his little red book, and this is what he wrote down:

"This day I have made a solemn promise never to pick wild flowers.

"It is wrong to pick wild flowers and it's no fun to be the main part of a stew."

BRIGHT SAYINGS of HUSBANDS & WIVES

The snappy comeback of the better half when cornered has often been a source of wonder to husbands and wives! The husband or the wife has come across with a bright saying that will never be forgotten by the other half of the matrimonial sketch. What was that bright saying, Mr.? Mrs.? Send it to us and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. Address Bright Sayings of Husbands and Wives, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Missing for Some Time.

Our two daughters had just received excellent report cards and I gave these to their Dad with the remark, "Aren't you proud of your girls? They got their brains from me."

He quickly replied, "Gee, I've often wondered what had become of yours!"

L. M. H.

Neither Friend nor Lady.

A group of bachelors had heard that one of their number had married, so for fun one of them stepped up to him and said, "Who's the lady friend you were with yesterday?"

The newlywed flared up and said, "I'll have you understand that's not my friend, and she's no lady; that's my wife."

K. G.

Back at Him.

Unknown to me, my husband entered the house and was in a adjoining room the one in which I was entertaining some women guests, and telling them what wonderful qualities "friend husband" possessed.

Just as I'd finished my glowing eulogy he stepped in front of the curtains and said, "Well, I wish I could say as much for my wife."

I got even by retaliating, "You could if you were as big a liar as I've just been."

Corns Lift Off

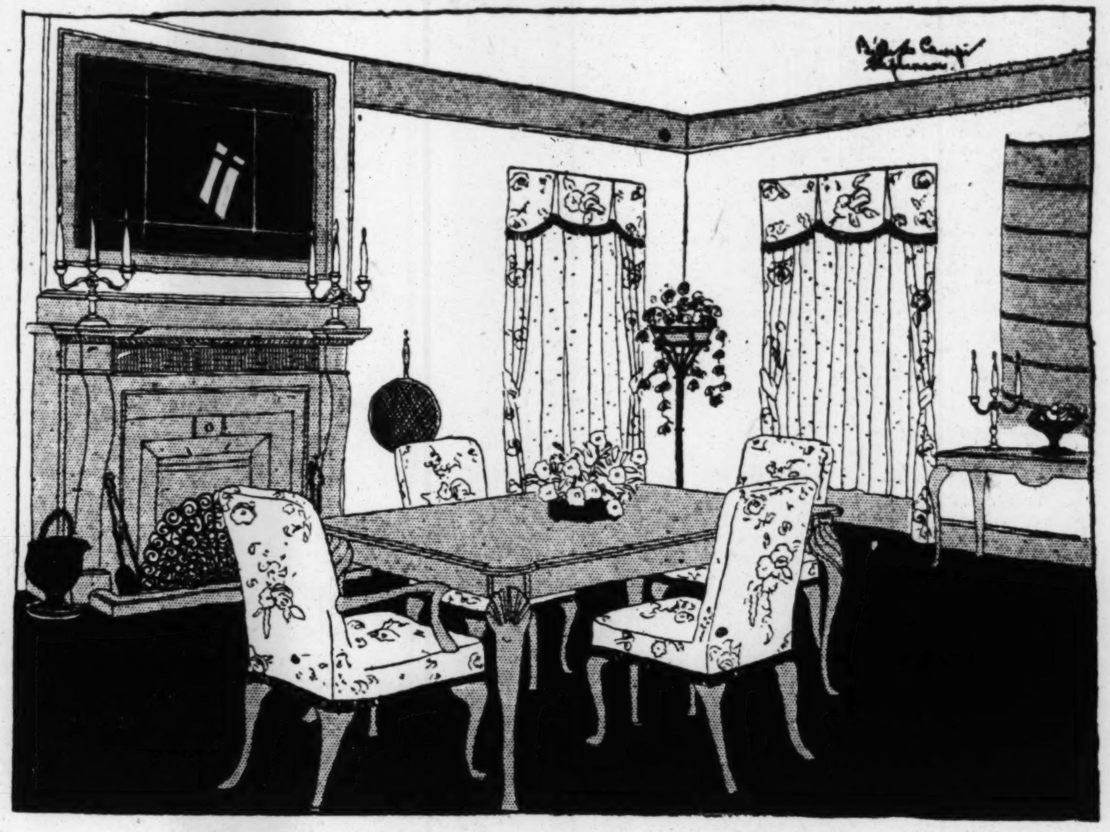
You'll laugh! Lift off hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes and calluses. It doesn't hurt a bit!

Seems Magic! Just drop "Freezone" on any tender, touchy corn. Instantly it stops aching; then shortly you just lift that old bothersome corn right off with your fingers. It works like a charm, every time.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs only a few cents at any drug store—Try it!

The HOME HARMONIOUS

by Anita de Campi



Flowered Slip Covers and Curtains Achieve Coolness.

SUMMER CHINTZES.

"TIME to go to the country!" What a glorious cry for those who can get away from the city. But what a lot of people there are who must stay where they are, with no chance of countrying at all. The home is tiresome enough when we have had no vacation from it during the long winter and the early spring months. If circumstances bind us to it during the summer, too, the least we can do is to cheer it into a semblance of a gay bower by means of lively chintz.

Entirely new color schemes may be elaborated throughout the rooms in the home by the simple "presto" of slipcovers, cushions and curtains. It is an excellent idea to have several sets of covers, so that one set may be at the cleaners, one on, and one in reserve, That guarantees a feeling of refreshing cleanliness, too. Who doesn't shudder to think of trailing exquisite voiles, laces and crêpes of the new summer toilettes over winter upholstery that must be more or less saturated with city soot?

In having slips cleaned it is best, by all means, to have them dry cleaned, for even though the material is guaranteed to wash, the shape is easily distorted in wet washing, and there is some likelihood of fading, or running the pattern. Pillows should be re-covered with fresh slips. If the material for the slips is figured it is a good plan to make pillows in various solid colors, matching the different tones in the figuring. Summer dress materials make lovely sofa pillow covering. Then it is jolly to pick out the brightest color in the chintz and repeat this in smart organdie window curtains.

In a living room pleasantly transposed for hot weather the walls are papered in a two toned ecru paper of damask pattern—a soft neutral background which fits in equally well with the summer or the winter color scheme. The floor, too, is neutral toned, being rugged in taupe chenille. As used in the winter the davenport is upholstered in tête de negre mohair velour, as is a comfortable Coxwell chair. Extra davenport cushions are done in copper colored taffeta, bound with black and gold braid. An additional arm chair is upholstered in soft toned tapestry. Coppery pink silk gauze makes the glass curtains. Draperies are of heavy sunfast in wide stripes of copper and peacock blue with hairlines of black and mauve.

This color scheme is entirely changed by the "summer clothes" which have been made for the room. A flowered chintz was selected, showing multicolored flowers, with coral pink predominating, on a jade green ground. It is used for slip covers on the upholstered pieces, and for window draperies over the coral pink glass curtains. The davenport cushions are covered with rep matching the chintz background and are piped with chintz.

Glazed chintz is used with the maximum of satisfaction for semi-permanent upholstery in bedrooms, dining rooms and informal living rooms. It lies better when it is tacked on. Used in loose slip covering it is sure to wrinkle up in time, and is never quite nice after that. The same may be said of sateen. Charming at first, but mussy looking in no time.

The chairs in the drawing are explanatory. They wear slip covers, but these are tacked to the lower edge under the seats, and may easily be ripped off and discarded at the end of the season. Being of glazed surface they will stay clean for several months, but do not lend themselves well to renovating.

The dining room illustrated today has a combination of crimson, French gray, and black for its winter scheme. The crimson upholstery of the chairs and the crimson damask draperies proved to be too overpoweringly warm for summer weather. Consequently the draperies were taken down, sent to be cleaned, and folded away for future use. A lovely glazed chintz of floral pattern on a light mauve ground replaced them and is used also for slip covers on all of the chairs. These covers and the lambrequins at the windows are finished with narrow, leaf green upholsterers' fringe. Glass curtains are of ecru marquisette, flecked with mauve. Tapered mauve candles are used.

Above the side table is a decorative hanging made of strips of brocade in different colors joined together with narrow gold braid. An interesting feature is a fan shaped, wrought iron screen before the fireplace. Walls and woodwork are a soft French gray, blending nicely with the skillfully and completely changed color scheme.

In the sun room a bright and cheerfully warm combination of colors prevails during the cold weather. The furniture is enameled black and is flatted with striped rep cushions in black, citron and flame. Lemon yellow china silk curtains the windows. Quite different in the good old summer time: The glowing yellow silk curtains are replaced by leaf green theatrical gauze and the cushions, with their warm flame stripes, are covered with a chintz of futuristic pattern on a string colored ground. Such a pleasantly cool summer room!

ISN'T IT ODD

by William Atherton Du Puy

ISN'T it odd that any animal should come into this world without the slightest sign of a mouth, that it should eat nothing through all its life, that it should go on and on until its strength is exhausted, and that it should then die?

Yet this is exactly what the May fly does. It never eats; it could not eat. It is a beautiful and winged creature that dances in the sun. In the end, like an airplane that has used up all its gasoline, it glides into oblivion.

Back of this May fly there is an earlier form which no observer would suspect of being in any way related to it. This is an ugly, wiggling grub, or nymph, which is born in the mud at the bottom of lakes or streams. The nymph, to be sure, is born of eggs laid by the May fly during that brief life in the air. Nature's purpose in that flight is to scatter these eggs.

These nymphs play at hide and seek there in the water for a whole year. They are active, greedy creatures, with huge appetites, quite unlike the May flies that are to be. They are the chief food of many fishes, just as bread is the staff of life for human beings.

Then comes some day in spring, May or June, depending on how far north a given nymph lives. The ugly little creature feels a peculiar impulse that is driving it to the surface of the water. Arriving there it climbs up some twig or blade of grass, comes out of the water for the first time in its life. Watchers may see the nymphs come forth if they happen to sit beside some stream at just the right time of year.

There on the grass blades these grotesque little water animals hunch their backs with a great effort and their skins may be seen to be splitting open. There is a flutter of action. Slowly a new form begins to emerge. Damp and weak it is, yet it unfolds itself in quite surprising proportions. It presents gorgeous, gossamer wings and a tail with three prongs that is four times as long as was the whole nymph.

The May fly has come into being. In a moment it is wafted away and takes to the air. It begins its joyous up and down flight. On and on it goes, as light as thistledown. So many are the May flies that they sometimes fill the lakeside air. They pile up beneath street lamps. For a day they seem to be everywhere and then they are gone until another year has passed and another generation of water grubs climbs up stalks of grass for their transformation.

Children Cry For Fletcher's

CASTORIA

When Baby Complains.

There are many ways a baby has of expressing any pain or irregularity or digression from its normal condition of health and happiness. A short sharp cry, a prolonged irritated cry. Restlessness, a constant turning of the head or of the whole body, fretful. In these and other ways a baby tells you there is something wrong. Most mothers know that a disordered stomach, or bowels that do not act naturally are the cause of most of baby's sufferings. A call for the doctor is the first thought, but in the event of any delay there should be ready at hand a safe remedy such as Fletcher's Castoria.

Castoria has been used for baby's ailments for over 30 years and has merited the good will of the family physician in a measure not equaled by any other baby's medicine because of its harmlessness and the good results achieved.

And remember this: Castoria is essentially a baby's remedy and not a cure-all for every member of the family. What might help you is too often dangerous when given to a babe.

Fletcher's Castoria safely relieves

Constipation	Wind Colic	To Sweeten Stomach
Flatulence	Diarrhea	Regulate Bowels

Aids in the assimilation of Food, promoting Cheerfulness, Rest and Natural Sleep without Opiates.

IN CHINA, the wedding color is red. Just before a wedding a strange procession passes through the narrow streets. Servants in red are laden with boxes of rich workmanship, containing the finest linens. They are the bride's trousseau, her hope chest of love.

The custom of the hope chest is centuries old. It is spread throughout the world, intensely interesting and quaint as it differs among various peoples. The romance of the hope chest has become a beautiful and practical tradition.

Today in America the hope chest has taken a broader meaning. It includes more than linen and trousseau. It is symbolical not only of the bride's personal necessities, but also of the many household needs which she is laying in store for her new home.

Home necessities of interest to the bride-to-be will be found in abundance at the Peoples Gas Stores. Here, too, her friends will find gifts of the sort she will surely appreciate for housekeeping.

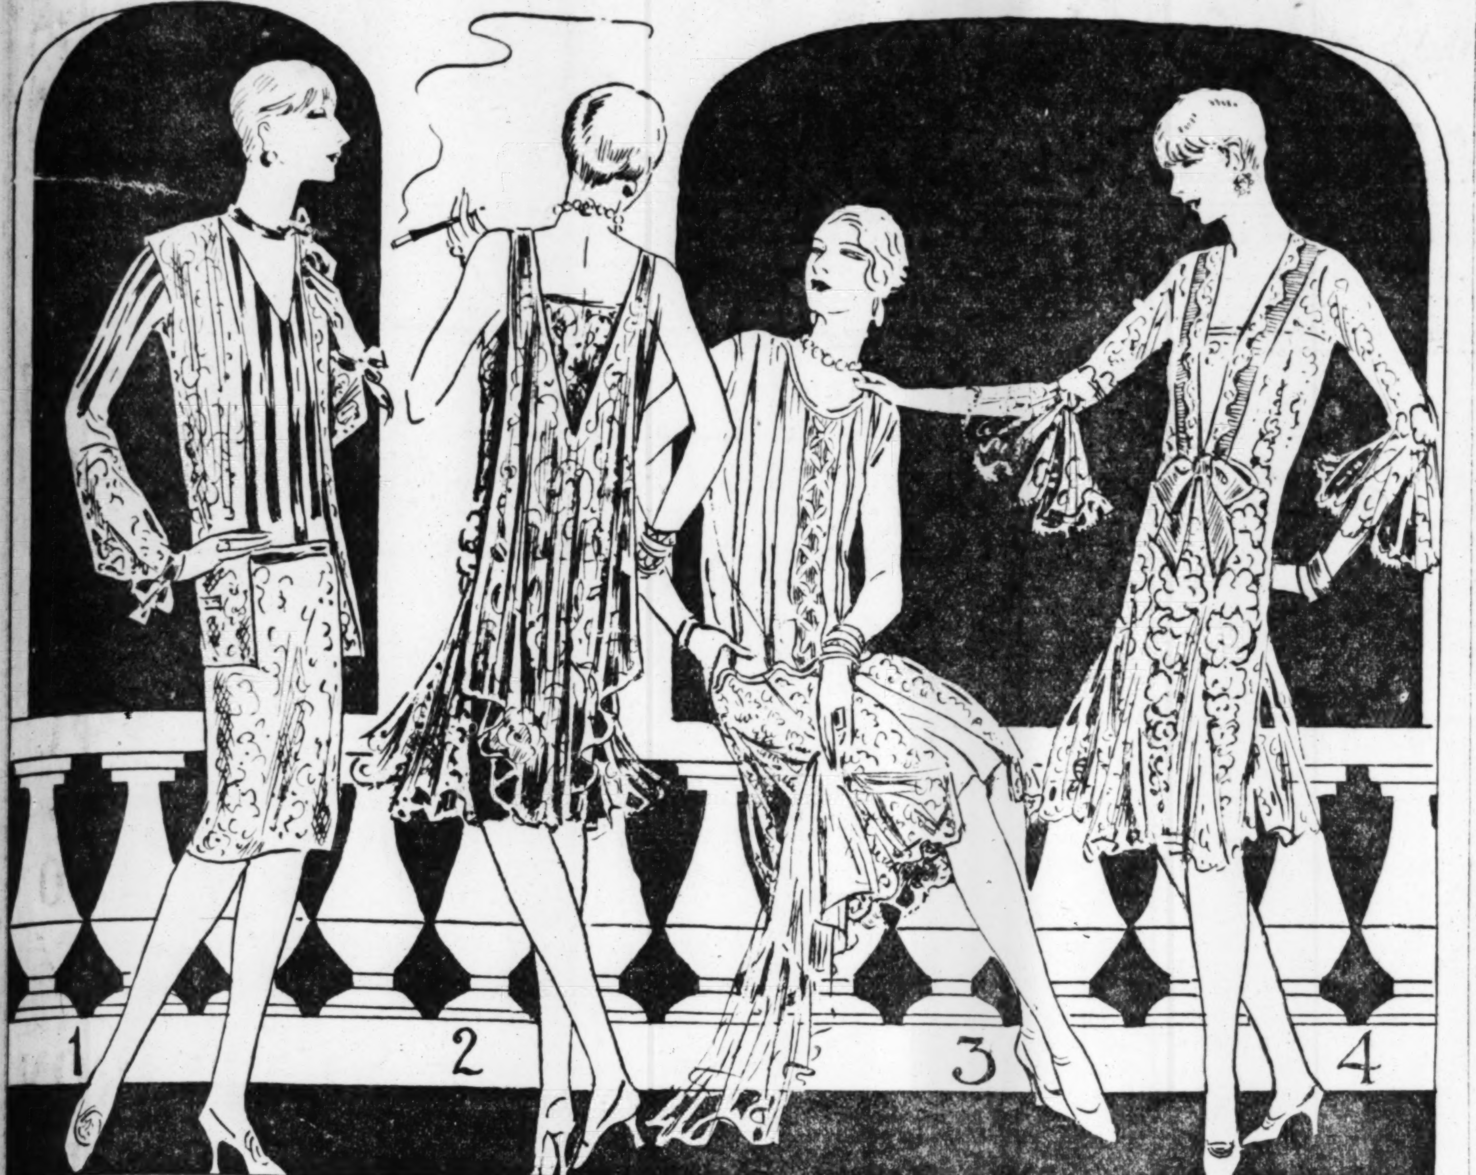
The Last Word in Paris Fashions



1.—The newest freak of fashion is the sports ensemble of lace and crepe georgette.

2.—The distinguished summer evening gown has a cape back of lace.

3.—Poiret combines beige crepe georgette and beige lace with yellow and silver embroidery.

4.—The unusual afternoon frock of lace unites fuschia orange, gold and beige.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

LACE FOR ALL OCCASIONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Ever since Paris adopted the slogan "Women's clothes for women" as a reactionary movement against the masculine modes of several seasons we have been getting back to normalcy. Normalcy in this case means the right of woman to look pretty and dainty and not like a weak edition of some anemic lounge lizard. This womanizing process has extended from the crown of the head to the dainty soles of inconsequential shoes. In Paris you can only find the severely masculine bob in the environs of the Café du Dome and other Quartier Latin strongholds. The fashionable Parisienne and her imitators, the midinettes, have adopted the Greek swirl and other decorative and unmasculine hair cuts.

Along with this, of course, go feminine frocks, coats, and ensembles, hats that actually show a bit of flower trimming and are composed of the inimitable but lacy picot straw; pearl and rose hosiery with lace clocks, and slippers that are high heeled and decorated in dainty scrolls and appliqué of contrasting color. Of course, hand in hand, aiding and abetting this reversion to the attributes of the eternal Eve, are the smart spring colors, dainty pastels, vampish blacks, and live, lady-like dark blues.

About the most salinet example I can think of, of the truly feminine tendency of fashions for summer, is the lace sports frock. The sports dress, suit, or ensemble of face, or even net, is not an isolated and freakish creation of some sensation seeking couturier, but is a respected representative in every important collection, and also an adopted mode in fashionable summer places.

Naturally the sports frock is for those women who want to be in the sporting atmosphere and yet out of the game. That such women predominate is not subject to question. Any one who has observed the gallery at a golf game, or looked upon the beach costumes at the summer place will not raise a question. Anyhow, it is downright sporting to risk your life on the golf links where a stray ball may at any time lay the innocent bystander low, or to subject your Paris toilette to the ravages of insurgent sea waves and sunlight. This season you may have the compensation of a lace sports dress or ensemble, which looks sporting and is perfectly appropriate for the country club dance thereafter.

Our first model shows you the way in which Paris interprets the lacy sports suit. It is a creation of Nicole Groult, who knows most of the celebrities that come to Paris, and who creates always in an original vein. In doing the daring thing of creating a sports suit of lace, Mme. Groult wisely chose a sober color, and the tone of this ensemble is navy blue—not midnight, mind you, but a bright, live navy.

First of all, there is the jacket, which is sleeveless and is composed of navy blue lace. It is a straight box jacket, with useful looking inset pockets at the sides, and it slips over the blouse of dark blue crêpe georgette, showing the bishop sleeves that are half georgette, half navy blue lace. They tie trimly around the wrist with georgette ties, and the upper and georgette part of the sleeves are trimmed with bias bands of self-material. The front of the blouse is also trimmed with irregular bands of georgette.

About half of the charm of this model lies in the collar of the blouse, which is a narrow band of georgette tied on the left shoulder and tucked under a single red rose, made of chiffon weight rubber, exactly simulating a real rose in touch and texture. The [illegible] of the skirt is a simple one, for it is a straight skirt of the wrap-around variety, to give stepping place for dancing, or for the stride required to keep up with the game.

Our second offering is a lace evening gown that is, without question, one of the smartest evening gowns in Paris today, tomorrow, and next month. Foremost in importance in this frock is the cape back, which is attached to the shoulders only and which gives a double neckline in back. The lower edge flows in ripples to the hemline at the center back. I have seen this cape back effect extended into a little fishtail train on certain gowns, but since Parisiennes all insisted on cutting off the tail part to exact evenness with the hemline the present version remains the most popular.

Redfern, whose creation this is, has made the blouse straight, and has achieved a girdle of green crêpe georgette flowers that dips down to a deep V in front. The trailing tendrils of the flowers are made of rhinestones. The skirt, which is also of black lace, is composed of a series of front godets, which balance neatrly and charmingly the flow of the cape in back. The gown is worn over a straight black slip of crêpe de chine.

Our third model represents the ideal summer afternoon and dinner dress of lace, created by no less a person than Paul Poiret, whose summer collection surpasses any of his former showings—some achievement! Poiret has indulged in a typical Poiret color combination—a true Poiret arrangement, for the color of the frock is beige lace, while the trimming is silver, and if you have ever noticed nature staging a gorgeous sunset with warm tones and silver you will know that this is something only a master can combine. Poiret makes the blouse of beige georgette, shirring it around the round neckline, and setting in box plaits to give a soft and feminine fullness. Neck and armholes are piped with lines of silver, and the band down the center front of the blouse is made of silver embroidery laid over a band of the softest yellow crepe georgette. The skirt is made of two layers, both of importance. The skirt proper—or the base—is of crepe georgette with tiny box plaits set in at intervals all around to give a comfortable and pretty fullness, and over this is a split tunic of beige lace, scalloped at the lower edge and piped in yellow and silver. This same scalloping in the silver and yellow forms the indicated waistline.

Our fourth model is one of those gorgeous unions of beige, orange, fuschia, and gold, in the summer frock of lace for an afternoon of bridge, dancing, or any other kind of happy relaxation. Redfern has made this model of beige lace, the pattern encrusted by an outline embroidery of gold thread. The deep V-shaped collar is of orange chiffon encrusted with beige lace and an applique of orange and fuschia flowers, and so are the double triangles that extend from bust to hem line in front, dividing the godets of beige lace. The sleeves of beige lace have full ruffles of lace in the same tone topped by a band of orange chiffon encrusted with fuschia and beige flower applique. A big bow of orange chiffon at the end of the V collar completes this unusually beautiful summer dress.

BRIDEMAIDS' HATS.

THE hats shown in this week's issue follow up the bridal articls shown and described in last Sunday's issue. The attendants' hats are quite different this season. A few years ago we had the rainbow weddings, then later large black velvet hats were worn by bridesmaids, and now large hair hats, mostly in solid colors, are shown.

In the wedding illustrated four of the bridesmaids wore bride's blush pink hair hats. This same shade of velvet ribbon, five inches wide, was strapped around the crown and brought down on the brim on the right side, where it was tacked firmly. This was then covered by a large flat, pink flower. You will notice the flower is not a rose, but a flower having long petals—something new this season.

These blossoms are made of organdie, then given a light coat of varnish or lacquer, which gives them a transparent look, something like Venetian glassware. They are most attractive.

The hats worn by the matron and maid of honor at the same wedding were in a light green hair cloth called lovebird green. These hats were also trimmed with the same width of green velvet ribbon, finished off on the side with a green flower.

The two little flower girls at this wedding wore flesh colored tulle dresses and each wore a narrow band of small pink flowers all around the head. Between them they carried a basket of rose leaves, which they scattered in front of the bride.

At another smart wedding the bride wore a large white hair hat trimmed with five inch light silver ribbon. The five bridesmaids wore orchid hair hats, the maid of honor wore a light gray. The large hats are quite a bit longer in the back. Some are still turned up in the rear, but in warm weather, when there is no coat to interfere, they will be worn from two and one-half to three inches longer.

Milan hats, that we have not heard of for so long, are going to be worn a good deal this season, both in turbans and in large picture shapes, trimmed with grosgrain ribbon ornaments and velvet ribbon, ostrich feather pads, or completed with a narrow band of grosgrain ribbon.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

APPROACHING THE PINEAPPLE.

ABOUT the first of June the pineapple begins to come to us in tropical abundance. In the last ten years commerce has exploited this fruit greatly to our advantage, and one part of its exploiting has been of an educational nature. Through these educational campaigns, and because there are in our midst more people who have had experience with the pineapple in Hawaii, Mexico, Cuba, its own Isles of Pines, and even in Florida, we have learned how versatile a fruit it is, and how to manipulate it fascinatingly, and in other fashions than by slicing or shredding it.

Perhaps you can remember the day when the pineapple seemed as unapproachable to you as a battlement, while now you use its juice as an alternate to orange juice, or serve the fruit in "bracts" in much the same fashion as you serve fine strawberries in their hulls. There is no doubt about this juice being a digestive agent, and it is a mineral water of the finest type, sweetened to be sure, but none the less valuable in its minerals. That fruit sugar which makes it sweet has its merits also.

The first thing to do in preparing a pineapple is to wash it thoroughly in cold water, using a brush if necessary. Then wipe dry. The heavy outer parts may be cooked, if we wish to be economical, to be used variously in beverages and if we go to tropical sources we may find out how to make a vinegar of it, which is highly recommended as excelling in both color and flavor. Pineapple juice when sweet has a winey flavor, and as it must pass through alcohol in getting to vinegar this is emphasized.

Pineapple Bracts or Pyramids.

With a sharp and rather long knife cut around each bract, slanting the knife toward the center so as to make a point. Or break the pineapple into such sections by beginning at the bottom and taking an eye at a time. Lay the bracts in a circle with a mound of sugar at the center, or a cone if you know how to pack sugar and turn it out from a small glass. Use these as a fruit appetizer for a luncheon. In Florida they recommend these for a "ladies luncheon."

Slicing Pineapple.

A nurse's fashion of using the cooling pineapple for a patient is to cut off a slice without peeling the fruit and then to put the cut end down on a plate to keep it from drying out. There are many reasons why it is best to slice the fruit before peeling it, besides this one. There is less waste of juice, so that even when it is desirable to shred the fruit it may be cut in unpeeled slices.

The ideal knife to use for the slicing is one heavy and large, but thin. If it is not of the stainless order it should be used rapidly and rinsed and wiped off the instant its work has been done, and perhaps once or twice in the process.

One of the commercial companies gives these directions: "Grasp the pineapple firmly in one hand, then take hold of the foliage with the other hand and twist it off. Now slice the fruit across in thick slices not less than three-quarters of an inch thick. Put a slice on a plate. Then run a sharp knife around the edge of the slice, inside the peel. It then comes off, with eyes, easily." The rest of the directions explain a picture which shows four cuts made across the slice close up to the core, two of the cuts being at right angles to the other two. But this cuts the slice in eight parts. With a doughnut cutter one may remove the hard center, which no economical person throws away. It may be ground and cooked for beverage uses.

But thin-as-wafer slices are also delicious to eat with powdered sugar, and probably these are best obtained by paring the fruit entirely, although they may be cut from the unpared fruit with a knife large and sharp enough not to drag as it goes through the skin part.

Bars of Pineapple.

On the streets of Havana, Cuba, one sees many of the humbler of the population eating long bars of pineapple—bars made by peeling the fruit and then in cutting it from top to bottom in six long sections or so. This fruit, there, looks mealy and yellow, and is richer and more delicious in flavor and fragrance than what we generally get, although at this seasonable period we do often get exceedingly fine fruit, and we might politely eat these long bars at table, using both knife and fork, if necessary—particularly our fruit knives and the forks of the same relative size. This is English fashion—to use both knife and fork for fruit—and the juicier any fruit is the more sensible the fashion seems.

Shredding Pineapple.

An old fashioned way to shred pineapple is to wash it and wipe it dry, then holding the top firmly in the left hand peel the fruit by slicing from the top down to the bottom. This would be the method when starting to make the bars. Then remove the eyes, being sure to have the fruit in a platter or dish so that none of the juice be lost. Still holding by the top or "plume," begin at the top and pull a silver fork through the flesh clear to the core. For some uses this can be sweetened to taste and cooled. It may be diluted somewhat with cold water and in some cases improved so.

To shred a single slice, hold it firmly on a plate with one fork and shred with another.

When the shell is to be saved for some use—it requires particularly nice work to make it seem worth while as a container—the pineapple may be cut in half lengthwise, the core cut out, and the pulp of the fruit shredded out with a fork.

Piña Fria [Fresh Pineapple Juice.]

Pineapple juice with strawberries seemed to be served for breakfast as often at a fine hotel in Miami, Fla., as orange juice—a tall glass of the juice and the strawberries unhulled, the containers in a deep dish of cracked ice. It gives one an idea of coolness for the whole day, no matter what the temperature.

But it is in Cuba that one sees pineapple juice by the gallon, and served most interestingly with an edible sipper or long mossy bit of sugar and egg white. Many other fruit juices are also partaken of in Havana, in shops offering a similar service to what we have where we get our ice cream sodas, etc. A recipe printed last year in a New York paper, but from a woman in Cuba, reads: "The old Spanish way is to cut up the fruit in small pieces into a jar or deep glass dish, and mash with what looks like a wooden potato masher, only it is not quite so broad. As the juice comes out pour it into another dish and keep mashing until no more comes from the pulp. Pour over cracked ice and you have a pina fria, a popular refresco in the tropics."

The ice is not always used, I should say, although in a book on Mexico in which there is much about social eating it says the national beverage is shredded pineapple in powdered ice.

Minted Pineapple.

A little mint with fruit has a cool loveliness of a sort that made the mint juleps so famous, but we can get with pineapple, mint, and strawberry something surpassingly fine, and suited to any save a discontented taste, by using one-half a pineapple, a pint of strawberries, sugar to taste, and a sprinkling of mint—washed, dried, and chopped. Shred the pineapple and sprinkle a little sugar over it. Wash, drain, and hull the strawberries and press them through a strainer; then pour this strawberry puree over the pineapple. Have the mixture cold and serve it in well chilled glasses. Two leaves of mint per serving will make a good proportion and I cannot forget what a young woman said on whom this was tested: "It tastes like the first of August."

If you want to make it take the place of dessert serve walnuts with it. [There are people who, with some reason, object to cake with pineapple.] It is well to use the walnuts circumspectly since a pound of walnuts contains more than twice the calories there are in cakes without nuts.

Pineapple Tapioca.

For a dessert for three or four people, take one-fourth cup of granulated tapioca, one-half cup of sugar, one good slice of pineapple, two cups of cold water, one to two tablespoons of butter, a pinch of salt. Shred the pineapple and add a little of the sugar to it. Cook the tapioca in the two cups of water with stirring until it thickens. When thickened add the rest of the sugar and also the butter to it and pour the whole over the freshly shredded pineapple. Eat hot or cold.

Pineapple Sherbet for Two.

The following recipe is a standby in this column for the reason that it has proved so popular, and because whenever printed some new reader discovers its worth: Shred or cut fine one-fourth cup of a juicy pineapple. Cook one-half cup of sugar with one-fourth cup of water until it spins a thread or to 238 degrees. Pour this over the pineapple and let it stand until it cools. Add to it lemon juice to taste to strengthen the flavor, being careful not to use enough to take away the agreeable sweetness. Beat the white of one egg until stiff, then fold the pineapple and sugar mixture into it. Have chilled a half pint or pint glass jar. Pour this preparation into it, put a buttered paper over the top and clamp on the cover. Pack in half ice and half salt, mixed, for about one hour and a half, or an hour may do to bring it to that half frozen stage which is sherbet.

Double the mixture, or multiply to suit and use freezer, in which case add egg white or whites when the mixture has begun to stiffen. In making it in the first manner great expedition must be used to prevent the sirup from separating from the egg.

Pineapple Desserts.

The commercial booklets give us no end of ways of using pineapple for dessert. A little juice thickened most lightly with gelatin makes a delightful flavor for a mousse, but if too much gelatin is used—as much as a teaspoon per cup of double cream—the mixture may fail in being velvety smooth, but it will stand up even after the freezing has entirely warmed out of it.

Pineapple in Fruit Salads.

Slice a thick slice of pineapple straight across up to the core, and cut these across to get thin square wafers of the fruit for either a garnish or an ingredient of a [illegible] salad. A little sugar should always be added to pineapple before a dressing is put over it. Pineapple, orange and some bleached salad green make an excellent combination.

Spiced Pineapple.

Wash and dry a pineapple, cut it in three-fourth inch slices, peel these and cut into triangular pieces, cutting around the hard center. Cook till tender in plain water with about a dozen whole cloves to one large pineapple. Drain out the pineapple from the water and with some of it make a sirup, using twice as much sugar as water. Cook it five minutes, put in the pineapple and cook it in the sirup until it is thoroughly sweetened. Put it away in the sirup, but drain out and dry when to be used in fruit combinations, soft icings, ice creams, etc.

Behind the Scenes at Summer Opera

By Edward Moore.

ARMANDO AGNINI, stage director, is first on the lot, as they who use circus talk say, or at the opera house in the woods, according to the locution preferred by those who go to Ravinia. He has been here several weeks with his crew, unpacking the scenery, furniture, costumes, and properties that were crated at the end of last season, inspecting for repairs and refurbishings, designing and building new productions.

Ravinia—in case you have forgotten, the season will open three weeks from last night—is to have three new additions to its répertoire this summer. They are "La Vida Breve," "Madame Sans-Gene," and "Sapho." Besides these there will be a new setting for "Lohengrin," which is to be restored to the list this summer.

Like all good stage directors, Mr. Agnini generally maintains a position of extremely low visibility as far as the audience is concerned. On occasion, as when a large number of characters is needed on the stage, he will put on the grease paint of opera and emerge from the wings, for when he feels like it he can act a part with the best of them. "Zaza" used to be one of these occasions. Generally, though, the only chance to see him is to be had standing back of the pavilion during a performance. Once or twice during the evening, while the curtain is up, he will slip around in front to observe at first hand the scenery, the participants, and the lighting effects. Then, just as silently, he slips back again to the regions back stage.

"La Vida Breve," so they say—it has never been given hereabouts, and only last season at the Metropolitan—is to be Spanish in setting and sung to a Spanish libretto. Also, Lucrezia Bori, who is of Spanish birth, will take the principal part. It tells the adventures of a gypsy girl who falls in love with a young man of the upper class. Her uncle is well in touch with the proceedings, so much so that he desires to dispose of the young man through the short, sharp shock of a well honed knife. But he does not, and the romance goes on until the girl meets the young man just as his betrothal to another is being publicly announced. Some one always has to die in opera, so in this case it is the gypsy girl. According to all mortality tables, an operatic heroine or hero is the most insurable risk on record.

From Gypsy Quarter to Spanish Interior.

Mr. Agnini's share in the proceedings arises from the fact that the first act of "La Vida Breve" is laid in the gypsy quarter of Seville and the second in the interior of a Spanish house of the better class. Here is a call for two entirely opposed decorative schemes, but both full of color.

"Madame Sans-Gene" has a story of Napoleonic times in Paris. The first act is a laundry presided over by the woman who acquired the nickname of Mme. Sans-Gene, and who afterward became a power in the empire. The laundry was important because it used to be a gathering place for the celebrities of the period. It would seem that they came there less for the contemplation of operatic washtubs than to chat with her and each other.

Another act is a château interior, and a third is the cabinet of Napoleon. Altogether it is a fair problem for the scenic artist. The scene of the washtubs and the château can be made fairly fanciful as long as the atmosphere of the period is preserved, but Napoleon's sanctum, operatic or not, must be historically accurate down to small details, and there are several ways of checking up the accuracy.

Paris is also the background of "Sapho," but this is the Paris of another era. It has the Quartier Latin for one act; also a country scene and several Parisian interiors.

Furniture Built to Last.

It is intensely interesting to get a closeup inspection of stage scenery and properties. Take the furniture, for example. From your seat in the audience, stage furniture looks like drawing room furniture, but if you examine it closely you will find that it is made about five times as strongly. It is made to last and to resist violent action; in fact, it comes closer to being the actual reproduction of collectors' pieces than anything you will find in the shops.

For there are rough doings in opera. You will understand if you have seen, as I once did (not at Ravinia) a "Tosca" performance wherein the settee in the second act was broken in the course of Scarpia's ministrations, and wherein the care of Tosca to keep from getting spilled on the stage was the most obvious thing in the opera.

There have been operatic performances, and there will be in the future, where the matter of stage settings would seem to have been entered into in an entirely frivolous and lightminded spirit. But not at Ravinia. Mr. Eckstein greatly prefers to have his productions put on in the best possible manner. Mr. Agnini has all the prideful ambition of the artist in seeing that his department becomes an integral part of the performance. The Ravinia stage has been deepened this season and the wardrobe room is considerably larger, so there is reason to believe that the scenic section of the season will be bigger and better than ever before.

Music of Main Street.

Looking back at the composers' contest at the Evanston music festival a week ago, there was a reminder of a pronouncement by Dr. Howard Hanson, director of the Eastman School of Music of Rochester, N. Y. He held that Main street is going to be the creative impulse for American music; that it has swung away from Bach and the other classics to an expression of something the people recognize and understand. Main street, however, connoted to him the Swedish chorales, the church singing, and the annual oratorios of Wahoo, Neb. The case at Evanston was something different.

One of the numbers entered in the contest, still entirely anonymous as far as my information runs, was called "Masquerade." It was a quite American treatment of a subject that has been given foreign treatment many times in foreign lands. Dance feeling pervaded it all through. It had rapid motion and contrast, a waltz stated and developed at some length, finally a brief explosion of jazz, frank and unashamed. That last probably killed it for any chance of a prize, for it is difficult to think of anything less likely to succeed than jazz at a music festival.

Yet it was bright, agile, tuneful, and full of color. Main street in its choreographic aspect was sternly rebuked, but I hope Mr. Stock keeps track of the "Masquerade" and sees fit to play it downtown during the coming season. For it was entertaining.

News from England.

Arnold Dolmetsch's festival of chamber music, to be held at Haslemere, Surrey, England, during the last week of August, looks to be more elaborate than was at first announced. He promises eight concerts, to be played by himself, his family, and his pupils.

Two of the concerts will be devoted to the works of Johann Sebastian Bach, one to music by other German composers, one to French music, one to Italian, and three to English. Two of these last will consist entirely of music for the viol family. The viol family, not to be confused with the violin, is made up of the treble, alto, tenor, viola da gamba, and violone, or double bass. The violin family, also used here, includes the true tenor violin. There will also be the viola d'amore, seldom heard nowadays; the lute, recorders, harpsichord, virginals, and clavichord, which are hardly heard at all; likewise a chamber organ. All of which sounds like one

THESE WORTHY FILMS BELONG ON HONOR ROLL

MAY'S SIX BEST PHOTOPLAYS.
(It rhymes.)

THE EARTH WOMAN
TRAMP, TRAMP, TRAMP
THE BLIND GODDESS
THE VOLGA BOATMAN
KIKI
THE BAT

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

Again, brothers and sisters, we are gathered together—etc.—this beautiful—or otherwise—Sunday morning—taking it optimistically for granted that we ARE gathered together, and I'm not talking to myself—to discuss May's six best photoplays. If we wrote it "The Six Best Photoplays of May" there wouldn't be any poetry—and that would be too bad.

MARY ALDEN played in "The Earth Woman."

(Honestly, I always have the worst time starting off this column when it's "six best photoplays" day! Thinking up something new and original to introduce this once a month stunt. Help me out, why don't you? Send me a snappy opening paragraph for the first Sunday in July when we talk about June's six best. If it's a good one I'll use it—print your name and everything.)

I'm wondering if you saw "THE EARTH WOMAN"? In the review I said I THOUGHT you'd love it. Now—did you?

Mary Alden—"not young or beautiful as the screen speaks in terms of youth and beauty, but because of her magnetism and sure 'feel' for the characters she portrays, eternally young and beautiful and irresistibly winning"—was the "earth woman." That meant that she tilled the soil with her man, brought his children into the world, and through thick and thin stuck to and mothered her man and their children—strong to do and dare for them, with the strength of the rich loam so much a part of her existence.

Miss Alden's acting was superb. A fine supporting cast headed by Russell Simpson gave her gallant aid. The director had a good story to work on and gave it his best. Mrs. Wallace Reid produced the film.

* *

"TRAMP, TRAMP, TRAMP"—light refreshment served by Harry Langdon. Harry Langdon is becoming the favorite comedian of millions of people with his funny, flapping clothes, unreproachful smile, helpless hands always all mixed up in sleeves that are always too long, blundering toward a final, happy ending and taking your hearts' sympathy with him as he goes.

The tramp, tramp, tramp didn't take him to war—it led him on a cross country walking race—which, of course, he won.

Good comedy. Everybody loved it. First National picture.

"THE BLIND GODDESS" was made by Paramount from Arthur Train's story and was a bang up mystery film. The cast, an all-star one, featured Louise Dresser, Esther Ralston, and Ernest Torrence. Louise Dresser in the rôle of a mother, who, having played renegade at 20, tried to come back into the lives of the husband and child and found that the soiled years between had built up an insurmountable barrier, "lent the special touch of lustrous brilliance."

This picture was intelligently acted, well staged, and held the interest from start to finish.

"THE VOLGA BOATMAN" was a peach! See it? Story of the Russian revolution produced by Cecil De Mille, featuring William Boyd. It was a beautiful, thrilling photo drama adapted from the novel by Konrad Bercovici, a picture all motion picture lovers were sure to love and one that should convert those who were not.

The principals were a princess, her father, a prince, her lover, an officer—and also a prince, a Volga boatman, and a Tartar girl who loved the boatman.

The scenes were laid during a Russian revolution. The princes and princesses were of the Whites—aristocrats. The boatman and the girl were of the Red army—the people.

A subtitle described Volga boatmen as "the human mules of Russia," men who, harnessed together, tow vessels up and down the river.

I have rarely been more captivated by a film.

"KIKI" showed Norma Talmadge doing something entirely different from the impersonations most of her rôles call for—playing astonishingly well the part that Lenore Ulric gave to the stage.

The film was the picturization of David Belasco's "legitimate" success from the pen of André Picard.

The Talmadge rooters waited for this picture eagerly. There were those who "knew" their Norma would do herself proud, and there were others who wailed why, O, why did she have to go and make a monkey of herself when she was so glorious in dignified characterizations!

I perched on the fence and didn't have an idea on the subject until the picture rolled round. Then I knew the ones who had yearned for Miss Talmadge as Kiki had the right line on her and that the others who shuddered for fear she wouldn't acquit herself with éclat needn't have worried. The screen Kiki was a vurr delightful Kiki indeed.

Miss Talmadge "threw dignity to the winds"—and to successfully impersonate this dynamic gamin child of nature that's what she should have done. She plunged into the characterization like a young wildcat—and the fur flew—as you know if you saw the picture.

She had good direction and a capable supporting cast headed by Ronald Colman, and, all in all, put "Kiki" over in great shape.

"THE BAT" made you shiver, I bet you, if you saw it! That is, it did if you hadn't seen the play by Mary Roberts Rinehart. (That woman knows how to write a mystery story, doesn't she?)

A splendid cast, with such people in it as Emily Fitzroy, Tullio Carminati, André de Beranger, Louise Fazenda, Robert McKim, Arthur Housman, etc., worked together in a mysterious way that kept your eyes glued to the screen, your tongue glued to the roof of your mouth, and made you awfully glad you weren't all alone in the big, dark theayter.

It must have been awfully hard to adapt "The Bat," but the United Artists people certainly did it beautifully. You were certainly good if you guessed who WAS the Bat before the time had come for you to know! (I did.)

And that's all about May's six best photoplays. (Don't forget about the opening paragraph you're going to send in.)

Bits aBOUTem.

GRETA NISSEN, the exquisite Norse lady, will take time off from the films to appear on the stage in a pantomime written and staged by herself. It will be part of Ziegfeld's new summer show.

WARNER BAXTER has been given the rôle of the bootlegger in the screen adaptation of "The Great Gatsby."

ELSIE FERGUSON'S stage play "The Wheel of Life" has been bought by Paramount as a screen vehicle for Florence Vidor.

ADELA ROGERS ST. JOHNS wrote the story for the picture on which Tom Mix is now working. "The Arizona Wildcat" is its name—changed from "Western Society"—and Dorothy Sebastian will have the feminine lead. Ought to be a good story, for Mrs. St. Johns always writes good stories.

WAILING FANS who have been lamenting because Pola Negri has had bad luck lately should be cheered by the announcement that she will be directed in her next venture, "Hotel Imperial," from the drama by Lajos Biro, by Eric Pommer, who made such films as "The Last Laugh" and "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari."

EL BRENDEL, who has been successful in his Swedish impersonations in vaudeville, will be seen as a Swedish janitor in Bebe Daniels' next film, "The College Flirt."

See you tomorrow!

The Delusion of Law

By H. L. Mencken.

IT is my belief, frequently expressed with lofty snuffling, that there is something in the human mind which sets it firmly against whatever is true. Why this should be I don't know, but there is the fact. Every new truth that comes into the world has to run a gantlet of bitter opposition, and nine times out of ten its proponent is treated as an enemy of the human race. A few unnatural individuals, perhaps, clasp it to their bosoms almost at once, and in the course of time it begins to get support from a small (and probably sinful) minority, but the majority of men hold out against it for a long while, and that majority tends to grow quite as often as it tends to shrink.

It would be interesting to speculate how many sound and solid truths have been lost altogether by that process. The number, first and last, has probably been very large. There were plenty of intelligent men in the world in the late Stone Age, and not a few of their inventions have come down to us—for example, plowing, animal breeding, and the working of metals. But many others, I suspect, were obliterated and lost by public opposition. What happened to Crô-Magnon man, whose brain was larger, on the average, than the human brain of today? The fact that he was exterminated by inferior races seems to be plain. But why? I venture the guess he was simply executed for heresy. His ideas ran ahead of his time. The new truths that he unearthed made all other men uncomfortable. So they rose against him and butchered him.

The process is still going on. Consider, for example, the current war upon the hypothesis of organic evolution. The facts in favor of that hypothesis are truly overwhelming. They have been unearthed, literally, by the million, and they hang together beautifully. But they collide with something in the average human mind, and so they are opposed by millions. This opposition, as every one knows, does not content itself with logical devices; it also proceeds to legal devices, which are quite different and usually antagonistic. If the thing can be managed, it will be made unlawful in the United States, soon or late, to believe that the higher forms of life are descended from lower forms—i. e., to believe in the obvious.

As a partisan of evolution in all its damnedest and most wicked forms, I rather hope that this will be done, for its one and only possible effect will be to make the Darwinian heresy safe. The best thing that can happen to an idea, indeed, is for a law to be passed against it. At once its advocates dig in and refuse to budge, and at once it begins to get support from men who have hitherto taken no interest in it. Supporting it becomes dangerous, and hence charming. Moreover, it becomes a shibboleth, and hence convincing. Most men are suspicious of ideas, but they all cherish shibboleths.

Once that transformation has taken place, a heresy becomes unscotchable by any device short of wholesale murder. The fact was well known to the Fundamentalist opponents of Crô-Magnon man. They did not try to dispose of him and his ideas by fining him, putting him into jail, and predicting that he would go to hell post mortem; they proceeded more simply and effectively by cutting his throat. When he died all his abominable notions died with him. The world was made safe for the primeval Tennesseans from whom we descend. It has taken us twenty-five centuries, at the least, to get back to the level of the last Crô-Magnon heretic.

These plain facts were known to the able men who ran Christendom in the Middle Ages. They were well aware that the only effective measure against heresy was to slaughter all the heretics, and so rid the race of their criminal strain. Unfortunately, politics intervened, as it so often does in this imperfect world. There were heretics too powerful to be taken and slaughtered. Some of them had formidable armies. Worse, they began to protect the hordes of weaker heretics who had no armies. Thus the extermination of heresy languished, and, in the end, failed altogether. It continued to be unlawful, but the penalties that survived were too mild to be efficacious. Putting a heretic into jail only makes him worse; the one way to settle him is to kill him.

The fact was not lost upon those intelligent Christian clergymen of Tennessee who, during the Scopes trial, pointed out that fining the defendant would accomplish no ponderable good—that, if it was really desired to stop his debauchment of the youth of the state, the thing to do was to hang him. Nor is it lost upon the more reflective and philosophical Prohibitionists, for example, Senator Simeon D. Fess, A. B., A. M., LL. B., LL. D., of Ohio, and the general staff of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals.

Senator Fess, in the course of a colloquy upon the floor of the senate with the wet Senator Edwin Sidney Broussard, B. S., of Louisiana, stated plainly that he was in favor of bumping off the scofflaws. He added, of course, that he hesitated, as a humane man, to resort to such desperate measures—that he was willing to reprieve such wets as showed a disposition to relent. But it was plain that he cherished no illusion that repentance, in most cases, would be real. I go further. I don't believe it would be real in any case. I don't believe there has been a single instance, in the whole history of the world, of a heretic genuinely repenting—that is, under pressure.

For the human mind revolts against intimidation almost as powerfully as it revolts against truth. It will resist so long as resistance shows the slightest sign of prevailing. Thus the only punishment that is effective against heresy is capital punishment. The heretic must be destroyed altogether, or he will continue to harbor his heresy, and at the first opportunity he will bust out with it, and try to make converts to it. Worse, he will continue to become the father of other and, perhaps, worse heretics. If he is to be disposed of, and his dangerous ideas put down, he must be treated to the lethal dose that rid the world of Crô-Magnon man.

Unfortunately, the days of forthright and realistic thinking seem to be over, and an apparently incurable softness has begun to creep into the legislation of the human race. The easy and effective way to enforce prohibition would be to adopt Senator Fess' scheme, and cut the throats of all the wets. But that would not only depopulate most of the great cities of the republic and even many of the rural regions; it would also shock humanity and make the United States infamous. The senator himself would hesitate at the last minute, and so, perhaps, would the directors of the Anti-Saloon league. With genuine law enforcement at last in their grasp, they would let it slip from them.

What remains to them? Nothing but the banal and ineffective device of fining and jailing scofflaws. Will it work? It will no more work against prohibition than it would work against evolution—or fundamentalism. For the wets, at their worst, obviously differ radically from all common criminals; they do not believe that they are wrong, like a bandit or a pickpocket, but that they are right, like a Mormon. In other words, they are true heretics. Their crime, if it be a crime, is in thought before it is in deed. In many cases it never comes to deed at all.

Thus putting them down by law—that is, by any law stopping short of capital punishment—seems to me to be hopeless. The more violently they are proceeded against, the more stoutly they will resist, and in the long run their resistance is bound to take on a greater dignity than the effort to put it down. Let us assume that the Prohibitionists are right—that their brummagem gospel actually has the support of divine revelation. If so, the fact only makes their difficulties the greater, for what is true is always resisted heroically by mankind. But I am not disposed to put that additional burden on them. I believe that their idea is palpably unsound, and that it thus has a reasonable chance to prevail. But so long as they try to make it prevail by force they are bound to fail. So long as they try to intimidate heretics they will only multiply heretics.

"HENRY IV." BOASTS A CAST OF NOTABLES

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The Players' club is having its annual benefit revival this week, playing Shakespeare's "Henry IV." at the Knickerbocker with enough names in the cast to stock six resident companies and at least one actors' home.

It is thirty years since this particular one of the history dramas has been done in New York. Then Julia Marlowe was Mrs. Robert Taber and played Prince Hal to her husband's Hotspur and the Falstaff of William F. Owen, a beloved veteran of his day.

PEGGY WOOD plays Lady Percy in "Henry IV." [Charlotte Fairchild Photo.]

Otis Skinner is the Falstaff of the current revival, and a nice old country gentleman-on-a-spree sort of Falstaff. There is not much wallowing in tavern smut at the Boar's Head for this fat rascal, though he does intelligently extract all the humor Shakespeare wrote into the part. His weakness is that, being instinctively a nice, clean, dignified type of player, he adds nothing of his own to it. He is not essentially a comedian, nor claims to be. His comic spirit has an aristocratic strut and is a little conscious. But he is a good actor and is popular with his audiences.

Foolish Scenes but Splendid Actors.

Philip Merivale is the Hotspur, a grouchy, petulant, stormy human, and Basil Sydney the roystering Hal, a nice boy who feeds Sir John as gracefully as may be and rises rather forcefully to the drama of the later scenes with his kingly father and in battle.

"Henry IV." is one of the plays in which two or three armies, represented by eight lanky gentlemen in tinware and cotton tights, meet in the center of the stage, clash halberds, and settle the fates of two or three kings. They are still foolish scenes, even when the armies include a lot of famous actors.

The three women in the cast are nice. Peggy Wood, who has not been playing recently, comes back to do the Lady Percy, and is a lovely picture in a red velvet gown. Eileen Huban, the Irish actress, sings a Welsh song, or may be it was Gaelic and she called it Welsh, and Blanche Ring is the Mistress Quickly of the inn, a good, lively performance.

Mystery from the East.

The town is more or less excited over the presence of Fakir Rahman Bey, an Egyptian miracle man who hopes, according to the propaganda used in his behalf, to spread the gospel of a greater spirituality in this western world of ours. He wants to prove to us that the mind, properly developed, is complete master of the body. He is in effect a sort of spiritual Houdini. He does many mysterious things, subjects his physical body to all manner of torture, and apparently without suffering any of the normal consequences. He can, as he did to the satisfaction of two skeptical physicians at a private appearance last week, cause the pulse beats of his left wrist to register forty-two beats while those of the right wrist are racing simultaneously at the rate of ninety.

He can also apply a lighted torch to his bare arms and legs without pain or visible effects of scorching the skin. Being a normal human, he thus played with a torch long enough the evening I spent with him to blister both arms from wrist to elbow. And I sat within fifteen feet of him and recoiled before the sight of the leaping flame hungrily licking his epidermis.

This particular demonstration follows, however, his throwing himself into a state of complete catalepsy. Following the pulse beat test, Rahman Bey covered his eyes with his hands for possibly thirty seconds, shivered once or twice convulsively, and suddenly, with a hissing intake of breath, fell back into the arms of an attendant. His spine was arched and rigid. The attendants lifted him as they might have handled a log of wood, placed the nape of his neck upon a scimitar-like head rest and his ankles upon another, put a flat stone weighing approximately seventy-five pounds upon his stomach, and broke it with a sledgehammer. Then they lifted him off the knives and he shivered himself back to consciousness.

For five minutes or so he was a bit dazed and took a rest. Then, while still in "a marvelous state of insensibility," as the program explained, he ran a pair of hatpins through his cheeks, another pair through his breasts, and a dagger with a half inch blade through his throat just opposite his Adam's apple.

This Way Out!

At this juncture one or two ladies left the room, followed hurriedly by a representative of the Asiatic press. But Rahman Bey calmly descended from the platform and walked the aisles that all might see there was no trickery about the perforations. Neither was there any flow of blood. Returning to the platform, he carefully removed pins and dagger. The wound in his throat was then, at his silent command, made to bleed, and a moment later to cease bleeding. At which moment a few more ladies departed.

Two minutes later the fakir (which, by the way, is pronounced fah-keer, according to Hereward Carrington of the Society for Physical Research, who made the introductions) stretched himself upon a bed of spikes spaced in two inch squares and had another stone broken upon his stomach. When he arose there were indentions and one or two minor perforations in the skin of his back, but the wounds did not bleed.

Following a short rest, Rahman Bey gave an exhibition of mind reading similar to those dad will recall McIvor Tyndall used to give. Members of the committee would write commands that the fakir pick out the fourth man sitting in the fifth row and take his watch out of his pocket, or that he go to the curtains of a French window and recover a magazine hidden there. The command they would whisper to another committee person, the fakir would take that subject's hand, flutter over it a moment, dance across the room, turning every few seconds to resume the hand contact, and carry out the sealed instructions.

Finally a coffin-like box was introduced, a solid affair the committee was privileged to examine. The audience was then asked to specify the length of time they wished Rahman Bey to remain buried alive. He does not care, they say, whether he goes out of this world for ten minutes or three hours, but he must know the specified time in advance. Ten minutes being agreed upon, the fakir resumed his rigidity of catalepsy, was placed in the box with cotton pressed into his nostrils and over his mouth, and the box covered six inches deep with fine, damp sand. Ten minutes later he was dug out, shivered his way back to consciousness, reeled a little dazedly to his room, and three minutes later came forth to acknowledge the applause with a graceful military salute.

Miracles Seven Times a Week.

It was an amazing exhibition, explain it as you will. I have little faith in his, or at least in his promoter's desire to spread a new-old religion. Occultists, from what I know of them and their teachings, do not sell their religion at so much a seat. But that he can do and does do the seeming miracles he is advertised to perform I am a willing and mystified witness.

And not the least amazing fact to me is that he does these things seven times a week. He did, and quite reasonably, I think, refuse to go through the program twice a day matinée days. Neither do I believe that he will prove a great drawing card. His demonstrations are more painful than entertaining and we are a fairly sensitive people.

Rahman Bey is 26, a handsome, sad young man. He was born near the Soudan in Eritrea of an Italian father and an Egyptian mother. He has been trained as a fakir from childhood, they say, and is a member of the society called Chams.

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

FROM a confrère comes inquiry if there might not be something of interest for the readers of this column in a consideration of the comparisons and the contrasts in the respective arts and talents of Raquel Meller, the Spaniard; Yvette Guilbert, the Frenchwoman; Cecelia Loftus, the Englishwoman; and Ruth Draper, the American. The answer is yes, regardless of whether I can make it interesting; and the answer is still yes despite the hapless cutting-off of the Señorita's engagement, and the consequent reduction by at least fifty percent of what had been counted on as late as 10:00 o'clock Friday night for a Chicago clientèle. For, of course, my confrère's suggestion was motivated by the presence here of the Spanish songstress, whom he had heard and liked in Paris when, two years ago, she was doing much as I had seen her do six years ago in London: that is, inserting herself midway in a revue, singing five or six of her ballads, and departing from the scene. And La Meller will probably be back this way—if not in what is now this season, then in another season: she is adored on the Continent, where they "get" her as all Americans do not; but the money, after all, is here, and isn't there.

GEOFFREY KERR He's a well-known in the bright revival of "Divorçons!"

Miss Meller touches at one or another point of contact each of the three others without ever being like any of them. She puts an audience—and I mean an audience alien to her no less than one of her own race—into the mood of her impersonation with much more facility than Guilbert, but never achieves the essential elegance and eloquent if hard-finished finesse of the Frenchwoman. She matches Miss Draper in the persuasiveness of her postures and her simpler pantomime, and does it with no more fuss than we get from the American in the matter of external aids to illusion. But I am unable to imagine the Spaniard as a successful competitor of Miss Draper in the latter's special milieu; while it would be absurd even to try to think of Miss Draper's art subjected to the test of "base balladry." As to the parallel with Miss Loftus, Miss Meller pursues it only as far as she runs to parody, travesty, and the gift for criticism, as expressed in well-controlled exaggeration, which is in the gamut of all good mimics and impersonators. Miss Loftus is not what is miscalled "creative": she is really not even interpretative; for the essence of her exquisite art lies in playing off the other fellow's ball. She is, in this, like a broker in theater-tickets: somebody else must create before she can profit.

The present-day somebody to whom Miss Meller can most reasonably be compared is Isa Kremer, who isn't Spanish, French, English, or American, but a Russian Jewess. Those who confine their seeking for indoor entertainment to the theaters know her not: she is of the concert-halls, and is one of their most interesting contents at the present time. Miss Kremer, like Miss Meller, has the special gift of inducing a mood with the first bar of each song, and of holding you in that mood until she has sung the last note. She acts less, mimics less, undertakes less to be the performer than does the Spanish girl: she leaves something to be told by the music of what she sings, whether it be folk-song of this or of that country or something so artificial, unreal, and maddening as a modernist's attempt to imitate folk-song. And, of course, Miss Kremer is a musician; and I am not certain that Miss Meller is: what she sings doesn't require her to be one, although it is good to know that it requires her to be musical, and good to add that she meets the requirement.

It isn't wherein she is or isn't like somebody else that the compelling Señorita is notable: the especial quality of the magic she puts on an audience, here or anywhere else in the world, belongs to her alone, and to nobody else. As George Jean Nathan said in the paragraph by him I quoted a week ago from his feuilleton in the current month's American Mercury, "the word 'personality' is, doubtless, a poor one to offer in explanation; but, poor as it is, I can think of no better."

Communication About a New Star.

From another confrère, whom an assignment put and kept in Atlantic City while Mr. Belasco was going through the ritual of making a pro-forma star of Miss Fannie Brice, writes to tell me of the première, last Monday, and explains that the communication is inspired by the belief that (a) Chicago is interested in Miss Brice, and (b) that a wide-measure column isn't easy of utterance in June and a belated golf-time. . . . Only the Earl Carroll, the chivalrous and genteel exhibitor of nude quiristers, was missing from the first-night gathering of New-York celebrities, it seems. The Quartier Americain of Manhattan was represented by the Hon. Alexander Moore, sometime our pro-consul in Spain. Nickie Arnstein, whose honors and emoluments include his chore as Miss Brice's husband; Miss Texas Guinan, who as an actress allowed herself to be advertised as "God's masterpiece," and as an ex-actress is the most successful of the ladies who operate night-joints; Miss Brice's mother, movie-persons who blame Mr. Will Hays for recent cuts in wage, and the quaint populace of the Hotel Algonquin were present.

But, my wandering gossip goes on to explain, none of these mattered when it was discovered that Mr. Edward Browning, the eminent husband, and Peaches, his naïve and adoring bride, were in the audience: "The New-York persons I was with were shocked at the storm of applause, cheers, and hoots given to the Brownings by this New-York audience. Everybody stood up, threw programs, and dislocated necklaces striving to see Peaches. Two policemen were required to escort the Brownings to and from the theater. . . . As to 'Fanny,' the new play—well, it is being fixed up. Mr. Belasco made a small speech; Fannie kissed him; and they couldn't find Willard Mack to make an author's bow."

What baffles me in the foregoing account is the statement that New-York persons were shocked by the conduct of New-York persons. All New-Yorkers act, always and anywhere, as Miss Brice's first-night audience acted: that's how you tell they're New-Yorkers. My explanation is that either my confrère's associates were kidding when they said they were New-Yorkers, or they were persons born in New-York, which few persons ever are.

Miscellany.

London is to have the rum-running play named in this country "Twelve Miles Out," but will call it "Twenty Miles Out of New-York." . . . The author, William Anthony McGuire, is eager to have it staged soon in Chicago: it may be that he fears General Andrews, the official pal of Prohibition, will put rum-running out of business.

John Barrymore is said to have shaken his good-looking head negatively when importuned by all the professors and pedagogues of all the universities in California to play Hamlet out there for a salary of $10,000 a week. . . . And, being told that this is so, I fall to wondering how many weeks Edwin Booth as Hamlet took in $10,000 gross.

The Messrs. Shubert, looking over the old plays for material for the libretti of operettas, think that "The Willow Tree" is all right. . . . And that makes me remember that some Americans, a few years back, cabled from London to Puccini, asking that he write the music for an operetta with that play as the basis, and that he cabled back: "What for? I've written my Japanese piece."

Behind the Scenes at Summer Opera

By Edward Moore.

of the most interesting events to be offered in all Europe this summer.

Here and There in Music.

Giulio Gatti-Casazza is now on his way to Europe bearing with him an extension of his contract as general manager of the New York Metropolitan to the year 1931, making his term the longest by a considerable margin of any who have held the job since the opera house was founded in 1883. Before sailing he told of the reengagement of most of the present company, the engagement of nine new singers of whom four are Americans, and the fact that he plans three novelties for next season, "The King's Henchman," by Edna St. Vincent Millay and Deems Taylor, to be given in English; Puccini's posthumous "Turandot," which has just been exciting attention in Milan, and a ballet, "La Giara," by Luigi Pirandello and Alfredo Casella. His revivals will be Mozart's "The Magic Flute," Beethoven's "Fidelio," Ambroise Thomas' "Mignon," Montemezzi's "L'Amore dei Tre Re," Strauss' "Rosenkavalier," Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Le Coq d'Or," and Verdi's "La Forza del Destino."

News from the Chicago Civic Opera is less complete. The most interesting item from Manager Herbert M. Johnson, also in Europe, is the suspicion that Milan's La Scala will soon lose its great driving force, Toscanini. This famous conductor is now over sixty years old, and the energy which he has given to opera is beginning to tell upon him. "His experience with the New York Philharmonic orchestra," says Mr. Johnson, "has opened his eyes to the sinecure symphony conducting amounts to compared with the indescribable nervous strain and drudgery of opera direction. I cannot escape the thought that, regardless of his present impaired state of health, the great Toscanini is trying a fixed permanent policy of teaching La Scala how to get along without him."

Milwaukee is to be visited by the Civic Opera company next winter, but during the season here instead of as an item on the post-season tour. The Auditorium of that city will be the place, and the dates are Nov. 26, Dec. 10, and Jan. 7.

Musical events of today will include a dance recital by Estelle Topper at the Goodman theater; a song recital by Mario Carbone, baritone, assisted by Valida de Lis, soprano, and the Catholic Casino of Chicago, directed by Joseph M. Moos, at the Cort; an organ concert by Henri A. Keates at the Chicago theater this noon, and a joint recital by Alvene Resseguie, contralto, and Elizabeth Cane, violinist, at the Windermere West tonight.

Among other summer opera contemplated this year will be "Carmen" in the Open Air theater of Forest Park, St. Louis, the last week of August. Elda Vettori is taking billing for this season. She has been a member of the gadding San Carlo company, but next season will be doing parts with the Metropolitan.

The Best Joke I Ever Heard

And That's Something

A motorist stopped a pedestrian on the highway with the inquiry, "Where does this road lead to?"

"I don't know," answered the man.

"About how far is it to the next town?" persisted the motorist.

"I don't know," again was the answer.

"Well, you don't know anything, do you?" sputtered the angry motorist.

"Mebbe not," was the laconic reply, "—but I ain't lost!" L. N. D.

President's Privilege.

The president of a large corporation had occasion one day to reprimand an employe for his inefficiency, whereupon the inefficient young man began finding fault with the way in which the president was managing affairs. The head of the corporation turned angrily toward the speaker.

"Are you the president of this corporation?" he demanded.

"No, sir, of course not," answered the employé.

"Well, then," thundered the president, "don't talk like a fool."

Telling Time.

Neither Sam nor Rastus could tell time. But Sam had a nice, big watch, which he exhibited with a fine air of superiority.

"What time am it?" asked Rastus. Sam hesitated and then extended the timepiece. "Dar she am." Rastus looked at it carefully and then said: "Damn if she ain't." P. J. S.

Never Fails.

A wise congressman confessed that, although he was always forgetting their faces and never remembering their names, he had no difficulty in being pleasant to his followers.

"When I meet somebody in the lobby whom I don't know from Adam and I see he expects me to know who he is, I take him warmly by the hand, look straight into his eyes, and say: 'And how is the old complaint?' I have never known it to fail."

L. F.

As He Reasoned.

An old lady kept a parrot which was always swearing. She could keep up with this till Saturday, but on Sunday she kept a cover over the cage, removing it on Monday morning. This prevented the parrot from swearing on Sunday.

One Monday afternoon she saw her minister coming toward the house, so she again placed the cover over the cage. As the gentleman was about to step into the parlor, the parrot remarked: "This has been a damn short week." E. W.

Come as You Are.

Reply: "Only an informal affair. Wear anything." C. M. B.

It Would Look Well.

My baldheaded husband is much opposed to bobbed hair. When I asked him if I could get my hair bobbed he replied, "Neither of us has any brains; one of us ought to have some hair."

RETURNING

ALICE GENTLE.

[Connelly Photo.]

ONE of the agreeable items in the bulletins now being sent out about the impending season of opera in the woods at Ravinia refers to Miss Gentle's return. She used to be there a few seasons ago, since when she has been meeting with success in many other opera houses. She now classifies as a dramatic soprano.

Letters from the Movie Fans

Two Hurrahs!

Dear Mae: Two hurrahs! One for Peggy and the other for Sammy Cohen!

Last night I went to see Peggy Hopkins Joyce in "The Sky Rocket." I merely went to see Peggy, not the picture, as I heard the latter wasn't so good.

I think Peggy is a perfectly lovely creature. Such hair—such eyes—such teeth, etc. And, O, boy! that pensive way about her! Don't you think so, Mae? No wonder the men keep falling all over themselves for little Peggy! Well, enough for her for the present, but I am keen on seeing said lovely creature in a GOOD picture real soon.

Now to hand out a bouquet to Sammy Cohen. He's a darb! My brother and I were tickled pink as we watched him do his stuff. Opening and shutting the door in the girl's room ('member?); dancing on the beach, and then putting a bug in his dessert to get out of paying the bill. (You're seeing so many pictures I wonder if you remember all the details I have mentioned.)

One more thing before I close this rather lengthy letter. I'm wild about your reviews, and am one of your many and many ardent admirers.

INTERESTED BELLE.

Editor's note: Peppy letter, Belle. Thanx.

Watseka Has the Best.

Dear Miss Tinée: I was much interested in reading C. M. M.'s letter regarding new pictures being shown in smaller towns before the big towns get them. It isn't necessary for him to travel to Florida to find pre-showings. If he will just stop over in Watseka, Ill., some evening he can probably see a picture which is showing a week ahead of the loop houses, or at least playing there the same week. Our wide-awake exhibitor here demands the "best, and the best always first," and we usually get them.

Editor's Note—Attaboy; boost the home town!

MOVIE SIDELIGHTS

[By Associated Press.]

"It's serious work, this business of thinking up funny things," concludes Marguerite Houghton, one of the few "gag" women in the world.

"The reason there are no other 'gag' women in the business," she remarked, "is because men believe they have a corner on all the sense of humor. I believe, however, that women sometimes have a more deft, more subtle touch in this line than the men."

Fate seems to have decreed that the name of Dorothy should play an important role in Richard Barthelmess' life on the screen. Dorothy Gish, Dorothy Mackaill, and Dorothy Dunbar have supported him in his recent pictures.

Odds-and-Ends of Stage-News

LAST WEEK'S shifting bulletins on the opening of "By-the-Way" in the Garrick had to do not at all with the usual uncertainty as to having the entertainment ready, but were caused by the insistence of the Messrs. Shubert that tonight would be the right night as opposed by the management of the show with the argument that tomorrow night would be far, far better. Doubtless, the latter view had its inspiration in reports of what happened to the Charlot Revue when, early last year, it was submitted to a Sunday-night audience in the same theater. The controversy was ended with the Messrs. Shubert's having their way: the show will open tonight. . . . And, as I have said here from time to time since I saw Mr. and Mrs. Hulbert and their neat and gay companions from London in a New-York performance of the revue, it is so good a show that I hope its first audience in Chicago will be made up of persons with brains and breeding, and that they will like it so much that they will go forth to send all whom they know to the Garrick box-office—or wherever it is that seats are sold for good shows that are popular.

When you go to "By-the-Way," you will find in Mr. Hulbert the perfect comedian for intimate revue, and in Miss Courtneidge [Mrs. Hulbert] a knowing, talented, gay, and varied player of comic rôles. He has something of the especial quality that made you like the late Clifton Crawford; and he is in possession of more talent, I think, than Mr. Crawford possessed. If he isn't the best revue-actor of the London stage, he is at least not second to the one many regard as best—Nelson Keys. Those who regard Jack Buchanan as the best have seen none of the others. . . . New-York, in January, required a fortnight or so to find out that "By-the-Way" was first-class entertainment in kind: then it went to see it through five months.

As to Last Season's Plays.

Variety, in a summing-up of the successes and the failures on the New-York stage, gets figures that make it appear that seventy percent of new plays, regardless of kind, fail. Last season's failures, in this estimate, numbered 136 as against fifty-seven classified as successes. . . . This list contains Variety's selection of successful plays, the verdict being based on length of run with some consideration for the matter of attendance:

"Cradle-Snatchers"
"The Jazz-Singer"
"The Green Hat"
"Gay Paree"
"Captain Jinks"
"The Vortex"
"No! No, Nanette!"
"Dearest Enemy"
"The Vagabond King"
"Sunny"
"The Butter-and-Egg Man"
"Merry-Merry"
"American-Born"
"Craig's Wife"
"The Enemy"
"Easy Come, Easy Go!"
"Young Woodley"
"Naughty Cinderella"
"The Last of Mrs. Cheyney"
The Charlot Revue.
"A Lady's Virtue"
"Alias the Deacon"
"Easy Virtue"
"The Cocoanuts"
"The Dybbuk"
"The Patsy"
Greenwich Village Follies
"Tip-Toes"
"Song of the Flame"
"A Night in Paris"
"The Shanghai Gesture"
"Lulu Belle"
"The Wisdom-Tooth"
"Kongo"
"Bride of the Lamb"
"Sex"
"At Mrs. Beam's"
Garrick Gaieties
"The Great Temptations"

While this group is made up of the plays Variety regards as semi-successes or plays that have had what it terms "moderate runs":

"The Kiss in a Taxi"
"Applesauce"
"Accused"
"These Charming People"
"Laff That Off!"
"Twelve Miles Out"
"One of the Family"
"By-the-Way"
"Sweetheart-Time"
"The Makropoulos Secret"
"The Great God Brown"
"Not Herbert!"
"The Great Gatsby"
"Love 'Em and Leave 'Em!"
"The Girl-Friend"
"Love-in-a-Mist"
"Pomeroy's Past"
"Kitty's Kisses"

While Variety's summing-up is made on basis frankly mercantile, it is nonetheless interesting. Some of the plays that were box-office failures were good plays; but most of them were awful things. Some of the successes, too, were awful things (and I doubt that Variety hasn't permitted length of run in three or four cases to influence it in making the classification); but most of the successes have contained a reason for success.

* *

New in Manhattan.

These are the new things in the New-York theaters for this week:

"The Half-Naked Truth," by N. Brewster Morse, with Miss Marguerite Mosier, Miss Eva Balfour, Miss Priscilla Knowles, and Miss Ethel Strickland. . . . I'm not among those with knowledge of the author's identity or previous objections to servitude.

"Beyond Evil," by David Thorne, with Miss Mary Blair, Miss Helen Beresford, E. B. Reese, and Miss Bee Morosco. . . . The author, who says he is a poet, avers that his play is designed to make a monkey out of Eugene O'Neill with respect to the latter's handling of black-and-white miscegenation in "All God's Chillun Got Wings."

"The Merry World": this, as "Hello, London!" was meant to be an English revue; but it is said that so much has been done to it in the effort to acclimate it that it is now largely "American." The cast includes Morris Harvey, a good London comic; Miss Evelyn Herbert, who used to sing with the Chicago Opera; Donald Calthrop, who's a somebody in London; and Harry K. Morton, pretty well known in Chicago since "The Sweetheart-Shop."

"The Jazz-Singer," in which George Jessel is become a star, was taken off last night after a New-York run which began early in the Autumn, and developed from what is said to have been a poor beginning. . . . Also taken off down there was "The Romantic Young Lady."

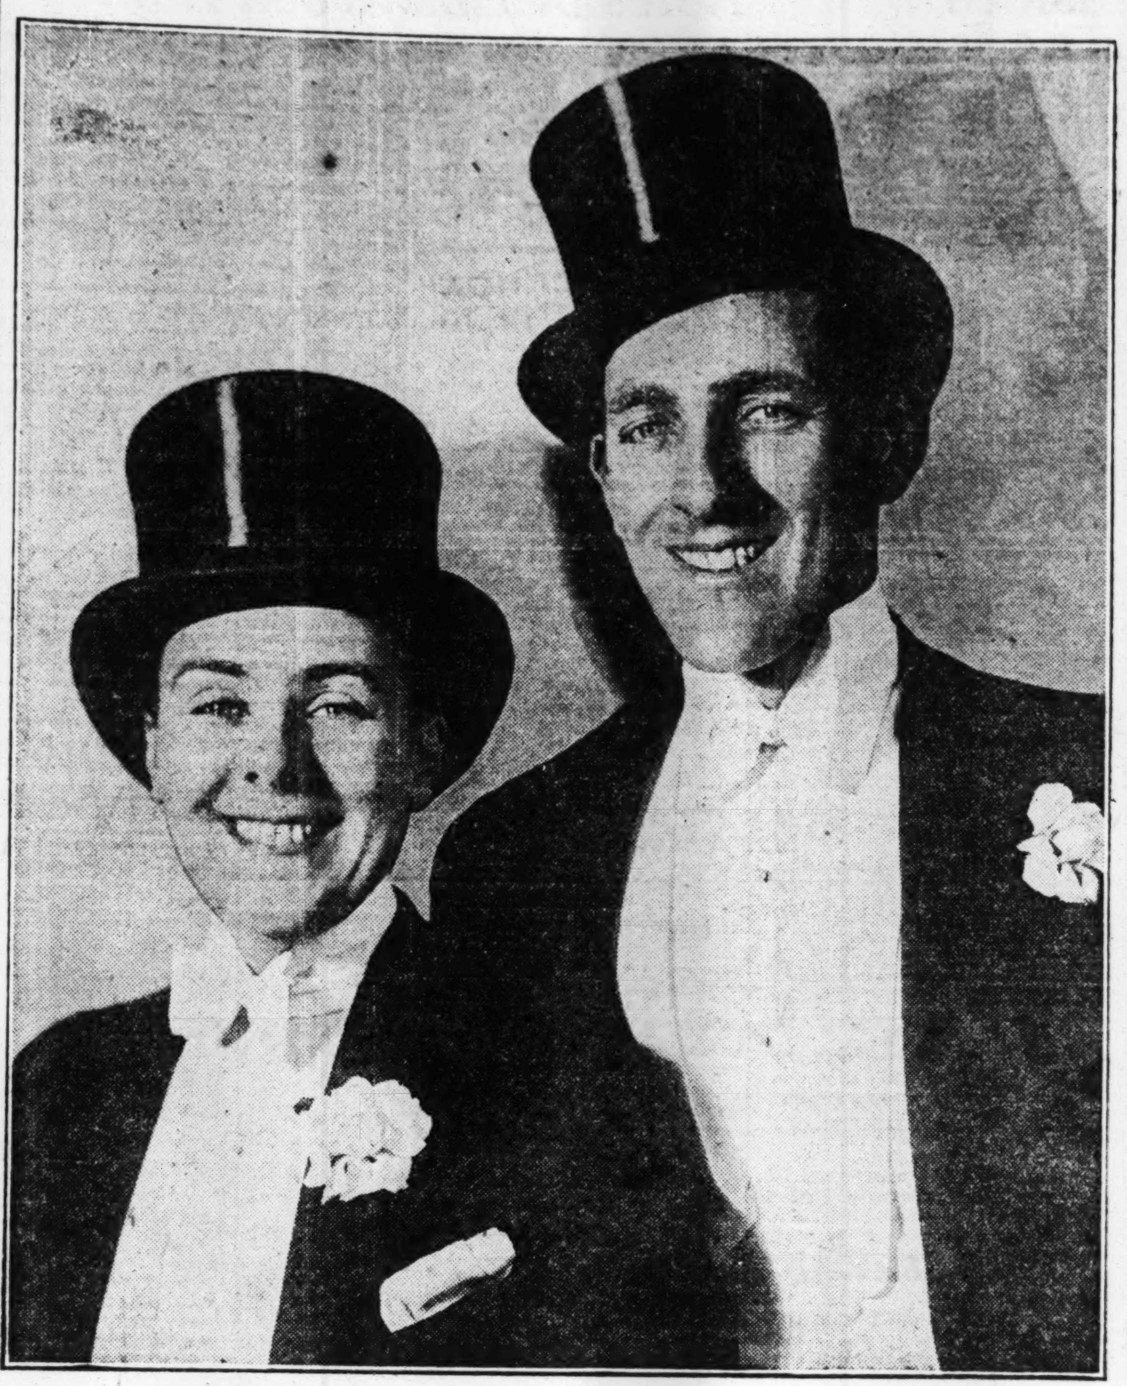
LIVE LONDONERS IN IMPORTED FUN



MISS CICELY COURTNEIDGE JACK HULBERT

MISS COURTNEIDGE is, off-stage, Mrs. Hulbert; but that isn't necessarily the reason why she is his co-star in "By-the-Way," wherein tonight they are to make their first appearance in Chicago. For she is, as he is, a somebody of the theater in London, where her name in a cast never hurts the cast a bit in the estimation of West-End playgoers. . . . As to Mr. Hulbert, he ranks high there as an all-round comedian, and is especially popular in the small or "intimate" type of revue.

Some New Plays.

George Barr McCutcheon's "Home Again" is said to have to do with a real criminal and what he thinks of would-be criminals. . . . "Stray Sheep" is something by Charles M. Washburn, who used to work on THE TRIBUNE. . . . And Samuel Ruskin Golding is the author of "Pyramids," soon to be submitted to a try-out.

Trying the Two-a-Day.

Mrs. Bertha Kalich is going into the varieties with a sketch named "Roses": it is by Hermann Sudermann, who wrote "Magda" and some better plays. . . . Miss Mabel Normand, who tried and failed last season as an actress in farce, is named as an impending headliner in the varieties. . . . So also is Tom Howard, of the Greenwich Village Follies.

Mr. Shubert in London.

Lee Shubert, it is reported by cable from London, finds nothing in the theaters of that metropolis to warrant him in going to the expense and trouble of importation to this country. . . . It is added that he may again undertake to give "The Student-Prince" in London, where it was not received with cheers last season.

or Egyptian psychic union. He was a minor sensation in Europe, where he has a rival, Tahra Bey, who gives much the same sort of demonstrations.

Creating the Dollar Theater.

The dollar theater is on its way to realization in New York. Only it is going to cost $1.50. Eva Le Gallienne, who did so well with her Ibsen revivals this season, is back of this newest movement. She has, the report is, raised $100,000, and Otto Kahn, the most dependable of our contributors to art, added another $30,000. The plan is to have a permanent company and to offer a répertoire of what Broadway knows as highbrow drama.

It is an interesting and a hopeful venture. Having faith in Miss Le Gallienne as an actress and one of the saner of the theater's visionaries, I have a feeling that she can successfully achieve what she has set out to achieve.

Channing Pollock was the original dollar theater man. At one time last season his plans for the establishment of such a semi-civic playhouse were so well advanced that he had signed pledges of well over a million dollars from wealthy art patrons who were ready to build him a theater and finance the first year of the venture. But Pollock, who is a dynamic worker and had been expending much strength in putting over his own plays, "The Fool" and "The Enemy," found himself in the hands of an examining physician who told him that he could, if he wished, go ahead with all the things he had planned to do, but that the probabilities were strong that he would finish in a wheel chair. So he had to give it up.

Raquel Started Something.

The season closes with fitful attempts at finding something that may run through at least half the summer. And anything else that will advertise the prospective contestants.

George White last week came forward with the announcement that if Raquel Meller could, as she did, get $25 a seat for her opening night concert, he considered his forthcoming "Scandals" to be worth $50 a seat for the first rows of the orchestra. And he seriously has put that price upon them. The discouraging thing about it, from an economical standpoint, is that he probably will get it and thus encourage other flesh show impresarios to try to outdo him. There are, they tell me who know their Broadway from the inside better than I do, enough peculiar old gentlemen with money in our city to fill a lot of front seats at any price, so long as their extravagance is made the subject of comment and there are kicking girls in the show.

Following the White lead, it would not be unlike Mr. Ziegfeld to raise his customary $10 opening night rate to $75 for "Ziegfeld's Palm Beach Girl."

And then when Earl Carroll's new "Vanities" comes along in July, providing Earl is not directing it from Atlanta, he is more than likely to put a $100 or $200 price on the night club tables which circle his stage. Even if he has to include a bathtub and a girl with each of them.

It is a silly world, my masters.

Sea Fight Affords Some Real Thrills

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—Wallace Beery, veteran of many catch-as-catch-can encounters with heroes and villains, has at last been vanquished by the rolling lilt of a crazy deck, and has succombed to seasickness. Like a gentleman widely quoted in these parts, Wally is willing to lie down and wait till they build a railroad over to Catalina. Beery is working in Lasky's picture, "Old Ironsides," which is being filmed near Catalina, and plays the part of a mate on a merchantman captured by the Tripolitan pirates, and, after a hairbreadth escape, is taken aboard "Old Ironsides" and goes through the battle with a knife that is moanin' for flesh.

PATSY RUTH MILLER is in "Broken Hearts of Hollywood."

A spectacular scene was made this week with the pirates' frigate, the Castle, ramming the Constitution, and the Moorish pirates, knife in teeth, swarming up the sides to board the American ship. The mainsail of "Old Ironsides" was torn to rags, the masts shook with the shock, and the vessel quivered with such a violent shudder at the impact that seamen and pirates alike were thrown into the water.

Realistic Warfare.

The ship's rails were shattered, the mass of rigging was sheared through and tangled, and a noise like thunder sounded over the quiet waters of the bay. It was a sight to tingle the blood to see the flames leaping from the mouths of the cannon and the heavy smoke punctuating the flashes from the guns' mouths.

Among the powder monkeys who fetch the charges of powder from the magazines to the gunners in small bags around their necks is the redoubtable "Spec" O'Donnell, freckle faced Hebrew of Mary Pickford's "Little Annie Rooney."

The whole battle scene was carried off without any injury beyond a few slight powder burns to one man of the thousand engaged in making the scene. The navigation of the two vessels was all carefully worked out and planned before a ship was launched, and every gun placed on paper before one was fired. Only powder was used in the guns, no shot except for a few long range shots from the cannon, which were made at targets to be sure no accidents would happen.

As for the sailors and pirates knocked into the water, all those placed in hazardous positions were expert swimmers. Many of the men also were trained life savers in case of unforeseen accidents in the water. Thus while the spectator will not lose a single thrill everything was made safe.

Blue Serge for Innocence.

Patsy Ruth Miller is playing the innocent lass in search of a job in "Broken Hearts of Hollywood" and was found on the set bravely working in spite of a tonsil operation performed only a week ago. Patsy, who is a pert and snappy dresser, looked somewhat bewildered in the sweet "ga-ga" outfit of blue serge with white lace ruffled collar and cuffs, that being a wardrobe manager's idea of how an innocent girl looks. Patsy Ruth is to be hostess on Sunday to the film players tennis tournament's first round at her courts in Beverly Hills.

Young Douglas Fairbanks is playing in this "Broken Hearts" picture and came on the set for a moment to see what was going on. A handsome hand knit yellow sweater with a mustard tie was worn with white flannels by our hero, who is something of a wag. As he stepped on the set Doug Jr. motioned the musicians to give him a chord, and as they gave it with a vengeance he bowed gracefully and smiled and bowed again in perfect imitation of his famous father. He reaped considerable applause and laughter.

Mae Murray Buys a House.

Mae Murray has purchased the home of Jack Donovan in Santa Monica on San Vincente boulevard, which is one of the show places of the oceanside town. It is of Spanish design and is elaborately furnished, containing a collection of French antique furniture. Mae intends adding five more rooms to the house, for which she paid $65,000 as purchase price.

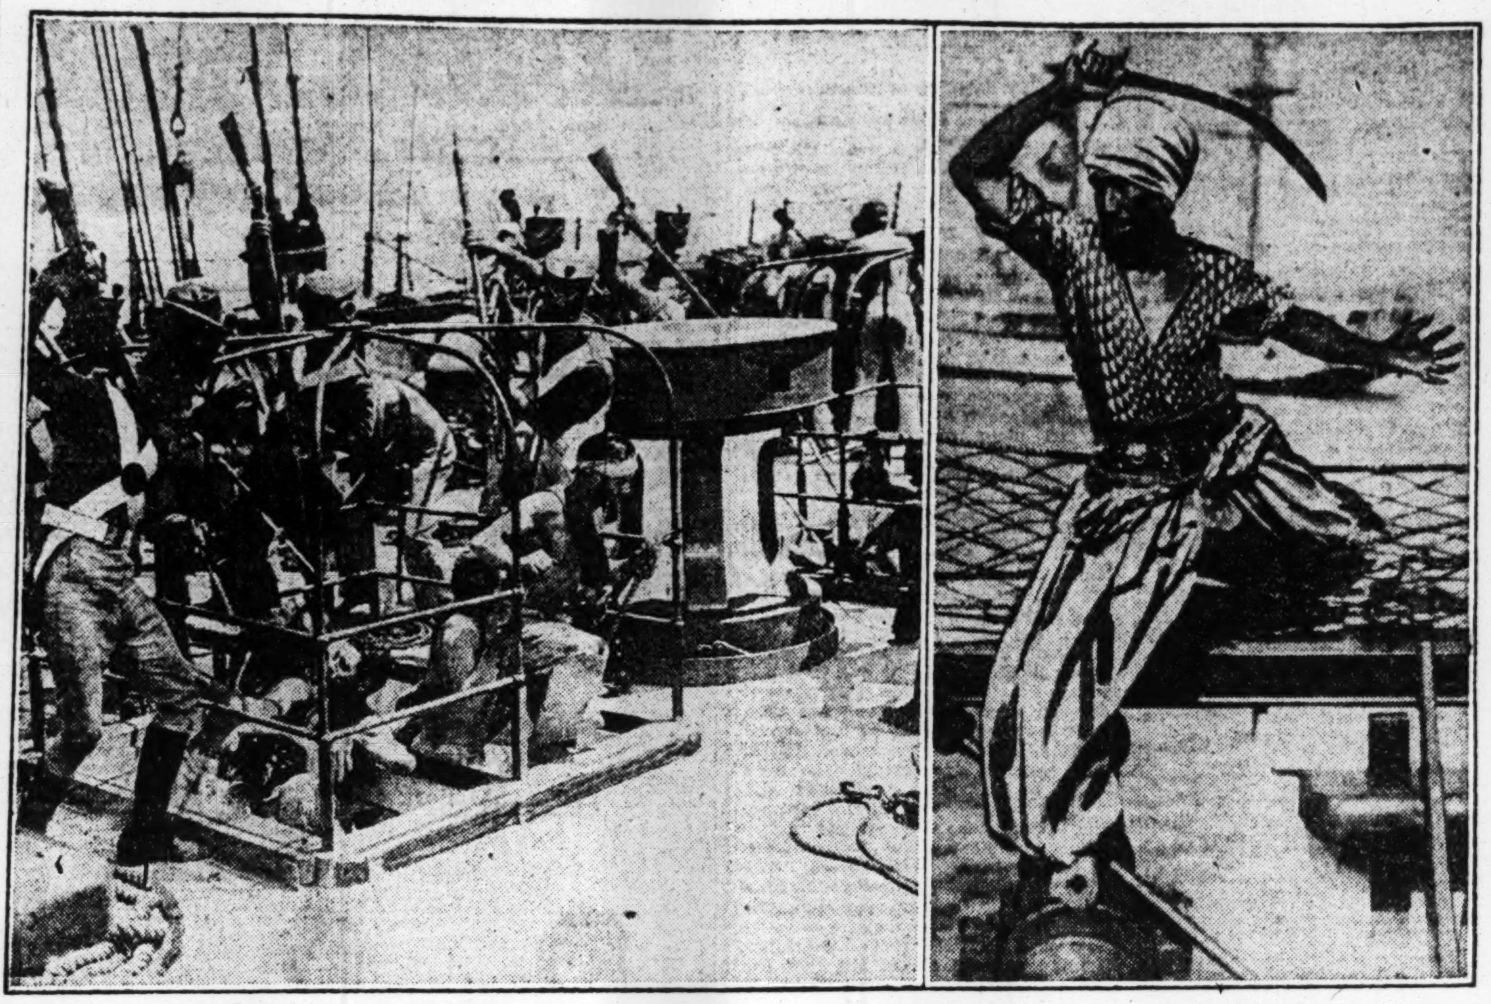
A new male prophet of female fashions has arisen in Hollywood. His outlook is unusual, being from a different angle, in fact two different angles, and his slant on fashions is unique. Introducing Ben Turpin. Ben says:

"In my latest picture I wear an elaborate harem gown of white lace trimmed with rhinestones and pearls, a long veil that covers the nose, mouth, and neck, and bracelets of graduated pearls and brass. Never have I found my clothes so attractive, so comfy, and so simple."

Ben acquires this stunning creation in his new picture in which he is knocked senseless by a fleeing Persian princess who divests him of his male evening attire and leaves him the choice of a barrel of her clothes.

Charles Gilpin, the star in Eugene O'Neill's "Emperor Jones" and "All God's Chillun Got Wings," has been signed by Universal to play Uncle Tom in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which soon will start on its last lap of making here.

Pages from the History of "Old Ironsides"



THESE scenes, now being filmed by James Cruze, record some vivid moments in the life of the U. S. S. Constitution. Pirates off the Barbary coast, pictured in these "shots," seem to be finding that Yankee sailors know how to protect their ship. The desperate looking character with the not too delicate bread knife clutched in his brawny fist is Duke Kahanomoku, the famous Hawaiian swimmer who holds many world's records. [Acme Newspictures Photo.]

Notes of Hollywood Notables

Hollywood, Cal.

Richard Barthelmess is making Geoffrey Farnol's story, "The Amateur Gentleman." He was working with his company in an attractive set, an English inn courtyard. There was the thatched roof, a balcony running all round the yard on the second floor on which stood a reel for spinning thread, a wicker bird cage, old fashioned English iron lanterns and quaint chintz draperies at the shuttered windows. In the inn yard a trough for the horses with a pump was surrounded by a flock of pigeons busy pecking here and there in the most natural manner in the world. Two sheep dogs dozed in the dust and a pie man, perfect copy of Simple Simon's notable pie man with the blue apron and short trousers and wide hat, was vending his wares. John Miljan, player of villain roles, had shaved off his devilish black moustache to play opposite Barthelmess and didn't look like himself at all in the long tight riding breeches, tail coat and heavier hat. As Ring Lardner says, his dogs were fretting him; in fact the whole costume was one size too small and everything from the hat down to the boots was a trifle tight. You see a smaller man had been considered for the role and the things were made to fit the smaller man, not Mr. Miljan.

Alma Rubens is back from New York, where she was called from her honeymoon with Ricardo Cortez to play in "The Pelican" for the Fox company here. Alma looked too lovely to describe in the romantic beruffled lavender and lace, and tiny plaited ruffles and lace hat of the early nineteen hundreds. She brought back her mother-in-law and sister-in-law from New York with her, where Cortez is still working in Griffith's "Sorrows of Satan."

Frank Borzage is directing the picture and in a few odd minutes while the electricians juggled lights he and Alma were talking about radios and music. Borzage said he was a great radio fan and loved music, in fact, possessed everything up to a pipe organ that you can get music out of. On being asked what his specialty was among his musical instruments, he answered after some thought, "Well, I drool a mean comb."

Emily Fitzroy is playing the hard hearted, haughty mother-in-law again, breaking up Alma's home. Miss Fitzroy was at one time leading lady for an English comedian of note and was greatly admired for her figure, which boasted an eighteen inch waist. She tells with bursts of laughter how, when she came to America, the scandalized dressmaker refused to fit her dresses until she re-acquired a human figure via a new corset.

ART AND ARTISTS

Children's Work Is Shown at Institute

By Eleanor Jewett.

In the Art institute there is a little room which has been named the "Children's Museum." A fountain splashes in the middle and in the basin fat goldfish swim lazily. Against the far wall are two charming groups of sculpture, the one of a young mother with her little baby in her arms, and the second of a mother and her three children. At one side of the room are cases inclosing illustrations of the creating of block prints. It is, however, not to the permanent treasures in the room that attention is directed this morning.

At present there is installed in the gallery an exhibit of work done by the children in the Saturday morning classes at the Art institute. These classes are weekly affairs and have become one of the important issues of each succeeding winter. The children find inspiration and a vast amount of pleasure in the creative work. The junior department consists of children from 8 to 11 years of age; the intermediate department takes care of the ages between 11 and 14; the high school department has the older children. All ages are represented in the exhibition.

Some of the cleverest work is found in the soap modeling. It is surprising how many attractive animals and objects can be made from a bar of white soap that ordinarily we would connect only with cleanliness or soap bubbles. The children have taken this soft material and transformed it into enchanting rabbits and lions and bears and whimsical dogs. One dog is planted in the midst of a hunting scene, the entire landscape, fences and all, being carved from the soap.

Designing Costumes.

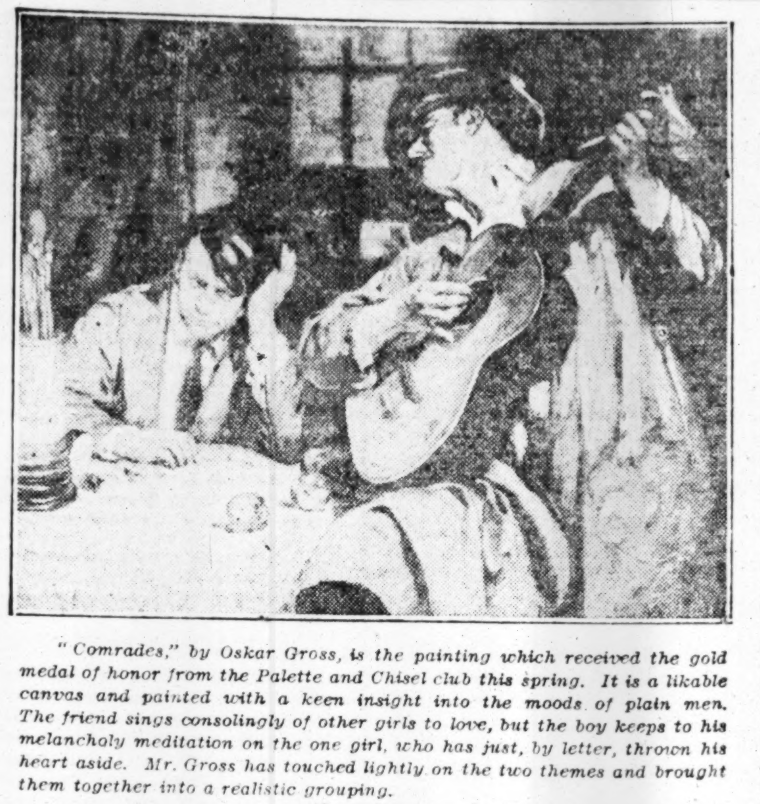
Another fascinating group of figures is discovered in the costume designs. They are almost cleverer than the soap figures. The children have cut out cardboard ladies of fashion and then proceeded to dress them in ribbons and silks, laces and furs, and framed them against black backgrounds. We are almost certain these two divisions are the ones we like best, when we happen to catch sight of the adorable plaques in gesso, and our affections waver. There is a captivating fancy shown in the gesso work. The little people wandering down the winding streets, in the heart of their tiny village, are so like jolly elves or brownies, there is such an atmosphere of fairyland about them, it is hard to resist giving them the place of first importance in the exhibit.

But then we find the water colors and beyond them the etchings, some of these showing a splendid grasp of this tricky technique, and beyond them again there are dramatic ensembles from Cinderella and the Sleeping Beauty and Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves. The ensembles consist of painted stage settings with the characters cleverly contrived from clay, ornately and characteristically painted.

Nor is this all. There are several piquant birds, made from sealing wax, wire and feathers. There are funny birds and haughty birds. It is an aviary whose like may not be found soon again, so any one who cares at all for rare specimens should see them before the exhibition closes. And, still keeping close to the feathered company, there are a few pencil sketches of animals from the Field museum, one of which is strikingly realistic. The animal may not be in the Field museum or it may be a different animal from that I think it, but the sketch looks to me like a startlingly exact portrait of a whinnying jackass. Whatever the beast may be in fact, the drawing is one of the best pieces of work in the room.

Carpet Mills Give Prize.

As a result of the art students' rug design competition recently conducted by the Mohawk Carpet Mills, Inc., of Amsterdam, N. Y., a special prize of $50 was awarded Marie Stoessel of the design department of the school of the Art institute for the excellence of her design and color variation themes. Miss Stoessel, a second year design student, has been studying applied design under William Kendall, who is conducting a class in the institute in addition to his work in connection with furniture designing for the new Palmer house, which brought him to Chicago from the east a year ago.



"Comrades," by Oskar Gross, is the painting which received the gold medal of honor from the Palette and Chisel club this spring. It is a likable canvas and painted with a keen insight into the moods of plain men. The friend sings consolingly of other girls to love, but the boy keeps to his melancholy meditation on the one girl, who has just, by letter, thrown his heart aside. Mr. Gross has touched lightly on the two themes and brought them together into a realistic grouping.

[Bemm Photo.]

Miss Ethel Louise Coe, instructor in drawing and painting in the Art institute school and head of the art department of Northwestern university, has been elected president of the Cordon club.

The work of the students of the Art institute art school will be on view in the east wing galleries of the museum beginning Tuesday, June 8, and running to July 8. The exhibition embraces examples of work from all departments of the school, including decorative arts, costume designing, printing arts, lithography, drawing, painting, basketry, weaving, jewelry, pottery and modeling.

The scholarships have already been awarded and the successful competitors announced. The three prizes available this year all went to painting students, now in their third year in the department of drawing, painting, and illustration. The Bryan Lathrop scholarship of $800 was won by Harry Peyton Carnohan of Dallas, Tex. The John Quincy Adams traveling scholarship of $750 went to Camille Andrene Kauffman of Chicago. The American traveling scholarship of $125 went to Davenport Griffen of Clifton Springs, N. Y. Honorable mentions were given to Jaroslav Brozik of Chicago, a painting student, and to Marie Ellen Wishart of Grand Rapids, Mich., a modeling student, for the excellence of their compositions.

Graduation Exercises.

The commencement exercises of the Art institute school, which will take place on June 18, will be held in the Goodman Memorial theater instead of in Fullerton hall. The theater has a seating capacity of about 300 more than Fullerton hall.

Miss Helen F. Mackenzie of Taunton, Mass., a graduate of Mount Holyoke college, has been appointed curator of the children's museum in the Art institute. Miss Mackenzie, after graduation, became an assistant in art instruction at Holyoke and afterwards took a master of arts degree at Radcliffe. She taught for a time in the Ohio State university at Columbus, and then became instructor of art history for children in Philadelphia. Miss Mackenzie plans to popularize the children's museum through the introduction of story hours and frequent changes of installations.

Arts Club Closed.

The Arts club galleries closed their season the first of June and will not open before the fall.

The Polish Arts club announces through Thaddeus Sleszynski that the new consul general of Poland in Chicago, Dr. Z. Kurnikowski, will speak before the club this afternoon and evening at the meeting to be held at Riverside in the Social Workers' Country club.

Next Saturday afternoon June 12 Mr. and Mrs. Curtis B. Camp are entertaining at Glencoe for the Oak Park Art league.

Remove Wrinkles In 15 Minutes

Sounds too good to be true? It is true; you can prove it this very day. If you want to see wrinkles, creases, sagginess completely disappear from your face in 15 minutes, just mix a spoonful of Powdered Tarkroot with a spoonful of lemon juice and apply this soothing mixture to your face. Then sit down before your mirror and have the surprise of your life! See the age lines vanish! The hated lines go away like magic. Behold now, what you looked like when young! Watch the sagginess correct itself. Enjoy the strange, delicious sensation of stimulation, support and plump, smooth firmness. When you wash off the application, your face looks much younger. The effect is far better than that of the most expert face massage for baggy cheeks and chin. Instead of making the face flabby, as frequent massaging tends to do, it does the opposite. Reduces flabbiness of cheek, chin, bagginess beneath the eyes. Fills out hollows; improves facial contour. Obliterates worry, care and age-marks! And there's nothing quite so good for blackheads, oiliness, or coarse pores. It leaves the skin velvety soft, with a healthy tint. Tarkroot acts upon an important physical principle, invigorating skin and underlying tissues, making them much firmer. It is not a cosmetic, for you wash it off after it has done its work, the skin appearing natural, glowing, refreshed. Costs less than 3 cents an application when purchased in original package. So Tarkroot certainly is not expensive to use. Tarkroot produces such really amazing results it is difficult to tell the whole story without appearance of exaggeration. Only the actual experience could make you believe all it will do. Buy a package from your druggist today.

ERBSTEIN BACK AT 'MIKE' AGAIN NEXT TUESDAY

Resumes Broadcasting from WLIB.

Charlie Erbstein is coming back on the air! The famous announcer, one of radio's foremost figures, resumes his broadcasting career next Tuesday night at 9 o'clock, when he begins a series of programs for WLIB, the Liberty Weekly station on the Drake hotel.

CHARLES E. ERBSTEIN.

Thousands of radio fans throughout the country have been awaiting the return of the announcer who made WTAS one of the most popular stations of its day, and the announcement that he will be heard in the future through the powerful WLIB station comes as an important piece of radio news.

Started Four Years Ago.

Mr. Erbstein started broadcasting four years ago when he founded his own station on his country estate near Elgin, Ill. It was the second oldest commercial broadcasting station in the Chicago territory. A wonderful knowledge of human likes and dislikes aided him in arranging his programs, and WTAS sprang to the fore immediately. Mr. Erbstein's personality carries well over the ether, and the public soon began to recognize him as the purveyor of an amusing and interesting class of entertainment. Listeners heard the classics; they heard jazz; they heard poetry set to music; they heard screamingly funny burlesques; they heard witty comment on the news of the day. The wonderful human wit and understanding of Mr. Erbstein colored every selection that came from the station. It vibrated in tune with his own dynamic personality.

Fans Ask for Him.

When he sold his radio station to Liberty Weekly and it was renamed WLIB, Mr. Erbstein decided to retire from the broadcasting field, but the requests from many of his former listeners, coupled with the desire to carry on certain charitable enterprises have induced him to resume radio work. The programs which he is to offer, starting next Tuesday, will be of the same type as the ones he gave in the past. One of the famous features of WTAS, Fred Hamm's orchestra, will be with him during his program, offering rollicking syncopation and musical backgrounds for many of Mr. Erbstein's famous readings, including "The Bowlegged Boy," "That Old Sweetheart of Mine," "The Cremation of Dan McGrew," and that famous burlesque, "The Bull Fight," probably the most humorous creation ever presented by any radio station.

Get ready, Erbstein fans! Charlie starts next Tuesday night at 9 o'clock over Station WLIB!

MOST COLLEGE STATIONS CLOSE UP FOR SUMMER

Although many stations are not yet heard from, the Association of College and University Broadcasting Stations announces that at least three of their members will be on full schedule during the summer: WABQ, Haverford college, Haverford, Pa.; KWUC, Western Union college, Lemarks, Ia., and WDBO, Rollins college, Winter Park, Fla.

Six stations will be on reduced schedule: KUSD, University of South Dakota, Vermilion, S. D.; KFJM, University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, N. D.; KOB, College of Agricultural and Mechanical Arts, State College, N. W-G-N'S WEEKLY PIANO LESSONS PROVE POPULAR

One of the most unusual features ever presented on the radio is the series of piano lessons which Edward Barry is conducting on W-G-N. Hundreds of pupils listen in each Friday afternoon while the lessons are being broadcast. Here is the way Mr. Barry does it.

An illustrated copy of each lesson is sent to every one who enrolls in the radio class. This the pupil has on the piano before him while he listens. With Mr. Barry in the studio while the lesson is being given is a pupil, who asks questions and brings up whatever difficulties he may have.

The next piano lesson to be given from W-G-N will take place on Friday afternoon, June 11, at 5 o'clock.

Floyd Gibbons' Letters Every Thursday on W-G-N

Thousands of fans who enjoyed the famous series of talks given by Floyd Gibbons, well known war correspondent and traveler, on W-G-N last winter, are experiencing a recrudescence of this thrill at the present time. Each Thursday evening W-G-N is presenting a letter written by Floyd to his radio friends recounting some of his latest experiences in strange foreign lands. He is at present on a roving commission through central Europe for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Another of the Gibbons epistles will be presented on Thursday evening, June 16.

Ambrose Larsen will give his regular Sunday recital at the Wurlitzer organ this afternoon at 1 o'clock. Mr. Larsen will present a varied program this afternoon lasting until 2 o'clock.

The composer to be discussed tonight in "Our Music Room" is the famous French musician, Saint-Saëns. Several of his compositions will be played tonight and a brief sketch of his life given. Tonight's program will include "The Death of Ophelia," "Dance of Death," "Remembrance," "The Bell," "Mazurka," "Morning," "Samson and Delilah," "Prelude to the Deluge," and the ever popular classic, "The Swan." "Our Music Room" will be on the air tonight between 9 and 10 o'clock. Each Sunday at this time a new composer is treated and his best known works are played. During the course of tonight's program Olive June Lacey, soprano, will offer several selections.

An hour of music will be presented this afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock by Leon Lichtenfeld, cellist; Pattison Coates, baritone, and the W-G-N studio ensemble.

The regular Sunday night program by Allen McQuhae, the noted tenor, will begin tonight at 8:15 o'clock. In each of his numbers Mr. McQuhae is assisted by an ensemble under the leadership of Nicholas Berezowsky. Several favorite selections will be sung by Mr. McQuhae tonight.

Uncle Walt will appear before the W-G-N microphone twice today. At 12 o'clock noon he will read THE TRIBUNE comics to the children, and at 6:15 o'clock he will present his nightly Punch and Judy.

Listeners everywhere are invited to take part in "The Million Sing" at 7 o'clock. Favorite songs known to every one will be sung in the W-G-N studio, and the radio audience will be invited to join in.

Sam 'n' Henry, the popular colored boys, will be on the air tonight at 10 o'clock with one of their humorous dialogues. For ten minutes of unique comedy listeners are advised to hear Sam 'n' Henry.

Every one who has not yet filled out the W-G-N questionnaire is requested to do so as soon as possible and return it to the station. W-G-N is anxious to get the listeners' views on radio entertainment so that future programs may be designed accordingly.

COLLEGE RADIO STATIONS VOTE AGAINST HOOVER

The Association of College and University Broadcasting Stations, representng 40 stations, according to J. C. Jensen of Nebraska Wesleyan university, are against leaving control of broadcasting entirely in the hands of Secretary Hoover. All members, however, expressed themselves in favor of the general provisions of the White bill if adequate machinery is provided for a court of appeal to which disputed questions may be referred, with assurance of prompt decisions and minimum expense.

As between establishing a separate radio commission and referring radio questions to the interstate commerce commission, the members are almost unanimous in favor of the separate commission. The association asks for the establishment of two special bands of 12 to 16 meters each, to be used exclusively by stations of 500 watts and under located in educational institutions.

SOVIETS ADD NEW LINK TO GREAT RADIO CHAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KABUL, June 5.—Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan, will soon be connected with the soviet chain of radio stations by the installation of a powerful station at Khiva (Uzbekistan), the first radio to be built in that country.

The soviets are building up new and powerful station in Siberia and Kamchatka. One powerful station will be constructed at Petropavlovsk, with a radius of 3,000 kilometers, capable of communicating directly with America.

Universities Now Are Exchanging News by Radio

An experiment is under way whereby universities, through broadcasting, are endeavoring to exchange news with each other. Marquette university, at Milwaukee, and the University of Minnesota, at Minneapolis, are now exchanging news with Wisconsin university, at Madison. The last named uses the university station, WHA. The material is subsequently published in the college papers.

SAM 'N' HENRY GET SHOES AND PANTS FROM ADORING RADIO FANS

Every day apparently is Christmas for Sam 'n' Henry, the two famous colored boys who are heard each night on W-G-N.

The two colored boys hold all W-G-N records for the receipt of gifts from listeners. Hardly a day's mail arrives that does not contain some present for them.

They have received soap, candy, cigars, cigarettes, neckties, radio sets and towels. The episode wherein Henry's trousers, in which he had sewed his savings, were stolen, resulted in eleven pairs of pants being received. Recently Sam complained that his shoes were too tight, and some obliging clerk in a Chicago men's store promptly sent him a pair of No. 16 shoes.

U. S. BUREAU FINDS STATIC IS SOME GOOD AFTER ALL

It has taken the U. S. Forest Service to discover that static is good for something. It declares that by measuring the intensity and direction of this much maligned element, it has been possible to forecast periods of low humidity or high fire hazard, by several hours, during which time the forest fire fighting forces may prepare to get into action.

Static, according to the Forest Service optimists, has also been found useful in indicating the probable occurrence of thunderstorms, warnings of their approach having been received from one to 24 hours in advance of any visual indications.

NEW USE FOR RADIO; DETECTS GASES IN MINES

Believe Device Will Stop Disasters.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 5.—An important use for radio in safety work has been developed. It is now being applied in its simplest form to the safeguarding of miners in coal fields against the destructive and deadly effects of gas accumulation. The presence of gas in dangerous quantities is indicated by this radio device.

It has a sensitive relay apparatus which actuates warning alarms that will permit the clearing of the affected areas or the entire mine of the operating personnel if the ventilating system cannot relieve the dangerous congestion that is likely to result in explosions and fire at any moment.

Two Causes of Explosion.

The two principal contributory causes of mine disasters are the explosions of methame gas and the ignition of fine coal dust which saturates the air. The latter is particularly high after a number of shots have been fired baring new faces of coal in the numerous galleries of the operation. This freshly mined coal dust when ignited explodes with incredible violence, wrecking everything in its path, and spreads with unbelievable rapidity from shaft to shaft until the entire mine is a total wreck.

The devastating effects and loss of life are only too well recorded in news accounts to need repetition here, and while the records show that fatalities from this source represent only a small percentage of death from accident in mines, the toll is one that scientists believe can be eliminated, reducing the miner's risk to a minimum. With the acts of nature—under which heading mine explosions are generally considered—removed, the miner's own carelessness will be practically the only element against which he has to guard.

Simple Radio Circuit.

Based upon the principle of the electrical conductivity of various gases, this radio adaptation brings into use the simplest of radio circuits, consisting of nothing more than an air condenser, a vacuum tube, a sensitive relay, and alarm bells. The principle on which the condenser works makes this possible. The plates are charged with electric energy that is discharged only when the current stored is of sufficient strength to break down the dielectric properties of the medium separating these plates, or when the dielectric itself changes to one of greater conductivity, permitting the condenser to discharge its stored energy.

BAY CITY FIRST U. S. TOWN TO CHARGE FANS A LICENSE FEE

Bay City, Mich., June 5.—[Special.]—This city has passed an ordinance to regulate the operation of radio receiving sets and to prevent unnecessary interference to broadcast reception.

According to advices from S. W. Edwards, radio supervisor at Detroit, the ordinance stipulates that no person or organization can operate a receiver in the city until a license has been secured. The fee is $2 and the permit is to continue until revoked for violation of regulations. Sets must be operated so that they will not cause interference to broadcast reception on nearby receivers.

Violations are punishable by a fine of not in excess of $100 and imprisonment for three months or either. A third violation would bring about a revocation of the receiving license.

Bay City is by no means the first city to pass an ordinance having to do with intreference, but so far as department of commerce officials at Washington recall it is the first city to follow the custom so popular abroad of endeavoring to collect revenue from licensing receiving sets.

INSIDE THE LOUD SPEAKER

By Quin A. Ryan, W-G-N Announcer

WHEN a 500 mile auto race is called off on account of rain after 400 miles it makes everybody sore but the radio announcer who is broadcasting it. It only means that he has to talk one hour less and utter 10,000 fewer words.

THE VITAL statistics on the broadcasting of last Monday's race from Indianapolis are:

Six and one-half hours of broadcasting were indulged in.

60,000 wholesale words were spouted by this announcer.

Eight listeners swooned because they thought the demon cars were going to jump out at them.

Four more fainted because they could whiff Barney Oldfield's cigar.

60,000 WORDS—that's more words than have been written about Earl Carroll, the knight of the bath. But, after all, we've heard more words than that used on the radio in introducing one singer.

THERE WERE old, ragged, umbrellas-to-mend words; little, dancing, pantalooned words, and galumping, fireman-save-my-child words. And, speaking of words, probably the worst word that ever dented a radio horn was the one we pulled the week previous, at the ball game, when, just to give a cue to Sam 'n' Henry, we called the seventh the "antepenultimate" inning. We have heard since that there were tremors along the various wave lengths, the static became frightful in some places, and one loud speaker positively exploded.

IN BROADCASTING a terrific auto race, the announcer locks himself in a small wooden mausoleum with double doors and two panes of glass in the windows. This is to exclude all noise; the roar of the cars will be picked up by another "mike" outside, properly balanced. And after going to the trouble of building such a soundproof vault, padding the walls and ceiling, and putting on storm doors and windows, the announcer found that his new shoes squeaked!

IT'S A complicated system of reporting that is necessary at an auto race. One man sits beside the announcer, in telephonic communication with the pits, and it is from him that we learn instantaneously that Harry Hartz has "gone into the pits" in the 46th lap because he broke his suspenders, or that Frank Elliott has quit the race for a minute because he lost his chewing gum. Another man stands behind the announcer, at a huge blackboard, chalking up all the information he can; so that if one listener wires for such information we can tell him how Carter Harrison ran in the old 16th ward in 1907.

AND AFTER a while the air in the little room gets so balmy that even the electric fan can't turn over.

DURING THE broadcasting of the race last Monday we discovered a new trick of the publicity seekers. We were reading telegrams, as you know, from hundreds of kindly and gracious listeners, who were reporting on their reception; and that was all very well. And, suddenly, as though by general conspiracy, there began to trickle in a flock of complimentary wires from firms, partnerships, and trade mark names. No personal signature would be attached; merely the trade name of some garage, or restaurant, or manufacturer: "The Olympus Kandy Kitchen, Hokumo, Ind.," "Murphy, Sullivan & Ryan, Undertakers, Dubuick, Ia.," "The Portable Hairnet Company of Eau Paw Paw, Wis."—(Adv.)

EVERY YEAR, on the day before the race, we make a tour of the racers' garages and ask each one to agree to talk to the radio audience if he wins. And, although the winner is nerve-shattered and bleeding after the terrible five hour grind, he lives up to his promise. This year Frank Lockhart trudged over willingly to the radio shack to greet the microphone and tell how pleased he was; and last year little Pete De Paolo remembered his agreement, too, despite the agonizing confusion and bewildering applause that accompanied his rip-roaring finish.

RADIO PICTURES ACROSS ATLANTIC COST $50 EACH

Plenty of Business at That Price.

Doubtless when radio listeners read that a commercial trans-Atlantic wireless picture service had been inaugurated they wondered who, besides newspapers, would pay real money for having pictures flashed across the ocean. It is just possible the wireless picture people may have asked themselves the same question. If so, they didn't have to wait long for an answer.

Hardly had the system been hooked up than a bank check was shot across from London to New York. This was really in the nature of an experiment, but it suggested a field of commercial usefulness heretofore hardly thought of. Right on top of that came advertising men, who began flashing newspaper ads back and forth, which, with the aid of airplanes, appeared the same day they were sent in newspapers of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, London, and Paris.

One of these was the advertisement of an English tobacco concern, but considerably more significant and again opening up an entirely new field of commercial utility was when the Paris branch of a New York department store wirelessed from London to this country, a picture of the very latest French hat. Thus was begun a new era of the bringing of Parisian fashions to our shores.

It is well known that the airplane and cable heretofore had freely been pressed into service in order that milady might have the very latest thing from Paris, but the wireless pictures seem just to have been made for that sort of service.

And quick to seize upon the advantage, Joseph H. Appel of New York, advertising manager of the store which flashed across the advertisement which contained the picture of the Parisian hat, promptly applied for a copyright on the word "advergram," which he used to describe the picture.

Mr. Appel said that he could see tremendous possibilities in the use of trans-oceanic photoradiograms by advertisers with world-wide distribution.

Thus it would seem that at least one lucrative field has been opened up to the commercial photoradiogram. And there may be others. At any rate, according to reliable advices from New York, between 25 and 50 pictures are being filed every day now between New York and London, and at the present rate of $50 a picture that isn't so bad.

RADIO'S BEST BATTERY
RAY-O-VAC "B" BATTERY
RAY-O-VAC No. 19 RADIO "B" BATTERY
30 CELLS - 45 VOLTS
FRENCH BATTERY COMPANY MADISON WISCONSIN

This is the famous master Ray-O-Vac "B" 45-volt battery for all multiple tube sets requiring more than 18 milliamperes of current. All other sizes of "B" batteries also available in the Ray-O-Vac line.

Summer
Radio Reception requires "B" batteries with low internal resistance and staying power

THERE are more atmospheric disturbances in summer than at any other time of the year.

These are unavoidable handicaps to your set. Do not add an avoidable extra handicap by using ordinary "B" batteries with their high internal resistance.

Radio engineers have proven that high internal resistance in "B" batteries invariably results in distorted reception. Ray-O-Vac "B" batteries have an internal resistance of only one-third to one-sixth of other "B" power units.

At the same time Ray-O-Vac batteries have staying power. They don't run down quickly when sets are not in use, and they begin to recuperate their strength the instant the switch is broken.

Ask for Ray-O-Vac batteries by name and identify them by the carton shown above.

RADIO PICTURES ACROSS ATLANTIC COST $50 EACH

Plenty of Business at That Price.

Doubtless when radio listeners read that a commercial trans-Atlantic wireless picture service had been inaugurated they wondered who, besides newspapers, would pay real money for having pictures flashed across the ocean. It is just possible the wireless picture people may have asked themselves the same question. If so, they didn't have to wait long for an answer.

Hardly had the system been hooked up than a bank check was shot across from London to New York. This was really in the nature of an experiment but it suggested a field of commercial usefulness heretofore hardly thought of. Right on top of that came advertising men, who began flashing newspaper ads back and forth, which, with the aid of airplanes, appeared the same day they were sent in newspapers of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, London, and Paris.

One of these was the advertisement of an English tobacco concern, but considerably more significant and again opening up an entirely new field of commercial utility was when the Paris branch of a New York department store wirelessed from London to this country, a picture of the very latest French hat. Thus was begun a new era of the bringing of Parisian fashions to our shores.

It is well known that the airplane and cable heretofore had freely been pressed into service in order that milady might have the very latest thing from Paris, but the wireless pictures seem just to have been made for that sort of service.

And quick to seize upon the advantage, Joseph H. Appel of New York, advertising manager of the store which flashed across the advertisement which contained the picture of the Parisian hat, promptly applied for a copyright on the word "advergram," which he used to describe the picture.

Mr. Appel said that he could see tremendous possibilities in the use of trans-oceanic photoradiograms by advertisers with world-wide distribution.

Thus it would seem that at least one lucrative field has been opened up to the commercial photoradiogram. And there may be others. At any rate, according to reliable advices from New York, between 25 and 50 pictures are being filed every day now between New York and London, and at the present rate of $50 a picture that isn't so bad.

THE CHEEKIEST PERSON I EVER MET

Send us a short, to the point, reminiscence of the cheekiest person you ever met, and we'll pay you $1 for it if we print it. All letters must be addressed to the Cheekiest Person Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

And Walked Away.

A certain woman neighbor came over every week to borrow the tin pans used for baking bread. This went on for some time until one day, father being at home, he said to her as a joke, "Here's a dollar. Go buy yourself some."

She took the dollar! L. A. L.

Used the Clothes Line.

The cheekiest person I know is a junk dealer. I called him into our basement, wanting to sell some rags and papers. Evidently, the papers were not tied tight enough for him, and without asking me, he cut a long piece off my clothes line, which was hanging near by, and tied them over. J. K.

Hard to Embarrass.

Our new neighbor soon made friends, but I quickly discovered there was method in her madness. She borrowed incessantly, so that I nicknamed her "Mrs. Borrow."

Our small son rather surprised her and embarrassed me one day by announcing her arrival thus: "Here comes 'Mrs. Borrow.'"

Well, she wanted to borrow a small brush, as she knew I had been doing some white enameling. Then, when she had the brush, she said, "I suppose you have some enamel left over. I'll finish it up for you." She took that also. M. S.

Part of Her Trousseau.

The cheekiest person I ever heard of was a girl friend, who came over to see my trousseau, and after admiring all my pretty dresses seemed to like one more than all the rest.

It was a pretty little party dress I intended to wear while visiting a friend of mine while on our trip.

She did so want her mother to see this one, and, since I was to leave this city, she asked if she might copy it. Of course I could not refuse, but to my consternation I found out later that she wore the dress to an informal dance that evening and brought it home the next morning, thanking me. I never found this out till I came back to visit a year later. B. K. H.

Her New Sweater.

The cheekiest person I know is the young woman who lives in the flat above us.

One day last winter she was going to visit her mother who lives in a nearby suburb. It was a cold day and she asked me if I had a sweater she might wear under her coat to go out there with.

As I was wearing my old one just at that time, I let her take my new one my husband had given me for my birthday.

I waited and waited for her to return my sweater, and the other day I finally picked up courage to ask her for it. Imagine my feelings when she pulled out the rag bag and, after searching through it about five minutes, produced my sweater, all in tatters. E. B.

Pretty Poor Sport.

The cheekiest person I ever knew was a friend. He came to our house frequently and ate on an average of four meals a week with us. One evening he remarked how well he liked fried rabbit and gravy, and asked me if I would fry the rabbits and make the gravy if he would get the rabbits. I gladly consented.

About a week later he brought me five rabbits and said he would be down for supper. I cleaned and cooked them and after supper, when most of the rabbit was gone, he told me that they would cost me twenty-five cents each.

Needles to say, he did not eat any more rabbit suppers at my house. J. R. S.

Took It All.

A woman invited me to have lunch with her downtown. When we had finished I laid down some money, not thinking she would take it.

She not only took it, but she kept the change and tipped the waitress. H. E.

Something to Laugh Over.

The cheekiest person I ever knew was a woman neighbor from whom I borrowed two nickels for telephone calls.

It happened that my little daughter took suddenly ill and we were quarantined. That evidently made her worry about her money as, to my surprise, she soon appeared at my door, holding a can with some disinfectant solution, for me to drop the ten cents in.

The nurse and I had a hearty laugh. F. M.

Getting His Money.

A cousin of mine, the father of three small children, was employed as a farm hand. It was necessary that they should have a gallon of milk each day for the children, which was purchased from the farmer, payment for it being deducted from his meager monthly wages at the rate of 25c per gallon.

One morning when he had almost finished milking, the cow kicked the milk pail, upsetting it and spilling the contents. The babies were obliged to do without their milk that day, but the farmer, who was greatly enraged because of the mishap, deliberately deducted the 25c just the same. P. S.

ART NOTES

Maurice Block, formerly of the Art institute staff, who at present is director of the Art institute of Omaha, was a recent visitor here. He has been granted a leave of absence which he plans to spend in Europe, studying art conditions in England, France, Spain, Italy, Austria, and Germany.

Albin Polasek, head of the department of sculpture in the Art institute school, is sailing from New York early this month to start work on a European commission which will engage his entire attention for the next few months.

The summer school of the Art institute will begin its term this season on June 28, when the general and junior classes will be formed, and last until Aug. 20. The classes in teacher training will open June 28 and close Aug 7.

An exhibition of Hungarian prints will be installed in the print rooms at the Art institute in the near future, to run through June. The exhibition will consist of rather more than a hundred examples of the work done by contemporary Hungarian artists. These have been collected by the Painter-Gravers, a society native to Hungary, and have been brought to America through the efforts of the Cleveland School of Art and the Hungarian legation at Washington. Running simultaneously with this exhibit, there will be found an exhibition of engravings and etchings covering an elapse in time of four centuries, from Durer to today. The Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer loan collection of prints remains on view as well. In this collection there may be seen the rare and valuable Criblee print, a hand colored print of the crucifixion by an unknown artist, and a page from an original block book which was produced before movable type was invented [1460].

Dudley Crafts Watson, lecturer at the Art institute, has planned an adventurous tour for the thirty-eight artists and art lovers who will go with him to Europe this summer. It includes two flights in airships, one from Stockholm to Copenhagen and another from Paris to London. The party will also sail the Arctic ocean and penetrate some 365 miles beyond the Arctic circle. Mr. Watson plans on taking a motion picture camera with him and his audiences next winter may expect some fascinating and unusual material in his talks.

Fortune's Star Shines on Corpus Christi and South Texas

During the gold rush of other days the Star of Empire led west, where fortunes of yellow gold were piled up by strong men.

Today the Star of Empire leads south to Corpus Christi, and that vast empire within a state—South Texas. Here men are harvesting the "green gold" of the truck farm and the "white gold" of cotton plantations. Untold wealth awaits men of vision, men who are willing to invest their time, money and strength to hasten development.

South Texas is a land of magic!—it possesses every natural resource. Its broad acres stretch for miles, high and well drained, yielding fat crops. Fanned by the unfailing trade winds, its summers are pleasantly cool and its winters mild and invigorating. Nowhere will you find such a multiplicity of advantages as on this southern tip of the great Mid-continent area—South Texas—of which Corpus Christi is an important agricultural and commercial center.

To meet the transportation needs of this giant empire, a deep-water port is being developed at Corpus Christi, through the combined efforts of the federal, state, county and city governments. That port will be ready for ocean-going ships by September. In the meantime, forward looking investors are seizing the opportunities offered to plant the cornerstones of the fortunes which follow the Star of Empire.

There is still room and time for YOU! Mail the coupon for detailed information.

ASSETS
—a deep-water harbor, a federal project, nearing completion.
—millions of acres of well drained and fertile land.
—natural gas as cheap fuel.
—adequate railroad connections
—plus the unusual advantage of an ideal climate, both summer and winter.

Voice of the Movie Fan

If you want to see your letters in print please write on one side of the paper only. If you desire personal answer, inclose stamped and self-addressed envelope.

In the Tall Timber.

Dear Miss Tinée: I was interested in the letter penned by "Quoting," who protested on the late release of current productions in Chicago. Your E. N. on the contribution encouraged me to write you on the same subject.

Last January I visited in a town of six thousand, Yankton, South Dakota, and the old home town, to go into details. It boasts one movie house run by a genial old fellow, a family friend. On a date during the month of January "The American Venus" was shown there for a two day run. The next week "Sally, Irene and Mary" appeared on the local silver sheet. "Ben Hur" was to be shown in the middle of February and on asking for the admission demanded for such a film. I was informed 20 cents and 40 cents were the highest prices.

On my return to Chicago I discovered that the first two films above were advertised as coming attractions. A letter from home, dated the 16th of April, gloried over the wonders of "Stella Dallas" and asked my opinion of it when lo! and behold! it was yet to come to our fair city.

My city style in that little "one horse town" has become decidedly cramped. Between the ultra fashions in movies and the tailored bobs seen on Main street I feel antique. A FAN

Sad, but Wonderful.

Dear Mae Tinée: I can't resist. I feel the "urge"—the urge to write to you about "Stella Dallas." I saw it yesterday. I thought it marvelous. I told my husband it was wonderful and that I shed buckets of tears. He asked me why I didn't pick out some nice funeral to go to if crying was my idea of having a good time. Anyhow, I like a picture I can get worked up over.

"Stella Dallas" is a picture you can think of afterwards. Anyway, that seems to be the case with me. I can't get it off my mind. I even dreamed of it last night.

Even a brand new car purchased yesterday (and our first one, too) is entirely eclipsed in my mind by that picture. It seemed to me perfect in every way. Its characters were perfect, likewise the settings, direction, the story, and all.

I couldn't keep down my desire to write you and let off a little steam. This is the first time I've tried to break into print, even though my father is an editor of a paper.

CONNIE.

Editor's Note—Yes, it IS a wonderful picture, Connie!

About Many Things.

Hello Mae! Are you over the thrill of seeing Paul Ash in person? O, well, I saw him myself once when he was about to step in his car in front of his old home, McV.'s. I'm s ure glad you made him stop that wiggling, though. It didn't look pitty. We are not busy and my boss told me to take my time with the work, so far be it from me to do otherwise.

Why the HEQQ doesn't Richard Dix play in serious rôles? I thought he was marvelous in "The Ten Commandments" and a perfect jackass in "Let's Get Married." Once I read in a movie magazine that he was going to try to take the place in the hearts of Americans of Wally Reid. Sorry, old deah, but no can do. Wally is Wally and regardless of whether he is gone or not, no one can take his place. Richard is too fat, or at least too big boned. He has thrilling eyes, but when he is trying to "tear a night club up by the roots," who can see them?

Why don't they put "Martin Eden" in the movies? Huh? By Jack London it is, and I thought when I read it that it would be a fine story for a movie. Rod La Rocque would be just the type for the hero. By the way, where is Rod? I like him always, but haven't seen for for some time. Has his contract with Cecil De Mille expired, or did he get temperamental? Never will I forget him in "The Ten Commandments." I went mad about that picture, anyway.

Well, I'm running on and on and ought to stop, but haven't said anything about the ladies (?) of the movies. Here goes. In my opinion, Mabel Normand ought to be allowed to come back to the movies. She is the only comedian my dad will laugh at and I think it is a shame he can't have that pleasure once in a while.

Pola Negri was good in "Passion," but she sure has had punk pictures since. Who's fault is it?

Lois Wilson is good. I enjoyed her in "Ruggles of Red Gap." It was an odd part for her to take, but she was good.

Colleen Moore is nice in her way, but is getting rather rubber stampish. Why doesn't she change her leading man? Lloyd Hughes is more or less of a pill—artificial in his effort to be real.

I am saying this in perfect earnestness. 'Most every one laughs when I am telling them, so the warning—in my opinion [which doesn't amount to a row of beans]—Zasu Pitts is the GREATEST of screen actresses. She does what they do on the stage and do not do on the screen. One little action and one subtitle tells volumes. I really get excited when I talk about her. Take, for instance, the story by Fanny Hurst—what was it—with Dolores Costello? She is sitting on the bed, the man offers her a drink, and says, "Come out of it, Dopy," or something like that. I thought of her all during the rest of the picture. Could see her going down and down. The rest had to go through the motions before you could possibly imagine what would happen and still what else would there be to happen?

Of course, she [Dolores] would marry the hero and would find her parents. What kind of a play would it be without that, and still they had to act it out. Zasu's part was acted in one little scene. Sordid, low, but you knew in your heart what was taking place.

Also, I consider "Greed" the finest picture made. Not a single pretty scene in it and still it was real life, true. Gosh, I wish I could act like she does! And still how is she considered? Not as high in people's minds as that old comedian, Gale Henry, who was a riot in her way, but not to be taken any way but ridiculous. Why are people so dumb, huh?

Well, fare thee well, Mae. I'll write some more some time. If you have survived this, of course. M. L.

Editor's Note: "Fare thee well, and if forever"—but I hope NOT forever, M. L.

Mother was taking rather a long railroad trip, accompanied only by 4 year old Frankie. As the conductor took her ticket, he said, "Well, madam, you traveling all alone?"

Frankie stood up in the seat, put his arm around mother's neck, and said, aggressively, "No, her ain't; I'se wid 'er." A. V.

Harold had heard a great deal about his little cousin Madge, who was coming to visit them. When he beheld her he appeared somewhat taken back, for no doubt he had pictured her as different.

Looking intently at her he said, "You don't wook (look) a bit wike (like) you oughta." E. C.

Land of Scenic Splendor

Crawford Notch

"The Most Beautiful Stretch of Country in the World"

THUS a world wide traveler spoke of New Hampshire—and he spoke truly. It is beautiful—this Switzerland of America—where fir-clad mountains kiss the clouds; where crystal, island studded lakes are cradled among the green hills; where the broad Atlantic cools a quaint, historic shore.

No finer land or climate in all the world than this in which to spend a summer vacation! Here you may live as simply or as luxuriously as you wish. Magnificent hotels; village inns; good boarding houses of the old fashioned sort; or if you prefer life in the open, there are many camping grounds maintained by the State and Federal governments. Boating, bathing, fishing; motoring 'mid views superb; golf on courses unsurpassed. Come to New Hampshire for an ideal summer vacation.

New Hampshire offers many advantages for residence the year 'round. Do you want a rural home? In a village or on a farm? In a thriving city with shaded streets and wholesome community life adjacent to nature's most beautiful handiwork? Are you interested in fruit farming, poultry raising or dairying? In industrial opportunities? Write particulars of what you want and we will gladly send you information.

Great sport! in Maine waters

A coast line of 2500 miles—broken by a hundred island-sheltered harbors, innumerable great bays and little coves—or for long stretches marked by a broad beach of white sand—this is what Maine offers to those who enjoy salt water sports. Maine's 8,000 lakes and streams offer an unsurpassed playground to those who prefer her charming inland country. There's wholesome fun for the young folks in Maine waters—swimming parties, canoeing, fishing, sailing and every water sport.

Whether it's the surge of the restless sea, the gentle lap of waves on the shore of a pine-fringed lake, the ripple of a meadow brook or the roar of a mountain stream—the sounding Maine waters bring rest and peace to the mind. A Maine vacation will rejuvenate and rebuild.

HOSPITALITY · SERVICE KNOWN FOR GOOD FOOD

"THE TRAVELER"

ANNOUNCING THE NEW BISMARCK HOTEL

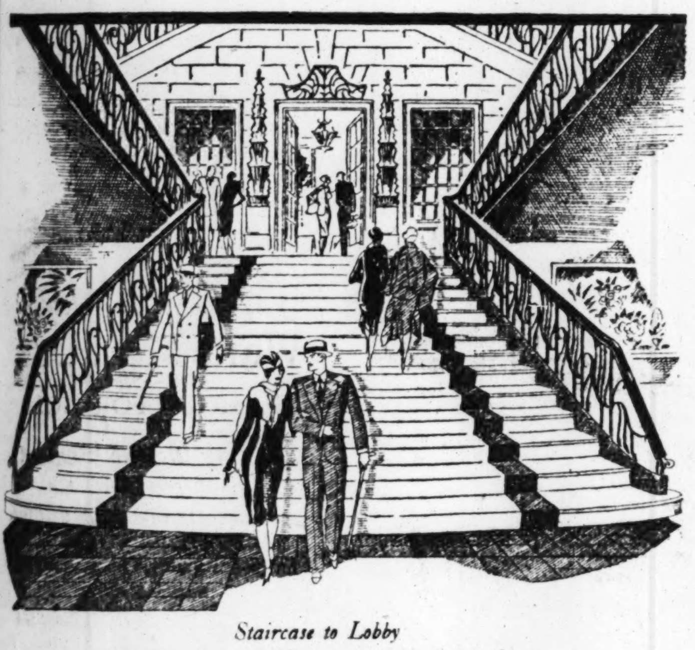
To carry on the traditions of 33 years' service to Chicago's guests



Staircase to Lobby
An atmosphere of refinement marks the spacious lobby. It is finished in light oak paneling. The lounge offers a quiet, restful spot away from the throng.

FOR 33 years, the Bismarck Hotel—owned and managed by Emil and Karl Eitel—has been famous for its splendid service, hospitality and cuisine.

Now—the New Bismarck Hotel has been completed—designed and equipped to give the utmost in modern-day-hotel service. Every appointment that can add to a guest's comfort has been provided—plus warm hospitality.

The New Bismarck Hotel will appeal to those of discerning taste, who prize restful, quiet comfort and alert personal service. The bizarre and cheaply ornate has been avoided. The appointments throughout, are in that splendid taste which lends an air of rich simplicity and subdued elegance.

Rooms and suites are all outside rooms, large, light and airy—beautifully furnished with bed, dressing table, bureau, easy chairs, desk, table light and floor lamp—giving homelike comfort. Though classed among Chicago's large downtown hotels, we pride ourselves upon the close personal service we offer each guest, and the lack of noisy confusion which usually results from mere attempt at super-size.

The experienced traveler will be interested in an innovation to avoid the necessity of "waiting for room assignment." In addition to an ample number of rooms and a large staff of servants, we have installed at great expense, an electric control system which automatically notifies the registry clerk the instant a room is ready for occupancy. Thus, the preparation and daily cleaning of rooms is speeded up, and waiting on the part of new arrivals is removed. A signal light in each room also silently informs guests of the arrival of mail or messages. These unique features are typical of the modern service throughout the New Bismarck Hotel.

The dining rooms offer a delightful rendezvous for formal and informal occasions.

The Randolph Room, impressive with its soft-toned walnut, rare old masters and tapestries, has the setting and atmosphere of an exclusive club.

The Flamingo Room, colorfully done in a rich red lacquer set off by exquisite hand carvings and ornamentation, is an ideally cozy dining room for afternoon tea or after-theatre dancing and supper.

The Dutch Room recalls the atmosphere of wholesome friendliness and comfort of former days to a great host of friends. The Coffee Shop quickly serves Bismarck food at Coffee Shop prices.

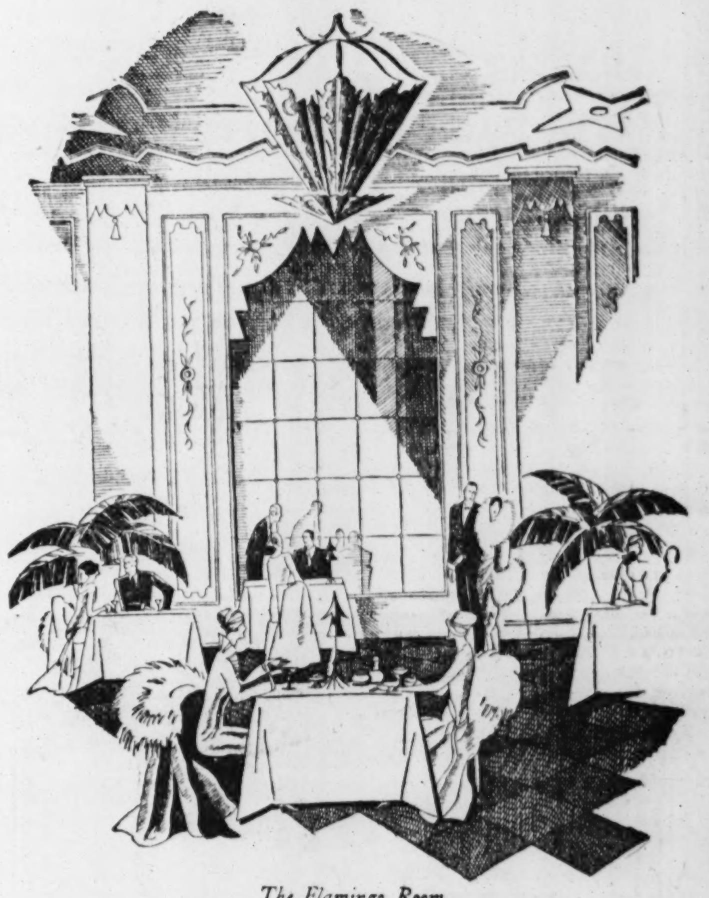
Private dining rooms occupy the entire third floor and are available for private luncheons, dinners and meetings. The private dining rooms are served from a separate kitchen immediately adjacent—assuring quick service and warm food.

The same staff of world-famous chefs who established the reputation of the Bismarck for good food, will again be in charge of our kitchens, with every modern facility to fully demonstrate their culinary skill.

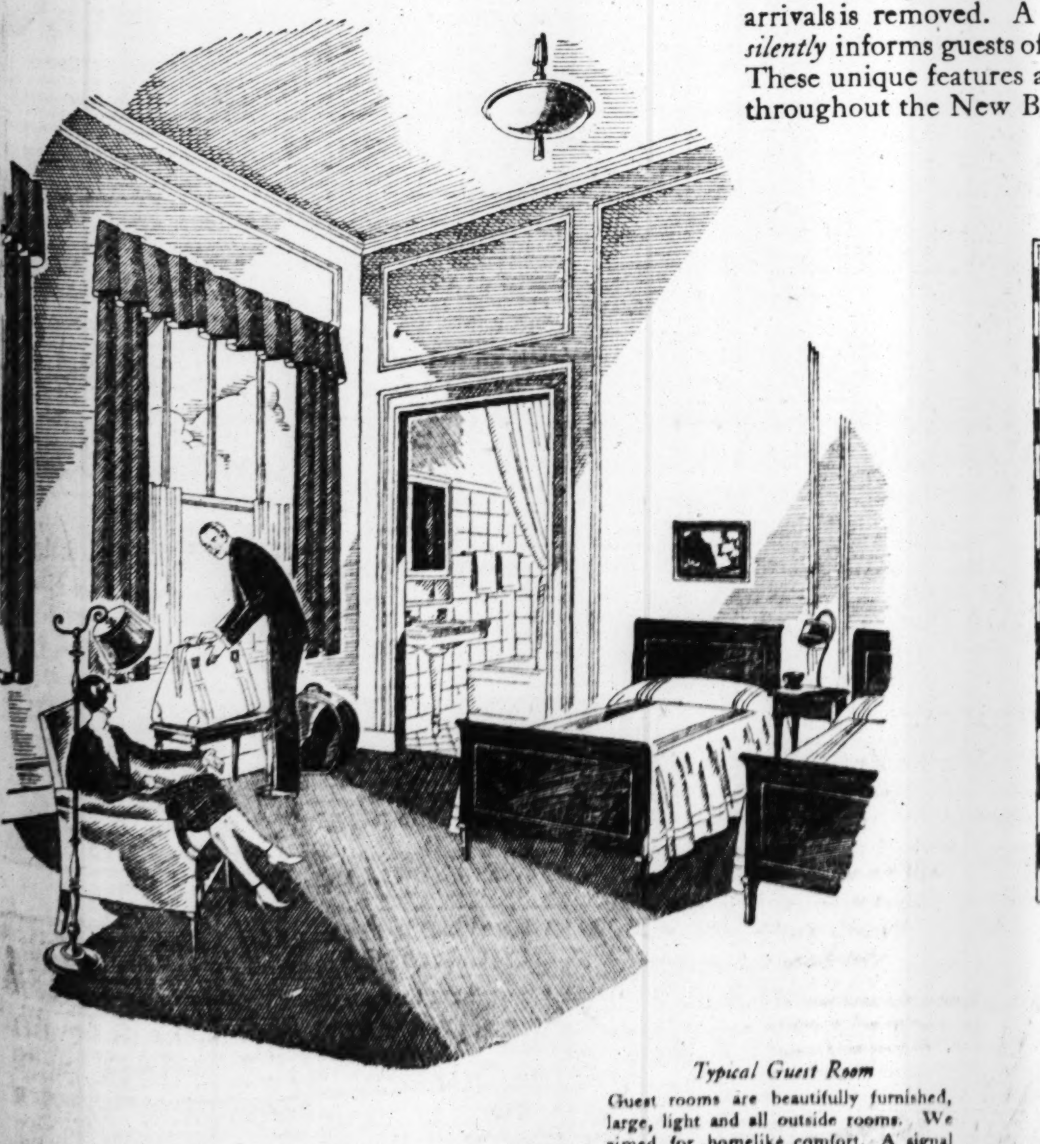
A modern air-washing and temperature-controlled air cooling system refreshes and cleanses the air throughout the hotel. Irrespective of weather temperatures, one is always comfortable at the New Bismarck.

Guests will find a quick response to their every wish and a warming sense of hospitality. Every employee on the staff is thoroughly trained to perform his duties swiftly and quietly with the comfort and enjoyment of the guest uppermost in his mind.

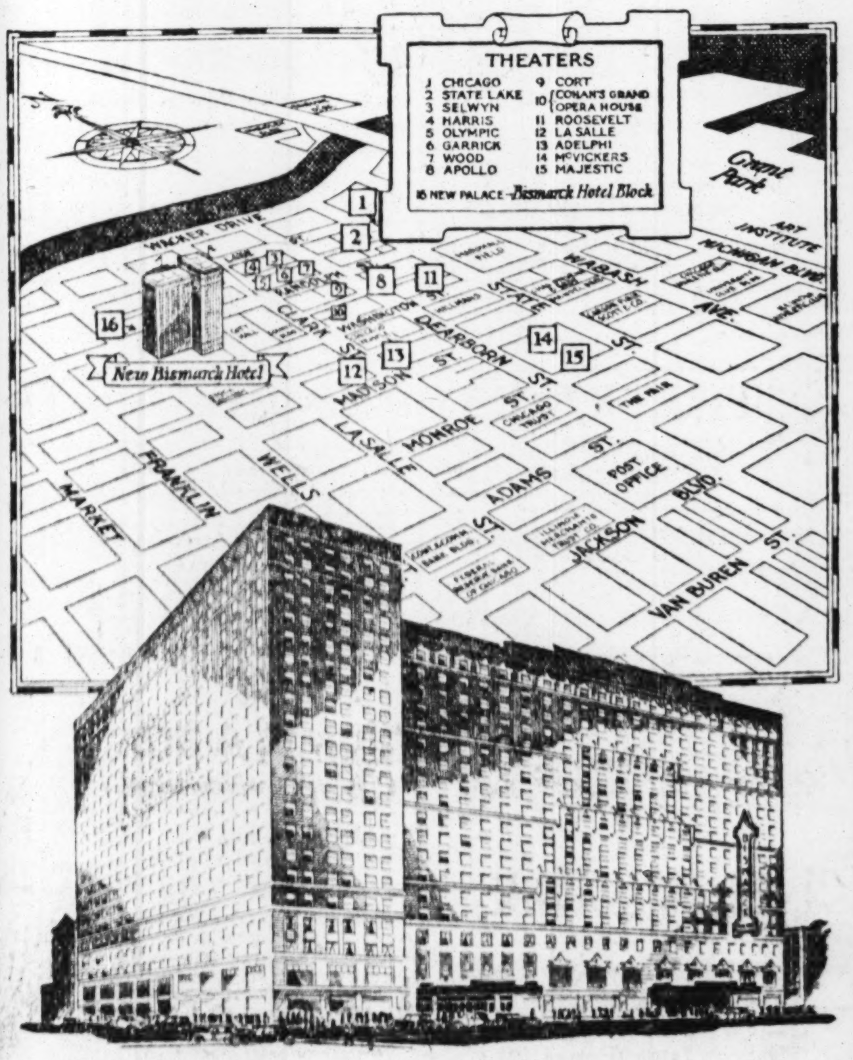
Otto K. Eitel MANAGER



The Flamingo Room
—is exquisitely finished in a warm red lacquer, giving a cheerful, bright air, set off by specially imported hand carvings. An ideally cozy room for afternoon tea, or after-theatre dancing and supper. Delightful music by the Bismarck Orchestra.

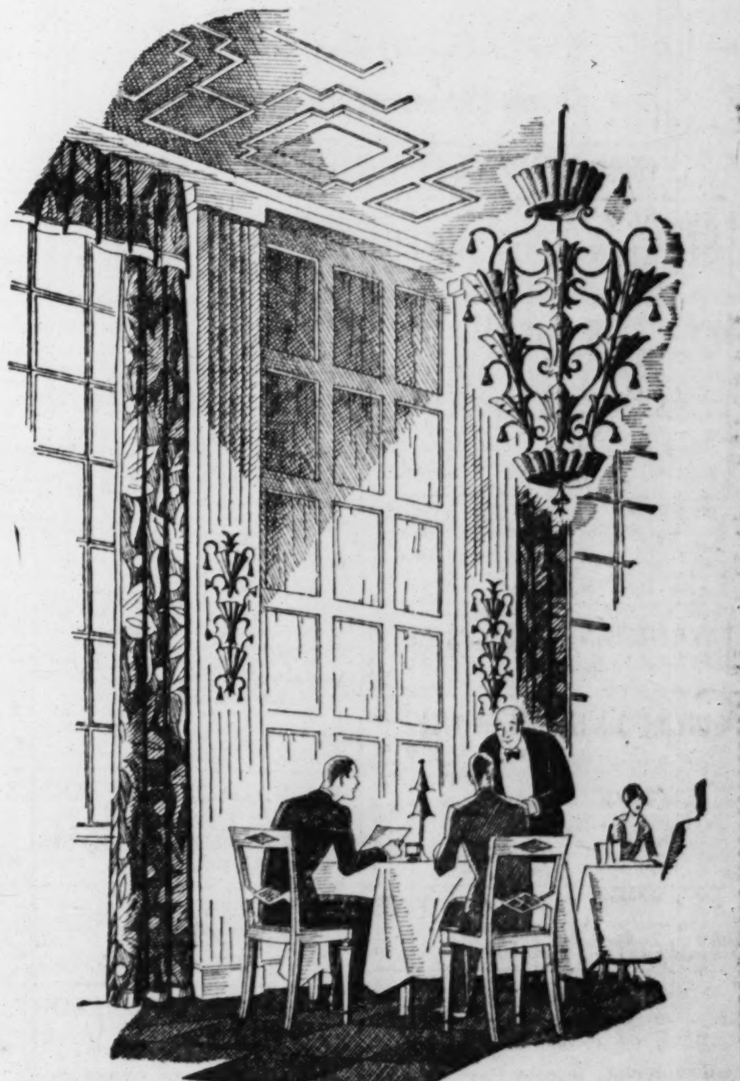


Typical Guest Room
Guest rooms are beautifully furnished, large, light and all outside rooms. We aimed for homelike comfort. A signal light in each room silently informs the guest of the arrival of mail or messages.



The location of the Bismarck Hotel is convenient to theatres, shopping districts, financial districts, and transportation.

Reasonable Rates
More than 85% of the rooms are priced from $2.50 to $5.00.



The Randolph Room
—finished in soft-toned walnut, hung with rare old masters and tapestries. A quiet room for dining—with the setting and atmosphere of an exclusive club.

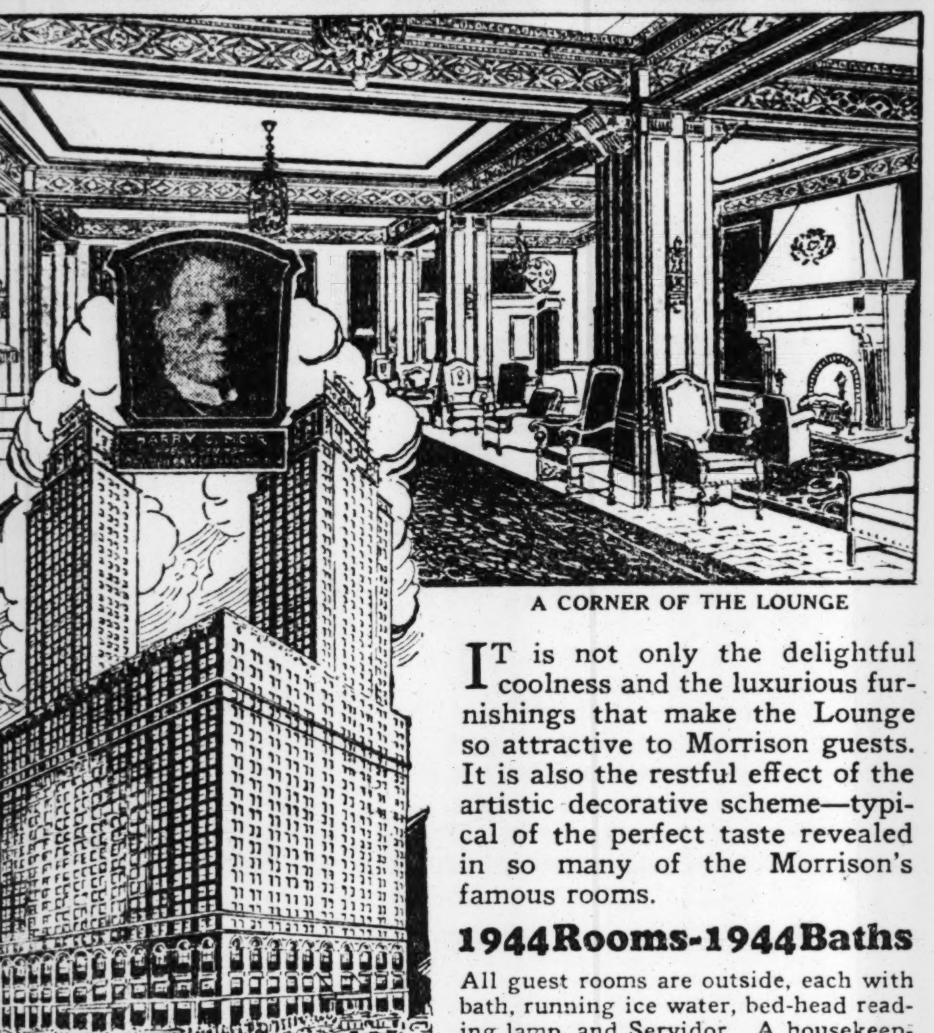
Luxurious—and Cool

The Guests' Lounge, in Chicago's 46-Story

Morrison Hotel



A CORNER OF THE LOUNGE

The New Morrison, when completed, will be the world's largest and tallest hotel—46 stories high, with 3,400 rooms.

IT is not only the delightful coolness and the luxurious furnishings that make the Lounge so attractive to Morrison guests. It is also the restful effect of the artistic decorative scheme—typical of the perfect taste revealed in so many of the Morrison's famous rooms.

1944 Rooms-1944 Baths

All guest rooms are outside, each with bath, running ice water, bed-head reading lamp, and Servidor. A housekeeper is stationed on every floor, and all guests enjoy garage privileges.

Why Rates Are Low in the World's Tallest Hotel

But, notwithstanding the ideal environment and perfect service, rooms are rented here for $3 to $5 that would cost $5 to $8 in any other leading hotel. The store subleases at this central location are so valuable that they pay all the ground rent, and the guests enjoy the total benefit of the saving.

Breakfast Served in the Terrace Garden from 7 to 11 A. M.

NOW—a vacation spot of your own

in WISCONSIN the Land O'Lakes

THROUGH the roaring rapids into a foam-flecked swirling pool; a cast of the bait; a mighty tug; a prolonged struggle, and the king of waters is in the bottom of your canoe. The wind sighing high among the pines; motoring on and on into the land of tomorrow. Wisconsin, where Hiawatha lived and loved; where once the red man roamed in his primitive glory; in the land of sky blue water; a summerland of romance and reflections.

Nowhere else can you find such a great range of recreational attractions. Over smooth concrete and hard-surfaced roads, plainly marked, you can quickly reach any part of this easily accessible state. Wherever you go you will find welcome hospitality and friendship. Let us tell you about the hundreds of recreational spots and summer homesites.

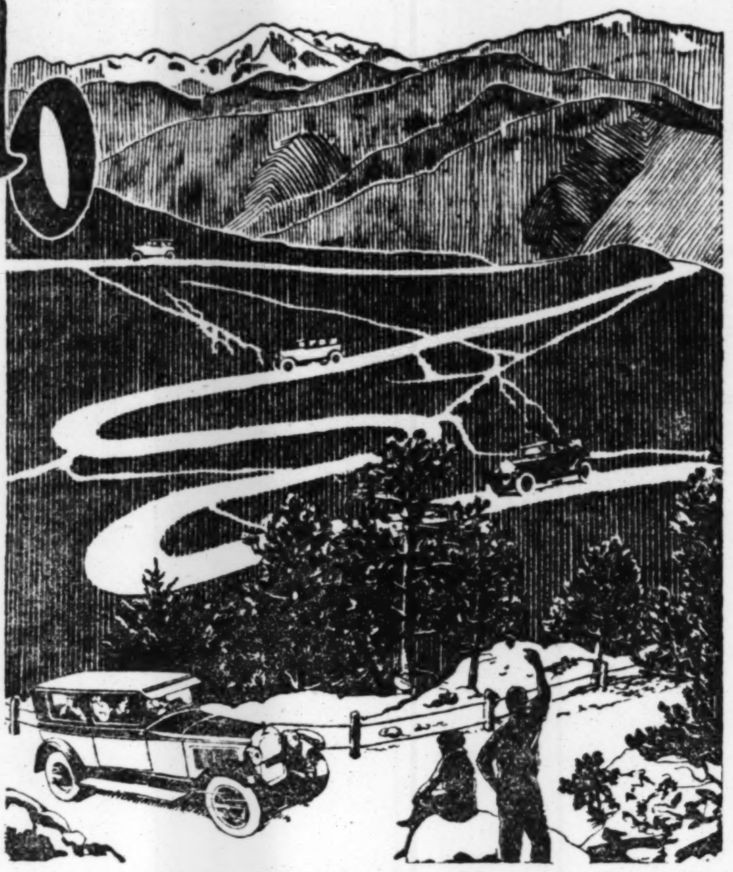
Colorado is Marvelous in Scenic Grandeur–America's Superb Vacation-land



Lariat Trail, Lookout Mountain, Denver's Mountain Parks—the largest and most spectacular municipally-owned scenic summer playground in the world

The climate, scenery and trips are delightfully different. Denver, the Gateway to 12 National Parks and 32 National Monuments, has more scenic trips, by rail and auto, than any other city in the world. Very low summer fares to Denver are effective now from all parts of the United States with return limit until October 31.

$43.05 ROUND TRIP CHICAGO to DENVER

Your length of stay is the only limit to what you can see and do. Even a two weeks' vacation will permit you to visit and enjoy Rocky Mountain National Park, Denver's Mountain Parks, Mesa Verde National Park, the Moffat Road, the Royal Gorge, the Georgetown Loop, Platte Canyon, or choice of sixty other short trips by rail or auto.

Come HERE for Touring

Drive into these fine highways at any point, Toronto to Chicago, and find new beauties and summer pleasures.

2000 Miles of Fine Paved Roads

Whatever your plans for summer tours, make them include some part, at least, of this charming Great Lakes country. You can drive around Lake Erie, through Canada or the States—and Michigan is full of outdoor delights.

The Lake Erie-Niagara Falls Trail: Toronto, Niagara, Buffalo—each of the three a center of a great vacation territory; lakes and resorts in Canada, New York, Ohio—with hundreds of attractions on both main roads and by-paths; Cleveland, and the famous beaches and resorts around it; Toledo, Detroit, innumerable playgrounds. And then the wonderland of Michigan woods and waters on The Michigan Trail, clear up to Petoskey and Mackinaw—fishing, golfing, canoeing, camping, bathing, and always good hotels in easy reach of wood or stream. Any one of these centers will easily provide a week's—or a fortnight's—delightful vacationing. Come this summer! It can be an economical vacation, too, if you wish.

A Big Picture-Book, with Maps, is Ready

Send four cents postage—and write for it today—before you do any further planning for your vacation—to Great Lakes Tours Association, 1807 Stroh Building, Detroit.

West Michigan

The Playground of a Nation

Give them the HAPPIEST Summer they've EVER had!

Broad beaches to romp on—clean, sheltered sands to play in—toy sloops to sail—flowers and berries to pick. Truly, West Michigan is a play paradise for the children! Bring them this summer, Mother and Dad, and watch them laugh in the sunshine and build up robust health.

And there's fun galore for all the grown-ups—golf on 47 courses—superb bathing—tennis, horseback riding and dancing—fishing in 3000 sparkling lakes and streams. Motor over the superb 21,000 mile road system to quaint Indian villages, famous orchards and scenic forests. Or just loll and loaf.

West Michigan is famed for its wonderfully healthful climate. The air is water-washed by three great lakes; no hay fever. Delightfully cool nights assure perfect rest. Our free Vacation Directory tells all about this easily accessible invigorating Playland. Send today!

The Spell of the Great Lakes

Historic, mysterious, romantic Great Lakes . . . revered by the Indians . . . their sky-blue waters crimsoned by many a bloody conquest . . . today the waterways for commerce of the world.

Detroit is in the heart of the Great Lakes region. Here you see them from picturesque motor roads . . . you cruise them on magnificent steamers.

They still weave their spell of olden days . . . they still preserve their beauty of marvelously stimulating scenery. Their singing waters fall on snow-white beaches, where bathing is clean and bracing.

But the Great Lakes are only one of many attractions at Detroit. There are charming boulevards—big league baseball—public golf links—boating on Detroit River—tours of the automobile factories—and, above all, Belle Isle, the most beautiful island park in the world.

10-day stop-over allowed at Detroit on all round trip tourists' tickets routed via Detroit

Raymond-Whitcomb

CRUISES by LAND & SEA

Whether your interest urges you to the most northern civilized town of the Old World . . to the southernmost tip of America — or whether you desire to circumnavigate the globe — you will always find a Raymond-Whitcomb Cruise "the best in travel".

ROUND the WORLD

Sailing October 14, 1926

All continents, including Australia and Europe

Japan, China, Philippines, Java, India, Egypt, etc. Rates cover more than 40 shore excursions to such essential points as Peking, the Great Wall, Seoul (capital of Korea), Delhi, Agra, Benares, Cairo, etc.,—certainly such a combination of travel opportunities has never been offered by any other cruise.

The "right" seasons everywhere

The only cruise visiting each country in the right season and also giving an opportunity for a European visit before returning home. The specially designed Cunarder "Carinthia"— many rooms with bath—many single rooms—hot and cold running water throughout.

Rates ($2250 & up) include over 40 shore excursions.

ROUND SOUTH AMERICA.

The only real South American Cruise—all the way round . . . from Panama to the Straits of Magellan, from tropical jungles to the snow-capped Andes — to know it you must see all South America. Sailing January 29, 1927— sixty-three days on the S. S. "Laconia" to Panama, Peru, Chile, Straits of Magellan, Argentina, Uruguay, Brazil, Trinidad and Porto Rico, including visits to Valparaiso, Buenos Aires, Montevideo, Sao Paulo, Rio de Janeiro, the Andes, etc.

Comprehensive sightseeing included. Rates $975 & up.

TEN LAND CRUISES

Throughout the Summer — June to September

Ocean comfort on a cruise across America

On luxurious special trains built by Pullman for Raymond-Whitcomb—rooms with private bath, gymnasium, dance-room, movies, radio, barber shop, beds instead of berths, etc.

Pacific Northwest — July 1 and July 29

Daylight trips in the Selkirks, Vancouver, Portland, Spokane, Glacier Park, Helena and the "Gates of the Mountains", Yellowstone, Medora (N. D.) with a specially arranged rodeo.

4 days motoring in the Canadian Rockies — 22 days — $490 up.

California — July 2 and August 11

Santa Fe, Grand Canyon, Painted Desert, Petrified Forest, California Resorts, San Francisco, Yosemite, Big Trees, Pacific Northwest, Canadian Rockies (automobiling) — 26 days — $565 up.

Other Land Cruises to Colorado, National Parks, Alaska.

MIDNIGHT SUN CRUISE

The S. S. "Carinthia" sails June 29 to Iceland, fjords of Norway, Norwegian towns, Oslo, Copenhagen, Amsterdam, Boulogne and Southampton . . . . when schools and colleges are closed and the weather hot . . . . the ideal vacation cruise.

Rates ($800 & up) include return any time this year.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

An Exile Returns to a Vigorous City

By Mme. X.

RETURNING to Chicago after several months' absence is like coming home to an affectionate, busy, vigorous mother. Her voice is loud and cheerful. Her embrace is warm. If your heart has withered and shriveled in exile, it opens as do those Chinese paper flowers, or birds, or fish when put in water. There's no city quite like this one—at least this seems so to a native born Chicagoite. There are aliens who neither understand nor appreciate us. A Californian, for instance, would be likely to comment on our imperfect city pavements and the inadequacy and poor condition of our country highways. Out there road making is a high art.

You seldom have elsewhere the free, vibratory treatment such as you get here in a taxi ride between the Northwestern station and the fashionable residence district which lies on the north side between Ontario street, Lincoln park, Clark street and the lake. If, when you pass the intersection of Goethe and State streets, you forget to rise in your saddle, your pate is likely to touch the roof of your car. Console yourself with the thought that you would have to pay five dollars for such a vigorous shaking in any institution giving massage or vibratory treatments.

Living with Zest.

It may be our much vaunted ozone which gives an unmistakable sense of excitement to existence in Chicago. Even in that section of life here which the French would call "the world that amuses itself," every one seems to be pursuing some goal with a zest not to be matched in other communities. That sweet, do nothing atmosphere in which the writer passed the last three months on the southwestern coast of the U. S. A. seems already like a pipe dream, a something that never really was.

Even in this brief interval of time since last I was a part of Chicago's life, many outer and inner changes have come. Huge apartment houses and hotels have sprung up overnight. Towers that were not on the horizon last autumn scratch the sky now. There's the soaring plinth of the Jewelers' building that I see from my window, handsome and massive, though an irreverent mortal did liken it to a sugar sifter beset with four pepper pots.

An Alliance of Architects.

This, by the way, reminds me of an excellent institution that obtains in Los Angeles. About eighty-five of the foremost architects of that city have united in an association called the Allied Architects. This organization has control of the designs of all the principal buildings in the community. Los Angeles has a law limiting the height of buildings to one hundred and fifty feet. This means that no structure can have more than thirteen stories. Exceptions to this ordinance are such municipal buildings as the city hall and the public library, also church steeples. When important edifices are proposed this alliance of architects holds competitions and has a board composed of its most experienced members to pass on the designs submitted. A dozen of the best are chosen and sifted out. If any of them has an especially good feature, it is taken and embodied in the final selection, so that the ultimate achievement is of a superior quality both from an esthetic and a practical point of view.

The law limiting the height of buildings is a wise one, as it makes the city spread in every direction and is an antidote against the congested and darkened streets which are a menace to the modern metropolis.

By the way, one of the striking edifices in Los Angeles is the circular temple built for the far famed evangelist, Mrs. Aimee Semple Macpherson, whose recent disappearance, apparently while swimming in the Pacific ocean, has created such a commotion. There are some people out in that region who think that she was caught and devoured by sharks. These finny monsters frequent that coast. It is a theory that would account for the fact that her body was not cast up on the shore by the restless waves.

But to return to Chicago: Ours is a city of infinite variety. One of our best known citizens told me of a recent midnight scene that sounds more as if it might have happened in the days of Queen Bess and Bill Shakespeare than in hustling, bustling, murky Chicago. As he sat in his library close on the hour of midnight my informant heard the sound of singing. He looked out of his window and saw a company consisting of about forty couples come hand in hand singing and dancing up the middle of Astor street. Arrived at Banks street, which his house overlooks, they formed in a circle and danced round and round in time to their own singing. Then they turned west and, still hand in hand, in couples, danced down to State street. Returning to Astor street, they disappeared in the same formation, their voices getting fainter as their swaying forms disappeared in the shadows of the street. They were dressed in conventional evening clothes and had a well bred appearance in the quiet, moonlit street, but who they were, whence they came, or whither they went is an unsolved mystery. The Banks street householder is sure it wasn't a dream.

Still another street scene testifying to Chicago's manifold diversity happened last Monday morning. Strolling down the Lake Shore drive your chronicler met at the corner of Elm street a rather lean young man escorting a sweet looking young woman who was leading a large gray goat, a quiet, dignified animal, with her left hand, while her right arm was clasping a limp looking goose, whose head and neck hung down in a wilted way, though the bird was quite alive.

This curious outfit didn't seem to attract much attention from the other passersby. The strange quartet made its leisurely way across the crowded drive and disappeared in the distance, going towards the lake.

The goat, a massive, passive creature, was not street broken and treated the sidewalk just as Neapolitan goats do the sidewalks of Naples. I'm glad we don't have many of them on our most fashionable promenade.

Siam Brocades—Ming Toy Crepes—Crepes de Chine

Keen tailoring distinguishes these frocks from the ordinary. The rich fabrics are highly desirable when a woman considers that they will wash. Enchanting colors remind one of sunlight, cool shadows, a summer's breeze sweeping over the wheat fields or lilacs, and the deep azure of summer skies. The styles are up-to-the-minute and widely varied, and the silks launder beautifully.

Sheer Georgettes—Plain and Flowered Chiffons—Flat Crepes—Crepes Romaine—Failles—Crepes Elizabeth—Crepes de Chine

Cool modes for warm summer days are represented in this alluring collection. The all-shirred georgette frock, the slit skirt; the two-piece, the one-piece, the long sleeve, the sleeveless frock; styles that reflect the Spanish influence—boleros, full skirts, lace—all are here. The details are new and impeccable. The color range runs the full gamut of the Rainbow, besides Black and White. The workmanship is exquisite. In fact, nothing we could say would be in too high praise for frocks of the high character of these.

residence street and large, gray goats perambulating the Lake Shore drive, both features that smack of other days, it is not to be wondered at that astrology, that handmaid of ancient lore and preoccupation of many famous historical personages, should be again to the fore. From the remotest dark ages mankind has loved to dabble in the occult, and even today when we live in the almost pitiless glare of science there are still to be found those who delight in fortune telling, the reading of horoscopes and their ilk. It must be admitted that most of these who seek to tear the curtain from tomorrow, or to understand today, are women. At the present moment a small group of Chicago's ultra fashionables are much intrigued by a German countess who has been here for some time and who is said to have a remarkable gift for telling you all about yourself, your past and your future by reading the stars.

Interest Never Fails.

It makes no difference how profound a skeptic you may be, how sane and thorough your common sense, if you find yourself sitting opposite a well equipped, self-confident seer or prophetess, you become interested and entertained. That subject of never failing charm and importance, yourself, is the matter in hand and, unless the horoscope reader is extremely inadequate, you are sure to have an absorbing twenty minutes.

So the group of gay and attractive young women to whom I refer is enjoying this excursion into the occult and finds much inspiration in having been born in this or that sign of the zodiac with the conjunction of such and such stars. I wonder whether the suns and planets know their own names and natures, and the influence they're supposed to have on the creeping, crawling beings we call mankind.

Lord Balfour once termed us "earth's worst disease," but he may have waked up with a sick headache or had an attack of inherited British gout in his big toe, or been to a so-called "spirit seance," and studied the kind of people who habitually attend such meetings.

As an opportunity to see us at our lowest ebb of common sense and sanity such gatherings have a certain value to the student of his kind. For people of any enlightenment and education to attend these seances for other reasons is to prostitute that greatest of God's works, the human mind.

Chicagoites Abroad.

Summer being upon us, let us see what some of our social leaders are doing about it. Those two most energetic organizers of many of our social activities, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, have already solved it for themselves by going to Europe. Mr. and Mrs. Coleman are in Paris at the moment, and are soon going to that fashionable and popular French summer seacoast resort, Biarritz, until September. Mrs. Fairbank, who took herself and her daughter, Miss Janet Fairbank, abroad on the proceeds of her successful novel, "The Smiths," has been motoring in England, and is waiting to know if and when her husband and two sons can join her before making further plans for the summer.

Still another of Chicago's vigorous social leaders is Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, who has been spending the last four or five months chiefly in Morocco and the Island of Majorca. She was in Paris for a fortnight and now is in England, where she is disposing of the effects of her brother, the late John Borie, whose sudden death last December was such a shock to his friends. She sails for home June 15, and will spend the summer at her country estate on Otsego lake, in New York state.

On This Side.

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick expects to divide the summer between her town house and her Lake Forest place, "Villa Turicça." Mrs. Waller Borden has taken the old Rumsey house in Lake Geneva, Wis., for the season, where her two daughters, the Misses [illegible] and Elizabeth Borden, can golf and boat and swim and play tennis.

Mr. and Mrs. John Spoor and their daughter and son-in-law, the Thornhill Broomes, will be at Wiano, Mass., where the Spoors have leased a fine old place and the Broomes are building a summer home. Not far away, at Hyannisport, the George S. Paysons are opening their house for the season, and the Howard Eltings and William S. Cunninghams have taken cottages for the summer.

Bar Harbor will have a goodly delegation of our fellow citizens, which will include Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Pike, Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. McGann, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Strobel, Mr. and Mrs. William Prescott Hunt, Mrs. E. C. McAvoy, Miss Marie J. Rozet, and Frank Cramer.

MISS HELEN MARGARET SOWLER.

[Ray Photo.]

Dr. and Mrs. Alexander M. Sowler announce the engagement of their daughter, Helen Margaret, to Dr. Eldon Glenn Lahr of Chicago, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Lahr of Huntington, Ind.

Lake Forest houses are filling fast. All their friends are rejoicing in the fact that the Albert Dicks are to occupy their place on Deerpath avenue this summer. It is the first season in eighteen years that they have done so, as their charming camp, Westmoreland, in Wisconsin, has lured them away annually. They spent last week there dismantling it and getting it ready for its new owners, the Wisconsin Dairymen's association, who are going to use it as a country club.

For a Worthy Cause.

Next Sunday afternoon there will be charming garden tea and musical fête on that lovely terrace of Mrs. Daniel H. Burnham's place at Evanston. The Little Symphony orchestra of Chicago, with George Dasch conducting, will give a program, including Tschaikowsky's "Valse des Fleurs," Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream," and Grieg's "Country Dances." The path from the house runs under rose covered trellises and "through groves deep and high where sounds the far billow."

The affair is to raise funds for the Northwestern University Settlement, under the woman's board, of which Mrs. Robert Owen Lord is president. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Daniel H. Burnham Jr., or at the gate.

Next Saturday the four Lake Forest gardens to be opened to the public will be those belonging to Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. George D. McLaughlin, Mrs. Walter Brewster, and Cyrus H. McCormick. Careful directions are given on the roads leading to these charming estates so that visitors will lose no time in finding their way. This is especially necessary, as Lake Forest was laid out fifty years ago in an intricate manner by our greatest landscape artist, the late Frederick Law Olmsted.

WEDDINGS

No wedding or engagement announcement will be published in The Tribune unless it bears the signature, address, and telephone number of a parent either of the bride or the bridegroom. Announcements should reach the society editor not later than the Wednesday morning preceding the Sunday they are to be published.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Newport Prepares for Prince's Visit

By Howard White.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—The Newport season is getting under way much earlier than in recent years, due chiefly to the visit of the crown prince and princess of Sweden, who are going there on June 16, when they will be entertained extensively. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James are giving a garden party and a dinner for the royal guests on that day. Most of the members of the summer colony will be there for the event.

The Breakers, Mrs. Vanderbilt's villa, will be opened this summer, and will be occupied by her son and daughter-in-law, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, and their daughter, Miss Grace Vanderbilt. Mrs. Vanderbilt, the mother, went abroad with her daughter, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, and her son-in-law and daughter, the Count and Countess Laszlo Szechenyi. She is going over there to attend the unveiling ceremonies at St. Nazaire, France, of the heroic statue commemorating the ninth anniversary of the landing of American troops in France. The statue, that of a doughboy on the back of an eagle, with arms outstretched and sword uplifted, stands on a rock promontory in St. Nazaire harbor.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's sister-in-law, Mrs. Hamilton McK. Twombly, who has not been in Newport for several seasons, will open "Vineland," her villa there. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Widener are to return this summer after an absence of several seasons and will be with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Widener. Mrs. Widener Leidy, the former Fifi Widener, will be with them. Mr. and Mrs. Williams Burden will be at Oakwood, where they are to have the first outdoor swimming pool erected.

At Ackwood Farm.

William K. Vanderbilt, who has been traveling in the west, and his wife, who has been abroad, but is returning soon, will be at Ackwood farm, the estate of his father, the late Alfred G. Vanderbilt. His mother, Mrs. Paul Fitz Simons, is now in South America, but will return during the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Saxham E. Drury, the latter the former Miss Mabel Gerry, who were married last fall and who later went abroad, are to spend the coming summer with her father, Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry, at Seaverge. Miss Angelica Gerry will also be with them. Mrs. George Grenville Merrill of Stockbridge, Mass., this week made preparation to open the Dresser cottage, which she will occupy this summer with her children, the Misses Natalie and Marjorie and George Grenville Merrill Jr.

Engagements Announced.

The late spring season has been marked by the announcement of a number of important engagements. Two were announced recently of particular interest to the smart set here. One is that of Miss Alice Bentley; the other is the betrothal of Miss Catherine Howard Wilcox.

Miss Bentley, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schuyler Bentley, of Pelham, will become the bride of Capt. William C. M'Mahon, U. S. army, in September. She is one of the most popular members of the younger set. Capt. M'Mahon, who is a graduate of West Point, served in France during the war and later took part in the American relief administration in Russia. He now is an instructor at West Point.

Miss Wilcox is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philips Tyler Barbour of this city and Darien, Conn. She is engaged to Arthur M'Kinne Stires, son of the bishop of Long Island, the Rt. Rev. Ernest M. Stires of Garden City, and Mrs. Stires.

Both Miss Wilcox and Mr. Stires have ties of kindred with several of the most exclusive families of New York. Besides her southern and New England ancestry Miss Wilcox is related to the Van Epps, is a cousin of Princess Pignatelli and a great granddaughter of Gen. Ambrose Wright of Virginia.

Mr. Stires is the third son of Bishop and Mrs. Stires. Their oldest son, Ernest Stires, married Miss Louise Homer, named for her mother, the famous singer; the second son, Hardwick Stires, married Miss Ellen Greenough of Boston. The youngest son, Gilmore Stires is at Cornell.

Arthur Stires was for two years in the consular service in London and is now an architect.

CLUBS

Conference Club Holds Unique Place

THE Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen, the only woman's club of its kind in the world, is composed, as may be surmised from its title, of club presidents and chairmen of club programs. Nearly 200 woman's clubs are represented in its roster. Although unique as to its organization and purpose, its members wonder how clubs in other parts of the country do without a "conference" or a headquarters like this to act as stabilizer or coöperator in club activities.

The organization of a club of this kind originated with Mrs. Charles S. Clark, who with unflagging effort and courage has brought it through eleven years of service to its present success and promising expectations for the future.

Most noteworthy of its aims is promoting the cultural aspects of the various woman's organizations. Artists, musicians, actors, explorers, scientists, educators, judges, and authors from all over the world are among the interesting representatives of culture who appear before this audience. More than one artist dates his first recognition and opportunity from his appearance before this responsive and friendly group of women.

The new officers of the club are Mrs. Charles S. Clark, president; Mrs. Walter W. Seymour, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, first vice president; Mrs. Henry W. Austin and Mrs. Luther V. Rice, second and third vice presidents, respectively; Mrs. R. E. Pattison Kline, recording secretary; Mrs. J. Marc Fowler, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Charles J. Myers, treasurer.

The eleventh anniversary of the organization of the conference will be celebrated with a luncheon in the grand ballroom of the Palmer house, Thursday, June 10. Don Jose Mojica of the Chicago Civic opera will be soloist.

CLUB NOTES

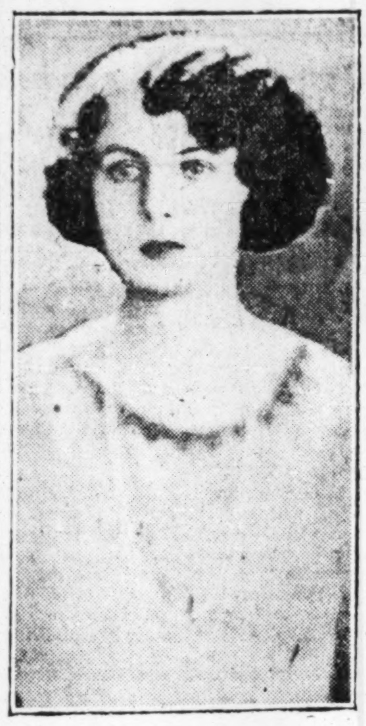
Dr. Darley Downes of the department of English, Doshisha Middle school, Kyoto, Japan, will be the speaker at the Sunday buffet supper at the Chicago Nurses' club this evening. His subject is "Student Life in Japan." The Children's Memorial Hospital Alumnæ association will hold its annual banquet at the club on Monday evening. On Tuesday afternoon the staff of the Visiting Nurse association will meet and on Tuesday evening the regular meeting of the First district of the Illinois State association will be held. Wednesday evening the University Hospital Alumnæ association will hold its annual banquet.

The annual bazaar given by St. Francis guild of the Chicago Episcopal diocese for the benefit of St. Mary's Home for Children is to be wider in scope this year than any of its predecessors. In order to make this possible the big ballroom of the new Palmer house has been engaged for the event, which will take place early in November. A meeting of the parish chairmen of the various parishes throughout the diocese will be held at diocesan headquarters, 6 North Michigan avenue, June 7, at 2 o'clock, to formulate plans and make final arrangements for the affair before the church vacations begin. Mrs. Carl A. Gowdy of Oak Park is chairman of the bazaar.

The Woman's Catholic Order of Foresters has been asked to serve as the ushers for the meeting of the third day of the Eucharistic congress, June 22. In addition to this the order has been delegated to distribute the official sash insignia for women at the congress. The sash is of red and white with "XXVIII. International Eucharistic Congress" stamped upon it, and is to be worn from the right shoulder to the waist line on the left. The sashes will be distributed from the office of the order, 140 North Dearborn street.

Miss Hazel K. Benbow and Mrs. May A. Stone are in charge of the arrangements for a dinner and card party to be given by the Railway Business Women's association of Chicago, Eastern Lines division, Thursday evening in the ballroom of the Auditorium hotel.

ENGAGED.



MISS JUNE BERNICE THRUMSTON.

[Bernie Photo.]

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Thrumston of 637 Library place, Evanston, of the engagement of their daughter, June Bernice, to William M. James, son of C. T. James of Story City, Ia. The wedding is to take place in the fall.

District One of the Illinois Council of Parent-Teacher associations will meet at an annual conference Thursday in the Field museum lecture hall. At the morning session, which opens at 10:30 o'clock, Mr. Julius F. Smietanka of the board of education will give an address on the financial problems of the city schools.

Mrs. Mabel Abraham Allaire, state regent of the National Circle, Daughters of Isabella, has been appointed general chairman of the Eucharistic congress committee for the organization. Headquarters have been secured at the Blackstone hotel, Auditorium hotel, and Woman's City club, where hostesses of the day will be on duty to serve visitors to the congress.

A supper honoring Miss Caroline D. Tyler will be given tonight by the Chicago College club, 196 East Delaware place. Miss Tyler was founder of the Chicago Society of Miniature Artists and its president for seven years. Later in the evening she will speak on "Paintings in Little" and will exhibit her miniatures which were at the Woman's World Fair.

Members of the Darwin School Parent-Teacher association will entertain with a cotillion dance at the school Tuesday evening.

Miss Eleonore Weber, Miss Leora Kanaga, Miss Ariana Abbott Jennison, Miss Myrtle Voss, and Dr. Maud Crawford were the Chicago delegates to the national convention of the Altrusa club at Peoria last week. Miss Prudence Penny was chosen as the new president of the Chicago Altrusa club.

The Eastern Star club will have its regular monthly meeting Tuesday in the Great Northern hotel. Luncheon will be served at noon. Mrs. Amelia Bierdeman is president.

The annual luncheon of the Irving Park Catholic Women's club will be held at the Palmer House in the ballroom Wednesday.

A surprise program has been arranged for the annual luncheon and card party of the Baron Hirsch Woman's club Thursday in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer House. Mrs. G. H. Weinstein is chairman.

Mrs. P. Frank Collins, chairman of the 17th ward branch of the Woman's City club, is in charge of the arrangements for a reception and bunco party to be given by the club at the Norwood hotel Tuesday night. Proceeds will go to the Children's home on Yale avenue.

The philanthropy department of the West End Catholic Woman's club announces a summer card party to be given Tuesday beginning at 2 o'clock at the Elks club in Oak Park.

The annual spring party and luncheon of the Inter-nos circle will be held at the home of Mrs. H. C. Lee, 170 North Lombard avenue, Oak Park, Wednesday at 12:30 o'clock.

Reduce!! That's the Edict For the Present Day Figure Lines

—Third Floor—Dearborn Street—

To reduce the figure to conform to the present day vogue is the cry of women in every walk of life, so heed should be given the necessity of carrying out this edict without discomfort. Every woman who heeds this cry should see the superb features of the New P N Comfolette as shown in the two illustrations. They stand for slenderness and better proportions.

The outstanding defects of the day are the enlarged Diaphragm and the protruding abdomen—to remedy these defects THE P N COMFOLETTE MAKES ITS APPEARANCE WITH A CORRECTIVE ELASTIC VEST DOWN THE CENTER FRONT with the outer garment laced over this—making it impossible for the diaphragm to enlarge or the abdomen to spread.

It is well named Comfolette giving you the comfort of a one piece garment with the abdominal reduction of a corset. It is the double support that this garment affords which makes it produce its marvelous results—"A smaller and better proportioned figure" and yet you will note how thoroughly this double support is brought about. There is no discomfort. Any woman who has worn a P N Practical Front garment will welcome this timely Comfolette. Sizes waist measure to 36, at

MY GREATEST THRILL

> Write and tell us about the greatest thrill you ever experienced, and if we print your letter we'll pay you $1. Make your letters short and snappy. Address them to "Greatest Thrill" Editor, The Chicago Tribune.

Narrow Escape.

Brilliant hued autumn leaves lured a girl friend and me to a rather dangerous walk along the edge of an old, abandoned stone quarry, filled with water. With my usual genius for getting into trouble I slipped on some long grass that grew over the edge and down I went, landing on a little ledge, a few feet above the water.

I thought I could climb up again, but found it not so easy as it looked. I grasped a shrub that grew out of the bank above me, to help in pulling myself up. But the shrub was not firmly rooted in the crumbly bank. I pulled loose, and the next thing I knew I was going down, down, down in icy water.

My excited companion jumped up and down and screamed for help. There was no one anywhere within at least two blocks that could hear her, she thought, but luckily a young man who lived in the house nearest to the quarry had come home early that day, not feeling well, and was lying down near an open window. He heard her cries and ran for the quarry, through brush, over a barbed wire fence and rocks.

Reaching the bank above the place where I was splashing rather wildly he jumped in, just as he was, dressed in heavy working clothes, swam out to me and pulled me back to the bank.

I had just enough sense to remember the all important fact that I must not try to hold on to him or hamper him in any way and so we reached the shore safely. I did not get so much as a cold to pay for the experience, but I did get a scare, the memory of which will stay with me for many a day.

E. M.

"Making" the Line.

I've been electrified,
And thrilled till I've cried,
When fame and honor were mine,
But the grandest thrill
Was reserved until
The day I made the Line.

W. O.

Thrill That Lasted.

A protracted period of invalidism had kept me out of touch with the outside world and radio had gained quite a foothold before I scarcely knew of its existence. One day a crystal set was given to me and the small boy who installed it said, "Just put on the headphones, wiggle this cat's whiskers a little and you ought to hear something."

My utter ignorance made me skeptical. Hitherto such wonders had cost many, many times the price of the modest little instrument before me. Probably no one who has not experienced lonely years of invalidism can appreciate the thrill I got, when, clear as a bell, a voice came to my ears. I don't remember now what that voice said, but I shall never forget the vista that opened before my imagination.

At will I would be able to summon to my presence friends to spend the dreary hours with me. Should I tire of one, I could dismiss him without offense and choose another companion. Unlike most thrills that pass as quickly as they come, this one has never lost its potency.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Presbyterians of State Hold Meeting

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

FRESH from the meeting of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America in Baltimore, many of the national leaders will join with Illinois Presbyterians at Carbondale in a meeting beginning tomorrow and continuing to Friday. The meeting will have three divisions, although joint gatherings will be held at times, and the entire program will be shaped so that all who attend will receive the impact of the United church.

These divisions are the annual meeting of the Illinois synod, the annual meeting of the Woman's Synodical society, and the annual educational and inspirational conference. The campus of the Illinois Normal university, the First Presbyterian, and the First Methodist Episcopal churches will be the meeting places. Among the national leaders will be Dr. William Chalmers Covert, Dr. George G. Mahy, and Dr. Harold McAfee Robinson. Dr. John Timothy Stone of Chicago will preach each morning at 11 o'clock and conduct three vesper services. Miss Lucy H. Dawson will be one of the national women leaders who will be present. Dr. Sam Higginbottom of India and Dr. Henry W. Greist of Alaska will be missionaries who will speak.

Dr. Henry Seymour Brown, chairman of the general council of the synod, is also chairman of the program committee.

A new community and educational building is being opened by the Jackson Boulevard Christian church, 2413-[illegible] Jackson boulevard, near Western avenue, this week. These are the special features being observed: Today, fellowship, at 10:45 a. m., 3 p. m., and [illegible] p. m.; Monday, community night; Tuesday, pageant; Wednesday, prayer service; Thursday at 6:30 p. m., fellowship banquet; Friday, concert.

The sixty-eighth anniversary exercises of the Chicago Theological seminary will be held at the seminary, 5757 University avenue and 1164 East 58th street, today, tomorrow, and Tuesday, June 6-8. The opening today, at 5 p. m., will be the baccalaureate service, at which the Congregational Training School for Women and the Chicago Theological seminary will unite on the seminary lawn. The Rev. Gerald Birney Smith will preach the sermon.

Tomorrow at 8 a. m. President and Mrs. Davis, following the custom of many years, will entertain the graduating class and the faculty at an "old-fashioned New England breakfast" at their home, 5725 Blackstone avenue. Tuesday simultaneous sessions will occur from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. of the annual meetings of the board of directors in the president's office, 5757 University avenue, John R. Montgomery presiding, and the Alumni institute in the common room, 1164 East 58th street, the Rev. Walter H. Moore presiding. The address to the alumni will be made by the Rev. Fred Eastman on "The Seminary's New Program in Religious Literature and Drama," at 3 p. m.

The Rev. Von Ogden Vogt will have charge of the vesper service in the Thorndike Hilton chapel at 5 o'clock, which will be followed by the alumni banquet at 6 o'clock at the Hyde Park Congregational church, 56th street and Dorchester avenue, the new president of the Alumni association presiding.

The board of trustees of the Berwyn Methodist Episcopal church will dedicate their new church house this morning at 10:30 and Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes will preach the dedicatory sermon. The exercises in connection with this event began on June 4 with a church dinner and an inspection of the building in charge of the Men's league and the Woman's league. This afternoon the homecoming of former pastors and members will be the feature, and the meeting will be addressed by the Rev. H. G. Smith, D. D. "Columbia's Concern for Her Country," a religious education pageant, will be given at 8 p. m. The building has cost [illegible].

St. Edmund's Episcopal church, 5831 Indiana avenue, the Rev. Benjamin Horton, rector, will hold a Memorial day service this evening at 8.

BISHOP FREDERICK B. FISHER, DD., LL.D.

Bishop Fisher, whose official residence is Calcutta, India, and who is well known in America as a lecturer and author, will preach the baccalaureate sermon of Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston, today at 11 o'clock, in the First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston.

At 4 o'clock, Mrs. Fisher, who was a missionary in China before going to India, will speak in the same church.

Tomorrow morning Bishop Fisher will address the members and friends of the Chicago Methodist Ministers' meeting in the Charles Macaulay Stuart chapel and on Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. he will deliver the address before the Garrett graduating class.

Bishop Fisher, when elected to the Episcopacy, was the youngest minister to be so elected in the Methodist Episcopal church. He is the author of several books, among them "India's Silent Revolution." He is a fellow of the Royal Geographical society. He studied in Asbury college, Boston and Harvard universities, and in Boston university school of theology.

The silver sacerdotal jubilee of Msgr. D. J. Dunne, pastor of Holy Cross church at 65th street and Maryland avenue, will be celebrated with a solemn high mass at the church at 11 o'clock this morning, at which the jubilarian will be the celebrant. The Rt. Rev. Edward F. Hoban, D. D., auxiliary bishop of Chicago, will be among the church dignitaries present.

Tomorrow evening Msgr. Dunne will be tendered a reception by his parishioners at the parish house, 66th street and Maryland avenue, and will be presented with a testimonial of their regard.

Englewood I. O. O. F. lodge No. 853, Brighton Park lodge, and Blue Bell Rebekah lodge will attend the Julia Gay Memorial Methodist Episcopal church, West Garfield boulevard and South Paulina street, this morning at 11. The pastor, the Rev. Charles J. Dickey, will preach on "Seeing the Unseen."

Grace Evangelical Missouri Synod Lutheran church, Parker and Laramie avenues, the Rev. A. Jarus, pastor, will lay the corner stone for a new church today at 3, and St. Philip's Colored church, of the same synod, the Rev. Marmaduke Carter, pastor, will lay the corner stone for a new church at 64th street and St. Lawrence avenue at 3:30 o'clock.

The Chicago Training School for City, Home, and Foreign Missions, Indiana avenue and 50th street, Dr. L. F. W. Lesemann, president, which began its commencement program May 28, will hold the trustees' and training school dinner next Friday evening at 6:30. The baccalaureate sermon will be preached next Sunday at 4 p. m. by Dr. John L. Hillman, president of Simpson college, and the graduating exercises will be held June 17 at 8:15, with an address by Dr. Frank S. Hickman, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Minneapolis.

Dr. Norman Hutton, St. Chrysostom's, and Dr. J. H. Hopkins, Church of the Redeemer, have both been granted vacations of six months. The Rev. Frederic S. Fleming, Atonement; the Rev. W. A. Sims, St. Mark's, and the Rev. W. B. Stoskopf, Ascension church, will spend their vacations in Europe. The Rev. Alfred Newbery is expected to arrive this week as assistant rector of the Church of the Redeemer.

EXCURSION AND TRAVEL.

THIS IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY TO TAKE A 3,000 mile trip and visit the Rio Grande valley at the extreme southern tip of the Lone Star state, at very little expense.

Rich silt soil, irrigation, cheap farm labor and 12 months' growing season, good transportation has made this new country a veritable Garden of Eden.

Semi-arid climate, low altitude, warm in winter and cool in summer, make it very beneficial to catarrh, asthma and rheumatism.

Round trip fare $95 for yourself and wife, incl. berth, meals, auto trips and excursion into old Mexico. For further information call Lake View 1927, or write E. Scholz, 3327 N. Oakley-av.

CITY SALES MANAGER.

Probably the most remarkable opportunity ever available for a broad gauge executive of wide sales and organization experience now exists in Chicago by reason of a change of policy of one of the largest operators in its field.

In this identical post the present General Sales Manager of the company created the gross income of approximately $2,000 per week last year, which meant net earnings of $800. Since that time, the most intensive kind of consumer advertising has been put behind the local situation and a repetition of the 1925 performance is dependent only on the executive capacity to organize and maintain a force of several hundred men. The man selected will have that qualification demonstrated by record; he will be in a position to finance his own operation to an extent of perhaps several thousand dollars, dependent in amount upon the rapidity with which he can function; and net earnings of anything less than $25,000 per year to him will represent a performance not up to the company's records and demands.

For consideration a full outline of experience, background and training must be incorporated in the applicant's first letter, which will be treated in entire and complete confidence. Address S K 512, Tribune.

SALES MANAGER.

One of the most important manufacturers in its industry has two big scale opportunities for sales executives of real character, vision and energy in the Minneapolis and Kansas City territories. The two men selected for these important posts will open the company's local offices, assume complete charge of operations throughout the entire surrounding territory, and carry through the recruiting, training and handling of a permanent sales unit of a minimum of sixty men. No capital investment is required, but the applicant must have at least $1,000 to finance himself over a preliminary organization period. Compensation will be no less than $10,000 yearly to each of the men appointed; but ten hours daily of the utmost intensity of effort plus a willingness to subordinate personal ideas to the detailed execution of the company's campaign is involved. Applications, which will be treated confidentially, must cover experience in full to receive consideration. Address T. D. HASKETT, vice president, 208 West Monroe-st., Chicago, Ill.

TRAVELING EXECUTIVE.

An old reliable firm maintaining a national organization with branches in all the larger cities, selling an established household necessity, desires the services of two more high grade executives to establish a contact between the home office and its branches.

The duties of these men will be to travel from one branch to another, doing whatever is necessary to increase sales and stimulate business.

The work will require men of exceptionally keen business judgment, with long experience in building and running large direct selling organizations.

Satisfactory remunerative arrangements will be made with the right men.

Read this ad over carefully and if you honestly believe you can qualify, write a letter to us, stating fully your past experience in direct selling, age, and other qualifications, to Y 302, Tribune.

A REAL OPPORTUNITY.

The Kemper-Thomas Company, one of the oldest and largest manufacturers of exclusive copyrighted Art Calendars and Advertising Novelties, has open territory in northwestern Illinois. A SELLING JOB THAT'S DIFFERENT.

One that makes no promise for big future possibilities, but one that assures you an immediate earning capacity right off the jump.

We make this statement without fear of contradiction.

When we can show you Proof of results where a hundred other salesmen have done it every day, and are doing it now, surely, Mr. Salesman, we have a pretty keen selling proposition for the right man who can qualify.

Let us remind you that this is a permanent connection in a business that's different—permanent because orders are renewed year after year; different, because we have finally solved the Specialty Salesman's problems.

Therefore, if you are a Specialty Salesman with a good Sales Record, this "different selling job" is open for you.

Our Mr. Bache will interview you by 'phone appointment.

GET INTO THE CLASS OF BIG MONEY MAKING SALESMEN!

Our selling campaign is going full blast. Our sales organization is stronger than ever. Krenn & Dato salesmen make big money because of the reputation and accomplishments of the firm and the high grade, well advertised property they have to sell.

We have the most remarkable subdivision developments on the market today. The variety of locations and prices is such that a sale is never lost for a Krenn & Dato salesman. We have properties to suit the needs and pocketbook of every prospective purchaser. You can sell all of the following:

DEVONSHIRE MANOR.
Formerly the Devonshire Golf Club, located at the crossing of two full section lines, one block from the Dempster-st. elevated terminal.

HIGHLAND PARK HIGHLANDS.
In Chicago's most exclusive suburb; located close to Lake Michigan.

NORTH EDGEWATER.
The only North Side property within the city limits left for sale.

CALUMET HIGHLANDS.
High class close in South Side property.

If you are an active salesman you can make this season the greatest in your career. Drifters or failures from other organizations not wanted; only men and women willing to sell high grade property according to our business standards.

If inexperienced, we teach you how to sell in our free school of Realty Salesmanship. All you need is ambition and willingness to work. See me in person:

HOUSE TO HOUSE.

Our summer campaign starts this week backed by an extensive newspaper campaign and thousands upon thousands of special circulars and personal letters. I am in need immediately of three clean cut, capable men with past house to house experience.

This is not debit insurance, sewing machines or household appliances, but positively a commodity that no one person without exception in the entire United States can get along without. They must have it.

This work is permanent to the three men I select. My men at this time are earning from $100 to $250 a week. You can accomplish more with this line in 1926 as a house to house salesman than with any proposition offered to go-getting salesmen today. Many of my men will make more money this year than they have made in the past three years combined.

You must be over 25 years old; you must live north or northwest. Call in person after 10 a. m. until 6 p. m., Monday.

MEN WANTED.
Married or Single, Without Experience; Must Be Over 21.

You have often been tempted to answer a real estate ad because some one told you that there's a lot of money to be made in that business. You have hesitated because you felt that you had no experience. You can do what other men are doing; you know you can. All we are attempting to do in this ad is to interest you in us sufficiently to cause you to investigate.

Now, I will tell you what I'll do when you come in. I won't promise you that you'll make a fortune every week, but I do promise if you follow my instructions that you will work yourself into the best position you ever had in your life.

Remember I am going to talk with you personally and show you what other men like yourself, who came to us without experience, are making.

LADIES,
READ THIS LETTER.

Dear Miss Farrell:

Sixteen months ago I was working as a cashier in a restaurant on La Salle street. I read your advertisement for ladies to do special work. I came in for a confidential interview, not because I expected to change my position, but because I knew you were a character analyst and I wanted you to tell me about myself.

You impressed me greatly and convinced me that I could handle your special work and I quit the fairly good and permanent position I had and took up the special work you offered me.

I was a slow starter, but you helped me and under your efficient suggestions I have made good, and I am sure you will be pleased to know that my actual earnings have averaged better than $510 per month for each and every month I have been with your concern. I want to thank you most sincerely for the great interest you took in making me successful.

MYRTLE DAVIS.

Lila Farrell is a character analyst of national reputation. We need several ladies now for special work and have engaged Miss Farrell to look over all applicants and analyze their good and bad points. This service will be rendered to all applicants without charge. Come in Monday after 10 a. m. and let Miss Farrell definitely tell you about yourself. Confidential interviews in Miss Farrell's own office.

Live in Streeterville

The Hughes Brewsters Lived the Fashionable Life of Social Leaders

The Hughes Brewsters, in the magnificent nineties, lived north of the river, away from the constant hubbub of business. Leaders in the "Four Hundred," they entertained the "beau monde" at dignified dinners, gay garden parties, and stately balls.

Streeterville today is the home of those discriminating people who reign in social activities; its immediate environment makes this inevitable.

180 East Delaware

Adds convenience of living to this convenience of location.

LOCATION—

In the heart of a most elite residential section, only one-half block east of Chicago's principal thoroughfare, 180 E. Delaware is within walking distance of the great metropolitan shopping business, and theater centers, select private schools, and renowned churches. In its immediate neighborhood are the Drake and Lake Shore Drive hotels, as well as the homes of Chicago's social leaders. The Casino club is directly across the street.

BUILDING—

Its exclusive character, intrinsic beauty of design and execution, and convenience are the outstanding attributes of this new group of luxuriously conceived apartment homes. The building incorporates the ultimate in tested and approved appointments of unquestioned good taste. On the ground floor will be an exquisitely furnished lounge, an Old English tea room with excellent cuisine, and a commissary.

APARTMENTS—

They will be unfurnished—three, four, and five rooms, convertible, if desired, into six and eight. The apartments are arranged to give infinite comfort and efficiency. The walls will be canvased and paneled. Marble mantels and period design lighting fixtures will grace the living rooms. Crystal lighting fixtures, maids' call in the dining rooms. Chambers will have full length mirrors and large closets. In the bathrooms—colored tile wainscoting, showers, and shampoo sprays, Venetian mirrored medicine cabinet, linen closets. The kitchens will be equipped with mechanical refrigeration, all white cooking ranges, and enameled steel cabinets.

SERVICE—

Maid service will be optional. High speed elevators of micro precision, operated by efficient attendants, will whisk you in a few seconds to your floor. A vacuum heating system will regulate precisely the temperature and humidity throughout your apartment. Rental will include mechanical refrigeration, electric light, gas, laundries, and driers.

Prospective tenants, of course, are being chosen with discrimination.

180 East Delaware

offers the essentials of hotel service at a cost far lower than is possible in hotels. 3, 4 and 5 room apartments, convertible, if desired, into 6 or 8 rooms: $165 a month upwards.

The multiple advantages of location and facility afforded by these apartments have already given rise to a spirited demand for choice reservations. We counsel prompt action.

Personal representatives of the management are on the premises from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. to show you the features and a model apartment decorated and furnished by the French Shops, Incorporated, Chicago, under the personal supervision of Mr. Pierre J. Morel.

THE

AQUITANIA

On the Lake Shore,
AT 5000 NORTH.

ENVIABLE LOCATION.

The location of the Aquitania is one of the unusual features about this splendid building that makes it a really fine place to live. It is situated on the very shore of Lake Michigan where it has the advantage of the cool and refreshing breezes which are constantly blowing off the lake. And because of its clean and refined atmosphere and the freedom from noise and congestion a home in the Aquitania will contribute largely towards your physical comfort and mental contentment.

DISTINCTIVE.

It can be truthfully said that this single word expresses a woman's preference for the Aquitania Apartments; a preference so firmly established that this beautiful fifteen story building is today rightfully regarded as one of the truly fine apartment residences in Chicago. And the apartments are distinctive, not merely because they have one or two outstanding features, but because they have been planned and arranged to give immeasurable pleasure, comfort, and happiness to those refined people who make them their permanent homes.

EQUIPMENT.

The high standard of the mechanical equipment is noteworthy in itself. High speed electric passenger elevators; automatic service elevators; modulating vapor heating system; garbage chutes to incinerator; modern laundry equipment; electric fireplaces; electric refrigeration; water filtering system, are part of the equipment provided.

3, 4, 5, AND 6 ROOMS, WITH 1 AND 2 BATHS, UNFURNISHED.

Remember, the apartment of your choice reflects your good judgment and taste.

87TH TRANSFER CORNER.

The best bank account; section line corners always improve. Two section lines and one diagonal highway bring thousands of people past this point. Yet it is priced lower than impassable intersections on this same street. We can't hold it or you'd never buy it at present low price; $20,000 needed. South Shore 3324.

HERE'S YOUR CHANCE.

N. W. corner 84th and Maryland, 300 ft. on Maryland. $125 per ft.; $17,500 cash balance 3 years. If you pass this up you're blind.

South Park-av. alley corner, 9200 block; 90 ft. on South Park; $60 ft.; $3,000 cash only balance 2 years. Phone MR. FREE Dorchester 7455.

Kenilworth.

KENILWORTH'S NEWEST ADDITION.

On Saturday, June 26 next, we will offer for sale to approved purchasers 14 beautiful home sites in our new addition to KENILWORTH BEACH, which range in size from 75 feet frontage to nearly an acre in area. A view of Lake Michigan can be had from each and every lot. All improvements have been installed, including sewer and water mains with house connections brought to the lot line, reinforced concrete pavement, concrete sidewalks, Parkway trees—ALL IN AND PAID FOR. The restrictions are the same as used in our original "KENILWORTH BEACH" and Skokie Heights developments, which will forever insure a truly high class residential community. There are only fourteen of these lots in this new addition and it may be the last opportunity to secure a fine building site in Kenilworth within view of the lake at any such price as that at which this property will be offered. Certainly no safer investment can be made than such property as this in KENILWORTH BY THE LAKE, which is forever protected by the most rigid restrictions in each deed, besides the added protection of the village zoning ordinance.

Our local office at 122 Sheridan-rd., Kenilworth, adjoins this new addition. Our representative will be glad to show you over the property and give information in regard thereto.

Office open daily and Sundays.

CHIWAUKEE
"On the Lake"

The ideal place to build your home, where you will have a Golf Course at your door and the use of the Finest Bathing Beach to be found on Lake Michigan

LOTS 200 FEET DEEP are to be had for but
$20.00 PER FOOT

Lots in CHIWAUKEE at this price represent the lowest priced frontage known among the available real estate so ideally located and convenient to Chicago and lying between Sheridan-rd. and the lake.

Many Chicagoans already have made reservations here and are profiting by so doing. Let us send your our literature, so that you may see for yourself that it would be folly to pass up this remarkable opportunity.

This is a full village development—everything to make it an ideal homesite. Property values here are experiencing the most rapid increase in the history of any real estate near Chicago.

CHIWAUKEE can be reached in 55 minutes by train or 1½ hours' delightful drive up Sheridan-rd. to the entrance of the property.

SECOND MORTGAGES.
If you will "shop" around, you will find about "57 varieties" of rates, conditions and practices in the making of second mortgage loans. This bank knows the home owners' problem—knows the goodness of the home owner—and knows of no reason why the home owner should have to pay excessive charges nor be burdened with unfavorable terms.
We make loans for periods up to 3 years—at 6% interest with a commission 25% to 40% below the rates commonly quoted in the community. Monthly payments may be as low as 2% of the amount borrowed and prompt appraisals and closing of loans may be depended upon.

Every car sold by this organization is sold on the basis of

TRUTH PLUS QUALITY

Cars are actually rebuilt in our own modern plant. They are refinished in our own lacquer paint shops. In fact, they are completely renewed and backed by our 30 day guarantee and 5 DAY FREE TRIAL PLAN.

We have 34 genuine Kullberger values, and they will be sold at prices which challenge competition. The prices are lower than you would expect to pay for inferior cars offered by dealers without reputation or high financial standing.

ONE OUT OF 489

Only one purchaser out of 489 who bought used cars from us during the past month made any complaint. That man was given complete satisfaction within 15 minutes after he told his story.

It is not surprising that our record is so clean, for we positively refuse to sell used cars on any other basis than that set forth in the national Studebaker Used Car Pledge.

Our present stock consists of 187 choice cars, each one marked for quick clearance and each one protected by the Pledge.

1925 HUDSON COACH which looks brand new; used very little; not a worn place in the upholstery; no dents in fenders or body; new extra balloon tires, balloon bumpers, motometer, etc.; only $300 down.

1925 RICKENBACKER SEDAN which will pass for a new car; original finish; upholstery and general coach work look brand new; 4 wheel brakes, natural wood wheels, trunk, new extra tire; only $340 down.

LATE ESSEX COACH. Original finish perfect; interior immaculate; good tires and full equipment; only $155 down.

1925 JEWETT BROUGHAM, absolutely like new with its original finish; renickeled radiator and lamps; engine corrected and guaranteed; fully equipped; only $300 down.

CURRENT MODEL MOON 4 DOOR SEDAN; driven only 4,000 miles; looks new and will give new car service; one of the biggest bargains in Chicago; only $340 down.

STUDEBAKER SPECIAL 6 SEDAN; 4 doors, 5 pass.; cost $2,700 about 18 months ago; its finish is perfect; guaranteed mechanically; not a dent or scratch on the body or fenders; not a worn place in the upholstery, showing that the car has been given exceptionally good care. Equipped with 2 bumpers, windshield wiper, rear vision mirror, extra tire and motometer; today, $845.

STUDEBAKER LIGHT 6 SEDAN, like new; only $685; cost over $1,700 not so many months ago; it is today better looking and better mechanically than many new cars selling at over $1,000. The upholstery and general coach work look brand new; equipped with bumpers front and rear; extra tire, motometer, etc.

STUDEBAKER BIG 6 CLUB COUPE, late 1924 model, 4 pass.; owned by a prominent sportsman in Lake Forest; used very little; was chauffeur driven and maintained. Without a doubt one of the cleanest and most beautiful in our entire stock of 200; equipped with a trunk, extra tire, bumpers, etc.; cost new over $2,500; specially priced today at $745.

STUDEBAKER BIG 6 TOURING, 1924 model; relacquered; overhauled and guaranteed under Studebaker's famous Used Car Pledge. This Big Six will pass for a new car and is one of the biggest bargains in Chicago at $685.

STUDEBAKER LIGHT 6 COUPE, looks new; only $385; popular 3 pass. in excellent condition throughout; owned by an elderly man who gave it the best of care; fully equipped.

HUDSON COACH, 5 PASS. This is a late model that we can truthfully say has not had the mileage that cars of this age generally have. Cars of this type usually come in to us with twice the mileage. The original finish is well preserved, balloon tires excellent, and equipment includes 2 road lights, spare tire, automatic windshield cleaner, mirror, motometer. Guaranteed mechanically. $700.

PAIGE 6-75, 4 DOOR BROUGHAM. A body style that is quite the last word in appearance and performance and difficult to describe in a newspaper ad in a way that will do it justice. Rear quarter with oval windows and carriage bows. It is refinished in Sagebrush Green Duco, with lamps nickeled. Has disc wheels, balloon tires, bumpers front and rear, trunk, other equipment. Try to match its value and mechanical excellence with any car you have been considering. Rebuilt and guaranteed. $1,350.

FRANKLIN SERIES 9-B SEDAN. In mechanical condition that stamps it as considerably above the average and guaranteed by us. This is the model with high hood and fitted with special Stromberg carburetor, demountable rims, 2 bumpers, stoplight, 5 excellent tires, etc. Upholstery A1; original finish good. A remarkable value for $575.

JEWETT BROUGHAM, 1924. A light, economical 5 passenger closed car with trunk at rear in the original baked enamel finish which is just like new. Velour upholstery immaculate. Tires excellent, spare squegee, mirror, bumpers, step plates, etc. Rebuilt and guaranteed. Don't overlook the chance of buying this beautiful, easy riding closed car at the bargain price of $750.

STUTZ MODEL "K" SPORT 4 PASS. This is the famous model with the 16-valve motor, noted for speed and stamina as well as economy. It is in the original finish, with Spanish leather upholstery, and throughout evidences the finest care. Has Hartford shock absorbers, 5 wire wheels, and excellent tires, trunk carrier, body bars, fender lights, spotlight, mirror, etc. Guaranteed mechanically. Best Stutz buy in city. $575.

PAIGE 6-75, 7 PASS. SEDAN. You have undoubtedly noticed cars of this type on the street. It is the De Luxe Paige and without a doubt the smartest fashioned car in its class. We have refinished the car in Brown Duco, radiator and lamps renickeled and the interior is as good as the day car left the factory. Has 6 tires, 1 spare at each side, all excellent and a full line of equipment. Rebuilt and guaranteed. Offering luxurious comfort, driving qualities, and performance not duplicated in cars costing three times as much. $1,375.

1925 CHEVROLET COUPE. This car's owner believed in smart appearance together with comfort, such as Duco finish, balloon tires, disc wheels, bumpers, large wheel and lock, automatic windshield cleaner, mirror, etc. 100% condition throughout. In fact, so good would pass for new anywhere. Guaranteed. $475.

JEWETT DE LUXE TOURING CAR, 1923. If you could see and drive and ride in this car we feel sure you would agree with us that it would make a very attractive investment, taking into consideration appearance, performance and price. Smartly repainted in Deep Blue and fitted with trunk at rear, disc wheels, bumpers, motometer and lock, visor, stoplight, automatic windshield cleaner, running board lights, etc. Rebuilt and guaranteed. $500.

PAIGE 6-75, 4 PASS., SPORT. The thoroughbred of sport car models and the kind of a car any man or woman will want to possess upon seeing. Long, low lines; newly painted Desert Tan, with red wheels. Coach work 100%. Has trunk carrier, bumpers, automatic windshield cleaner, mirror, etc. Rebuilt and guaranteed. A lasting investment in beauty, performance, and reliable transportation. $1,050.

PACKARD

TWIN 6 TOWN CAR.

This is one of the very latest TWIN 6 MODELS, and was owned by a prominent business man of this city, who has just recently turned it in on a new ROLLS-ROYCE. It has been carefully driven over boulevards only, and is like new both in appearance and mechanical condition. The interior and all other details show very little signs of use, and it has Westinghouse shock absorbers, 2 spare tires, and complete equipment. Here is a rare opportunity to secure one of these popular cars at the exceptionally low price of $500. Liberal terms can be arranged. Ask for Mr. HENNING, Sales Manager.

The Speediest Method of Selling—

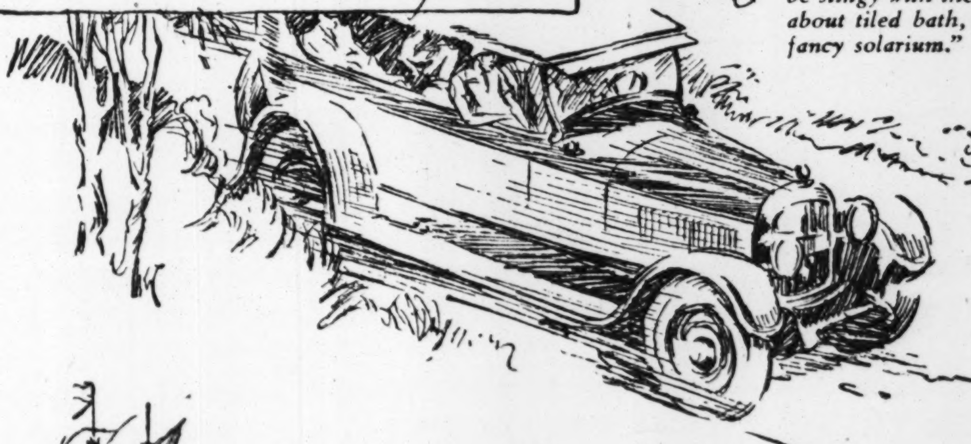
USE the best means at your command to accomplish your desires! No man, wanting to go to St. Louis or to New York would start to walk, or even to go horseback. Yet this was once an accredited means of transportation. No man would send a friendly greeting by personal messenger, over some great distance. Yet this was once the accepted way!

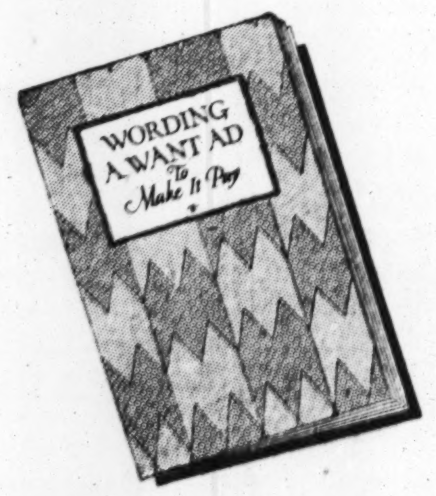
Today a man wanting to travel to another city climbs aboard a fast and comfortable train. Desiring to communicate with a friend at some distance he sends a letter, a wire or a long distance phone message. Time changes most of our methods of doing things, and intelligent people keep abreast of the time.

Yet there are people who hesitate to take advantage of the latest and most efficient sales methods. They depend on word-of-mouth intelligence to sell their goods, to bring them prospects, or to find them commodities and services. Avail yourself of the most modern means to sales—a Want Ad in The Sunday Tribune goes into more than a million homes and repeats your message verbatim to buyers in every nook and cranny of a great newspaper's circulation. "Superior 0100—Adtaker."

"If I were a man with a house for sale," said a man we know who just sold one, "The first thing I would do would be to run a fair-sized Want Ad in The Tribune. And don't be stingy with the details. Tell the prospect about tiled bath, the trick fireplace and the fancy solarium."

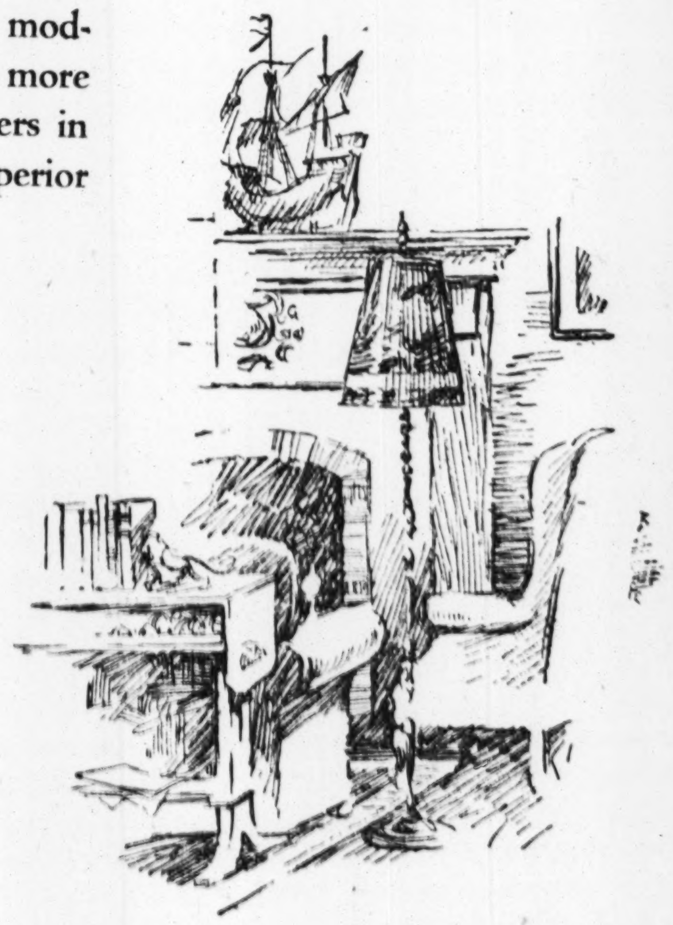


Make, model, and mileage; motor, tires, paint and price—tell your Want Ad readers all these things about the car you have for sale, and your Want Ad in The Tribune will draw prospects aplenty. The Tribune is the greatest single agency for the sale of used cars.

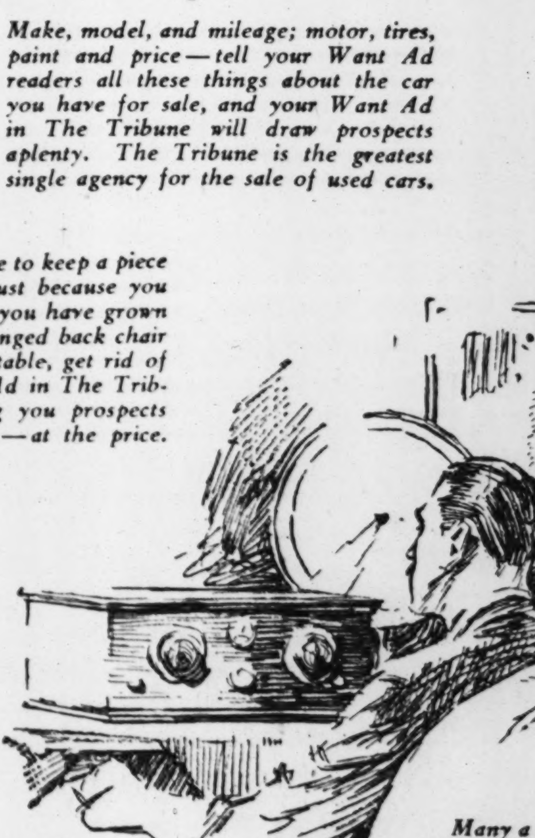


WORDING A WANT AD To Make It Pay

Preferred results in Want Advertising come from a completely worded Want Ad. If you are not just sure how this is done, send for The Tribune's booklet, "Wording a Want Ad to Make It Pay." It is free.



You don't have to keep a piece of furniture just because you bought it. If you have grown tired of the winged back chair or the Adam table, get rid of it. A Want Ad in The Tribune will bring you prospects glad to get it—at the price.



Many a deep-dyed radio fan would like to change his set every other week—just for the novelty of the thing. There is a fascination about "getting something better." And why not? For you can easily sell the old one. Where? You guessed it. (Tribune Want Ad.)

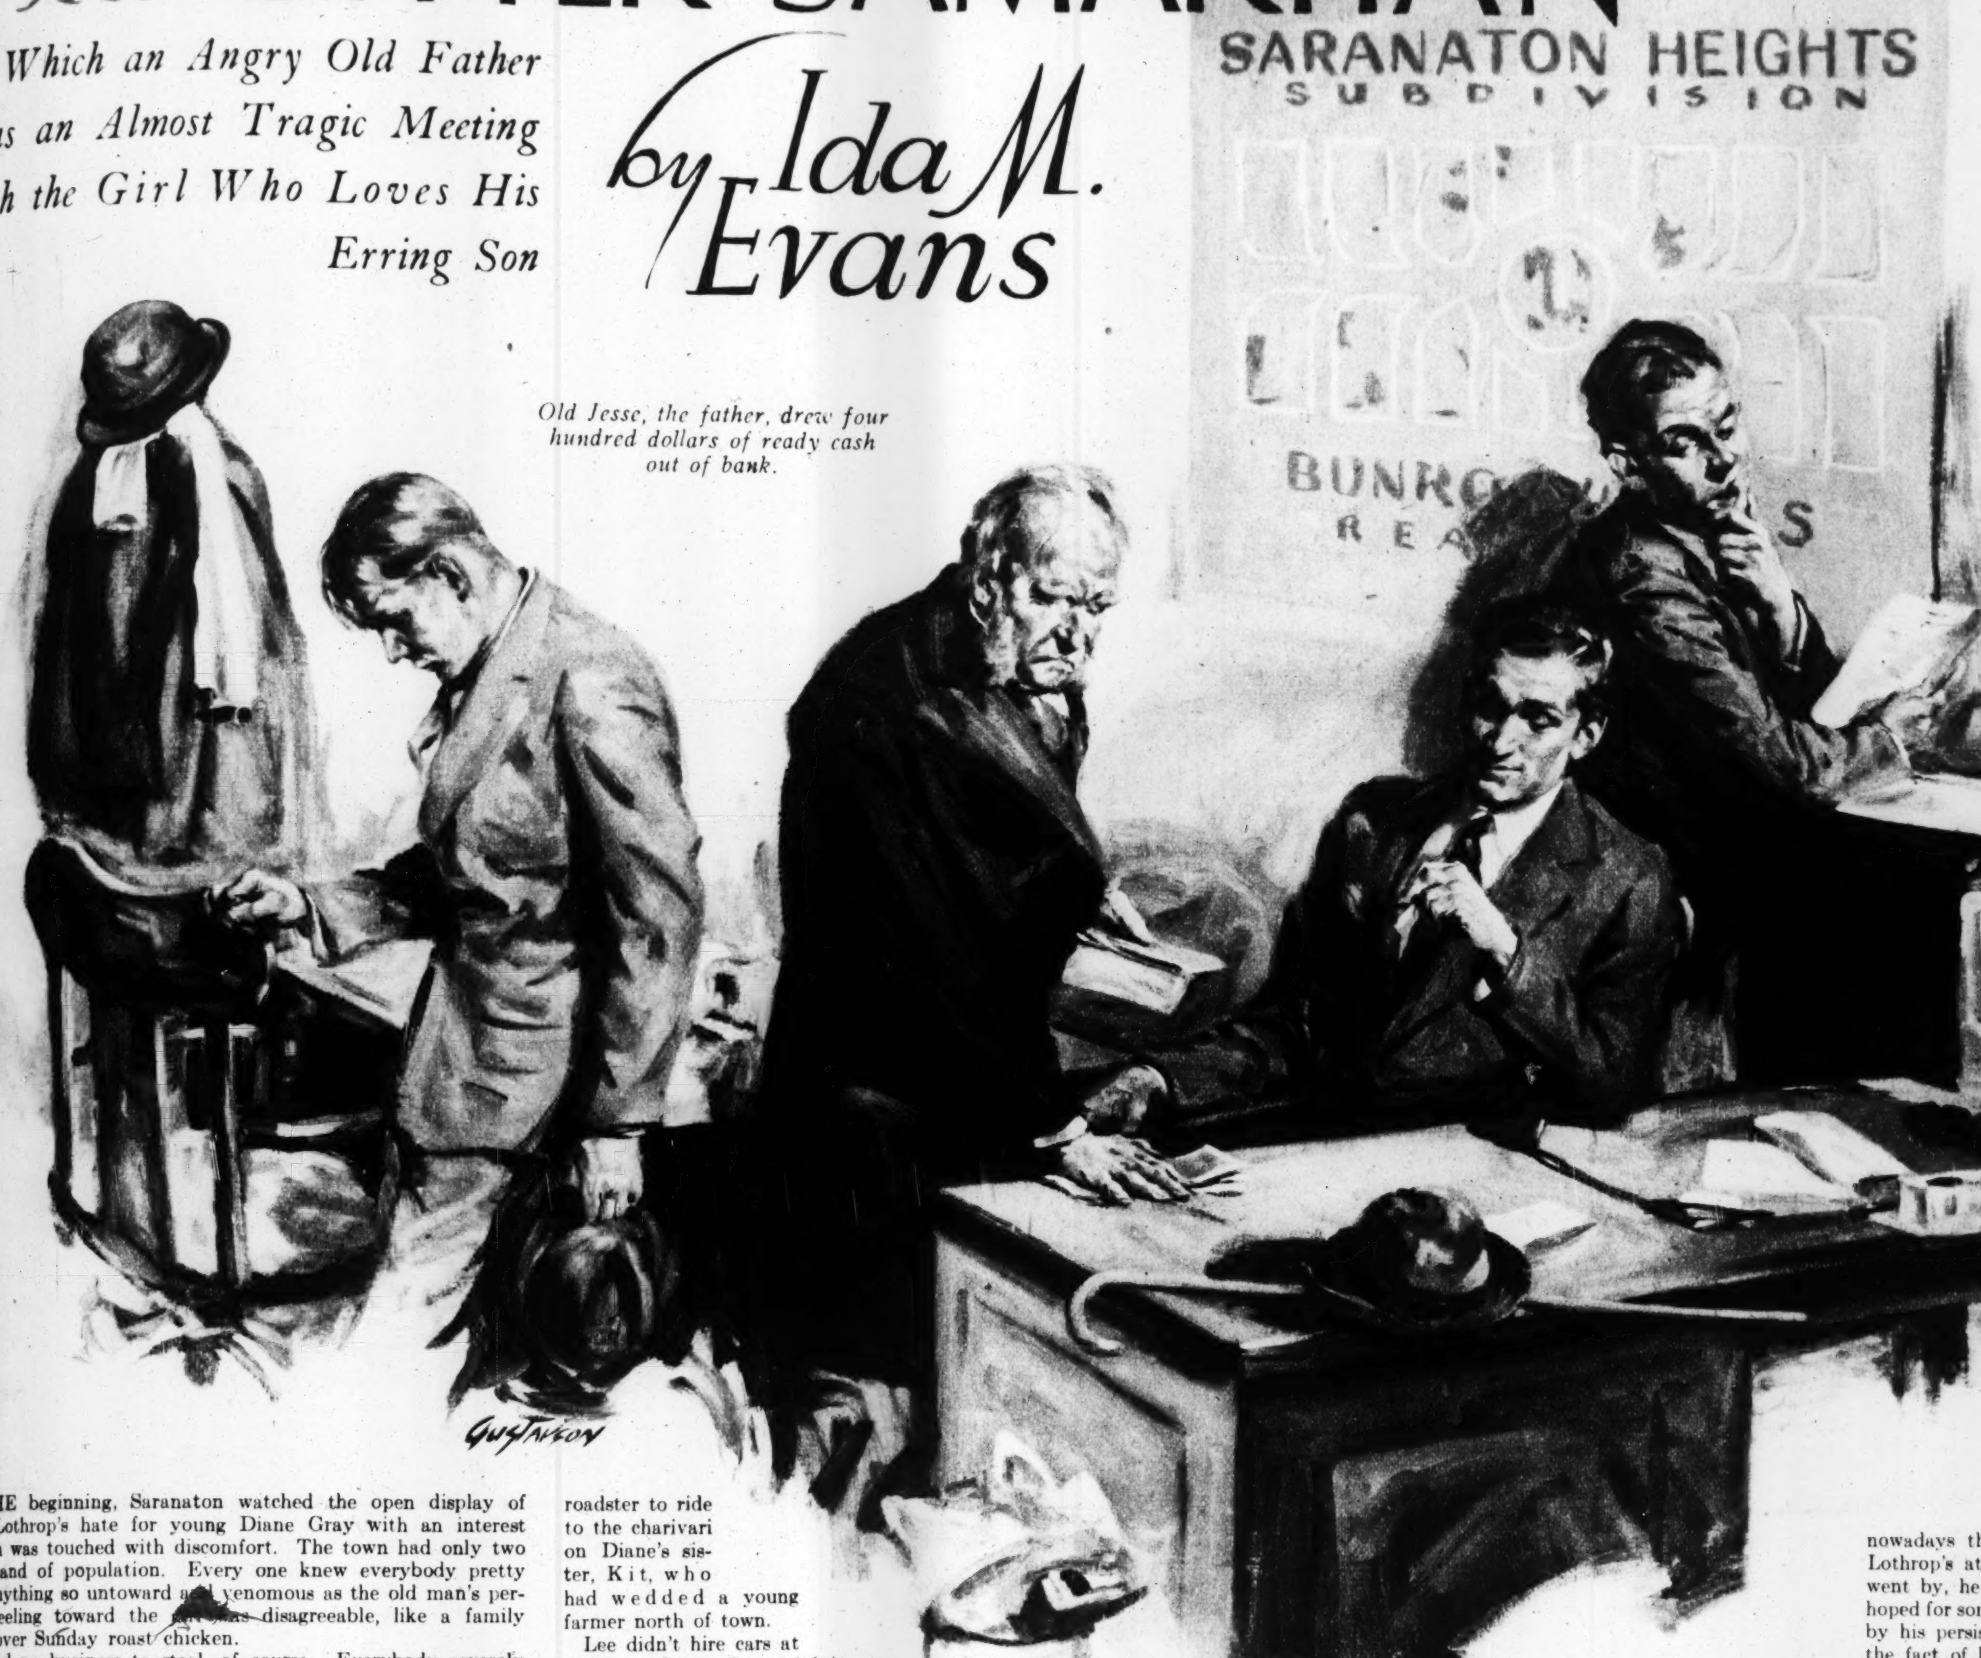
The BITTER SAMARITAN

In Which an Angry Old Father Has an Almost Tragic Meeting with the Girl Who Loves His Erring Son

by Ida M. Evans



Old Jesse, the father, drew four hundred dollars of ready cash out of bank.

IN THE beginning, Saranaton watched the open display of old Lothrop's hate for young Diane Gray with an interest which was touched with discomfort. The town had only two thousand of population. Every one knew everybody pretty well. Anything so untoward and venomous as the old man's persistent feeling toward the [illegible] was disagreeable, like a family quarrel over Sunday roast chicken.

Lee had no business to steal, of course. Everybody severely said that. Everybody began generally to agree, too, that Diane was a gray-eyed little beauty who might have been suspected of being the sort to lead a boy into trouble. Diane leaned to jazz records for the home phonograph, and her chestnut head was among the first in town to be bobbed, shingled, pineappled, and neck-shaved.

On the other hand, Jesse Lothrop, although not a rich man, had enough to save Lee from consequences, and some folks held that he might have let the matter slip under the moss of oblivion, instead of keeping it alive like a pet snake.

But he did not do this. Whenever they met, at church or on the street, he would fasten his blazing, age-faded black eyes on the girl. Openly he tried to pour all his venom and rage into a glare that might scorch her. And when she had passed him, invariably he would pull out his clean white handkerchief and blow his high-bridged old nose with so much fury of sound that it was like the blast of a locomotive.

It got so that whenever the storekeepers on Main street heard that blasty sound they knew the two had passed each other.

"Yahoo-o!" stout-waisted Ed Bailey would call from the door of his butcher shop to 'Saih Veskins next door. "Old man and Diane Gray must both be downtown today."

"Awful good while for a man's hate to hold out," 'Saih would yawn, coming out with a yard of dry goods. "No. Ain't natural, somehow. Any one heard from Lee lately?"

"Heard he was doing pretty good in his Chicago job. Selling typewriters."

"Guess he writes to the old man often enough."

In the beginning, Diane blazed defiance effectively to meet the hate cast toward her. That is, as effectively as a plump bit of immature girlhood with chestnut hair and a natural bent toward giggling could defy a powerful-willed old man whose longish gray-black hair under his worn black felt hat would have, a hundred years earlier, been called demonish.

Jesse Lothrop was of the older school of lawyers, and marked by the seedy, careless insignia. He had worn one knotted green taffeta bow tie for ten years at least. Diane had a taste for taffeta, too. But pink and blue, and nearly knee length.

Lee and Diane had known each other since the days when pink and blue ribbons marked their sex. In their teens they got better acquainted. Diane was a giggling, roystering, up-to-date—ah, and perhaps a little more!—leader of the younger high school crowd. Lee belonged to the group of boys who hired flivvers to take girls riding.

It was laughing, tumbling, shrieking courtship for the most part. Saranaton with pursed lips was just beginning to read magazine articles on the jazzy younger generation, and to hope, albeit uneasily, that it had escaped the fate of other towns and other younger generations. Perhaps its climate, or its Y. M. C. A., would make a difference.

Lee was his father's only child. He had had a fairly happy childhood, living in the old square red brick house out on Second avenue with its two acres of yard. Jesse Lothrop was one of those older school men whose thumbs know the feel of a Blackstone page in the dark, but never attract a lot of money. Still, he made enough. Lee's mother died when he was ten. His father never pretended to miss her very much. She was older than Jesse, one of the plain-featured Penlop girls; and he was a bookish man, not a Darby. Old Mrs. Hanfky, the housekeeper who replaced her in kitchen and linen closet, was fat and good humored and fond of Lee and perhaps as good a mother to him as his own would have proved.

Diane was the youngest of her family. Her father, Tom Gray, first had a harness shop which, as soon as Diane's brother, Joe, reached an age and a mind for gas cans and monkey wrench, became the Gray garage. Diane's two sisters were married to two reputable young men. In fact, one of the bills which Lee took money not his own to pay, included the hire and repair of a roadster to ride to the charivari on Diane's sister, Kit, who had wedded a young farmer north of town.

Lee didn't hire cars at the Gray garage. Diane didn't care for her family to know all her goings! He patronized the Elite gasery next door to Bunroy & Carks, where he worked.

Jesse Lothrop had gone to some pains to get Lee into the new realty firm. Saranaton had licked its lips over that new word, realty. And it had noted with amusement Lee's riot of neckties as soon as he quit school and had a position. A rainbow deluge! Three dozen in less than four months. Lee and his pa had different slants on neckwear, grinned observers.

Well, in the younger crowd Diane was a good dresser, too. She was the favored last-born of her family. A lively, healthy, plump girl. Her mother used to complain enjoyably: "Your dresses may be short, Diane. But I guess you take as much goods as your sisters. I guess no one can say you was ever stinted at the table."

O, yes, in the end old Jesse had to pay a bill at the bakery, too; pretzels and Bismarcks, for picnicking joyrides.

IT was a month after the charivari that the realty firm made a horrifying discovery. White-faced, Lee blurted a confession. There was a worried consultation, and a telephoned summons to old Jesse, the father, who came and heard, tight-lipped, and drew four hundred dollars of ready cash out of bank and borrowed three hundred more from somebody.

Seven hundred. Well, there had been at least four accidents in hired flivvers, with tires and windshield to be replaced. And a twinkling plated-platinum bracelet for Diane at Christmas. It was seventy-five dollars.

In the world's crop of jazz-babies there may have been girls who would have scorned so cheap a bauble. Not Diane. Her plump cheeks had beamed pink beyond their rouge and her lips had ah-ed rapturously and she had kissed Lee heartily and had wigwagged her white plump arm like a Cleopatra at a generous Anthony.

So the pink of pleasure had run up Lee's young oval fair face to his light hair. He flivvered right down town again to Cacy's drugstore and got Diane a five pound box of chocolate cherries as appreciation of her thankful spirit.

Then there had been bills at the roadhouses that circled Saranaton, as most other towns in the world, like dark hawk wings. Roadhouses with their synthetic liquors, cold chicken sandwiches, saxophones, free air and long distance service, do not furnish recreation for young people without hope of payment.

Discovery did not mean the worst catastrophe for the boy. The two uneasy realtors, newcomers in town and anxious not to antagonize old residents, protested hastily and pleadingly that there'd be no prosecution. Good Lord, no! They'd not sleep easy nights with Lee in prison. On the other hand—"But we're not millionaires," sighed Carks, defending himself in advance against any Scrooge charge. "And I counted on paying off a debt——"

Tight-lipped, the father paid. Sulky-lipped, scarlet, squirming, Lee admitted in a mutter that he'd had no sense or he wouldn't have done it. And thereupon Lee put out a tongue at his future at home and left town on the Number Eight which went through Saranaton at 3 a. m. He said no good-bys. Just left in the night.

The next morning the old man began to weld the ball that thereafter dangled at Diane's ankles, so that in time she spiritually hobbled.

Jesse, it proved, was one of the reticent, crabbed parents who privately think and expect much of a son. Perhaps, too, an inhibited paternal vanity worked, like yeast in soured dough.

Forgetfulness is the ordinary rule of mankind. The ocean of happenings is wide; and its deep bed sucks events down inevitably, by law. Saranaton might have forgotten. Diane herself might have forgotten—even Lee. But old Jesse Lothrop chose to cause the ordinary rule to be broken.

At the onset, Diane had her bad time at home. Her mother was a stout woman who baked perfect lemon pies, and was easily upset. Her reaction was dual. To Diane: "I must say, Diane, your father and I don't feel very good over this matter! This talk isn't nice for us to have to take!" Diane, on the fourth day of this threatened to leave home, go to a city. She protested tearfully to the family and everybody else that she thought Lee'd bought the bracelet and other things on time. She put her chestnut head high. She didn't ask him to steal for love of her! No, she didn't! She liked Lee, though. And she always would! She'd write and tell him he was a dumbbell, but sweet!

Even she threatened, when some of old Jesse's words were repeated to her, to go downtown and tell him something! Lee hadn't had so pleasant a raising! And at the first four or five meetings she tossed her head defiantly, in the way the young of both sexes and all species can do when brought up short at the barbed wire fence of fault.

A PASSERBY or two shivered at the first meeting. "Looked like he mout been goin' to slap her sassy, plump face," opined Joe Coggan, the cobbler. "I was skairt."

Soon Diane spoke her mind, not to cool, judging elders but to warmer minded equals of her own age and crowd. She sat at a marble table in Cacy's drug store, back where pink and black screens gave sundae consumers a privacy that was constantly nullified by shrill young voices. "You know, that old sour-face makes me sick! He didn't treat Lee any too good. Did he, Harry? Did he, Dot?" Harry and Dot supported her. "Well, you'd think I was—was"—Diane with energy searched a limited classical education, consisting of eighty pages of Cæsar's Commentaries and half a volume of ancient history, for a high flown comparison that at the same time was happy—"was a Scylla. No, Circe," gulping pineapple swaddled in ice cream. "Anyway, I never kept track of how much Lee spent. And, honestly, I thought his father gave him a good deal to spend."

But steadily, at meetings, the hate came from the old, faded eyes, like a vindictive fire from a well banked grate. An ugly fire. It was exaggerated enmity. It was abnormal. Presently people did not like to see the encounters of the two pairs of eyes: the one old, steady, and malignant; the other beginning to hold forced defiance, even theatrical.

By chance, one night at an entertainment in the opera house, Jesse Lothrop's seat was just behind Diane's. He rose, glared, stalked grimly out of the place. The girl nearest Diane giggled nervously. The boys looked uncomfortable.

Another time he entered Ole Burg's shoe store while Diane was being fitted with satin pumps. She had a too plump calf, but a narrow foot, and argued every three months with Ole because "I can wear a four, Ole, if you'd buy the right styles." Jesse listened a moment, raised a bony forefinger to engage Ole's attention. "Hereafter I buy my footgear across the street." And vindictively, grimly stalked across the way to the poorer stocked shelves of old Isaac Cohen. Ole looked down none too pleased at Diane, who had been in his store a full hour.

Presently Diane's voice became shriller over the marble topped tables at Cacy's. "Boys!" Above her sirupy glass she would pull a mock long face, like a senile deacon's. "Don't run into crime for my sake! Really, I'm not worth it. Old Lothrop will say so."

Or in a car, passing the grimly observant old man, she would warn mockingly: "Be careful, Harry. I'm a vampire, I am. I ruin lives. Did you notice that he still knows I'm on earth? He'd love to send me a wax wreath."

With her pretty, healthy body and all her vivacious force of egotistical youth she created her own impression. The crowd laughed and admired her spunk. That is, at first. There came a time when even Diane's intimates laughed in a somewhat forced fashion. The joke was old.

Somehow every one had heard that Lee had a position in Chicago, and was boarding with relatives and doing well enough.

Whatever he was doing, his father never softened toward Diane. As time went on it must have got on her youthful nerves. Her mouth curled a trifle too unbecomingly when she uttered her mocking warnings. Still, life was not bad for her. She went to parties, danced like an indefatigable young lover of motion, and was a gay member of her crowd.

In time she left school and went into her father's garage as bookkeeper. The garage had expanded into a salesroom with accessories. She was even better looking at eighteen than she had been at sixteen, with her touch of mocking good humor and her clear color.

Oddly enough, she was not engaged. In the two years two or three boys had gone around with her steadily, in the gay, unsteady, joy riding way which meant nothing serious or everything serious, according to the boy and the girl.

But they either married other girls or left town for bigger careers. Perhaps by the time she was nineteen Diane's lip curled in a rather hard way. She put plenty of energy into her work. It was sociable work. She came into contact with many transients, and her natural power of repartée waxed entertaining even to her father and brother.

By this time another crowd of sixteen year olds demanded the center of the drug store and the dance floors, pushing Diane's circle to the background. Growing up is done faster nowadays than formerly. But time made no change in Jesse Lothrop's attitude, his old, hate-filled eyes. Only, as the years went by, he seemed to have taken on a waiting look, as if he hoped for some happening. Well, she had been branded previously by his persistency. Diane Gray—the name was associated with the fact of blemish, even among the most kind hearted. They could not help this. Once in a while some one wondered, with curious tone, if Diane Gray would ever marry. An old school teacher of Diane's pitied her.

THEN Ralph Bennett came to Saranaton. He was from Brooklyn; cousin of the Delmars of the bank. He was a tall, slim, well groomed young man. Captain of his own soul. He was the self-contained kind who can pack a new yellow suitcase and leave cities behind, perfectly ready to try smaller, surer spots. He was as dapper as should be a promising young lawyer.

His first day in town acquainted him with Diane. His roadster needed repairs and lodgings. In white silk jumper and white woolen skirt she was a delightfully unexpected feature in a garage. Nor was she hard to know. She made out his bill and later his receipt with a pleasant smile. Correct to the cent was the bill. By her father and brother Diane was salaried on commission basis. Hence the pretty silk jumpers.

No one was around to tell the meticulous Ralph that five years ago Diane's smile had been a little different. More bubbling. Not—well, sort of clipped, like a well tended hedge.

He asked to call. He had seen at once that she was working in the paternal establishment and was not a light o' toil.

He called. In his roadster, which was a good make and tastily black, he took her riding.

It was a vivid summer. To an unusual and colorful degree the hollyhocks and roses of the small town were profuse, as if the earth's supply of chlorophyll had been added to by some unknown power. Vivid silk sweaters were the rage. Diane, who liked gay hues, had a flaming orange sweater, as eye catching as a mammoth blossom.

She was a scented young person, too, fond of violet talcum, bath, and every morning heliotrope scented soap.

Twice, thrice, in a summer-heavy evening, she rode with him. Four times. And in the end, turning a corner of Second avenue, they were face to face with Jesse Lothrop, humping along on his old cane, his stooped old shoulders a faded blot somehow on the early evening.

He stared, catching the significance of the two in company. The hate in his old eyes had never dimmed, never relaxed one iota of its deadly persistency.

Just before they turned the corner Diane had been thoughtful. She was not thinking of Jesse Lothrop, though.

As he hove into sight, however, the color left her face. She sat rigid, perhaps for the first time at such meeting. But if she hoped that the young man beside her did not mark the malevolence of the old hate-directed eyes she was disappointed.

"I say! Did we pretty near run over him or what?"

With flushed, plump face Diane evaded. "Why—I wasn't looking."

She might have saved her pride, or whatever was her motive. For the following Tuesday evening Ralph Bennett was invited to dine at the old Lothrop house.

Ralph Bennett, the newcomer, not unnaturally cared to make a good impression on the solid old citizenry of the town where he planned to carve his future. In any event, probably he would have been affected by the solitary figure of his host.

As to just what words Jesse Lothrop used to describe Diane's share in his solitariness may not be known. Old Jesse had a trick of pursing his lips sourly, of folding his vein knotted pale hands over each other. This hand folding had nothing to do with Lee or with Diane. It was a gesture affected from young manhood, employed in courtrooms and in office. But to a stranger it might have appeared that the hands undeservedly folded over emptiness. It might have appeared to a new onlooker that life was quite flat, that for their owner the hands folded over nothing, and this was hard.

Jesse had a careful vocabulary. He was widely read and by nature an etymologist. Never fear that he did not use the unforgettable epithet, the telling phrase of description!

Down Second avenue to his boarding house Ralph Bennett at nearly midnight smoked a cigar thoughtfully. But three evenings later he took Diane riding. It was rather late, after nine, when he called. He explained that he'd had some work to do.

There was a moon, a silver radiance on the shrub-dark lawns and streets, but bright enough on faces out where the streets gave way to roads. Ralph looked down at Diane meaningly when the moon was shining down full, and laughed. "By the way" — he ostentatiously moved his watch to the opposite pocket — "I understand property isn't very safe when you're around, sweetie!"

Under the full, bright moon Diane showed no change of expression, except that an indefinable little curl came and went so swiftly from the corner of her mouth that the young man was deceived.

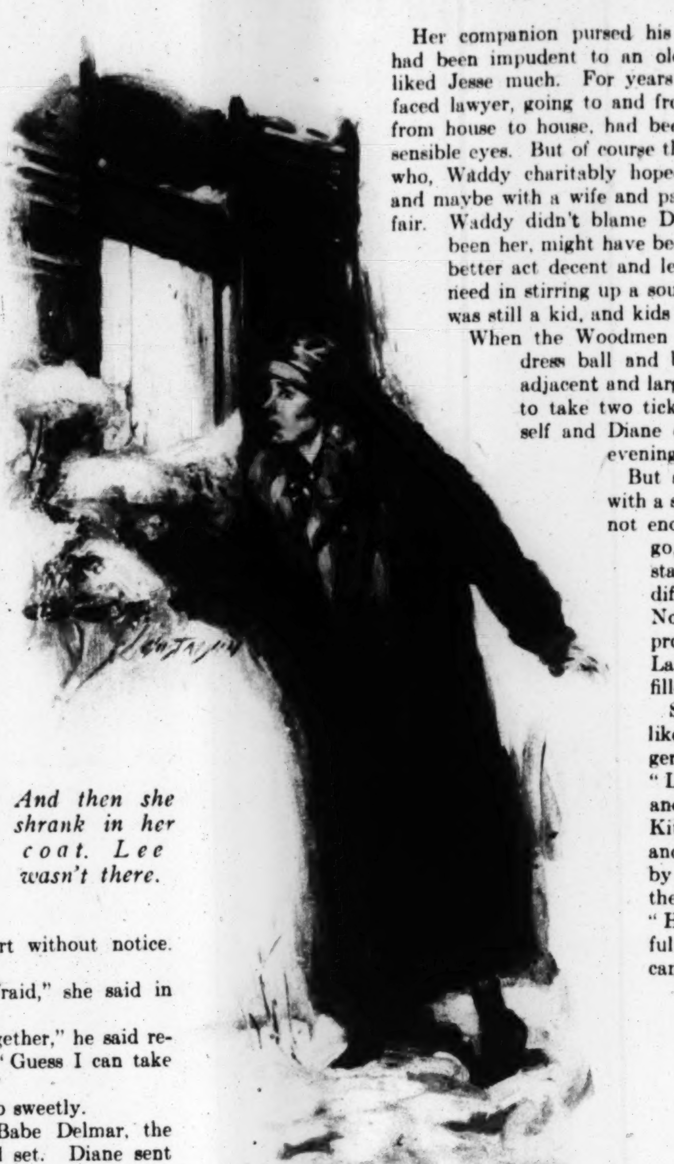
Another kind of young man might have heard Jesse with courtesy, but have kept his own impression of a chestnut haired girl. Still another kind might have been more cruel and yet kinder and cut acquaintance short without notice. Perhaps Diane knew this.

"Better avoid me, if you're afraid," she said in sharp but composed voice.

"You're too nice to avoid—altogether," he said regretfully, with a mocking smile. "Guess I can take care of myself—and my property."

"I'm sure you can," she said, too sweetly.

Six months later he married Babe Delmar, the leader of the younger high school set. Diane sent Babe a set of monogrammed guest towels and composedly gave her good wishes.



And then she shrank in her coat. Lee wasn't there.

Perhaps six months later Diane's sister Kit's seven year old Robbie, a headstrong little tyrant, rummaged in Diane's room in her absence. From under the pale blue sacheted paper of a bottom bureau drawer he snatched a two by four kodak picture of Lee Lothrop taken nine years before. It was a faded, corner broken likeness of a smiling, light haired boy. It was wrapped in a venise edged handkerchief, a real lace keepsake which Diane had had from an old grandmother in Maine.

The little wretch went shrieking downstairs with the picture to his mother and Mrs. Gray, who were looking and whispering when Diane, hat in hand, entered the house. She saw, snatched, and with flaming face vowed she'd leave home if Kit's children were allowed to rummage her belongings at their whim.

Mrs. Gray took Diane's side and Kit took her small son's side, and there was a bad quarrel. Diane's face was sulky and flushed for a day or two, and then her usual flippant good humor came back. She grimaced at Kit and gave Robbie fifty cents and went off gayly to a dance with Waddy Blaine.

WADDY BLAINE! Kit, Diane's comfortably married second sister, sighed soberly when Diane went out the door. Diane's mother said nothing, nothing. "He was stout and silly, even to our crowd," mused Kit. "Diane was the prettiest of you all," sighed the mother.

Few towns of the great, breezy, long settled midwest but have their Waddy Blaines. Along with the muttonleg sleeves of the '90s, the phaetons, and the pompadour hair the type was evolved.

Waddy owned a haberdashery store in Saranaton. He had owned it for twenty-six years. He had been away from it at one time no more than six months, and that was in the Spanish-American war. His ears had known "The Stars and Stripes Forever" when such was brand new music. His stout arms could recall many a Gibson shirtwaist which they had clasped more or less passionately. Long time ago he had driven sportily a high seated buggy and known the zest of picking what girl in town he wished. Some time back he had been the first in town to drive a roadster, a natty red little gas wagon that everybody turned to look at.

O, those were the days! Roadsters weren't as common as grass by the roadside in that time. A fellow was a classy dog who owned one. Waddy was the first, perhaps, in the state to get a speedometer—and then ostentatiously disconnect it. "I'm not proud," with a wise grin. "Not in this town. Just as soon this town didn't know how many miles I do in my little gas wagon. Might be a lot of talk." Smirk!—mock drawing down of lips as if at the town's old fashioned ideas of speed!

Like many heavy men who like gay neckties and nifty footgear, Waddy was a marvelous dancer. Waddy grew old and stouter. The Gibson shirtwaists gave way to other styles. Phaetons became rarities. Waddy still was a good dancer. He lived with his mother, an old, particular lady with money in stocks—not any big fortune, but enough to keep her so that Waddy didn't have to provide for her. Long time back Waddy was considered a well fixed young man, a catch.

Alas! Speedometers waxed common and Waddy's waistline waxed like a new moon given thirty days. Waddy got notice, not because he owned a speedometer but because he was a thermometer. He became a test. When a girl accepted his persistent, mildly witty, stodgy, middle aged attentions she was in a way doomed. She had become passé, even as Waddy from having been a Beau Brummel had become a joke to the very young and pretty girls of Saranaton. Also a new chain store had hurt his business.

It was rumored that toward his fortieth birthday Waddy wished to marry. But he had played too long with the rosy apple of matrimony. When he wished at last to eat, it had withered and decayed in his fat middle-aged fingers.

Seeing him one afternoon put Diane with ostentation into his rather seedy roadster, old Jesse Lothrop stopped on the corner of Main street and Fourth avenue and smiled as if with great comfort. Waddy tucked in Diane's short white sport skirt. Waddy was smiling amiably. Some people said that Waddy had a froglike face, wide enough for a dozen empty smiles. That year Waddy's waistline was fifty-eight.

Waddy saw the old man stop and smile at him and Diane. Said Waddy, fatuously, "Why, Diane, I believe that old codger has got over his feeling against you. He looked pretty friendly at us."

O, thick like hide was Waddy's self-esteem! And lacking, like a coat too small, his power of judgment.

"Really, Waddy?" said Diane with merciless sarcasm. "What a clever old dear you are. Wasn't your mother surprised when you never became President of the country?"

Past Waddy's bent fat nearly bald head she gave the old man glance for glance. When Jesse had gone on, she called him back.

"O, Mr. Lothrop! Ever hear from Lee? Is he dead and buried? Or, like the rest of us, just wanting to be?"

She had a clear, carrying voice. Others besides the startled Waddy, examining his engine, heard her. The old man turned rapidly on his heel and glared at her. He raised his cane as if to strike her. The onlookers gaped.

"Don't speak his name, you—you——" Choking with fury, the father stalked on up the street.

The matter-of-fact Waddy, who had been past forty when Diane and Lee were shrieking young lovers, demanded, "Say, Di, what did you want to do that for? It wasn't quite nice." He got into the car and started it with celerity.

"Waddy, be a rose and blush unseen," yawned the girl. "I did that because I wished."

Her companion pursed his lips disapprovingly. Diane had been impudent to an old codger. Not that Waddy liked Jesse much. For years the old dark-clothed, dour-faced lawyer, going to and fro each day at the same hour from house to house, had been a morbid spectacle to all sensible eyes. But of course the old codger had missed Lee who, Waddy charitably hoped, was doing well elsewhere and maybe with a wife and pack of kids finding life pretty fair. Waddy didn't blame Diane. After all, if it hadn't been her, might have been some other girl. Still, she better act decent and let bygones stay bygones. No need in stirring up a soured old man. Course, Diane was still a kid, and kids are silly.

When the Woodmen of the World gave a fancy dress ball and banquet that autumn in an adjacent and larger town, Waddy was pleased to take two tickets. He congratulated himself and Diane on the prospect of a joyous evening.

But she heard his announcement with a small, mocking smile that had not enough heart to remain. She'd go, of course. Not duller than staying at home. She was indifferent to the gray sky of the November day. A drizzly rain promised to condense to snow. Later, too, this promise was fulfilled.

She silenced her mother, who, like nearly all parents, had exaggerated antipathies to weather. "Listen, mom, I'm not sugar and I won't melt. Anyway, Kit's coming over with the kids, and I'd just as soon be pawed by poor old stout Waddy as by them all evening." She laughed "He still thinks he's a wonderful dancer, and pretends he can't hear his knees crack."

Indifferently she put on a blue dress, not new, which lacked fresh beads on its girdle. Waddy wasn't worth sewing beads for. The dance wasn't worth a new gown. Life wasn't worth a needle.

Diane hooked up her old gown and got into her galoshes and musquash coat and took herself and her vanity bag and her indifferent eyes out to Waddy's car when he drove up. And the evening was much as she had expected. Most of the crowd was young and loud. Part of it she had known all her life and was a familiar ensemble. She wondered how certain of the sixteen-year-olds could shriek so loudly. She was bored by some of her own group. Still, after a drink from Waddy's flask, she felt livelier. Not very. It was not a very strong drink. Like many men as youth wanes, Waddy had grown a trifle close with property.

BY midnight Diane was ready for home and bed. Frankly and coldly and impatiently and boredly she was over-ready. But Waddy was not. Several of the older crowd had got to recalling old times, and—what was rare of late years—Waddy had found himself furnishing entertainment to a group with his stories of the past.

It marked a point in Waddy's nature that he was able to recall without shame old dates that fixed his age unmistakably. "Say, boys, I remember when mutton-leg meant sleeves, not a table d'hote! And when horseless carriages drew a crowd. And when women had waist-lines. And some of 'em"—Waddy howled with laughter and so did his hearers—"nightly rubbed cocoa oil on to coax a big bust! And watches went on chains around a lady's neck. And——" on, on interminably.

Encouraged by hearers, Waddy was exhilarated at finding himself the center of attention, and his words greeted with shouts of mirth. He kept on, and would have kept on till morning, perhaps, had not some of his audience belatedly remembered home and went off to flivvers or better cars.

Diane, who had not been much amused, was cold and haughty when at last Waddy gallantly hearkened to her demands to be taken home. She reflected impatiently to herself that she should have phoned to Saranaton for a cab and taught Waddy a lesson, and let him reminisce in his silly way for hours longer.

So, two souls with two distinctly different humors, they rode homeward. A pleased smile quirked Waddy's wide mouth. He repeated some of his most telling I-remember-when's. Diane was silent and bored. She had a sense of dull injury, which perhaps had once been sharp injury. Like Job, she reproached somebody, possibly her Creator. What had she done that her days and her nights should be thus eaten with unsatisfaction? And at last she had to bite her lower lip with fine white teeth in order not to tell the droning, pleased Waddy what she thought.

He shut up at last. Two miles from Saranaton, his car, like an old nag, stopped. "O, my!" In a pleasant rehash of olden days, Waddy broke off in anxiety. "I bet I know what's happened." He got out with a shudder of distaste. Diane waited without comment. Something small or serious might be wrong with the car.

Ten minutes later Waddy was still looking anxiously into the interior of his hooded front of car, and he had begun to mutter irately under his breath. Diane demanded crossly, "O, my goodness, what's wrong?"

"Well—I guess I've run out of gasoline. And I guess there's a leak. No water. Or maybe I forgot to fill it. And it might be that this oldest cylinder has gone bad. Should have 'tended to it while back, but I thought the old bus would stand by a spell longer."

"In other words"— her voice was as crisp as burned bacon—"it's nearly the one horse shay!"

"Ha! Ha! You're 'bout right, Diane." Waddy's almost perpetual good humor responded to the least chaff from another.

But Diane had not intended to be funny. Now she exclaimed under her breath and drew her coat closer. Six minutes later, she asked coldly, "What are you going to do?"

Waddy rose from his knees in the snow as if glad to be called upon to state his exact intentions.

"Well, Diane, I don't exactly know. Maybe somebody'll come along and tow us in. Or give us some gas and water, and look at this engine."

"We might as well get out and walk on to town," she said crossly. "It's not so far."

But Waddy's wide face became blank. "Say, Diane, I couldn't leave my car. It might be stolen."

"How could it be stolen if it won't run?"

"A rum runner might come along. Those chaps know machinery and can run anything," declared Waddy with feeling.

"Well, I'm not going to sit here all night in the cold and watch your junk wagon!"

But Waddy, so good natured in general, was like many folks where property is concerned. He was adamant. It is true he was no longer young. Like Kipling, he had reached the point when, paraphrasing, a woman was only a woman, but a man's car—that was different.

Moreover, the chain store had cut long back into his haberdashery trade. A new car did not hang on a low branch of his tree of life.

"I can't help what you want to do, Diane," he said testily. "I am not going off and leave my property." He blew on his fingers, ungloved and cold and peered down the road.

"I don't care about getting home at dawn! People will talk!"

Comfortably came reply: "O, I don't think so, Diane. Not as long as you're with me."

In a gust of emotion, she flung herself out of the car. "Perhaps if it were a man with whom I might be talked about," she exclaimed, "I wouldn't so much mind the delay. As it is, I think I'll be on my way."

With his head down and close to a jumping lever, he heard only the last words. "Well, if you insist, trot along, Diane. 'Course there's nothing for you to be afraid of. And you'll be warmer walking. As for me staying with my car, you understand?"

"Nothing for me to be afraid of?" mocked Diane "Possibly I wish there were!" And she swung off, her galoshes slumping in the snow.

She was rather glad to walk off, in spite of the cold. She had been on edge, as the saying is, all day. The route was too familiar for the least fear—although to be sure, thus thinking, Diane should have rapped on wood. Superstition is baseless, of course, and silly. Nevertheless, odd how it proves often that fate likes mortals to be cautious of making positive statements.

But she covered the two miles to town in less than thirty swift energetic minutes which had proved their own efficacy against doldrums. On her way she had heard the night train from the east whistle through, without her paying any but mechanical attention. An east bound and a west bound train passed each other around that time in that part of the county.

It was only when she was plowing down Second avenue, head down bent to avoid the snow which had become hard pellets, that she remembered the whistle. And then because, turning at a corner, she saw a light at that untoward hour in a side window of a house, and recognized window and house.

THE Lothrop house. The library window. No other houses stood near. That part of town had large yards. Except as one turned that corner from the paved country road, the light was invisible. She wondered why anybody was up so late.

Then, in a flash, it came to her. Lee Lothrop might have come home!

Diane stopped, and stared fascinated at the light. A syringa bush was by the window and marred the full glow. Often she had waited under that bush while Lee sneaked into the house for tennis racquet or doughnuts. Lee! She remembered him as of old—his straw hat, gay eyes and way of whirling her in a dance. She and Lee had always been the life of any party, she remembered.

She tried not to remember him at the last meeting—on Main street, at noon hour, the little drawn twisted smile on his face, onlookers gaping because they had heard all about the mess.

She had never seen him after that noon. He had left on the west bound night train. No one had known he was going so soon. No one had said good-by.

Overwhelmingly now it came to Diane that she wanted to look to see if Lee had come back. Gay, shrieking Lee! No one had ever taken what his place might have been in her life—jester and companion and young sweetheart. If Lee had been in that balky car tonight—well, she would have waited willingly enough until dawn, or afterward!

She knew the way to the window, skirting the old brick house. Involuntarily her feet turned, stepped carefully across the wide crunchy yard. Plague on the snow! Like a frayed ribbon, the sidewalk hugged the old house. She stood on tiptoe in her galoshes, for the syringa bush had grown high since last she had known it and somewhat obscured the whole lower sash. She looked hungrily, anticipatorily. Lee might be married and have three or four children. But she longed to see his face again. She pressed her face close to the window——

And then she shrank, in her galoshes, in her coat. Lee wasn't there. He hadn't come back home. And the reason that the light burned at that unusual hour in that old methodical house was because old Jesse had been reading beside his green shaded library lamp and had either fallen from his chair or been struck down by some one hours before, and now lay on the floor with blood pouring, and partly coagulated, from his old pale sour forehead.

A marauder. Or he had had a stroke. And Mrs. Hanfky was gone, as sometimes she did, to visit her daughter in the country. Hardly an assailant. Diane's mind was swift and correct. He had hit the edge of the old hardwood table as he fell.

Diane's mind worked ahead even of itself. Consciously, even before she was explaining the scene, she began to shiver. Her silly curiosity! It had trapped her. Now—now, what was she to do? Hurry away from the window, get home, get in bed and forget? O, trapped! Miserably she began to squirm where she stood. What to do?

O, she disliked that old man. And did she owe him even common decency of conduct? He had marked her, he had drained color from her life. That was it—some one had written a book about the color of life. Diane read books. That was what old Jesse's unremitting hate had done to her—taken the pretty color from her days! Besides—she had always vaguely suspected that he had been to blame because Lee had not sent her a line, a word, even for old times' sake. A long time, long, she had expected a letter from Lee.

What to do, though? Her feet, departing, lagged. Let him lie, perhaps dead? She shivered. It was—was hardly human. She muttered to herself, "But if I hadn't peeped and seen him, I wouldn't have known——"

She turned from the window, and put her hand over her eyes to shut away the sight of him on the floor. She went with crunchy, hurrying steps along the sidewalk toward lawn and street. If she had never looked, why she would not have known. Therefore she was not obliged——

"Besides, what excuse could I give for looking in the window?" Under the night air, packed with its hardening snow, her face took on red. "Wouldn't every one in town gab? Wouldn't they talk, laugh, stare? I won't do it! I won't give them the mouthful!" She reiterated her resolution to herself. She stepped more carefully. Her crunchy feet were so loud.

But it was hardly likely that any one had seen her. That part of town, not closely built up, was miles deep in post-midnight sleep. No one would see her—nor that belated light in the Lothrop house.

No one would wonder at that light, or come to learn why it burned. And he might die before morning, if he were not dead already. Diane shivered. Still she was not to blame. But she reflected that if Saranaton were a large city, she could slip into some drug store and telephone in anonymity for succor to old Jesse. But not in Saranaton—with Anna Veskins always a bit pettish when she was aroused from her couch by an early morning summons from her switchboard.

Diane began to run down Second avenue. Her mind was running, too, like something in a circle, a merry go round. What to do? Go home? Sleep well? Not feel guilty, heathenish?

And even if a girl might count on old Doctor Tacey's understanding and shielding, there was Mrs. Tacey, who talked overmuch in season and out, on small topic or large. How could one summon Doctor Tacey in the night without first arousing his tall flannelette gowned better half, who prided herself on first hearing all night calls and finding out just how serious was the summons to drag her overworked spouse from his earned bed.

O, from her chestnut head to her galoshed feet Diane felt a shiver run. It would be horribly hard.

But at the next corner she turned over toward Fourth avenue. Yes—even as she had foreseen. Ring at the Tacey doorbell. Window raised above. Out thrusting came a high nightcapped head. "Yes—who wants the doctor? It's Diane Gray. Is your mother sick, Diane? No—your father? The doctor had a hard day—can't it wait till morning? It can't wait? It's Jesse Lothrop—Jesse Lothrop? How does it come that you, Diane—— Doctor, doctor, I guess you better get up and go! It's Jesse Lothrop and Diane Gray came, though how she happened——" The window came down and a wife's voice was audible to no ear outside.

WISE men, more than one, have expressed their opinion and conviction that life is a vale of tears, beginning with a cry and ending with a sigh.

Generally the rule holds. But sometimes a mortal or two finds the highway and the byways worth living through. O, sometimes! There are witnesses here and there, throughout the vale.

Saranaton gabbled, discussed, murmured. But all versions were garbled. Doctor Tacey, like most of his profession, was a generous and reticent man. It was understood that Diane and Waddy arriving home late, heard a cry for help from the old Lothrop house. At least, Diane must have heard a cry. Else how did she learn that the old man had had a slight stroke of apoplexy while reading and had fallen and hit his lonely old head on the edge of table?

Diane made all haste to get help—which was very Christian of the girl, all things considered. Mrs. Hanfky protested that never, never again would she leave her duty for a sick daughter in the country. However, Jesse lived hardly long enough to tax the promise.

But he did not die until Lee arrived. And then it became known that long ago he had exacted a promise from the boy, in return for restitution of stolen funds and no prosecution, that Lee should never write or speak to Diane. It was considered most Christian and fitting that Jesse gave back the promise. Of course he could hardly do otherwise, after Diane had aided him in extremity, said everybody. Everybody!

Lee came back—thin, serious eyed Lee who was older, but not so much older than when he had gone away. It seemed that he hadn't forgotten Diane and Diane had never ceased to miss him, and the two at meeting were oblivious of all spectators and seemed to melt into each other's arms.

A young, laughing, tearful pair they were too—the day they were married and the evening they went away, with nearly all of Saranaton, including the jovial Waddy, at the depot with old shoes and rice and good wishes.

Occasionally life mends its own broken planks!

CROSSED WIRES

BY John T. McCutcheon

THE STORY SO FAR:

A WEALTHY American family, the Craytons, are in Paris, where a worthless Frenchman, Pierre de Barsac, tries to win Virginia, the daughter. The mother favors him; but Crayton is suspicious. To divert Virginia he arranges to have Rasher, a young American he has met in Paris, return on the steamer with them. It is a shock to Virginia to learn that Rasher has been a truck driver. Her father hires him as chauffeur.

ON reaching New York the Craytons are met by De Barsac. Virginia and her mother invite him to motor home with them. Rasher, visiting his lawyer, finds he is richer than ever. His real name is Bacon.

THE trip begins. They stop at a village for lunch, and Rasher notices that three men eye them as they enter the hotel. After resuming their drive they are halted by a stranger. The others appear and start to rob the party. Rasher is shot trying to protect Virginia.

INSTALLMENT XIX.

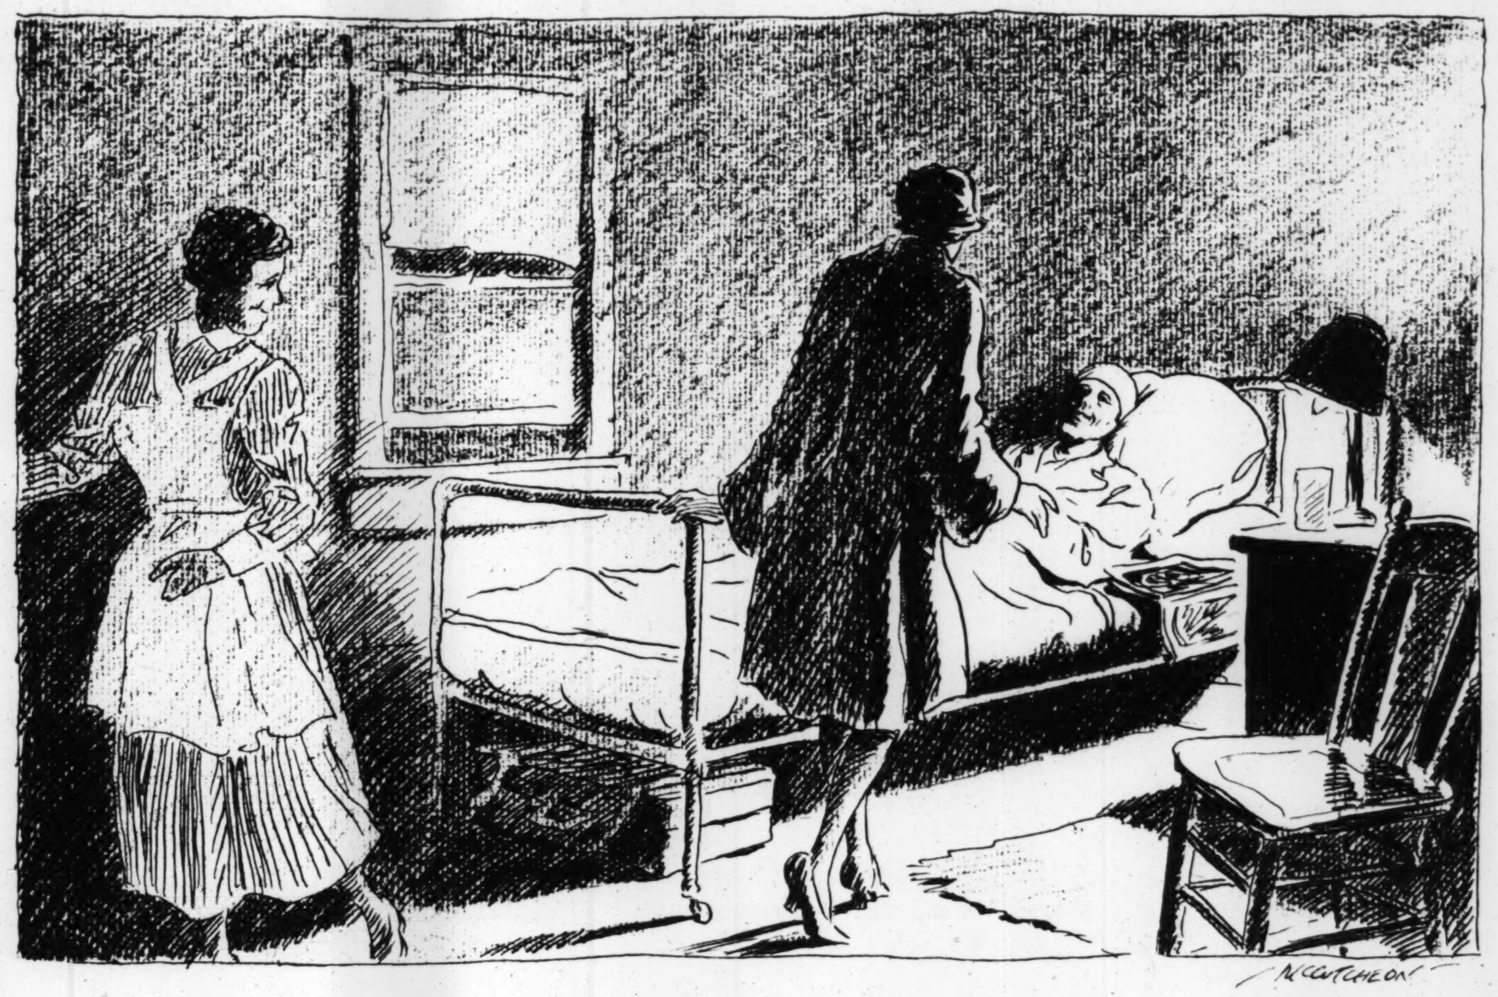
Virginia Falls in Love.

THE harrowing experiences of the day were not sufficiently harrowing to dull Mrs. Crayton's interest in the dinner that now appeared. She had changed into dry clothes, and with the warming glow of the wood fire came a sharp reminder that she had not eaten for a very long time.

The waitress drew up a little table before the fireplace and arranged the inviting repast. Mrs. Crayton was amazed.

"Why, how attractive!" she exclaimed. "And how appetizing! I feared the worst in this little out of the way hotel."

"Your chauffeur ordered it just before he went to the hospital," remarked the waitress. Rasher, in ordering the dinner, had recalled the things Virginia had particularly liked on the voyage across, and some of these dishes were now before her. This thoughtfulness was not lost upon her. She was deeply touched that he could have remembered such trivial matters while he was suffering from a bullet wound.



Rasher was lying on a cot in a small room.

Mrs. Crayton was amazed.

"You see, mother, how you have misjudged our chauffeur. This afternoon you suspected him of running away with our bags and trunks—instead of which he was here arranging for our comfort. You even thought his wound was pretense, and yet at this moment he is in a hospital. By the way," she asked the waitress, "which hospital is he in?"

"There's only one, the St. Elizabeth's, three blocks down Main street."

"Ah, yes," murmured Mrs. Crayton absently, as she poured her tea. "We must telephone tomorrow morning and inquire about his condition." She did not observe the sudden flash in Virginia's eyes.

After the dinner things had been removed Mrs. Crayton prepared for bed and Virginia retired to the adjoining room. "I'll close the door, mother; I may read for a little while." When Celeste came in she was in a dressing gown, apparently ready for bed.

"We'll not need you any more tonight, Celeste. Good-night."

For a long time Virginia sat looking out on the deserted street. Then she turned out the light, and after assuring herself that her mother was asleep, she locked the connecting door. A moment later she threw off her dressing gown, revealing herself fully clothed, and noiselessly stepped out into the hallway. She gained the street unobserved.

There were a few dimly lighted windows in the little three story hospital. An automobile stood at the curb. Virginia paused before the door, wavering in her purpose, then hastily entered. The office was empty, but a light burned at a desk. An odor of disinfectants was strongly in evidence.

She rapped timidly, then more loudly, and after a time a woman in nurse's uniform appeared.

"I've come to inquire about the young man who was brought here this evening," said Virginia.

"Just a moment, please." Presently she returned. "The doctor says you may go up. Just follow me, please."

"O, but I didn't expect to see him!" exclaimed Virginia. "I just wanted to inquire about him."

The nurse smiled sympathetically

"He's expecting you. The doctor asked if he felt well enough to see a visitor, so it will be quite all right for you to go up."

Virginia was conscious of a sudden panic of embarrassment, but it was now too late to turn back.

RASHER was lying on a cot in a small room which was depressingly bare. He was smoking. The nurse, noting the pleasure that lighted his face, beamed knowingly at them and then rather pointedly withdrew, closing the door softly behind her. The significance of this action drew a flame of color to Virginia's cheeks, which Rasher affected not to notice.

"Well, this is worth getting wounded for," he exclaimed, laughing. He made a motion as though to get her a chair, but she pushed him gently back in the pillows.

"You must be quiet," she cautioned, "otherwise you'll make me sorry I came. Remember, you're an invalid." Her voice changed to solicitude. "What does the doctor say? Is it very serious?"

"Not very," smiled Rasher. "The knock on the head was the worst, but there's no fracture. As for the bullet wound, it is clean and ought to heal in a short time."

"And how long will you be laid up—here?" She looked around at the bare cheerlessness of the room.

"Perhaps a few days; but you mustn't let that interfere with your plans. I'll try to arrange for a new chauffeur so you can go on tomorrow without loss of time."

She looked at him solemnly for a long time.

"You're an awfully nice boy," she said, irrelevantly. "So you think we ought to run off and leave you?"

"Why not? There's nothing to worry about. I'll be all right in a little while."

"You must think we are a heartless lot," she said bitterly, in a low voice. Her lips quivered, and to hide her emotion she arose quickly and walked to the window. For a moment she gazed unseeingly at the street below—a dreary view for a convalescent—and then her gaze was suddenly concentrated upon two people who passed under a street light. It was the count talking earnestly to Celeste, the maid. An exclamation of surprise burst from her.

"What is it?" cried Rasher, rising.

"O, nothing," she hastily answered, but so unconvincingly that Rasher, throwing a blanket about him, sprang from his cot and was at her side.

"O. De Barsac and Celeste!" he exclaimed. "They are old friends."

"Old friends? What do you mean? Why, he hardly knows her and never saw her until a few days ago! But here, this is terrible! You mustn't leave your bed. I'm ashamed of you!" She led him firmly back to the cot and arranged the covers about him. He closed his eyes so submissively that she was swept by a wave of tenderness. Her hand was pressed softly against his forehead and his sought it and covered it. The ticking of a clock, hitherto unnoticed, now sounded loudly. Slowly her head bowed until her cheek rested upon his hand.

"I'm a perfect idiot to do this," she murmured. "You don't care a bit about me and I shouldn't care about you." She abruptly arose. "I must go now." He still held her hand, and his eyes, serious and unsmiling, were turned up appealingly. "You mustn't look at me like that," she whispered, barely audible. She closed her eyes tightly. Her breast rose and fell in tumultuous breathing, and then with a half sob she dropped to her knees and buried her face in the pillow.

Twice the nurse had peered through the door, but had gone away. Now there came the sound of several hasty footsteps and a confused murmur of voices. Virginia looked up, alarmed, but with a reckless singing in her heart. Nothing mattered now.

It was the count, talking earnestly to Celeste.

THE BLACK ABBOT

by Edgar Wallace

THE STORY THUS FAR:

HARRY, LORD CHELFORD, occupies Fossaway Manor, the ancient home of the Chelfords. His half brother, Dick, manages the estate while Harry spends his time reading about the legends of Chelford. The ruins of an abbey lie at one end of the place, supposed to be haunted by a former occupant, the Black Abbot.

LORD CHELFORD is engaged to Leslie Gwyn, whose brother, Arthur, acts as his solicitor. Fabrian Gilder, his clerk, finds that his employer is in financial difficulties. He overhears Mary Wenner, a former secretary of Chelford's, tell Arthur she has found the hiding place of the Chelford treasure. Leslie calls on her brother. When she leaves Gilder informs Arthur he will clean up his debts if he will consent to his marriage with Leslie.

ARTHUR takes Leslie to call on Gilder, where the latter proposes, only to be refused. That night Dick visits the Gwyns and Arthur confesses he has dissipated much of Chelford's inheritance; also that Gilder is using the knowledge to force a marriage with Leslie. Dick promises to see Arthur through his troubles. Later he finds Gilder prowling about the ruins of the abbey and orders him off.

INSTALLMENT VIII.

APPARENTLY Leslie did not attach any great significance to Dick's words, for she did not turn her head, sending the car spinning to the broad graveled place before the old porch. Dick jumped down when she stopped the machine and helped her alight.

"I have to prepare you for a curious bird," he said, and described Mr. Puttler with more truth than flattery.

"What is he, Dick?"

"He's an accountant," said Dick glibly. "He's also quite an amusing fellow and full of weird information. I'm going to try a little on you. Do you know that Robinson Crusoe was a German?"

"Why, of course, his father lived in Bremen," she said, and he was still laughing when he took her into the library.

In the presence of his fiancée Lord Chelford exhibited a nervousness and a gaucherie which might have been understandable if he were meeting her for the first time.

"How do you do, Leslie?"

He had never kissed her in his life; now he held her hand for a fraction of a second and dropped it as though it burnt him.

"Do you know Mr. Tuttler?"

"Puttler," said the other, and Leslie looked into the melancholy eyes and read something in them that Dick had missed and possibly Mr. Puttler's closest associate had not seen.

"Glad to know you, Miss Gwyn. I know your brother—Mr. Arthur Gwyn, the solicitor, isn't it? I thought so."

"Has Arthur come?" asked Harry.

"No," said Dick. "We're going to have tea in the drawing room. Will you come along, Harry?"

"Surely, surely," he said hastily. "You'll excuse me, dear——" It was an effort to employ even so banal an expression of affection.

When they reached the beautiful drawing room, with its windows open to the terrace and a riot of gorgeous sulphur chrysanthemums showing above the stone balustrade, they found they were alone. Mr. Puttler had melted away as they were passing through the hall. He explained afterward that he wanted to stroll through the gardens, but the girl knew that the man's uncanny instinct had told him that, of all the people in the world, these two were satisfied best with one another's company.

"Did you sleep?" she asked.

"I didn't get up till lunch time," he said. "And you?"

She shook her head.

"No; I could not sleep. Poor Arthur!"

"Did you try beefsteak?" he asked brutally. "Really, the most incongruous company I can imagine is a black eye and Arthur Gwyn!"

"He is awfully shaken," she said seriously. "I have never known him to be so upset. It was Mr. Gilder."

"I knew," said Dick, "or at least I guessed. Did you find out the cause of the quarrel?"

"I do not know; I think it was something to do with me."

"Down on your face!" said Dick hoarsely.

"What was Gilder doing at your house?"

"Arthur didn't tell me," she replied. "From what he said I gather that Mr. Gilder had been watching Arthur and had followed him somewhere."

"To the abbey ruins—yes, that is quite possible. And of course your brother objected to that, naturally. Why are they watching each other?"

"Is Arthur watching Gilder?" she asked in surprise.

"It almost looks like it. Leslie, I want to tell you something that nobody else knows, not even Harry. It may bring a little ease to your mind in the dark hours of the night. Puttler is a detective, a Scotland Yard man."

"A detective? Why on earth——?"

"Things have been happening that I don't very much like," said Dick. "I've been worried nearly sick about them, and though I'm quite capable of dealing with most contingencies, the Lord has ordained that I should take seven hours' rest in every twenty-four, and there must be somebody awake when I'm asleep."

"The Black Abbot—is that what is worrying you?"

"Yes and no. Some aspects of the Black Abbot's activities trouble me more than I should like to confess. Leslie, do you believe in the treasure?"

"The Chelford treasure?" she asked in surprise. "And what do you mean by believing in it? It is true that the gold was brought to Fossaway Manor in olden times, isn't it?"

"Perfectly true," said Dick, "and perfectly true, I should imagine, that it was taken away. But do you believe that it has any existence, that it can be found? Suppose one dug up every square inch of the park, pulled down this old house of ours, probed into the bowels of the earth, do you think it is possible that the gold could be found? Because if you don't there are other people who do besides Harry."

"Do you believe?" she challenged.

"Heaven knows, I'm ready to believe anything! And I thought I should never drag down my lofty intelligence to such deeps. But Leslie, my dear, I am getting——" He paused for a word.

"Convinced?"

"Not exactly convinced, but shaken in my obstinacy. I've become a doubter of my own skepticism, and that's the worst mental condition a man can reach—or almost the worst," he added.

"Does Harry know you are a convert?" Her fine eyes twinkled with mischief.

"He suspects me," said Dick gloomily. "If I thought the money was here——"

She regarded him steadily.

"Would it make a big difference to you, Dick?" she asked.

"Me personally?" He shook his head. "Lord, no! It would make a difference to the——" He paused. "To Harry. I was going to say the estate. The estate, to me, is something distinct from any personality. It stands for the agglomeration of dead men's efforts, the cumulative sum of all their strivings."

She looked at him for a long time in wonder. She loved him in this serious mood of his.

"You've made rather a fetish of Fossaway Manor and the Chelford estates, haven't you?"

"Have I?" He was genuinely surprised. "I wonder . . ." And then he laughed. "It isn't a bad line for a second son to exalt the estates to which he will never succeed above the personality of the man who will get it! It makes him rather superior to the real heir. Put my fetish worship down to vanity, for the Lord knows I have my share of that."

"I doubt it," she said quietly. "Come out on to the terrace. Your flowers are lovely."

She leaned on the gray stone balustrade and looked down upon the wind stirred tresses of great golden chrysanthemums, each as big as a large size saucer. They were not all gold; there were deep red blooms and snowy white and flaming orange, and beyond them a huge bed of late flowering roses; the scent, even from this distance, she could sniff the delicate fragrance of them.

"It's a beautiful old place," she said in a hushed voice. "I don't wonder that you love it. How long has your family owned this estate, Dick?"

"Eight hundred years," he said. "The first of the Chelfords sliced off the head of the original owner and stole the property. Successive generations of Chelfords, whose own heads were cut off with monotonous regularity, inclosed a few thousand acres of common land belonging to the people—and there you are!"

She laughed softly.

"You have very few illusions, have you?"

"None," was his curt reply, and somehow the answer hurt her.

THEY had to send twice for Harry before he put in an appearance, and he seemed disappointed to find that Puttler was not there.

"That is quite an intelligent fellow, Dick," he said, delicately spearing a cucumber sandwich. "Has an extraordinary knowledge of history, particularly English history. Unfortunately he doesn't read German" (Harry read German as well as he read English, French, or Italian), "but I have persuaded him to take up the study. Have you everything you want, Leslie?"

He helped her to nothing and was happy to find that her requirements had been supplied. Only twice he spoke to her—once to ask about Arthur and the other time he made an oblique reference to his forthcoming marriage.

Dick noticed that while Harry was present the girl's manner was just a little strained and unreal, and she was nervous, too, started when she was addressed, and was content to listen without including herself in the conversation. It was not until Harry had gone, with a lame apology, back to the library that she became her real self again and the old Leslie crept forth from its hiding place. Once while he and his brother were discussing the affair of the dungeons she had walked on to the terrace, and out of the corner of his eye he saw her in profile, a slim, frail looking girl, with her delicate face and her glorious hair, and in the setting she looked almost ethereal. It was as though some old masterpiece of Botticelli had come to life.

When the door had closed on Harry she came back and sat down with a little grimace.

"Was it very rude of me to go out? Dicky, I can't work up any interest in the things that really fascinate Harry! Whatever will he talk about when the treasure is found?"

"The treasure? O, you mean the gold? He will probably talk about you."

She made a little moue.

"I'm too young to be interesting to Harry, three hundred years too young," she said. "Now tell me about your detective. I liked what I saw of him. He is to be your little guardian angel? And, Dick, will he have a beat—is that the word? Because if he has I do hope he'll take in Willow House. I'll even lend him my car."

"Are you really frightened?"

"I think I am," she said. "When I was a child the first air raids fascinated me, the second were interesting, but after the third or fourth they became—just air raids. And the Black Abbot—well, he's very picturesque, Dick, but he's rather terrifying. Didn't you tell me that Harry feared him?"

"He does a little."

"Why, I wonder?"

"Harry is naturally of a nervous temperament," said Dick. "People are born that way, and it is absurd to talk of cowardice where they are concerned. Now, I was born without the knowledge of nerves, and I daresay if you saw me chasing the Black Abbot you would think I was terribly brave. As a matter of fact, it is simply because I've no imagination."

"That isn't true," she said. "Why do you always belittle yourself?"

"Because I am by nature excessively modest," he said gravely, and at that moment they caught sight of Mr. Puttler strolling through the long lines of rose trees that ran parallel with the eastern wing. Together they went down the terrace steps and intercepted him.

"It is a lovely place," said Mr. Puttler, shaking his head in admiration. "I've never seen so many roses together in my life except at Covent Garden market, and they're not roses, they're just merchandise."

"I've told Miss Gwyn that you're a detective, Puttler."

Puttler frowned at this.

"You know Miss Gwyn better than I do," he said good humoredly. "Speaking for myself, I find that life is much easier to live if you keep your mouth shut. Not," he added hastily, "that I want to be offensive. That's only my way of reasoning and my way of talking. There used to be an officer in our division who rose from the rank of plain police constable to superintendent by the simple process of never saying anything to anybody. If he was asked for his opinion on a matter he used to shake his head and say there was much to be said on both sides, but he had his own private opinion, and even when he was called into a case he'd say nothing, but listen to what everybody else said and smile. That smile was worth a thousand a year to him."

They crossed the rose garden and were strolling across the lawn. Under a huge elm Mr. Puttler stopped to continue a story which was fated never to be finished.

"One day the superintendent said to this man, whose name was Carter, 'Carter,' he said, 'I can't understand——'"

Crack!

A bullet snicked past the detective's face, struck the bole of the tree and sent the bark splintering. From a clump of rhododendron bushes two hundred yards away floated a pale blue cloud.

"Down on your face!" said Dick hoarsely, and dragged the girl to the ground, only just in time.

Crack!

The second bullet struck a little lower. A splinter of bark hummed past the girl's ear.

"There's some one in those bushes who doesn't like me," said Mr. Puttler.

Pulling a long barreled gun from his pocket and bending low, he sprinted toward the bushes, zigzagging as he ran.

A third shot rang out and the running man pitched forward on his face and lay still.

Dick flew forward to the prostrate figure, and, kneeling by his side, turned him on his back. His eyelids were working spasmodically, but there was no sign of injury except a bruise on the side of his face which had been caused by his coming violently into contact with the ground. And then Dick saw the man's right boot. The sole had been ripped off and there was the patch of blood showing on the toe of the sock. At the sound of a rustling skirt Dick turned his head. The girl was coming toward them.

"Go back behind that tree and don't move," he shouted authoritatively, but for once she did not obey him.

She was rather pale, but there was no other evidence of fear as she knelt by his side and began to unfasten the collar of the stricken man.

"He's stunned. I don't think it's anything worse than that," said Dick. "I thought at first he was finished—look at his boot!"

He was pulling it off gingerly and the operation must have hurt a little, because the detective winced and opened his eyes.

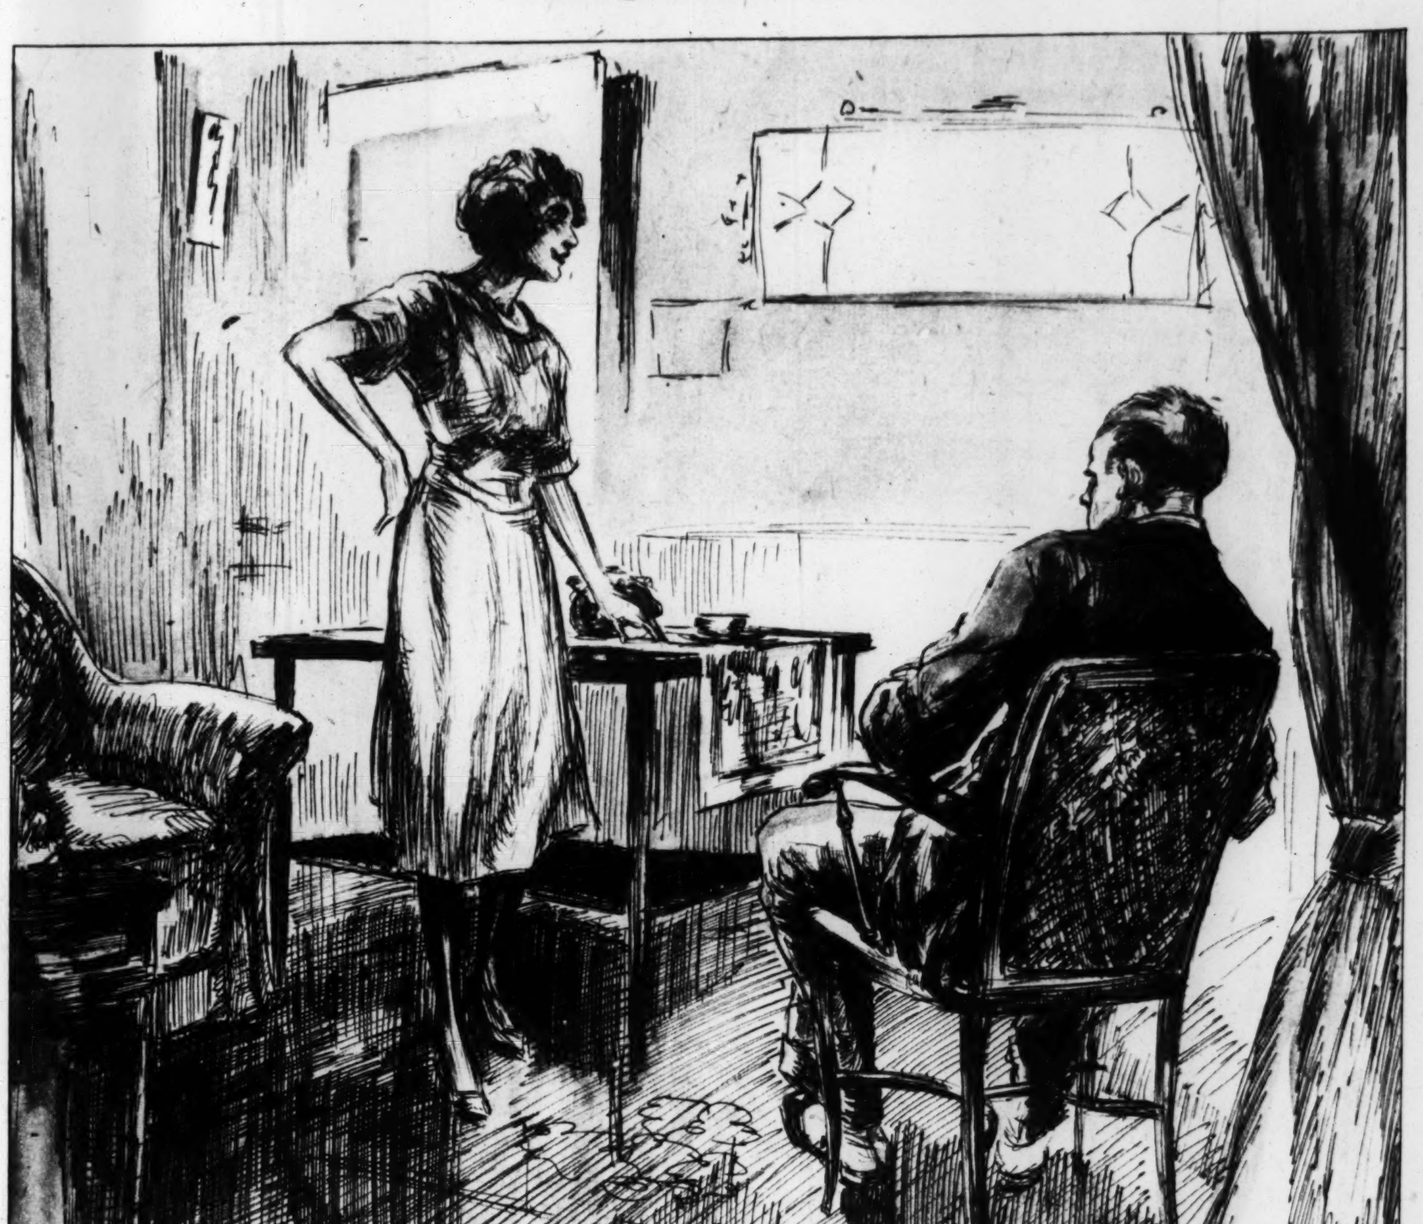
"Hullo! What has happened?" he asked, looking round. "Did that bird shoot me?"

"I don't think he's hurt you very much." Dick was looking at the foot. The bullet had ricocheted, cutting a shallow gash on the man's instep, but there was no other injury.

"Do you feel fit enough to look after Miss Gwyn?" said Dick.

The detective reached round for the gun he had dropped and humped himself to his feet. Without another word Dick raced across the grass land to the bushes, and the girl watched him in terror, expecting every second to hear the fourth and the fatal shot.

After five minutes he emerged from the bushes, holding something in his hand which he was examining curiously as he walked toward them.



"No, I'm not in business," replied Miss Wenner.

"An army rifle," he said. "I found these shells."

He put them into the detective's hand. Puttler examined the exploded cartridges carefully.

"You didn't see him, of course?" he said.

"No; I think he must have got round to the back of the house. The bushes run practically from the west wing of Fossaway Manor to the end of the mound. He might, of course, be still hidden in the bushes, but the probability is that he made his getaway as soon as he saw you fall," said Dick. "I think we'd better go inside and I will find you a pair of shoes, unless you have a spare supply."

THEY were half way to the house when they met Lord Chelford.

"Who was that shooting?" he asked irritably. "Dick, I told you that I did not want rabbit shooting or any other kind of shooting within half a mile of the house. It gets on my nerves terribly. Really, I think, you must show a little more consideration."

The girl had opened her lips to explain when Dick caught her eye, and with splendid mendacity she invented a hurried but effective excuse.

"My fault, Harry. I saw a stoat, and I hate stoats."

"Well, of course. . . ." He was obviously taken back by her championship. "If that's the case it can't be helped. Only in future, Dick, old boy . . ."

He walked rapidly back to the house.

"Why shouldn't he be told?" asked Leslie; then, realizing the foolishness of the question, she was all penitence. "There is no reason why he should be, of course. I was silly to suggest it. But, Dick, who did such a terrible thing? It couldn't have been an accident."

"It wasn't an accident; of that I can assure you," said Mr. Puttler, nursing his injury. "The first two shots that were fired hit the tree within three inches of each other. Are you going to notify the local police, Mr. Alford?"

Dick thought for a moment, then decided against that course, and to Leslie's surprise the detective approved.

"I think you're right," said Puttler. "Where is the nearest rifle range?"

"About fifteen miles away," said Dick sardonically. "You needn't follow that line of thought."

"I'm not following any line of thought," said the detective. "I'm only foreseeing possible alibis. I spend my life standing in front of alibis and waving a red flag."

Through the tan, Dick's face was gray. He seemed suddenly to have gone old, and Leslie looked at him anxiously.

"Dick at whom were they shooting?"

"I don't know that they were shooting at anybody," he said wearily. "They just loosed off a few rounds to scare us."

And then he laughed; it was a fierce, hard little laugh, and she winced at the sound of it.

"I am thinking of Harry and his nerves, and the stoat and every damned ridiculous—I beg your pardon, Leslie; I'm afraid I'm getting rattled."

She smiled at this.

"Dick, will you say good-by to Harry for me? I promised my brother I would come home early. No, really, you need not take me. I'm not at all afraid of being held up by armed desperadoes!"

"Neither am I," said Dick, "but I don't fancy you overmuch as a driver."

And in her annoyance at this false accusation she forgot to resist his escort.

By the time he had returned to the house Puttler had secured a dressing for his foot. The injury was so slight that he could resume his shoes, and pooh-poohed the suggestion that he had better lie up that night.

"It was a narrow escape," he said, "but I'm rather glad I got that bullet and that it didn't go where it was intended."

Dick looked at him steadily.

"For whom was it intended?" he asked.

Without hesitation came the reply.

"For Miss Leslie Gwyn. I thought you knew that."

Dick could find no answer, but in his heart of hearts he knew that Puttler was speaking the truth.

MR. FABRIAN GILDER, sometime head clerk to the firm of Gwyn & Gwyn, and now a gentleman of leisure, was in one sense a hard man. He did not forgive even slight injuries, and in the past had gone a long way out of his path to get even with those who had the misfortune to affront him. And Arthur Gwyn had offended beyond hope of forgiveness. A few days before Gilder would have thought it a very simple matter to be revenged upon his enemy; but now the simple process of laying an information and of preferring a charge of forgery was contingent upon four bills which were in his possession being repudiated by the man who was alleged to have backed them.

He could do no more than present those interesting documents, and this he did through his bank. Dick had already made arrangements for their redemption. It was not entirely an act of philanthropy on his part, for he was a business man and took over from the frankly reluctant Mr. Gwyn the choice of a number of unsalable shares which Dick regarded as having a certain value. The bills, which had been renewed from time to time, were met, and that ended Mr. Gilder's chance of carrying his threat into execution.

He was the type of man who thrived on opposition. Though it would be true to say that he had fallen in love with Leslie Gwyn the first time he had seen her, which was months before that unpleasant scene at his flat, his desire for her grew as his chance of winning her receded farther into the background.

On the night that Dick had found him examining the ruins of the abbey, Mr. Gilder had returned to the cut road when he thought the coast was clear and had discovered yet another in quest of the treasure. He had witnessed the interview between the two men and had followed Arthur back to Willow House with no other intention than to offer his help, for a consideration, in discovering the mythical fortune. For Mr. Gilder had heard quite enough that day he had surprised his employer with Mary Wenner to know that somewhere under the abbey lay either the fortune or its key. He had overtaken Arthur on the drive, and Arthur was in an unpleasant mood.

At first startled by the unexpected apparition of his head clerk, Arthur had snarled round on him and there and then discharged him from his service and had defied him to do his worst. It was Gilder who had struck the first blow.

When Arthur was in his more unpleasant moods he said things that no self-respecting man could endure, and the black eye which the lawyer nursed was an advertisement of his indiscretion.

Gilder's lip healed in a few hours, though it was still swollen, and toward the evening of the second day after his retirement from the firm of Gwyn & Gwyn he dressed himself with great care and, calling a taxi, drove to an address he had once scribbled on his white shirt cuff.

Mary Wenner occupied a tiny flat, every compartment of which might have been contained in one large sized room. It was perched on the top floor of a block near Baker street.

Mr. Gilder was not strong for physical exertion and cursed the parsimonious builder who had neglected to put in an elevator. Nevertheless he climbed, and presently was ringing at the polished bell of No. 135.

Mary had a daily servant, who was a charwoman in the morning, a parlor maid in the afternoon, and her own natural self after six, at which hour she left for the night. This aged woman, with her dingy white cap askew, opened the door and took the card in to her mistress, leaving Mr. Gilder on the mat. She came back with an ingratiating smile and pointed to the room where Mary was to be found.

"This is an unexpected pleasure, Mr. Gilder," said Miss Wenner conventionally. "I'm sure I never thought that you would be as good as your word. Sit down, won't you?"

There was only one chair on which he could sit and this he took.

"You'd like a cup of tea? I'm just going to have mine," said Miss Wenner. "I've been out all day, shopping and everything."

"Are you—er—working?" asked Gilder delicately.

"No, I'm not in business," replied Miss Wenner, more correctly.

She went out, disappearing in a mysterious cupboard, which had just enough room for a tiny kitchen table and a gas stove, and he heard the rattle of cup against saucer, the "plomp" of a gas ring being lighted, and after a while she came back, a little flushed and apologetic.

She received very few visitors, she told him. She had a very dear friend—a girl, she hastened to assure him—who spent Tuesday evenings with her and sometimes slept in the flat. But a male visitor was the rarest of phenomena.

"You can't be too careful," said Miss Wenner primly. "A girl's character is her principal asset—don't you agree, Mr. Gilder?"

Mr. Gilder agreed.

"That is what I have always said about my work with Harry—excuse me, I mean Lord Chelford, only we were such awfully good friends that I've never dreamed of calling him anything but by his Christian name."

"And did you call Richard Alford by his Christian name?" asked Mr. Gilder, not without malice.

Her nose went up in the air.

"Him!" she said contemptuously. "I don't take any more notice of him than I do of any of the other upper servants! He's educated and all that—went to Eton and Harrow"—even Mr. Gilder winced at this—"but you judge a man by his manners and not by his education. There's no doubt at all that Dick Alford has the manners of a pig!"

She said this with feeling and no little vehemence. Mr. Gilder, who knew something of the circumstances, understood and almost sympathized.

"I was going to say that down at Fossaway I often felt that it wasn't right to be in that big house with no lady there except the housekeeper, who of course is a servant, and—O, here you are, Gladys!"

SHE rose as Gladys brought in the tea tray and laid it carefully on the table.

"You're a good friend of Gwyn's, aren't you?" Gilder asked as he sipped his tea.

She dropped her eyes in maidenly embarrassment.

"We are rather good friends, but no more. We may be something closer—who knows? He has always behaved like a perfect gentleman and treated me like a lady. I must say that for Arthur. But he's a little trying. Don't you find him so?" she asked with a girlish naïveté that was a little overdone.

"I have left him," said Mr Gilder briefly. "He and I disagreed over a question of policy and I retired. In fact, we had a very bad row and came to blows—I tell you this because you'll probably learn the facts from him sooner or later."

Mary was shocked, and when Mary was shocked she covered her rather generous mouth with her two small, white hands.

"You don't tell me!" she said in a hushed voice. "Blows! Is that it?" She nodded her head to his lip.

"That's it," said Gilder shortly.

"Blows!" repeated Mary Wenner. "How perfectly disgusting and vulgar!"

"I wanted to talk to you about Arthur Gwyn," Gilder broke in upon her horrified wonder. "We're not good friends, but that doesn't mean I bear him any malice. But naturally, as we are parted, I don't feel called upon to protect him and stand between him and his dupes"—he emphasized the last word—"as I have done in the past. You know him as well as I do," he went on, as she was about to speak. "You know his vanity; you know how perfectly unreliable and insincere he is; you know, too, that he'd get out of any promise he ever made, even if it was in black and white."

He was watching her narrowly all the time he spoke, and now he saw her eyebrows arch.

"Indeed?" she said coldly. "I don't know anything about the law, but I can't see how a gentleman, or a common man, for the matter of that, could get out of—what is the expression—legal obligations?"

"Then you don't know Arthur Gwyn as well as I do," he said. "But that is beside the point. I haven't come here to blackguard him or to make him look smaller in your eyes. Not that I could," he said, anticipating her protest a little ambiguously. "But I believe in a girl having a square deal, especially a working girl who may have nobody in the world to look after her interests. And I tell you that that fellow couldn't go straight if he was fired from a gun. Now what about the Chelford treasure?"

At the words she sat bolt upright, and a look of blank astonishment came to her face.

"Do you know?" she gasped.

"Of course I know! You're going to help him find the gold and in return——" He paused.

Among Us Moderns—The Great American Shape

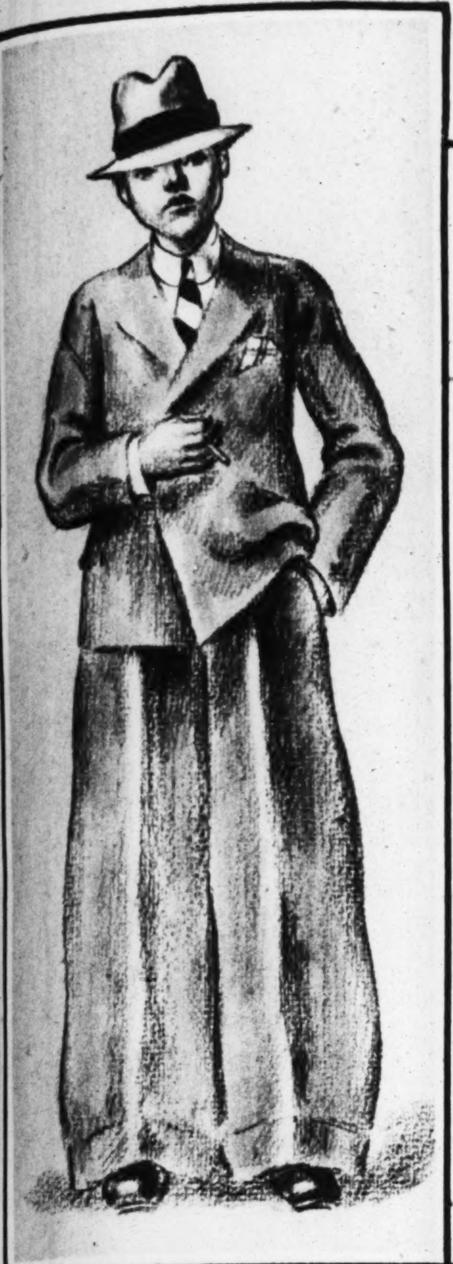
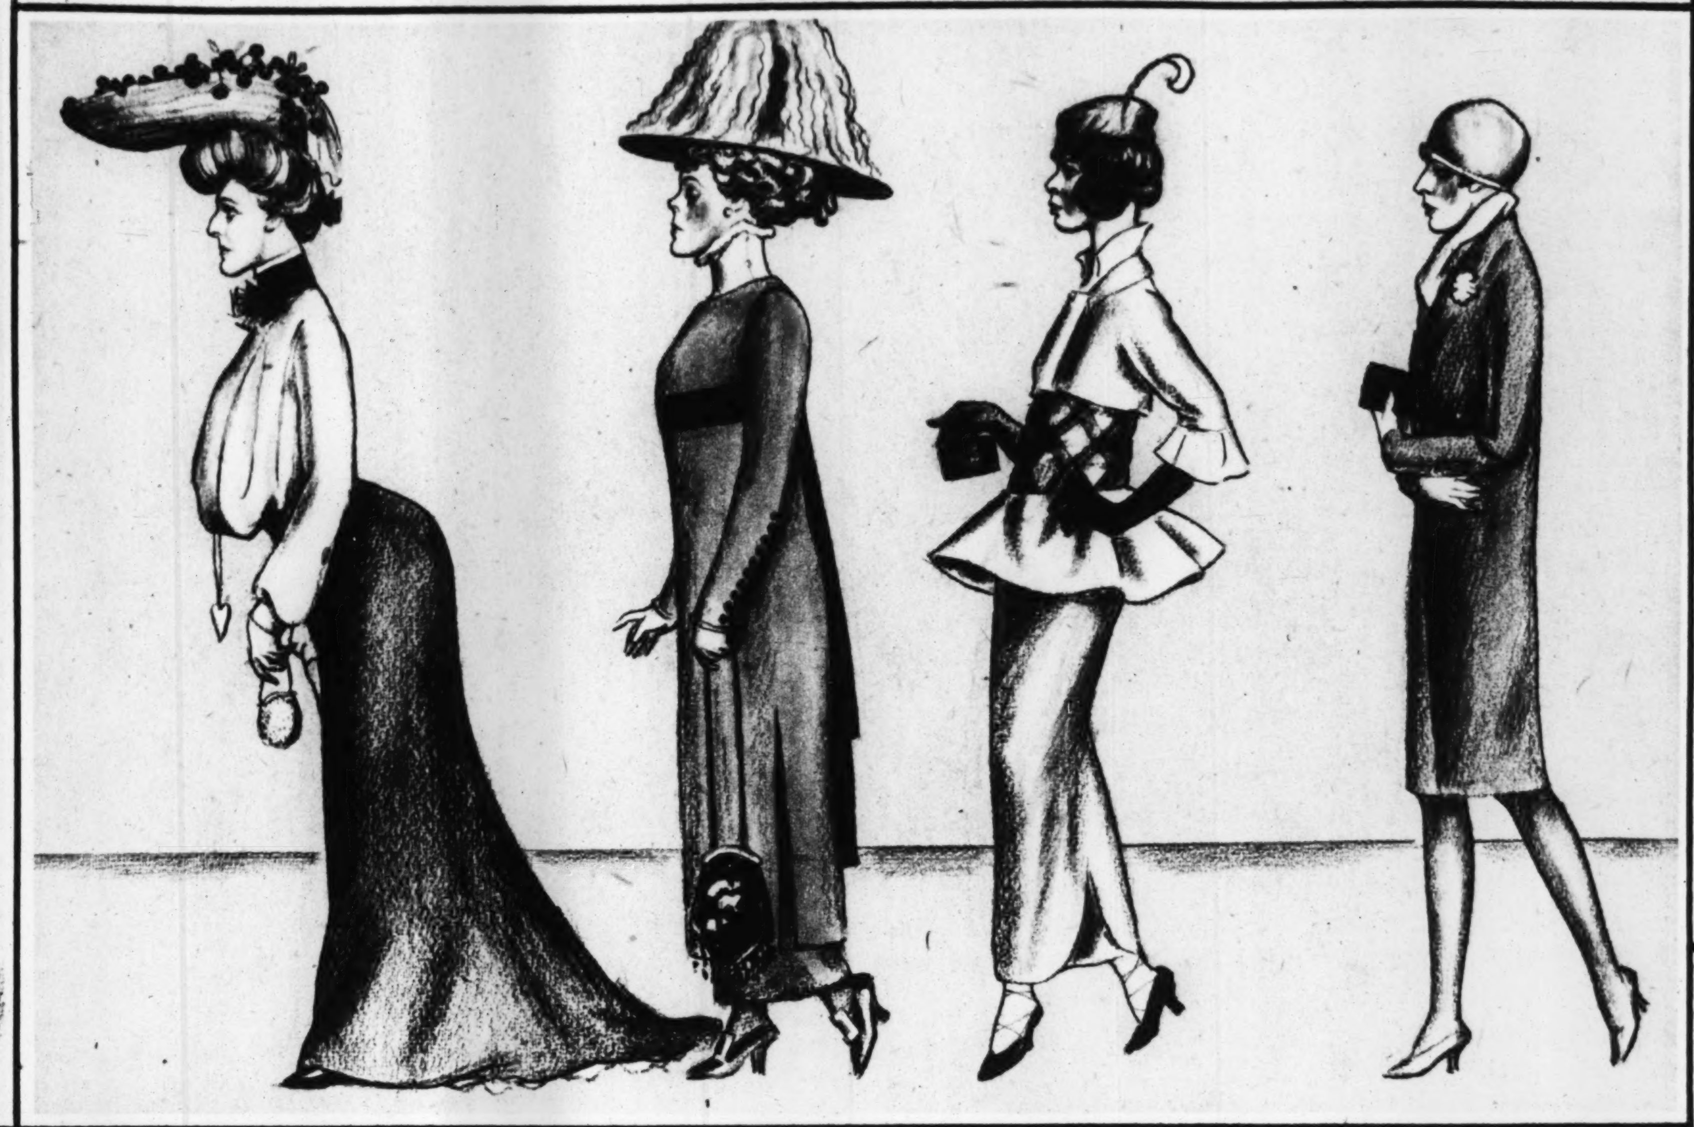
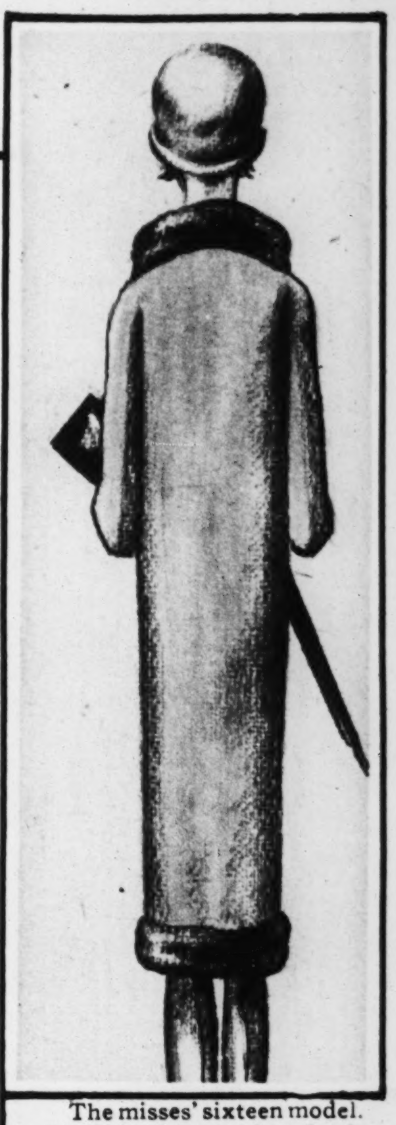
By W. E. Hill



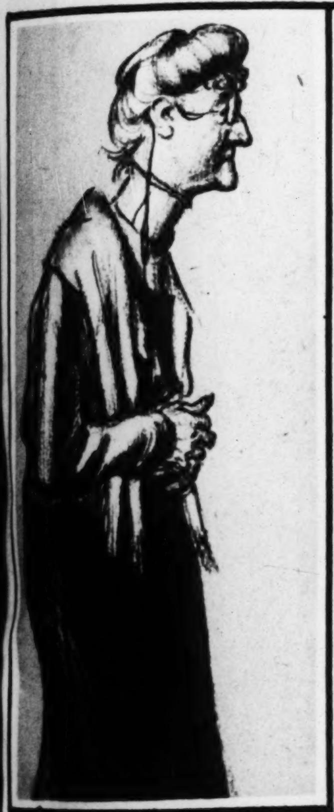
The collegiate outline, favored by young bloods just entering high school.



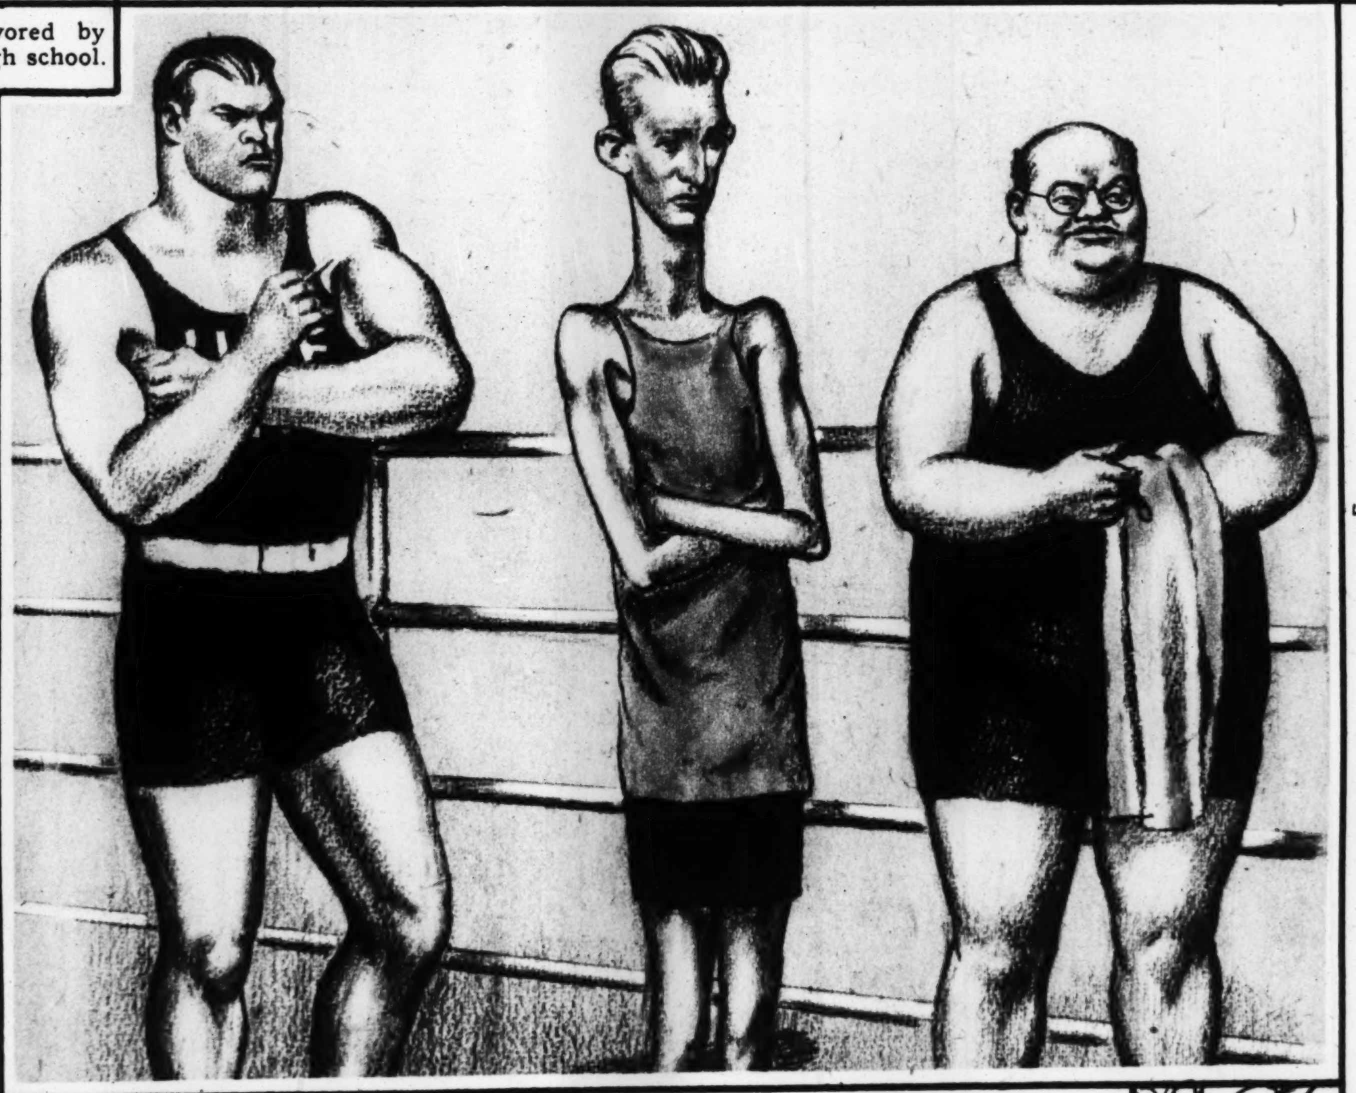
Four shapes past and present, with the young thing of 1900 leading off. (She was, so her friends claimed, a perfect Gibson type.) Next in line is the belle of 1910, with the high waistline and the last word in willow plumes. Then comes the cutie of 1914, walking, it would seem, a little ahead of herself, followed by none other than the boyish bob of 1926, in one of Mr. Arlen's green hats, and no waistline at all.

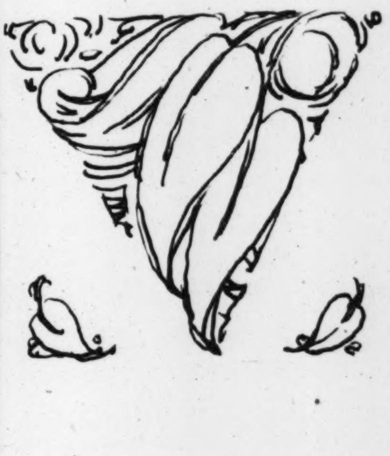


The misses' sixteen model. Statistics show that business girls who have to travel to and fro in the rush hours are growing narrower and narrower. Squeezed in an overcrowded conveyance twice each day, even the plumpest stenog is bound to change contour.

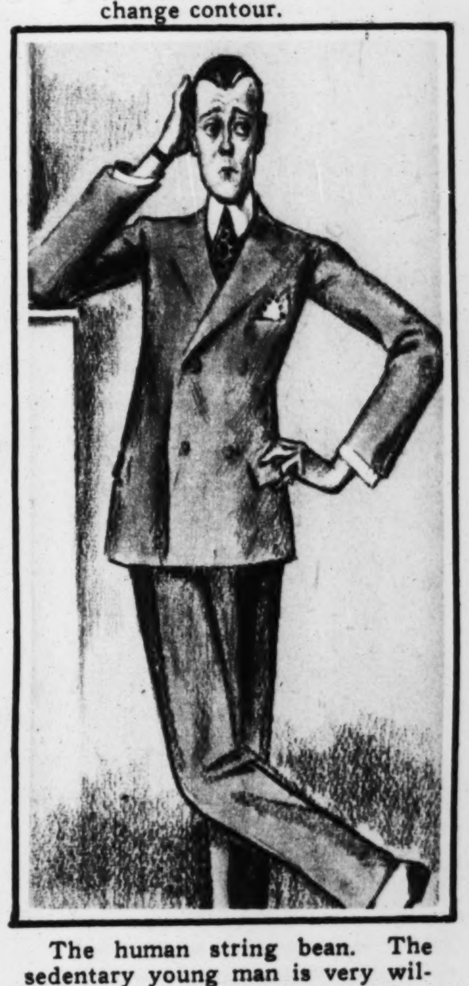


The Victorian formation of the elderly lady is a hangover from bygone days, when shapes and figures were discussed privately if at all. Who says the old days were the best!

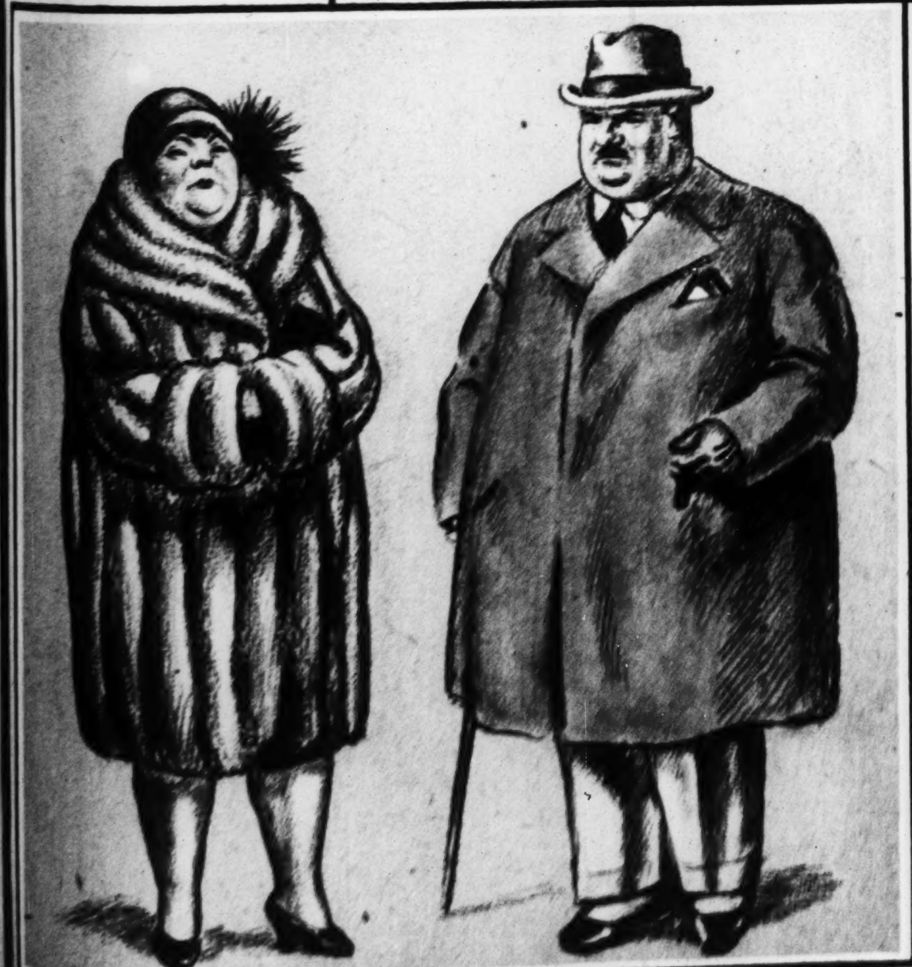




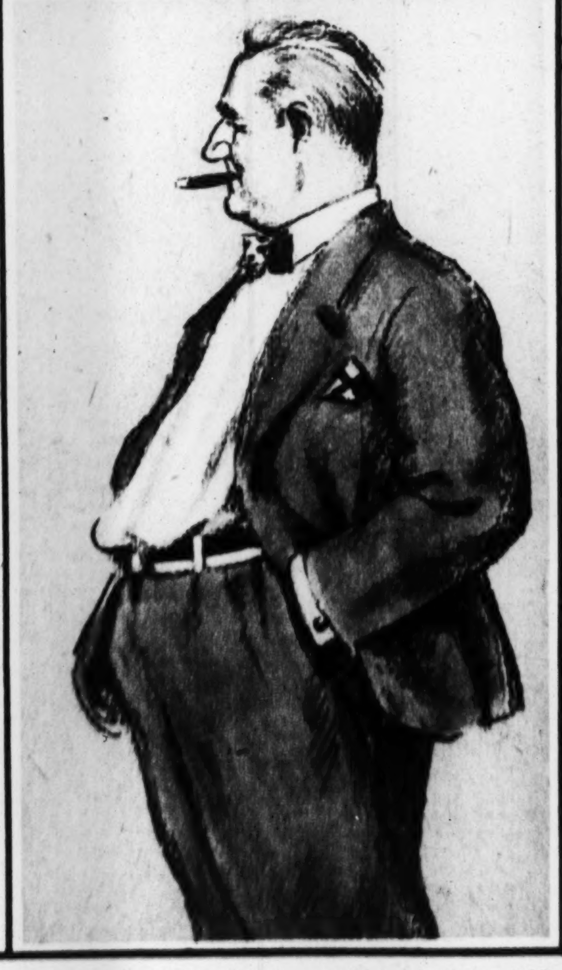
Sex appeal plus. The manly form divine at the bathing beach. Now you know why so many young girls leave home and momma.



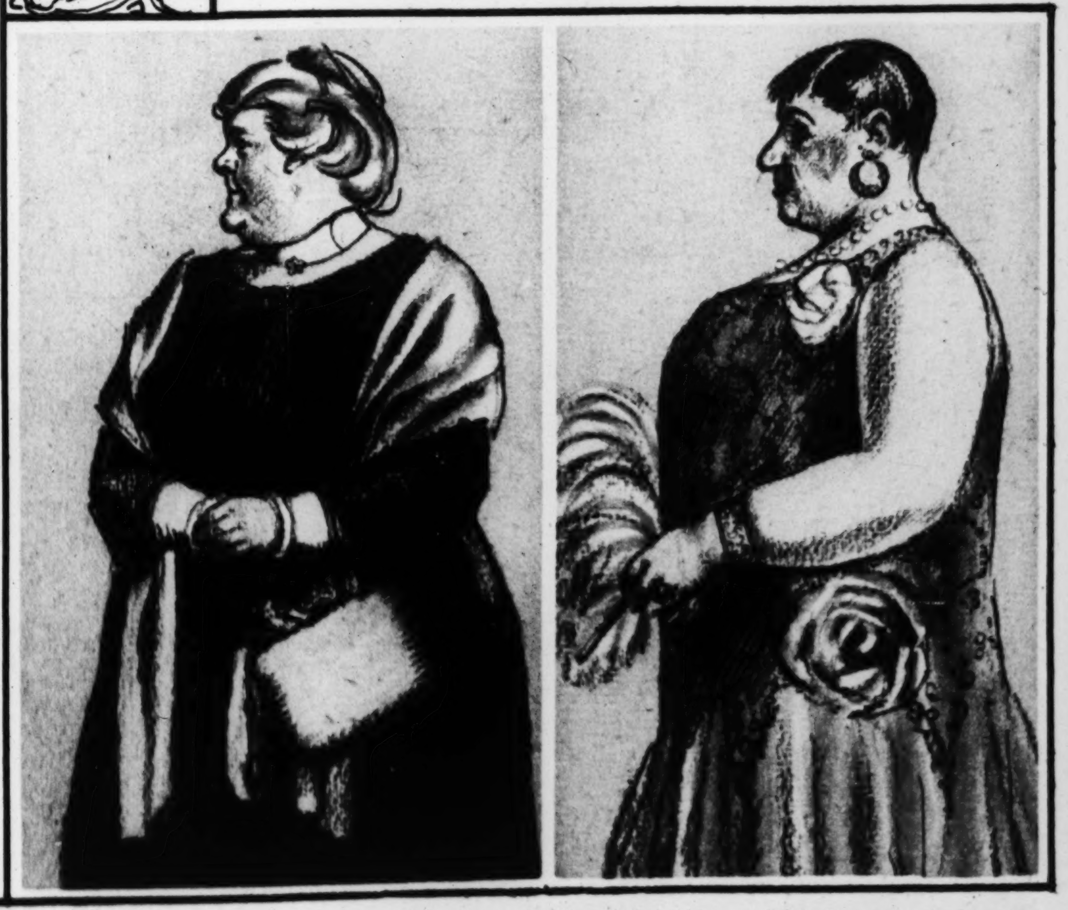
The human string bean. The sedentary young man is very willowy. He is always leaning against something. In a bathing suit he is going to be a great disappointment to some trusting girl friend.



Mr. and Mrs. Fred Musselbaum are of the genus known as "Stylish Stout," which is, we suspect, the national shape in these prosperous United States.



A frontal development like this invariably goes with options, binders, mergers, boosting, and Big Business.



Two aspects of the so-called matronly figure, showing, without more ado, on the left a home girl, and on the right a society beauty ready for the fray.

Doña Castile

the incomparable jabón duro of Spain —

in toilet form

created for fastidious American women

"Land of fine women, and the most perfect complexion in Europe"—so the most renowned connoisseur* of beauty writes of Spain.

And the province of Castilla has given its name to the most perfect toilet soap that women have ever known—Castile! An imported luxury for women of fashion in America and on the continent—the bland jabón duro used by the fine women of Spain for six hundred years. Castile!

Yet, we confess, we have painted the lily—we have made Doña Castile an even lovelier toilet soap than the most precious product of Castilla. How?—well, we have made it in a charming shape for your hand. We have given it a more profuse, a daintier lather. That you may have instantly, even in lukewarm water. That will also rinse instantly! And then—being a "hard-milled" soap—Doña Castile is very very lasting, and will not readily deliquesce—a new virtue in Castile! The little things that make perfection—the little things too that fastidious women value.

Yes; when you use it you will say of this exquisite Castile—"the finest toilet soap in the world." A Castile supremely soothing to your skin, exquisitely cleansing too—a Castile you can be sure of wherever you buy it. You can get it wherever you buy your toilet soap. And for ten cents. Armour, U. S. A.

Pure Olive Oil gives Doña Castile its color, fragrance and delicious blandness for delicate skins.

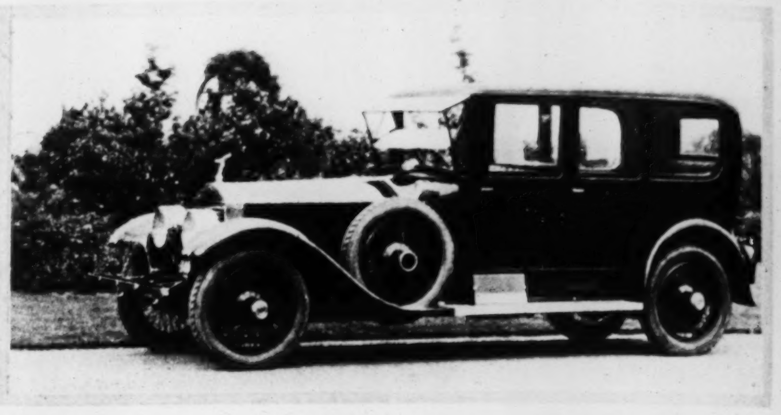
ROLLS-ROYCE

These cars at resale prices provide their purchasers with the performance and comfort of new cars at a 30% saving



THIS summer when you go to the White Mountains, notice the Rolls-Royce cars you see on the road. They purr along, mile after mile, with a smooth ease which makes motoring a high pleasure. "Some day," you have said, "I'll be able to afford one."

Some day? Today! Rolls-Royce is offering, for resale, cars in a variety of coach work designs. They are mechanically perfect, for they have been carefully examined and any part showing evidence of wear has been replaced. Consequently, they bear the same 3-year guarantee as new cars, yet they cost 30 per cent less!

You cannot distinguish them from new automobiles. In paint and upholstery they will represent your particular tastes for they will be finished as you desire. Their responsiveness, performance and comfort equal that of a new Rolls-Royce. Like every Rolls-Royce, whether a day or ten years old, these cars promise virtual freedom from mechanical ills.

CANTERBURY—5-passenger closed model. A design of particular interest on account of the clear vision afforded by large, especially designed windows. Price $10,500.

Open models at $9500. Closed models, $10,500. Complete Rolls-Royce accessories, new tires, freedom from tax and delivery charges. Satisfactory terms without expensive financing charges.

All Rolls-Royce owners, whether the car has been bought at resale or not, have access to the interested, helpful service of every member of our organization. The delivery of the car is the beginning, not the end, of our obligation. Direct works branches in every part of the United States and throughout the world.

You are invited to examine these cars and try them, or to write for a booklet which answers the questions many purchasers ask.

FAMOUS FEET
..how they're kept free from corns..

BABE RUTH'S Home Run Feet

"It isn't always the length of the hit that scores the run. Sometimes it's the speed in getting around the bases. So I have to keep my feet in prime shape."

So writes Babe Ruth—the famous "Bambino" of the New York Yankees.

"Ball players are prone to corns. Our feet get pretty rough service. But I keep mine free of corns by putting on a Blue-jay whenever a potential corn appears in the offing."

When trouble is a-foot—have Blue-jay at hand! For 26 years it has been the standard home corn-remover. Ask your physician or chiropodist! Blue-jay goes to the root of the matter and routs the troublesome offender—usually in 48 hours. But even the most stubborn corn seldom needs more than a second Blue-jay plaster . . . At all drug stores.

COLONIAL TROOPS CHARGE AGAIN AT WHITE PLAINS in a spectacular reproduction of the famous Revolutionary war battle of 150 years ago. Soldiers of the regular army, the national guard, and the citizens' training corps joined in this interesting war drama. These troops, uniformed and equipped as were the fighting men of Washington's day, refought the good fight just as the pioneers fought it. Then the battle was mimicked as it would occur today, with big guns, tanks, and airplanes aiding the infantry.

EVER FEEL LIKE THIS?

Perhaps It's Because of Your Teeth

Germs and poisons of tooth-decay can quickly drag you down—make you feel as though you just couldn't stand the pace. See your dentist. He can repair the damage. Then use Colgate's to keep your teeth in good condition to help you look and feel your best.

Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream is the modern way to make your teeth glisten gloriously. It will whiten them and bring out all their natural beauty. But even more important . . . it will help keep your teeth and gums healthy.

Colgate's penetrates every place where it is possible for germs and food particles to collect. It loosens these impurities at once. Then it washes them away, leaving your teeth and gums absolutely clean. The warm, dark interior of your mouth is an ideal breeding place for germs. Colgate's literally goes right into their hiding places and removes those causes of tooth decay.

And you'll like its taste . . . even children love to use it regularly.

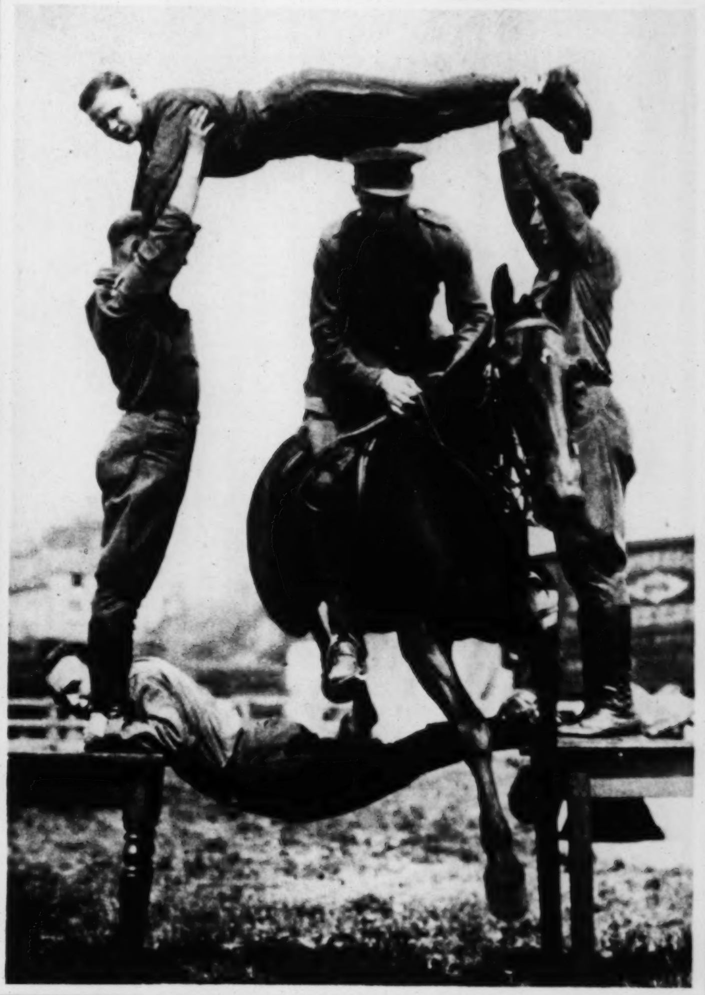
THE BATTLE OF NEW YORK UNIVERSITY. Here are many of the thrills of modern warfare, including a smoke screen which clouds the university's noted Hall of Fame. This sham battle was staged on the campus by the school's R. O. T. C. on its annual field day. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)



HERE'S A NEW STUNT, jumping a horse through a human frame. It's a ticklish job these soldiers of Fort Hamilton, N. Y., have added to the thrills of equestrianism. Somehow, one doesn't seem to envy the chap who forms the bottom of the frame—or his mate across the top, either. (Photograph from International.)

LIGHT WINES AND BEER are magic words for Congressman William S. Vare of Pennsylvania. Making his fight entirely on the prohibition issue, Mr. Vare won a great three-cornered fight for the Republican senatorial nomination. He beat a pair of drys—Gifford Pinchot and Senator George W. Pepper. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

. . . "The pure fruit odor can only be rated perfect!"

96% write of "its Fresh Fruit Taste"

"The children thought I had added fresh orange juice to it."

"I really thought I had fresh fruit jelly."

"That pure fruit odor makes you hungry, even before you open the package."

FROM all over the country women write their praises of Royal Fruit Gelatin. One and all unite to notice and applaud its fresh fruit flavor.

The flavor of Royal Raspberry, Strawberry and Cherry, comes only from the pure juice of the fruit. The lovely refreshing flavor of Royal Orange and Royal Lemon comes only from the oils of the citrus fruits.

The rich heavy gelatin crystals that carry these matchless flavors, have not changed them in any way. There is no "gluey" taste or smell. (Pure gelatin has neither!) No taint of "artificial" flavors or "synthetics." There is no flavor of anything—but fresh fruit!

Gelatin is a necessity where there are children. For them you insist on the best and purest.

ROYAL CINNAMON ORANGES: Cut 3 oranges in half. Scoop out the pulp. Cut handles. Dissolve four 4-inch cinnamon candy sticks in 1 cup boiling water, and pour over 1 package of Royal Orange. When dissolved add 1 cup cold water. Pour into the well-drained orange cups, and chill till firm. Serves 6.

ROYAL CHERRY: a flavor as fresh, as delectable, as inimitable as that of the fruit from whose juices this flavor is made

Royal Fruit Flavored Gelatin has passed the most drastic tests, and come out 100% pure. We offer it with special pride to our Royal Baking Powder friends. You can put equal confidence in Royal Fruit Gelatin.

If you haven't tasted it yet, it will astound you to discover just how good fruit flavored gelatin can be! Now your grocer has it. In the red package, the same color as the Royal Baking Powder can. Ask for it by name. Send for the new Recipe Booklet. It's FREE. Address Royal Baking Powder Company, 100 East 42nd Street, New York, N. Y.

ROYAL Fruit Flavored Gelatin comes in five flavors. Strawberry, Raspberry, Cherry—with delicious flavor from the fruit juices. Orange and Lemon with delicious flavor from Oil of Orange and Oil of Lemon.

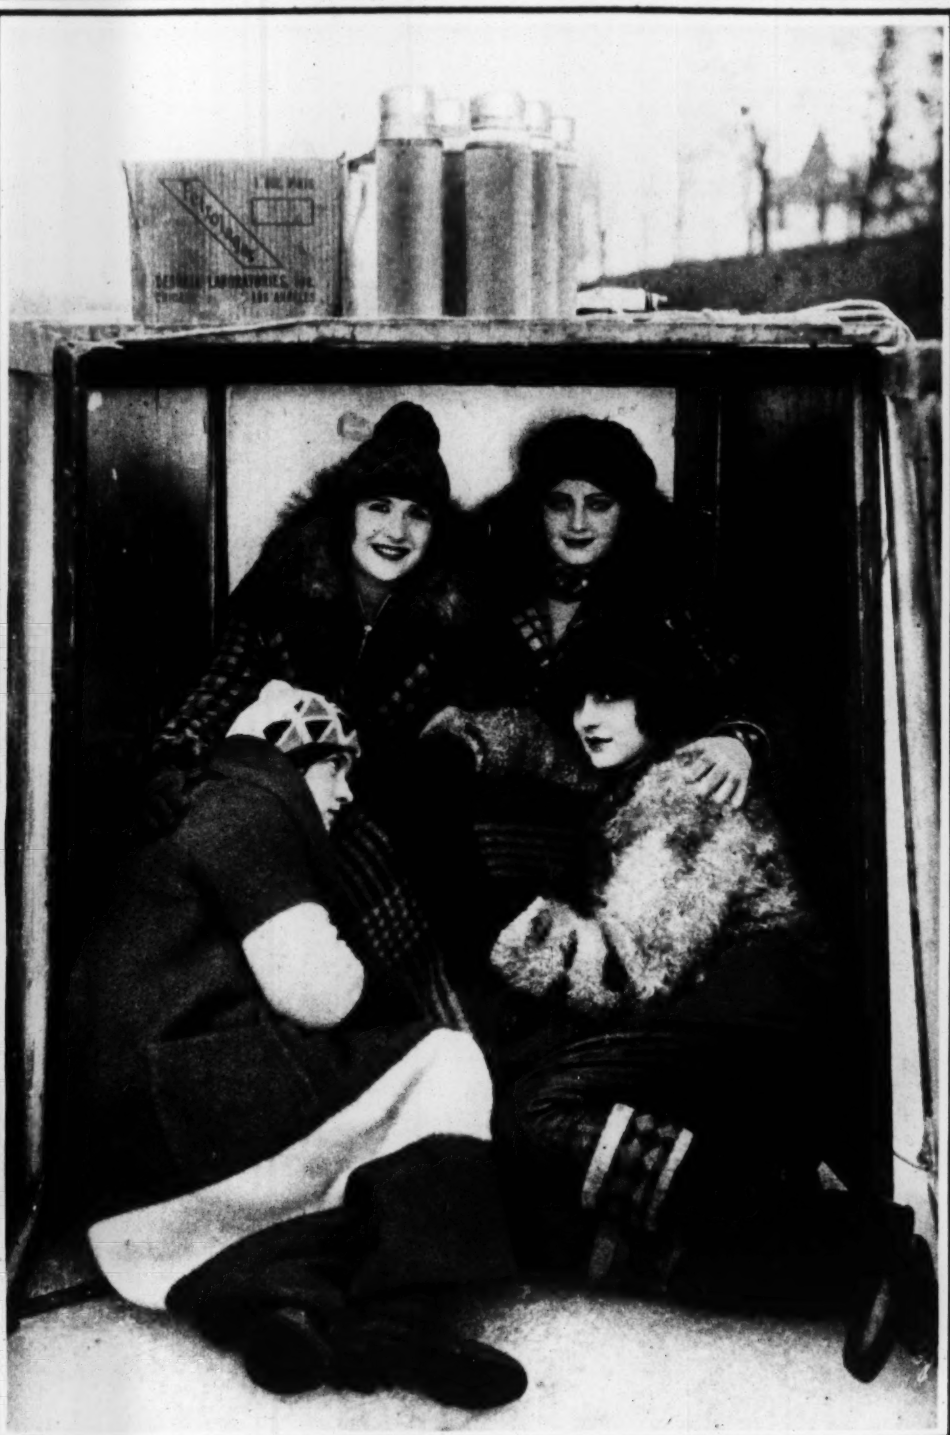
ALYCE MILLS is a decorative young woman who has just completed her first Paramount picture, in which she appeared in support of Richard Dix. It is prophesied by the company that she will become a great favorite.



THE BOX OF PEACHES you see before you makes quite a picture, doesn't it? Only the box isn't a box. It's reflectors arranged to protect—from left to right, Dorothy Nourse, Thelda Kenvin, Josephine Dunn, and Iris Gray—from icy winds blowing across the frozen North Shrewsbury river. The girls were waiting to make a scene in their debut picture, "Fascinating Youth." They will be seen in person this week at a Chicago theater.

ANNA Q. NILSSON just had this lovely picture taken—and we thought we'd pass it along to you for your albums. It was taken during the filming of her coming release, "Miss Nobody."

The discovery that let the Martins furnish their extra room

THEY hadn't hoped to get the beautiful furniture they wanted and complete the whole house—but the Cavalier dealer showed them that fine furniture can be reasonably priced.

Beauty without extravagance

Cavalier Furniture—dining room and bedroom—has the finished beauty of suites many times more costly. The designs are stylish and distinctive. The matched, full-grain walnut veneering is splendidly done and finished to bring out all the richness of the wood.

Nothing is skimped. Drawers run smoothly because of generous, oversize guides. Even the dresser backs are neatly, carefully finished. Every Cavalier piece bears a guarantee of fine construction on the tag. This assures service as well as beauty. It pays you to watch for it and also for the figure of the Cavalier that appears only on the genuine.

See this furniture for yourself

Call at the Cavalier dealer's. He'll show you how to make your furniture budget buy more beauty and greater value than you ever dreamed possible.

Decorating Service—Complete and helpful hints with every suite. Ask your dealer about this and also the decorating manual, "Beautiful Bedrooms and Dining Rooms." Tennessee Furniture Corporation, Chattanooga, Tenn. Makers of bedroom and dining room furniture, cedar chests and refrigerators.

Health may become a shadow unless you guard The Danger Line

To women who value charm, this new knowledge is vital

So OFTEN women lose charm because of trouble with their teeth! And not only the charm of a gleaming, attractive smile. . . .

For we know that the radiant allure of health itself has no more treacherous enemy than tooth decay. Physicians and dentists tell us that thousands fall victims to serious illness—heart and nervous disorders, rheumatism, premature old age—through tooth decay and gum infection. And too often these ills result not only from neglect, but from erroneous methods.

"Brushing not enough," authorities warn

For modern dental science has discovered that merely brushing the teeth is not enough. It is also necessary to neutralize the acids that form every day in everyone's mouth—acids which attack the teeth and gums.

Authorities state that most serious dental troubles start at The Danger Line—where the teeth and gums meet. The edges of the gums form tiny V-shaped crevices there. Food particles collect in these crevices. Then they ferment; acids are formed that cause decay and also weaken the gums, making them subject to disease.

Keep these acids neutralized. Keep the teeth clean and the delicate gum edges strong and healthy. Then you will be free from danger of serious dental troubles.

Protects for hours

Ordinary dentifrices may clean the surfaces of the teeth. But they cannot give the protection you need between the teeth or in the V-shaped crevices along The Danger Line.

The Squibb Laboratories realized this several years ago. Upon the advice of prominent dental authorities, they developed a new kind of dentifrice. A dental cream that not only cleans perfectly . . . but that also protects the teeth and gums against dangerous acids by neutralizing them.

Physicians and dentists long have recognized that Milk of Magnesia is the most effective of all products for neutralizing those acids which attack the teeth and the gums. Squibb's Dental Cream contains more than 50 per cent of this safe, pleasant antacid—enough to neutralize all mouth acids with perfect safety.

Mild—pleasant—effective

You will find that Squibb's Dental Cream is effective and pleasant to use too. So mild and soothing that it could not injure the gums or teeth of the youngest child. And of course it cleans beautifully! It is as safe a guardian of the glistening charm of your smile as it is of the health of your mouth.

Why not avail yourself of its safe, effective protection? Don't let your health and charm remain another day in the shadow of The Danger Line. Get a tube of Squibb's Dental Cream—made with Squibb's Milk of Magnesia—today. Use it tonight. Then you may be sure that your teeth and gums are safeguarded. At druggists—40 cents a tube.

In almost any drug store you will find 20, 30, even 40, different kinds of dentifrices. Many people buy these dentifrices . . . changing from one to another. They seem disappointed. They brush their teeth regularly . . . yet they still have decay and gum diseases. . . . WHY?

Because teeth need more than brushing. They must be protected at The Danger Line.

TRY THIS SIMPLE TEST—Tonight, just before going to bed, take a tablespoonful of Squibb's Milk of Magnesia in water, swallow a part of it—and use the rest to swish about the mouth and as a gargle. You will be surprised in the morning to find how clean and sweet your mouth feels. The Milk of Magnesia will not only have neutralized the acids in your mouth, but sweetened your stomach also. The same results may be obtained by using Squibb's Dental Cream—it contains over 50 per cent Squibb's Milk of Magnesia.

THE BOYS IN BLUE PARADE—With the flutter of flags, the throb of drums and the stirring music of bands, these G. A. R. men and veterans of two other American wars swung down Michigan avenue in Chicago's great Memorial day parade last Monday. Thousands lined the streets and cheered while the uniformed ranks, thousands strong, marched past for three hours. (Tribune photo.)

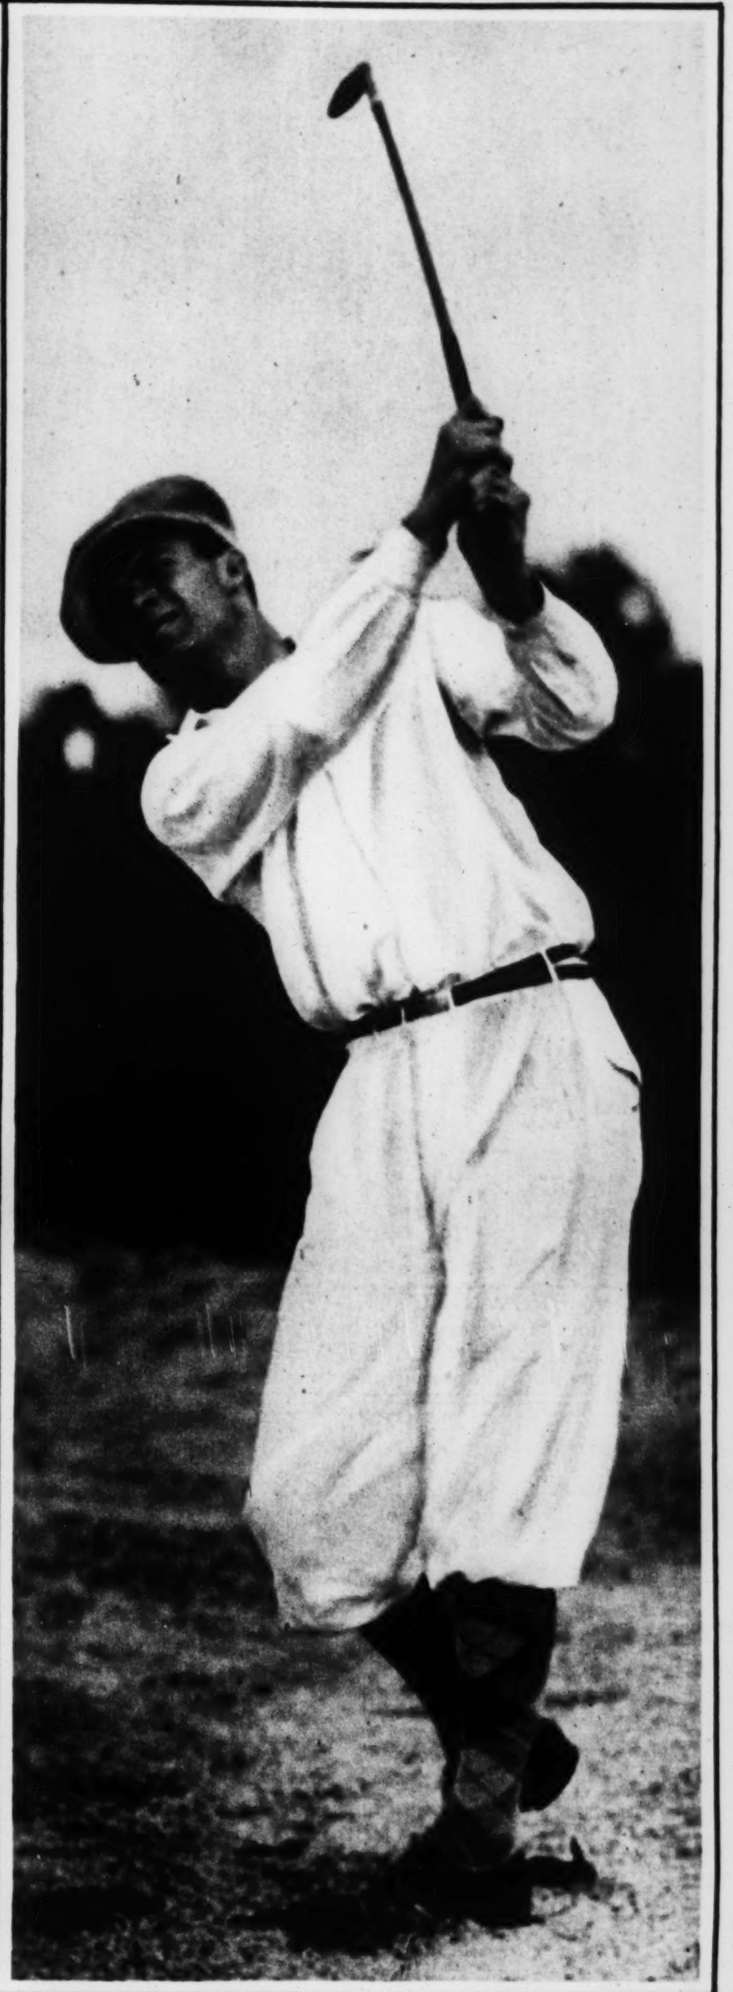
FRANK LOCKHART WINS INDIANAPOLIS MOTOR CLASSIC—The Pacific coast flash of the dirt tracks photographed immediately after his victory in the annual speedway race last Monday. The race was called because of rain at 400 miles. Lockhart led fourteen racers with an average of 94.63 miles per hour, flashing past the checkered flag two laps ahead of Harry Hartz, who finished second. (Tribune photograph.)



AMERICAN WINS BRITISH AMATEUR GOLF CROWN, a championship for which American born golfers had contested vainly for twenty-two years. Big Jess Sweetser, the former Yale hero, came into the title by defeating Alexander Frederick Simpson of Edinburgh in the finals at Muirhead, Scotland, six up and five to play. (Tribune photograph.)

At the Smart French Resorts

THEY DELIGHT IN THE ROSE-PINK OF THIS LIQUID POLISH

THE LOVELY HAND OF MARY GUY

The interpretive French dancer who is soon to appear in this country in motion pictures, says: "In the most diverting dances, Cutex is responsible for the rosy blush on my nails, the enchanting finish to my finger tips that a Parisian audience so much appreciates."

"In playing the guitar, the appearance of my hands is one of my first considerations and Cutex Liquid Polish a friend in need."
—DORA STROEVA, picturesque Russian ballad singer.

"In the salons of my Maison de Modes I always notice the beautifully kept nails of my American clients and know that they have used Cutex."
—MARTHE REGNIER, charming and talented French actress.

PARIS sponsored the vogue for gleaming tinted nails. The sophisticated Frenchwoman enthusiastically adopted the new mode.

It is the rosy gleam of Cutex Liquid Polish that gives her nails their smart accent.

So quick, convenient and lasting.

Just a touch of the soft little brush and her nails stay amazingly lovely all week long. It spreads smooth and evenly and lasts actually as long as her manicure.

No wonder the clever Parisienne and the discriminating women of fashion everywhere choose this smart, effective finish. In fact, in Paris itself and at the smart French Resorts—Deauville, Biarritz, Nice, Cannes, Aix-les-Bains—more is sold than any other kind.

Try Cutex Liquid Polish at the end of the world-famous Cutex manicure. In the new Deep Rose, or the natural pink you already know, a single bottle is 35c—as are all individual Cutex manicure preparations. Sets containing every essential for the home manicure, are 35c to $5.00—wherever toilet goods are sold. See the special offer.

PICTURESQUE PERSIA ACCLAIMS A NEW SHAH—Above, at the left, is a troop of wild Kurdish cavalry saluting Riza Khan, the common soldier who made himself dictator and then king of his country. "I AM AN ATHLETE, having played baseball, basketball and football. The severe and long training for contests was wearing me out. The captain of our high school basketball team advised me to start eating Fleischmann's Yeast. I did so. Fleischmann's Yeast has made my body a picture of health."

Gordon M. Atkins,
Conshohocken, Penn.

"FOR THE PAST YEAR I suffered terribly with indigestion. My system was poisoned and I also suffered from an unpleasant skin trouble. A friend who is a trained nurse recommended Fleischmann's Yeast. I took three cakes a day. Now I am eating freely of all good things. And not a trace of my old ailments remains."

Mrs. M. B. Cochran, Chicago, Ill.

"I WAS A VICTIM of continual suffering, sometimes lessened by a so-called purgative. I resorted to Yeast as a 'regularity' restorative. The result was noticeable within a week. Not only did Yeast effect a complete, natural elimination, but I began to have more life and 'pep.' Yeast has made me exempt from the terrors of constipation."

William F. Shaw, Chicago, Ill.

"AS A GOLFER, and in fact in all my activities, I have found it necessary to be in perfect physical condition. To this end I discovered that three cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast each day keep me up to the mark and forestall that 'staleness' which is so often the result of over-training among athletes. I claim that my 'birdies' on the golf links are the result of daily cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast eaten on crackers."

Merila Rowland,
New York City

Now—They find life worth while

Clogged intestines, skin and stomach disorders corrected—youthful vigor regained—through one fresh food

THIS FAMOUS FOOD tones up the entire system—aids digestion—clears the skin—banishes constipation.

NOT a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense—Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food.

The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion—clear the skin—banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active. And day by day it releases new stores of energy.

Eat two or three cakes regularly every day before meals: on crackers—in fruit juices, water or milk—or just plain, nibbled from the cake. For constipation especially, dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) before breakfast and at bedtime. Buy several cakes at a time—they will keep fresh in a cool dry place for two or three days. All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Start eating it today!

THE CHART IS SO OLD THE INK HAS FADED OUT - IT WOULD TAKE AN EAGLE EYE TO MAKE OUT THE MESSAGE NOW - THE WRITING IS BEYOND THE PERCEPTION OF THIS PERSON'S INCAPABLE VISION -
I KNOW WHAT I'LL DO, I'LL GET UNCLE BIM'S POWERFUL MAGNIFYING GLASS - THEN I BET WE'LL BE ABLE TO READ THAT OLD MAP -
THE MAGNIFYING GLASS, SIR, THANK YOU, SIR -
THAT GLASS WILL MAKE A FLY'S FOOT-PRINT LOOK AS BIG AS AN ELEPHANT'S -
THIS ILLITERATE INDIVIDUAL PERCEIVES THAT MAP IS WRITTEN IN THE BEAUTIFUL LANGUAGE OF SPAIN -
OH, NO WONDER I COULD NOT READ WHAT IS WRITTEN ON IT - YOU TAKE THE GLASS AND TRANSLATE THE MESSAGE INTO ENGLISH -
THIS MAP WAS DRAWN BY DON PEDRO DE SALOVEZ IN THE YEAR 1520 - HE SAYS THE LAND OF MANY DANGERS IS EIGHTY DAYS MARCH FROM THE OCEAN - IT IS IN THE MIDST OF THE HIGH MOUNTAINS - IT IS ENTERED THROUGH THE VALLEY OF MYSTERIOUS VOICES THAT LEADS TO THE LOST CANYON AND DEEP IN THE LOST CANYON IS THE UNDER-GROUND GATEWAY THAT LEADS TO THE CITY OF GOLD - 400 YEARS AGO - HOW TRULY HAS IT BEEN SAID THE GREAT WALL STANDS, THE BUILDER IS GONE -
LET US QUESTION SOME ANCIENT PERSON WHO MAY TELL OF THINGS FORGOTTEN BY THE YOUNG - IT IS WRITTEN WHAT YOUTH LEARNS AGE DOES NOT FORGET -
GEE, I WISH THE OLD PROSPECTOR HAD NOT LOST HIS MEMORY -
OLD MARAKILA THE FORTUNE TELLER MIGHT GIVE US SOME INFORMATION - SHE WAS AN OLD WOMAN WHEN THE FIRST WHITE MAN REACHED THIS COUNTRY -
WE WANT TO KNOW DID YOU EVER HEAR OF A CITY OF GOLD OR A PLACE CALLED THE LAND OF MANY DANGERS? WHERE IS IT? HOW DO YOU GET THERE?
MY PEOPLE KNEW OF THE CITY OF GOLD COUNTLESS YEARS AGO - THE BONES OF MANY BRAVE WARRIORS ARE BLEACHING ON THE BURNING SANDS OF THE DESERT THAT SURROUNDS THE COUNTRY OF MANY DANGERS - THE CITY WAS BUILT BY A RACE OF PEOPLE THAT EXISTED WHEN THE OLD WORLD WAS YOUNG - THEY ALL PASSED INTO THE SHADOWS - EVEN THEIR NAME IS FORGOTTEN -
THE COUNTRY OF MANY DANGERS IS THE HOME OF WARLIKE SAVAGES - TO ENTER IT MEANS DEATH - TERRIBLE STORMS, MOUNTAINS THAT RAIN FIRE AND DEADLY REPTILES ALL COMBINED TO GUARD THE HIDDEN CITY FROM AVARICIOUS MEN -
WHO BUT THOSE OF ILL REGULATED INTELLECT DENY THAT A SMALL GIFT IS BETTER THAN A GREAT PROMISE -
THANK YOU FOR GIVING US SO MUCH VALUABLE INFORMATION -
IT IS WRITTEN A DANGER FORSEEN IS HALF AVOIDED - WE MUST GUARD OUR SECRET FROM ALL UNWORTHY ONES -
THAT MAP IS WORTH MILLIONS - MANY'S THE SAILOR MAN HAD TO WALK THE PLANK FOR LESS - LITTLE DO OUR THREE FRIENDS SUSPECT THAT THEIR CONVERSATION HAS BEEN OVER-HEARD BY THE "WOLF" THE HALF-BREED LEADER OF A CRUEL BAND OF BLOOD THIRSTY SAVAGES —

ASTRO TELLS YOUR PAST PRESENT AND FUTURE
LIAR
MOON MULLINS.
LORD PLUSHBOTTOM AIN'T GONNA BE USIN' HIS CAR FOR A WHILE SO I'M GONNA PARK IN IT WHILE YOU TAKE MY PANTS TO THE TAILOR'S AND HAVE 'EM PRESSED- IT'S TOO HOT SITTIN' INSIDE IN THAT BARREL-AND IT'S THE ONLY PAIR I'VE GOT SO BE CAREFUL WITH THEM.
SAY, JACK- TELL ME WHERE A TAILOR SHOP IS AT?
DON'T YOU EVER SAY "PLEASE", YOUNG MAN? NOW TRY IT AGAIN- "TELL ME WHERE A TAILOR SHOP IS IF YOU ——"
ASTRO THE SEER TELLS YOUR PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE.
—IF YOU KNOW WHERE IT'S AT.
FER TH' LOVA MIKE— MOONS PANTS IS GONE! SOMEBODY'S CUT 'EM RIGHT OFFA TH' SUSPENDERS
I BET THAT ARAB JEST STOPPED AND TALKED TO ME SO HE COULD HOOK 'EM.
AH- THE LITTLE MAN AGAIN. THE PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE HOLD NO MYSTERIES, SIR- WHAT CAN THE GREAT ASTRO DO FOR YOU NOW?
YOU CAN TELL ME WHERE ME BRUDDER MOON'S PANTS WENT?
THE CRYSTAL TELLS ME, SIR, THAT A LITTLE GOAT IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE TROUSERS DISAPPEARANCE.
BAH!
HONK HONK HONK!
I TELL YA I CAN'T GET OUT! I AIN'T GOT ANY PANTS ON.
GET OUT I SAY- THE OLD GENT WANTS TO USE HIS CAR.
GEE WHIZ! MOON'S IN A JAM— NOW I WILL CATCH IT FOR LOSIN' THEM PANTS.
DON'T WORRY MY LAD! GO TELL YOUR BROTHER EXACTLY HOW IT HAPPENED. THE CRYSTAL TELLS ME THAT ALL WILL BE FORGIVEN.
WELL?
MOON, I GOT SOMETHIN' TO TELL YOU—
NOTE FOR MY! MY! WHAT IS WRONG NOW?
WAW!

LOOK, TEXAS— THERE'S MR DALTON TRYING TO CATCH THAT CHICKEN HAWK— WOULDNT IT MAKE A CUTE SNAP SHOT ?
THATS JUST WHAT I WAS THINKING, MISS JESSIE.
DIRTY DALTON DISCOVERS THAT TEXAS SLIM IS QUITE A LITTLE ROUNDER
WATCH ME PICK OFF THAT CHICKEN HAWK WITH YOUR BOW AND ARRER, MISS JESSIE.
OH WAIT AND SHOOT AT THIS TARGET TEXAS IS MAKING OUT OF GRASS, MR. DALTON.
NOW ALL I HAVE TO DO IS COVER IT AND PAINT THE TARGET ON THE CANVASS MISS JESSIE PLUNK!
MISSED IT!
COME ON, DIRTY— HELP US FIND THAT CAN OF PAINT.
WELL, I'LL BE JIGGERED— YOU FOUND IT FIRST THING, DIRTY.
BAH— I CAN'T SEE ANYTHING SO FUNNY ABOUT HAVING TO SCRUB MY FACE WITH TURPENTINE.
HA HA HA HA
HEY, DIRTY— STOP THAT MARE. SHE'S GOT MY LEGS CAUGHT.
SURE, I WILL— TEXAS JUST AS SOON AS SHE MAKES TEN OR TWELVE MORE LAPS.
HEY— WHATS THE BIG IDEA?
WHY YOU—!
THERE— THAT WILL BE ALL FOR NOW, BLACK BEAUTY.
SNIP!
FOR PITY SAKES. WHO LET THAT HORSE LOOSE? LOOK WHAT HE'S DOING, MR DALTON.
HE'S SIMPLY RUINED MY NEW GRASS TARGET.
AW DONT LET A LITTLE THING LIKE THAT WORRY YOU, MISS JESSIE— I FIXED YOU UP A SWELL TARGET.
MR. DALTON!
I GOTTA ADMIT I'M A LITTLE OUT OF PRACTICE, MISS JESSIE BUT I OUGHT TO KNOCK THE APPLE OFF IN SIX OR SEVEN SHOTS.

GASOLINE ALLEY
KING
THERE. THAT'S ALL THE OL' NEWSPAPERS I'VE GOT.
ALL RIGHT I'LL GIVE YOU SIX CENTS.
HERE ARE A FEW MORE, SKEEZIX. GO OUT AND MAKE THE MAN A PRESENT OF THEM.
SURE.
HE'S GONE!
UXTRY! ALL ABOUT THE BIG FIRE!
UXTRY! ALL ABOUT A BIG FIRE!
I DON'T SELL ANY PAPERS. MAYBE I'M TOO CLEAN. I FIX THAT.
ALL RIGHT BOY, I'LL HAVE ONE.
HERE KID THIS PAPER IS TWO WEEKS OLD!
YOU SAY A MAN TOOK YOUR PENNIES, SKEEZIX?
YA! HE TOOK 'EM AN' WENT.
HE WENT THAT WAY
THE BIG BRUTE! BY THE WAY WHERE DID YOU GET THE PENNIES?
THE MAN GIVE 'EM TO ME FIRST FOR A PAPER.
NO WONDER! YOU'D BETTER GIVE THEM TO ME AND GO OUT OF BUSINESS.
AND YOU'RE FILTHY, SKEEZIX. GO HOME AND PUT THOSE CLOTHES DOWN THE CHUTE AND CLIMB INTO THE TUB.
EVENING PAPER BOY.
